Answ. It was very necessary, that they who should be Christs witnesses, should rightly understand, that both the Law, and the Prophets, doe beare record unto Christ, that hee should die for the world, and come againe in the end, to raise up the bodies of the faithfull, and lead them with him into heaven: And for this cause God would have these two excellent Prophets, seene of the Apostles.

Quest. Why doe these two above all the rest appeare unto Christ?

Answ. 1. First, that by Moses, who was truely dead, and by Elias, who was not dead, it might be shewed, that Christ is Lord, and Judge, both of the dead, and living.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Moses and Elias appeare unto Christ, for that speciall conformity, which was betwixt them: for Moses was the giver of the old Law, and Christ of the new; and Elias was a Type of Iohn Baptist, the fore-runner of Christ.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, these two appeare for the signifying of the nature, and perfection of Christ: for as Moses was of a meeke, and gentle spirit, and Elias of a fiery, when God was dishonoured: so Christ is meeke, and gentle, and infinite in mercy, to all penitent, and beleeving sinners, and soules; but infinite in justice, and fiery indignation against all those, who are impenitent, and disobedient.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, for the eminencie of the dignity, and sanctity, and miracles of Moses, and Elias.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, these two appeare, to shew, that Christ came not to destroy the Law, or the Prophets, but to fulfill the Law, and verifie the Prophets.

Vers. 4. VERS. 4. Then answered Peter, and said unto Iesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here; if thou wilt, let us make here three Tabernacles: one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Lord, it is good for us to be here.

St. Bernard applies this briefly to Religion, or the true spirituall Spouse, and Church of Christ: It is good to be here; that is, in Religion, and the true Church: it is good; yea, very good to be a member of this little house, and to be truly religious, and that in many regards, viz.

First, because those who live in the Church, and are of the Church, live more pure, and holy lives, then those do, which are without.

Secondly, because those who are of the Church, and are truly religious, sin much seldomer, then doe they, who are either without the pale of the Church

Church, or are irreligious in their lives; for these sell themselves to worke wickednesse, and that frequently; but those onely sometimes, through infirmity, and frailty: Now there are three reasons, why the religious sinne seldomer then the other: namely,

I. Because hee carefully avoids all evill occasions, or occasions of evill; but those who are not of the Church, run into them.

II. Because hee carefully avoids all evill customes, and labours to resist them; but the other makes custome a law, and is led thereby.

III. Because he carefully shuns the company, society, and conversation of wicked men, but the other rusheth thereinto.

Thirdly, it is good for a man to bee religious, and a member of Christs Church, because such rise from sinne more quickly; they sometimes fall (as was said before) but they lye not long, but speedily renew themselves by repentance: but those who are not of Christs fold, and flock lye, and continue in sinne; yea, wallow in the puddle of iniquity, not hastning at all to come out of the jaws of Sathan.

Fourthly, it is good for a man to be in, and of Christs Church; because then hee will walke more warily, and circumspectly. Religion is a Schoole of wisedome, wherein he learnes the wisedome of God, and how to direct his steps, in the wayes of God, Ephes. 5. 15. Now this wisedome whereby wee may be enabled to walk warily, is acquired by these meanes, and wayes; namely

I. It comes from God, and is procured by faithfull, and fervent prayer, Iames 1. 5. If any man lack wisedome, let him aske it of God, &c.

II. It is learnt by the reading, hearing, meditating, and studying of the holy Scriptures, Psal. 119. 105. And

III. By the godly exhortation, admonition, advice, and counsell of good men. And

IV. By experience, which is the Mistris of things: Paul would have us not to be ignorant of Sathans devices, but learne his craft, and policie; and marke what occasions of evill he doth offer unto us, what impediments hee casts in the way, to hinder us from that which is good; and how he watcheth his time, and opportunity to tempt us unto that which is evill: that the experience of these may make us avoid them the better.

Fifthly, it is good for a man to be truely religious, because such have peace, quiet, and spirituall security, Matth. 11. 29. 30. Those who belong not unto Gods Church, have care, disturbance, feare, and trouble: yea safety no where; for the wicked flee, when no man pursues them: but unto the righteous, there is peace, and a sure resting place.

Sixthly, it is good for a man to bee of Gods flock, and one of his fold, because such have internall joy, comfort, and consolation: yea, can rejoyce in the midst of affliction. Now this spirituall rejoycing springs from these three roots: to wit

I. From humility in the understanding. And

II. From purity in the affections. And

III. From sincerity and truth in the performance of the good will of God. For he that is humble, and lowly in his own eyes, and base and vile in his own conceit, and pure in his heart and affections, and sincere in his life, and without hypocrisie in his obedience: cannot but have a great deal of joy, and rejoycing within.

Seventhly, it is good for a man to be a member of Christs Church; and a servant in this house, because then he shall alwayes dwell in Christs presence, and be in his sight. Peter saith here: Master it is good for us to remain where we are; and why? because Christ was there, and because he was ravished with his glory. So those who are of his little flocke shall alwaies enjoy his presence, and see his face.

Eighthly, it is good for a man to be a religious member of the Church, because then he shall enjoy the society of the Saints: Peter shewed the delight he had in the company of Moses, and Elias, by his desire to make Tabernacles for them; and great is the comfort that the Children of God find in the society one of another; but the joy they shall have in the fellowship of the Saints in Heaven passeth knowledge, and exceedeth expression.

Ninthly, it is good for a man to be a member of the spirituall Church, because then he will not regard, nor inordinately love the world: Peter forgets the world, and all the pleasures and delights thereof; saying Master it is good for us to be here: and those whose hearts are ravished, and enflamed with the love of God, and who are assured of a portion in the Kingdome of Heaven, doe lightly regard the things of this world.

Tenthly, it is good for a man to be in the fold of the true Church, because then hee will die the more confidently and cheerfully; whereas on the contrary the remembrance of death is bitter to of those who are without the wall of the Church.

Lastly, it is very good for a man to be in the Church Militant, because great shall his reward and glory be in the Church Triumphant: but of this we spake before, Chap. 16. 26. And thus we see that it is good for us to be here, viz. in Religion, and the true Church.

§. 2. Let us make three Tabernacles. Sect. 2.

The Papists say, that the Pope cannot erre, we deny this, and prove the contrary by this Argument. If Peter may erre, yea did erre, then the Pope (which they say is his successor) cannot be exempted from erring, but is subject to erre. Argum.

But Peter erred; therefore the Pope may.

That Peter erred, St. Hierome proves from this place, and that

First, because he was contented and sufficiently satisfied in the contemplation of Christs humanity: whereas blessednesse is essentially placed in the contemplation of his Divinity, which St. Peter then saw not.

Secondly, because he sought and desired a mansion

200 sion on earth, whereas he should have desired a heavenly mansion; according to that of the Apostle, we have here no abiding City, but we seek one which is to come.

Thirdly, Peter erred because he was unmindfull of the rest of the Apostles, whereas he should have wished them the enjoyment of the society of their Saviour, as well as himself: but contrarily he saith, Master it is good to be here, although there be but a fourth part of thy Disciples with thee.

Sect. 3. §. 3. One for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias.

Quest. Whether do the blessed soules being separated from the bodies know one another? Or whether shall the Saints know one another in Heaven?

Answ. That they shall, appeares by these reasons; namely,

First, Adam in his estate of integrity knew Eve as soon as he saw her, Genes. 2. 23. Therefore in heaven much more shall the Saints know one another, because their knowledge is there more perfect (in degrees) then Adams was in Paradise.

Secondly, because Peter here having but a taste of the glorious estate, and condition of the Saints in Heaven, knows Moses and Elias: and therefore those who are perfectly glorified shall much more know one another.

Thirdly, the Saints in Heaven shall mutually love one another, with a true, and perfect love: and therefore also shall know one another. A man may love things which he never saw, but scarcely things which he never knew.

Fourthly, those who are in Hell, are endued with such a knowledge, that they can know this or that man: Dives being in Hell, sees, (that is knows) Lazarus in Abrahams bosome: and this knowledge is given them for an augmentation of their torment. And therefore much more the elect and blessed Spirits know one another, because that addes unto their happinesse, and helpes to make it compleat.

Fifthly, the near Relation the Saints have one unto another helps to convince this truth: For what are they? They are all Children of one father, all Servants of one Master; all members of one body: and therefore undoubtedly they shall all know one another.

Sixthly, but yet no carnall thoughts, or imaginations must be had, either concerning the knowledge, or the love of the Saints in Heaven: as though a man should know his wife, or Children, or friends better then others, or love them better then others: for this conceit savours of the flesh, and flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdome of Heaven, all things there being spirituall: for as there shall be a new Heaven, and a new earth; so also there shall be new men, and new affections, and new loves which shal be perfect, and without any dregs.

Verse 5. Vers. 5. While he yet spake, behold a bright Cloud overshadowed them: and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased: hear him.

§. 1. And behold a voice came from Heaven: Sect. 1.

It is not unworthy our Observation, to mark, That God revealed himself to his servants, foure manner of wayes, to wit,

First, by the gift of Prophesie.
Secondly, by ordinary inspiration of the Holy Spirit.
Thirdly, by Urim, and Thummim, light and perfection.
} Now of these three we have to treat of elsewhere.

Fourthly, by Bath-col, per filiam vocis by a little small voice, or an eccho, whereby he answered his servants: Iob cals this vox in silentio, Iob. 4. 16. a silent voyce, And thus God revealed himselfe, to these three Apostles in this place: for There came a voice from Heaven. Syrus, filia vocis, The Daughter of a speech.

§. 2. This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Sect. 2.

Quest. What necessity was there now of this voice unto these, who already beleeved that Jesus was the Son of God, and most dear unto his Father? It was more needfull to have been heard in Jerusalem, by the Priests, Scribes, and Pharisees, who did not beleeve it, but rather contemned and despitefully used him?

Answ. 1. First, it was requisite and necessary, that these Disciples should hear this voice, that this faith which they were to confesse, might be confirmed unto them, by the Revelation and voice of the Father. These Apostles were to be Christs chief witnesses, and were indeed the three chief Apostles; and therefore it was not without need that they should hear this voice, both for their own further confirmation in faith, and for the edification and corroboration of the rest of the Apostles, and other faithfull men and women, 2. Peter. 1. 17, 18.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it is requisite that these Apostles should hear this voice, because although they beleeved Christ to be the Son of God, yet they did not perfectly obey him in all things, as is evident by their forsaking of him and leaving him in the time of his suffering: and therefore they hear a double voice, to wit,

I. This is my beloved Sonne: and this was for the strengthening of their faith,

II. Hear him: and this was for the corroborating of their obedience.

Vers. 9. VERS. 9. And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.

Ques. Why did Christ forbid the publication of his Transfiguration until his Resurrection.

Answ. 1. First, to teach us, to hide our own excellency, so long as we live: that is, if God have endued us with singular gifts and graces, we must not hold hold them forth, through pride or for the applause of men, but rather (as it were) conceal them, that none may judge us to be proud of any thing in us, or highly conceited of our selves.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Christ would not have it yet discovered, lest for the greatnesse and wonderfulnesse of the thing, it should not have been beleeved: and therefore they must not divulge it, untill as wonderfull a thing as this is known unto many; namely, that by his own power he conquered death, and rose from the grave.

Vers. 10, 11, 12, 13. And his Disciples, asked him saying. Why then say the Scribes, that Elias must first come? And Jesus answered, and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things: But I say unto you, that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. Then the Disciples understood that he spake unto them, of John the Baptist.

Vers. 10, 11, 12, 13.

We must here observe: That the Jewes expect Elias Tishbites, to be the forerunner of Christ: and they have a Proverbe when they cannot resolve any hard question to their Schollers; Tishbi solvet nodos, & quæstiones, (Talmud.) When Elias Tishbites shall come, he will resolve all doubts, and questions: But this will be, as we say, Ad Græcas calendas.

For Elias is come already, and they have done to him what they please.

Object: Not onely Jews, but some Christians also hold that Elias is not yet come; and amongst many, Christopher Castrus the Iesuite, on Malach. 4. 8. concludeth it, because it was the voice of the Jews, and the expectation of the Scribes and Pharisees who said that Elias should come before Christs glorious appearing.

Answ. 1. First, the Jews did expect the comming of their Messias, to be glorious in all worldly Pomp; and therefore it follows not: They expected the comming of Elias; Therefore he must come.

Answ. 2. Secondly, our Saviour indeed saith here Elias truly shal first come, and restore al things, but though these words were spoken after John th Baptist was beheaded, yet Christ meaneth not that Elias shall come corporally: but in answering his Disciples he propoundeth the objection of the Jews, which they before alleadged more briefly, and speaketh according to their opinion: Elias indeed shall come; and then in the verse following he saith unto his Disciples thus in effect, by way of correction, whatsoever the Scribes say or affirm concerning Elias his bodily comming; is not literally to be understood; but I say unto you, that Elias is come already. And what he saith to his Disciples here, he saith to the people. Matth. 11. 14. If ye will receive it, this is Elias which was for to come. He foreknew that some would not beleeve him; and therefore he said if ye will receive it, this is Elias: this John (who then did live) is Elias not which shall come (for this is the exposition of the Jews) but this John is that Elias, which was to come, and now is come; and the propheſie fulfilled Doctor Kellet Miscel. lib. 3. Cap. 1. pag. 177.

Vers. 17. Then Jesus answered, and said: O faithlesse and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you: bring him hither to me.

Verse 17.

§. 1. O faithlesse generation. Sect. 1.

Quest. What faith was this which Christ desired in his Disciples, and for the want whereof he upbraids them? For if this faith were the faith of Miracles, then Christ seems to be to blame, to be angry for the want of this faith in any, seeing neither every beleever hath this faith, nor is it necessary that they should have it. Again, if this faith which Christ desires be the justifying faith, then he seems to be no lesse to blame, because he requires of them who have justifying faith, that they beleeve those things which are not contained in the Object of a justifying faith namely miraculous effects; as to cast out Devils, and the like.

Answ. 1. First, hereunto we answer, that faith in generall, is a firm, sure, and constant assent of the mind, which we give unto God speaking unto us in his word.

Answ. 2. Secondly, the word of God doth either, Declare, and Shew, or Promise; and hence ariseth a distinction of faith, for we either beleeve God when he sheweth any thing unto us, or when he promiseth any thing unto us.

I. We beleeve those things which God declares and shews unto us, whether by-past or to come, as, that the world was created, and that there shall be a day of judgment.

Secondly we beleeve those things which God promises, and this God requires of him to whom the promise is made, that he beleeve that the thing promised shall be made good unto him.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the divine promises of God made in the word, are either;

I. Speciall; and these are such as are made to some certain persons, Or

II. Generall, which are made unto all.

First, sometimes God makes some speciall promises to some particular persons; as he promised to his Apostles, that they should be able to cast out Devils, if they would but beleeve.

Secondly, sometimes God makes some generall promises unto all, and thus he promiseth life eternall unto all men if they will but beleeve, John. 5. 9 unto 16.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, that faith which is exhibited to a speciall promise, and that which is given to a generall, agree in this: that as; that which is promised generally comes to passe if it be beleeved, and comes not to passe if it be not beleeved; because if such promises be not credited, God is made a Lyar, as much in man lyes; and therefore justly he refuseth to do what he promised, the condition on mans part not being fulfilled; So, as often, as that which is specially promised is beleeved, it comes to passe, according to the promise made, but if the promise be not beleeved, it comes not to passe.

202

Fifthly, theſe things premiſed we anſwer thus to the Queſtion: The Queſtion was, in what credulity our Saviour upbraids, and taxes both in his Diſciples, and the Jews; or why he twits and reproacheth them both for want of faith? And the Anſwer is becauſe neither the one nor the other beleeved his word.

I. Chriſt had given power to his Apoſtles to caſt out Devils, but they beleeve not this word of their Maſters, becauſe if they had beleeved it, they ſhould then have caſt out all unclean Spirits.

II. Chriſt had openly profeſſed to the Jews, that he was the promiſed Meſſias, and the Son of God, and therefore had power to caſt out Devils, and to work Miracles, and to give health and ſalvation to all thoſe who would beleeve in him, but they doubted of this, and would not credit it; and therefore both Diſciples and Jews, are here juſtly taxed, and called a faithleſſe generation.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And perverſe generation.

Our Saviour by this exprobration of his Diſciples, and the Jews, would teach us what all men are unteill they be truely converted, and turned unto God: namely, faithleſſe, and perverſe: From whence two Queſtions will ariſe.

Queſt. 1. What names are given by Chriſt unto natural men, or all men before their converſion?

Anſw. The appellations given unto them by Chriſt are many; and therefore I but only name them. The naturall, and unregenerate man is called

1. Firſt, an evill man, Luke 6. The evil man out of the evill treaſure of his heart. &c.

2. Secondly, fleſh; John 3. That which is borne of the fleſh, is fleſh. &c.

3. Thirdly, fleſh and blood: Matth. 16. Fleſh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee &c.

4. Fourthly, the world: John 1. The world knew him not.

5. Fifthly, terrene, and earthly: John 3. He which is of the earth is earthly, and ſpeaketh of the earth.

6. Sixthly, the Children of this world. Luke 16. The Children of this world are wiſer. &c.

7. Seventhly, a wicked, and adulterous generation, Matth. 12.

8. Eighthly, a faithleſſe and perverſe generation: in this place.

9. Ninthly, a generation of vipers, Matthew 12. and 3.

10. Tenthly, corrupt and rotten Trees, Matth. 7. 18. 19.

11. Eleventhly, the Children of that evill one, the Devill: Matth. 13. and John 8.

12. Twelfthly, ſtony, and thorny fields, Mat. 13.

13. Thirteenthly, loſt ſheep, Matth. 15. Luke 15. and a loſt groate, Luke 15.

14. Again, Prodigall Children, Luke 15.

15. Again evill ſervants. Matthew 18. and unprofitable ſervants, Matth. 25.

16. Againe, Vnjuſt Stewards, Luke 16.

17. Againe, fooliſh Virgins, Matth. 25. and fooliſh men, Matth 7.

18. Againe, Idle Servants, Matth. 20.

19. Againe, Men that ſit in darkeneſſe, and in the ſhadow of death, Matth. 4. Luke 1.

20. Again, Plants not planted of the Father, Mat. 15.

21. Againe; they are called Workers of Iniquitie, Matth. 7. And

22. Laſtly, dead men; let the dead bury their dead, Matth. 9. And thus by theſe names we may learn what wee are by nature; that ſo loathing our ſelves, and deteſting our preſent condition, wee may flee unto Chriſt for freedome from it.

What are the properties of naturall, and unregenerate men? Queſt. 2.

Firſt, they want originall righteouſneſſe, having loſt it by Adams fall. Anſw. 1.

Secondly, inſtead of that originall righteouſneſſe, which was in them at firſt, they have ourrighteouſneſſe, and originall corruption, or ſin in all their parts, working that which is contrary to the will, and word of God, both in the internall motions of their mind, and will, and in their externall members, Matth. 7. and 12. and John 8. Anſw. 2

Thirdly, they are the ſlaves of Sathan, Mat. 12 John 8. and 12. and 14. Anſw. 3.

Fourthly, they are guilty, both of the wrath of God, and of corporall puniſhment, and of eternall death, John 3. Luke 13. and 16. and John 8. Anſw. 4.

VERS. 18, 19, 20, 21. And Jeſus rebuked the Devill, and hee departed out of him; and the child was cured from that very houre: Then came the Diſciples to Jeſus apart, and ſaid, why could not wee caſt him out: And Jeſus ſaid unto them, becauſe of your unbeliefe: for verely I ſay unto you, if yee have faith as a graine of muſtard ſeed, yee ſhall ſay unto this Mountaine; remove hence to yonder place; and it ſhall remove, and nothing ſhall be unpoſſible unto you. Howbeit, this kind goeth not out, but by faſting, and prayer. Verſ. 18, 19, 20, 21.

I have ſpoken ſomething already, for the ſatisfaction of the vulgar Reader, concerning the weapons againſt Sathan, and the power which ſome wicked men may have over him, and the meanes, and wayes, both wicked, and warrantable, by which he is, or may be caſt out, and diſpoſſeſſed [Chap. 4. 4. §. 1. qu. 1, 2. and Chap. 7. 22. §. 3. qu. 1, 2, 3. and Chap. 8. 16. qu. 1, 2. and verſe 28. §. 1, 2. and Chap. 12. 22. §. 2.]

Our Saviour here, ſaying; If yee have faith, yee may remove Mountaines, may move this queſtion. Queſt. 2.

Whether the Apoſtles, or any other did ever remove Mountaines?

Firſt, certainly the Apoſtles would have removed Mountaines, if they would; becauſe Chriſts words are true, and they had a particular perſwaſion, through faith, to effect this, or that miraculous thing. Anſw. 1.

Secondly, others farre inferiour to the Apoſtles in faith, and holineſſe, have removed Mountaines taines (as followes by and by) and therefore no doubt, but they could have done so also, if need had required.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, many things; yea, many great things certainely were done by the Apostles, which are not recorded: and therfore we know not, but they may have removed Mountaines, although no such thing be upon record.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, greater things then these were done by the Apostles, and are recorded to have beene done by them; [as to restore the dead to life, for to call backe a soule to the body, is more then to remove a Mountaine] and therefore if they did not remove mountaines, yet without doubt, they could have done.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, Eusebius (Eccles. hist. lib. 7. cap. 5.) relates; that one Gregory, a Bishop of Neocesarea; [when there was need to build a Church in a certain place, being too narrow, by reason of a great River on the one side, and a mighty high Rock on the other] by continuing there all night in fasting, and prayer, prevailed with the Lord so, that in the morning the Rock was removed so farre off, that there was space enough left to build, according to their desire. And Faber saith, that hee read in the Historie of the Tartars, of a certain holy man, who when the Tartarians mocked the Christians with this; That their Master promised them, that if they had faith, they should remove Mountaines; as if this were most absurdly spoken, obtained by prayer the removall of a certain Mountaine there, thus stopping their mouthes.

Answ. 6. Sixthly, by this removing of Mountaines is meant the effecting of most difficult things in generall, and even of removing such huge masses of earth in particular, when God will for his own glory.

Answ. 7. Seventhly, we must observe, that there are three sorts of faith mentioned in the Scriptures: namely,

I. An historicall faith, whereby all things are beleeved to be so, as they are propounded in the Scripture; and this faith is common, both to the wicked, and righteous, Iames 2.

II. A justifying faith, whereby a man beleeves the promises of God, and apprehends the mercy and grace of God in Christ, applying it unto himselfe: and this faith is peculiar to the righteous, and not communicable unto the wicked.

III. A miraculous faith, whereby a man firmly beleeves, that nothing is impossible unto God (no not to remove Mountaines) and withall his mind is driven, and moved, by some motions, and blasts of the spirit, to effect some great, and wonderfull thing; and this faith is neither peculiar to the righteous, nor to the wicked, but common to both. For the understanding whereof, observe.

First, this miraculous faith is peculiar (I conceive) to Christians; that is, to the outward visible Church, and cannot be in one, who is not of the Church.

Secondly, this miraculous faith, is not common to all Christians; or unto every particular member of the Church; whether wicked, or righteous, but is peculiar unto some onely. 203

Thirdly, as this faith is not common to all the wicked in the Church, so neither to all the righteous: and herein it differs from justifying faith; for this is given to all the righteous, but not that.

Fourthly, as this faith of Miracles belongs not unto all Christians, so neither unto all times, or ages of the Church; but is proper unto some persons only in the Church, and unto some ages of the Church, 1 Cor. 12. 9.

Fifthly, this miraculous faith can save none; because it is given to the wicked, as well as to the righteous; and because it doth not change the heart, and affections; and because it may bee without love. And this is that faith, which our Saviour in this place speakes of.

Our Saviour in saying here, that unclean spirits are not cast out, but by fasting, and prayer, may move these two questions, which follow.

How may men be delivered out of the snares of Sathan, that are taken captive by him? Quest. 3.

By two wayes are unclean spirits cast out: namely,

First, by the extraordinary gift, and faith of miracles, which though it continued some ages after the Apostles, till the Gospel was universally planted; yet wee hold it generally to be ceased now. Answ.

Secondly, by the ordinary means of fasting, and prayer, which our Saviour prescribeth in this place. By which means we doubt not, but even in these dayes, when it pleaseth God, Satan is chased from the possession of Christs members. We have an example hereof in Luther, who by these means, was a means to free a young man from the Devils power. The Historie is this: A young man (as is credibly reported) having bound himselfe by obligation to the Devill, and sealed the bond, and subscribed it with his blood to give him his soule; so hee would satisfie his desire, and wish, with money, grew in short time to great wealth: Now the matter being disclosed with much adoe to Luther, hee calleth the Congregation together, and joyneth in praier for this young man; and as they prayed, the obligation was cast in at the window. For p. 864.

What are the benefits of fasting, that our Saviour conjoynes it here, with this powerfull, and prevalent means of prayer? Quest. 4.

The benefits of fasting are great; namely Answ.

First, hee that fasteth much, hath not such need of worldly things, and so is more free from covetousnesse, and more enclined to mercy. And

Secondly, he is made more light, and watchfull in prayer, and not sluggish, and drowzie, and so in prayer becomes most powerfull against the Devill.

Thirdly, hee that fasteth, and prayeth, hath two wings, whereby hee fleeth more swiftly, then the very wind.

VERS. 24, 25, 26, 27. And when they were come to Capernaum, they that received tribute money came to Peter, and said, Doth not your Master pay tribute: Vers. 24. 25, 26, 27.

204 Hee ſaith, yes. And when hee was come into the houſe, Ieſus prevented him, ſaying, what thinkeſt thou Simon? Of whom do the Kings of the earth take cuſtome, or tribute, of their owne children, or of ſtrangers? Peter ſaith unto him, of ſtrangers. Ieſus ſaith unto him, then are the children free. Notwithſtanding, leſt we ſhould offend them, goe thou to the ſea, and caſt an hooke, and take up the fiſh that firſt commeth up; and when thou haſt opened his mouth, thou ſhalt finde a peece of money: that take, and give unto them for me, and thee.

Sect. 2. §. 2. They that received tribute money.

The word in the originall is Δίδραχμον, Didrachmum, wee Engliſh it Tribute money: The Syriak readeth Duo zuzim; now that coin which was termed Zuz by the Hebrewes, was anſwerable to the Roman Denarius, whence it appeareth that it valued of ours, 7 s. 3 d. fifteen pence.

Queſt. Moſes ſaith, Exod. 30. 13. The halfe ſhekel ſhall be an offring to the Lord: how then came it to paſſe, that this halfe ſhekel was paid to the Roman Emperours?

Anſw. 1. Firſt, ſome are of opinion, that the poll money, which is called Δίδραχμα, in this verſe, and the other called Δηνάριον, the peny, Matth. 22. 19. were not all one: for this was impoſed as tribute, by way of conqueſt, upon the Iews, according to their ſubſtance; the other they uſed to pay by the poll to the Temple; which the Romans alſo uſurped to themſelves, and diverted it from the originall uſe. Viller. Annot. Matth. 22. 19. But of this more afterwards, Chap. 22. 19.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, Ioſephus ſaith, that Veſpaſian enjoyned the Iews, yeerly to bring binas drachmas, two drachma's into the Capitoll. And Iunius thinks, that there were two kind of the coine, called Denarius, the one of the Sanctuary, which was double to the common, and equivalent to the didrachma, or halfe ſicle; and by this the Prieſts accounted, and the Publicans, and Toll-gatherers by the other. But Denarius being a latine name, and part of the tribute, which they paid to the Romans, and conſequently, a civill, and prophane payment; it is not like that it was reckoned after the account of the Sanctuary.

Anſw. 3. Thirdly, neither was this Denarius the ſame, with the Didrachma, the halfe ſicle, mentioned in this place, for the Denarius, and Roman penny, is almoſt the ſame with the Grecians Drachma, the eight part of an ounce, and the fourth part of a ſicle, and the tenth part of the French Crown; that is, three ſhillings ſix pence French: Budeus; and about ſix pence halfe peny ſterling, or thereabouts: it was as much as an old Groat, when eight Groats made an ounce.

Anſw. 4. Fourthly, this therefore is moſt likely (ſaith Doctor Willet upon Exod. 30. 13. qu. 20.) that both in this place, and alſo Chap. 22. 19. mention is made of tribute, or poll-money, as the Syrian Interpreter cals it Argenium Capitationis, head or pol-mony Mark 12. 14. But Beza ſaith, that in his ancient Greeke Copie, in ſtead of Κῆνσον, tribute, hee found ἐν κεφαλαίῳ, head money, in that place of Saint Mark.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Come unto Peter.

Theſe words are urged by Caniſius, to prove the Primacie of Peter, becauſe the Receivers of cuſtome come unto him. Obſerv.

Firſt, among the twelve Apoſtles, Peter (wee grant) had a three-fold priviledge, or prerogative; as namely, Anſw. 1.

I. Of authority: now by the priviledge of authority, I mean a preheminence, in regard of eſtimation, whereby hee was had in reverence above the reſt of the twelve Apoſtles; for Cephas, with Iames and Iohn, are called Pillars, and ſeemed to be great, Gal. 2. 6. 9.

II. Hee had the prerogative, and preheminence of Primacie, becauſe he was the firſt named, as the fore-man of the Queſt, Matth. 10. 2.

III. Hee had the priviledge of principality among the twelve, becauſe in regard of the meaſure of grace, hee excelled the reſt; for when Chriſt asked his Diſciples, whom they ſaid hee was; Peter as being of greateſt ability, and zeal, anſwered for them all, Matth. 16. 16. I uſe this clauſe, among the twelve, becauſe Paul excelled Peter, every way in learning, zeal, and underſtanding, as farre as Peter excelled the reſt.

Secondly, but wee deny, that Peter was the Prince of the Apoſtles, or the Monarch of the Church. I enlarge not this, becauſe wee have proved it ſufficiently before, Chap. 10. 2. §. 2. and alſo have much further to cleare it afterwards. Anſw. 2.

§. 3. Of whom doe the Kings of the earth take cuſtome, or tribute? Sect. 3.

How came it to paſſe, that this halfe ſhekel, or Didrachma (which at firſt was ordained to bee paid, as an offering to the Lord, Exod. 30. 13.) was paid by Chriſt, and others for tribute, unto the Roman Emperours? Queſt.

It ſo pleaſed God, that this portion which was firſt ſet apart, for the uſe of the Temple, was uſurped by the Roman Emperours, and turned to a civill uſe: and that. Anſw.

Firſt, becauſe Dei jugum excuſſerant, they had caſt off the Lords yoke, the Lord departed from his right, and delivered them over unto hand Lords, Calvin. And

Secondly, becauſe they gave but with a grudging mind to the Temple, they are now turned over unto others; for ſo it falleth out often, that Quod Deo denegamus & hoſtis eripitur, what we deny unto God, the enemy taketh away. Gelaſ. in Exod. And

Thirdly, becauſe by the comming of Chriſt, the externall worſhip preſcribed by Moſes, was to be aboliſhed, God would have this penſion taken away from the Temple, whereby it was maintained. Sinler. ſ Exod. 30. 13. And

Fourthly, although our Saviour did pay this tribute, yet did hee not thereby approve the unjuſt exactions, and impoſitions of the Romans; but giveth (for, or in the doing of it this reaſon) leſt wee ſhould offend, that is, Ne ſuſpicionem illi demus, &c. leſt wee ſhould give them occaſion of ſuſpicion, as though wee ſhould be ſeditious, or diſturbe the Kingdome, [h]. Chriſt therefore by his example teacheth the people, not to move any [ſ]. tumult tumult, or ſedition, about their tribute, as they had before time, but willingly ſubmit themſelvs to that yoke, which for their ſinnes was laid upon them.

[h] Muſcul.

Sect. 4. §. 4. Then are the children free.

Object. 1. Theſe words are objected by Sampſons Foxes, the Anabaptiſts, and the Papiſts, whoſe heads are diametrally oppoſite, but in their tailes they carry fire-brands, for the deſtruction of Proteſtants, and the truth which they profeſſe.

Anſw. The Anabaptiſts object this place againſt Chriſtian Magiſtrates, and Governors thus: Chriſt here ſaith, that the Kings ſonnes are free from tribute; and therefore, ſo are alſo the ſonnes of God from ſubjection unto any, but only Chriſt.

Chriſt ſpeaketh this of himſelfe, who by his birth was Heir to the Crown, and Kingdom of the Iews; and therefore by right was to pay none; neither did, but for avoiding of offence only (as Mr. Perkins thinks, although ſome others thinke otherwiſe, as followes in the next queſtion:) wherefore this place ſerves not at all, for freeing of others from obedience to the civil Magiſtrate, or any Chriſtian Governors.

Object. 2. The Papiſts object theſe words, to prove; that the goods of the Clergie, both ſecular, and Eccleſiaſticall, are, and ought to be exempted from paying of tribute to Princes: ſome of them reaſon thus, out of theſe words, Chriſt ſaith to Peter, What thinkeſt thou, Simon? of whom do the Kings of the Nations receive tribute, of their own, or of ſtrangers? Simon anſwered, of ſtrangers: the Lord ſaid, then are the children free. But Clergy-men are the children of the kingdom, therefore they ought to be free. Thus reaſoneth Marſilius de Padua, and the Rhemiſts, Mat. 17. ſect. 8. Bellarmine reaſoneth thus, The children of Kings, with their families, are exempted from paying of Tribute, Mat. 17. 26. but the Clergy properly belongs unto the family of Chriſt; and therefore they are exempt from tribute.

Anſw. 1. Firſt, here is a groſſe abſurdity committed on all hands; for they teach, and hold that the Clergie have not this liberty, and immunity from paying of tribute, by the Law, or word of God, but by the grant of Princes themſelves (Rhemiſt. Annot. Rom. 13. 5. 5. & Bellarm. de Clericis cap. 28.) and yet they go about (againſt themſelves, and their own aſſertion) to prove this Tenet from Scripture.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, to Marſilius his Argument, Bellarmine himſelf gives a double anſwer, viz.

I. That by this reaſon, all Chriſtians, as well as Clerks, ſhould be exempted from tribute; becauſe they are all the ſons of God, being born anew in Baptiſme.

II. Chriſt ſpeaketh onely of himſelf; that as Kings children are freed from tribute, ſo much more he (who is the ſon and heir apparent of the King of kings) ſhould be exempted from all temporall tribute.

Anſw. 3. Thirdly, Chriſt ſtandeth not upon any ſuch privilege, as he might juſtly allege; but notwithſtanding leſt he ſhould offend, yieldeth to pay tribute: therefore by the words of our Saviour, it is ſcandalous and offenſive for any to plead privilege in denying Tribute to Princes: and thus anſwers D. Willet, Synopſ. pag. 166. But D^r Ameſius (Bell. enerv. tom. 2. p 147.) affirms (and that with reaſon) that Chriſt himſelf, as he was ſubject to the Law, was bound to pay this Tribute, and Cuſtome-mony: and therfore (as Cajetan wel obſerves) if he had not done it, he had given an active, not a paſſive offence. Ne ſcandalizemus, dicit, non ne ſcandalizentur, v. 27. He doth not ſay, We will pay, leſt they ſhould be offended; but leſt we ſhould offend: as though (in regard of his ſubjection to the Law, whereunto he was made ſubject for us) he had offended if he had not paid: although true it is, that as he was conſidered as the Son of God, he was not bound unto any ſuch payments, being ſuperiour unto all Kings, and the greateſt earthly Monarchs but onely his ſubſtitutes or deputies. Now howſoever we conſider Chriſt, whether ſimply, as God, (and ſo ſubordinate unto none) or as man (and ſo made ſubject to the Law:) yet this act, or theſe words of his, will exempt none from paying of Tribute to Princes; for that which Chriſt did as God, is no preſident for mortall men to imitate (neither are the Papiſts ſo impudent as to avouch it:) and as man we ſee he paid Tribute, and was ſo to do: and therefore untill the Popiſh Clergy be Gods, and not men, they cannot be exempted from theſe Cuſtomes and Tributes by our Saviours words.

Anſw. 4: Fourthly, learned Cameron anſwers here, that the producing of this place, for the confirming of this Popiſh Tenet, is nihil ad rhombum, nothing at all to the purpoſe: becauſe the Tribute which is here required of Chriſt, and payed by him, was not that which belonged unto the Magiſtrate, but (which by the preſcript of the Ceremoniall Law) was to be paid for the uſe of the Sanctuary. And therefore, this is no ground for non-payment of Tribute to Princes. His grounds and Arguments are ſolide, and convincing, but I ſet them not down, becauſe they are ſomething large. See Cameron, Myrothec Evang. in Mat. 17 24 pag. 54, 55, 56.

Anſw. 5: Fifthly, Sed dato, non conceſſo; but ſuppoſe we ſhould grant this (which we muſt not) that the holy Ghoſt in this place ſpeaks of that Tribute which was paid to the Magiſtrate, and that Chriſt exempted both himſelf and his Diſciples from it, ſo long as he was with them in the earth: yet it follows not hence, that this immunity and privilege belongs unto the Apoſtles ſucceſſours. For

I. Although Chriſt were free from the payment of theſe Taxations, and Toll, and Tributes to the Magiſtrate; yet it follows not hence, that this privilege belongs unto the Miniſters of the Church, by right.

II. Although the Apoſtles of Chriſt were free from the payment of Tribute to Princes, ſo long as their Maſter lived with them; yet it doth not follow hence, that this privilege belongs to the Apoſtles ſucceſſors. If the Reader would ſee both theſe demonſtrated, and the Argument proſecuted, 206. ted, let him reade the forenamed Author. Cameron, pag. 57, 58.

Answ. 6. Sixthly, for fear we should want weapons, Bellarmine hath put a sword into our hands for the conquest of himself: and by the same reason that he confutes Marsilius, is himself confuted. By Marsilius Argument, all the faithfull (saith Bellarmine) are exempted from paying of Tribute to the Magistrate: And why? Because they are all Gods sons. By Bellarmines Argument (say I) all the faithfull are exempted from paying of Tribute to Christian Princes, or others: And why? Because they are all Gods servants, and of his family, as well as the Clergy are. We of the Ministery are called Clerks, or Clergy-men, that is, Gods portion, or inheritance: now are not faithfull people so also? God, we know, is no respecter of persons, (Acts 10, 34.) and therefore he respects a faithfull sheep as much a faithfull shepherd, Cæteris paribus. But Bellarmine saith, that Ministers properly belong unto the family of Christ. Are faithfull people then retainers, or hangers on? are they not as properly of Gods family, as Ministers are? yea, doth not the Apostle totidem verbis, call them, and say of them, that they are of the houshold of Faith, Gal. 6. 10. and of the houshold of God, (Ephes. 2. 19.) and fellow Citizens with the Saints.

Sect. 5. §. 5. Liberi: children are free.

Quest. What freedom doth our Saviour here speak of?

Answ. There is a double liberty, namely,

First, spirituall: and thus all Christians are made free; because by Christ they are freed from the yoke of sin, and bondage of Satan: according to that of our Saviour, If the Son have made you free, then are you free indeed.

Secondly, corporall: and thus the faithfull are not freed from tribute, but bound to pay it, according to that of our Savior, Give to Cæsar, those things which are Cæsars; and of the Apostle, Give tribute to whom tribute is due, and custome to whom custome longs. And this is the answer of that ingenious, Papist Carthusian upon this place, who saith indefinitly, Fideles tenentur ad tributa, the faithfull are obliged to pay tribute unto Magistrates, neither excluding Clergy nor Laity; Carthus. f. pag. 147. a. initio.

§. 6. Thou shalt finde a peece of money. Sect. 6.

The word here is Στατῆρα, Stater, which we English a piece of mony at large, but it contained precisely two Didrachma. For the tribute mony to be paid for each person, was Didrachmum, as is evident from verse 24. (And they that received Didrachma, came unto Peter, &c.) And this Stater was paid for two, namely, for Christ, and Peter, verse 27. and the value of it was about 2 s. 6 d. half a crown. For we must observe, that every person was taxed at two Drachma's, or Roman pence, which two pence made the Didrachma; that is, the double Groat, or half Sicle, which every one was set at: and two of those double Groats made but one Stater, which is usually translated, a piece of twenty pence; but it was a full Sicle, which was half an ounce, and consequently a third part more, namely (as was said) thirty pence; which Peter here payed for his Master, and himself.

§. 7. That take, and give for me and thee. Sect. 7.

We, against the Church of Rome, affirm, that Argum. the Clergy are liable to pay Tribute, Subsidies, and Taxes unto their Princes: and we prove it from this place, where our Saviour (as wee see) pays poll-mony; and Rom. 13. where every soul is commanded to be subject to the higher powers; and there, verse 5. paying of Tribute is made a part of subjection: the Argument therefore thus followeth, Clergy-men are subject to Princes, therfore they ought to pay tribute.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Verse 1. VERS. 1. At the same time came the Disciples unto Iesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of Heaven?

Quest. WHy is the kingdom of God, and of Christ, here called the kingdom of Heaven?

Answ. 1. First, because the King of this kingdom, is not terrestriall, or from earth, but celestiall, from Heaven.

Answ. 2. Secondly, because the seat of this King, is not in earth, but in heaven, there he raigns, and from thence he manifests his justice and power.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, because the members of this kingdom, are the faithfull, who although in regard of their naturall condition, they are terrene, & animall, yet assoon as they are admitted into this kingdom, they are made celestiall and spirituall. For such as the King is, such he makes his subjects to be. And therefore, although the faithfull are conversant in the earth, yet they have their πολίτευμα, or conversation in Heaven.

Fourthly, because the certain seat of the Subjects of this kingdom, is no otherwhere than in Heaven: and therefore they are in the earth as strangers and pilgrims, and are accounted of the world as Aliens, and Forrainers. Answ. 4.

Fifthly, this kingdom of Christ is called Heavenly, by reason of the government thereof, which is altogether celestiall and spirituall. Answ. 5.

VERS. 3. Verely, I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of Heaven. Vers. 3.

Except ye become like little children.

In what sense doth Christ take Children in this place, and how many waies is the word Childe taken in Scripture? Quest.

First, we are called Children sometimes, when Answ. 1. we we are humble, lowly, and poor of spirit, as in this verse.

Answ. 2. Secondly, we are called Children sometimes, when we are without vice, and malice; as 1 Corinthians 14. 20.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, sometimes we are called Children, as considered under the Law, Gal. 4. 1. and 1 Cor. 13. 11. When I was a Child, that is, When I was under the Law.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, we are called Children sometimes, because we are yet weak in grace, 1 Cor. 13. 11, 12.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, we are called Children, because like Children, we have always need to be fed with the word as with milk, 1 Pet. 2. 2.

Verse 7. VERS. 7. Woe unto the world, because of offences, for it must needs be that offences come; but woe to that man, by whom the offence commeth.

It is principally necessary that these words should be lively laid open, before the eyes, and deeply imprinted in the heart of all Christians in these daies, amongst whom nothing is more frequent, than giving and taking of offence: and therefore I will treat of them particularly, and something more largely than ordinary.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Woe unto the world, because of offences.

Quest. 1. What was the occasion of our Saviours uttering of these words, concerning Scandals?

Answ. 1. First, some say, these words have reference to chap. 17. verse the last, where our Saviour speaks of paying of tribute; as if he would say, ye must rather pay impositions and taxes, than give offence, because Woe unto the world, by reason of offences.

Answ. 2. Secondly, some say they were spoken, by reason of the Ambition of the Apostles; for they desire to know of Christ, Who should be greatest in the kingdom of God? verse 1. Whereupon our Saviour doth

I. Shew them, by the humility of Children, what their duty is, verse 2, 3, 4, 5. Then

II. He teacheth them, what it is, and how dangerous it is to offend one of these, verse 6. And

III. Then, and thereupon handleth the generall Doctrine of Scandals, and Offences.

Quest. 2. What is meant by the world, which is threatned here, by reason of Scandals?

Answ. Men are ordinarily divided into these two ranks, namely,

First, into the Church, and congregation of the Righteous. And Secondly, into the Synagogue, and assembly of the wicked. And these are called the World, ordinarily and usually, because they are many. From whence we may learn,

Observ. That many are subject to this woe, that is threatned for Scandals and Offences of the world, and many in the world shall sorrow, and smart for the offences they give, Hos. 4. 3.

Quest. 3. How doth it appear, that the number of those who are scandalous and offensive in the world, are many, or that many give offence?

Answ. 1. First, it appears from the Author of these Scandals, the Devill, who is both strong, and crafty, and vigilant, and indefatigable (1 Pet. 5. 8.) and an enemy unto mankind: desiring the destruction and death of all, as God desires their salvation and life, 2 Peter 3. And therefore he prevails with, and against many.

Secondly, it appears also by his instruments, who are many: but principally these two viz.

I. Persons, or men: that is either

First, perverse, and obstinate, who hate all goodnesse and scandalize all good men. Or

Secondly, diabolical men, who like Sathan himself, labour to lead others unto Hell along with them, and tempt them to be as wicked as themselves: as though Iuvat socios habuisse dolores, it would be an ease unto them, to have co-partners in their misery. Answ. 2. Or

Thirdly, beastly and Swinish men, who for the satisfying of their lust, and unsatiable covetousnesse, care not what scandals, and offences they give. Or Fourthly, ignorant men, who thinking evill good, and good evill, do therby frequently give offence to those, whose judgements are rightly informed.

II. Things are sometimes the Devils instrument to work Scandals, as well as persons viz.

First, the sweetnesse, delight, and pleasure, which is in that which is evill: And Secondly, the difficulty of that which is good. The Devill lends men a glasse, wherein they see how easie sin is, and how hard the service of God is; how full of pleasure sin is, how painfull the service of God is, how delightfull and pleasing to flesh and blood the wayes of wickednesse are, and how tedious and irkesome to our corrupt nature the wayes of grace are; and the sight of these makes us more prone unto evill, and pulls us back from that which is good, and consequently makes us scandalous, and offensive to Christs little ones.

Thirdly, it is further evident that there are many in the world who give offence, and scandall to the Children of God; because as he than is strong, and mighty, and his instruments subtle, and many, so we naturally are weak, and prone, to choose the worst. Answ. 3.

§. 2. For it must needs bee, or, it is necessary that offences should come. Sect.

Why doth our Saviour here say, I but it is necessary that offences should come? Quest.

There is a double reason, or cause of the necessity hereof; namely, Answ.

First, in regard of the end, and thus Saint Paul saith; it is necessary that heresies must come, that the good may be known, 1 Cor. 11.

Secondly, offences are necessary in regard of the corruptions of the world; for the world is so corrupt and wicked that it is impossible, but offences should come; whence we learn, That the Gospel shall never be free from scandals, Acts. 28 22. and 1 Corinth. 4. 9 and 2 Pet. 2. 3. Observ.

Why will the Gospel bee alwaies subject to scandals? Quest. 2.

First, because men by nature are suspicious, and will imagine that there is in the servants of God hypocrisie, or pride, or unfitter respects, or secret Answ. 1.

ends;

208 ends, or the like, for which they scandalize them: as though it were indeed as they sinisterly imagine.

Answ. 2. Secondly the very Doctrine of the Gospell is hard; and therefore is offensive to the nature of man, who desires to walk in the way of ease, Iohn 6. 60. and 1 Corinth. 1. 16, 21.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, Sathan doth continually raise up some enemies or other; and therefore the Church in no age hath, or shall be free from some who therein shall give offence to Religion, and the Gospel of Christ; Acts 2. 13. and 4. 1. and 5, 17, 40. and 6. 11. and 1 Cor. 16. 9.

Quest. 3. What is here required of us?

Answ. 1 First, we must not wonder although the profession or professours of Religion be scandalized, yea, compassed about with calumnies: for Christ himself was calumniated, Luke 2, 34. and 12. 51. And the Primitive Church was reported to have sacrificed children, to have been Nicolaitans, with other wicked scandals, and slanders.

Answ. 2. Secondly, we must expect oppositions, that so wee may be armed the better against them: and that,

I. By a constant resolution, that no detractions, derisions, slanders nor reproaches, shall cause us to turn our feet out of the wayes of God. And

II. By circumspection, and watchfulnesse, Ephes. 5. 15.

Thirdly, we must take heed, that we be not offended with any thing that happens, or falls out, but avoid the Ordinary causes of offences, which are these, to wit,

I. Some are offended with Religion, because the persons of the Religious are despised. Read Matth. 13. 57. &c. Mark 6. 3. Iohn 7. 41, 47.

II. Some are offended with Religion, because the life of the Religious is somewhat popular, and not so strict, as they would have it. Thus some stumbled at Christ when they said: Why doe the Disciples of Iohn, and of the Pharisees fast, but thy Disciples fast not? Matth. 9. 11. Iohn 8. 48.

III. Some are offended with Religion, because the Religious are still subject to the crosse, and under the rod; Matth. 26. 31. and 1 Corinthians 15. 19.

IV. Some are offended even with the Doctrine of the Gospel, Acts. 28. 22. and 1 Corinth. 1. 23. And that either,

First, because the Gospell is preached: Acts 4. 2. and 13. 45. &c. Or

Secondly, because Christ publisheth, and proclaimeth himself to be the Son of God. Iohn 5. 18. Or

Answ. 3. Thirdly, because it seems absurd, that we should obtain life by Christs death, or be freed from death by him, who was taken captive of death, and subjected thereunto. Thus the Two Disciples were offended because of Christs death. Luke 24. And hence the Christians were made a mocking-stock of, by the Iews, because they beleeved in a crucified God, Iohn 6. 52. 60. Or

Fourthly, because Christ abrogated the Law of Moses, Acts. Or Fifthly, because he gives salvation freely unto us, without any merit or work of ours. Matth. 19. 3. Philip. 3. 9. Or

Sixthly, some are offended, because Religion is too severe: and will not allow them sometimes to follow and fulfill the desires of their own hearts: Or

Seventhly, some are offended with Christ, because he is to liberall, and free, in reprehending of them, Matthew 15. 12. Iohn 8, 33, 45. Or Eighthly, some are offended with the Gospell by reason of the many dissensions, and diversities of opinion amongst Christians: and this is the frequent Objection, and cavill of the Turks and Heretikes. Now these and all other causes of offence we should cautelously avoid, and let nothing make us stumble at Christ, or at Religion.

§. 3. Vt Scandala, that offences should come. Sect. 3.

The meaning of these words, Woe be unto the world, by reason of offences, is, woe bee unto the world because many scandals shall arise therein, and there shall be many offences, in the plurall number, Scandala; to teach us,

That many offences are to be expected in the world. Observ.

What is an Offence, or Scandall? Quest. 1.

Answ. 1. First, in generall the word is derived from the Greek word σκανδαλον, which comes ἀπὸ τοῦ σκάζειν, from halting, because a stumbling blocke being laid in the way, causeth a man to halt, and fall. Some say that σκανδαλον is the same with σκανδαλη-θρον, which signifies that crooked part of the trap, whereunto the bait is fastned, upon which the creature eating, and gnawing, puls the trap down upon it self. Suidas.

Answ. 2. Secondly, or the word Scandall, comes from the Hebrew word, or the Syriacke. For Syrus saith that Machshola a Scandall, comes from Casal Impingo, to beat, knock, or dash against it, Now the Hebrews say, that Michshol a Scandall, comes from the root Casal which signifies to offend: And therefore to scandalize and offend, doth signifie a giving occasion unto others to stumble, and fall, and hurt themselves.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, more particularly, this word Scandall, is taken three manner of wayes; to wit,

I. Sometimes for evill, losse, and an impediment: and thus it is frequently taken in the old Testament.

II. Sometimes it is taken for an offence against the conscience of our Brother, who is zealous for Gods glory. Thus the Athenians were an offence unto Paul, whose heart burned, and whose Spirit was troubled in him, when he saw their Idolatry, Acts 17. 16.

III. Sometimes it is taken for a tentation, whereby our Brother is drawn unto sinne. Now these two latter properly are Scandals, and offences, but not the 1st. The meaning therefore of the point is this, That so long as we live in the world, we shall heare, and see many things, which will will offend us, if we be zealous for Gods glory, yea many things, whereby God is dishonoured, and Religion scandalized: yea we must expect temptations, and provocations from others unto evill, that so we may arme our selves against them and labour to prevent them.

Quest. 2. How many sorts of Scandals; or Offences are there?

Answ. There is a double offence, or Scandall; namely,

First, Scandalum datum: an offence which is given: and this Offence is either,

I. In the will of the Agent: and that whether it respect. First, a mans self that is, either

I. His gain, pleasure, or satisfaction: now this is understood of those who tempt others unto adultery, or drunkennesse, or murther, or lying, or theft, or perjury &c. Or

II. His pride; not caring who is offended: Sic volo, Thus I will doe, let others think what they will, I care not: Now these are blame-worthy, not so much because they look upon their brethren in envy, as because they doe not respect them in love: for we should bear that love unto our Brethren, that we should not offend them at all, if it lay in our power: for if we willingly offend these little ones, when we are left free, we are inexcuseable, and subject to the woe denounced in the Text. Or

Secondly, these voluntary offences respect our brethren; when men do those things which are offensive to the Children of God, and that out of envy, and for this end, that they may be offended. Num. 31.16.

Certainly none can be free from misery that thus giueth offence, our Saviour here denouncing a woe against such. And thus we see how this offence given is voluntary, or, in the will of the agent. Or

II. There is an Offence given, which consists in the nature of the action: and thus,

First, some things are offensive to a mans self. Matth. 5.30. If thy hand offend thee &c. but this is improperly, or at least, lesse properly called an Offence.

Secondly, some things are offensive to our brethren: and thus all publike sinnes are, 2 Samuel 12 14. Thus much may suffice for the understanding of Scandulum datum, the Offence given.

Secondly, there is Scandalum acceptum, an offence which is taken, but not given: and herein we have two things to observe: namely,

I. The description thereof viz, An offence taken, is when our brethren are offended with that which we do, without any fault in us at all: that is, when there is in us neither a will or desire to offend them, nor any direct depravity in our actions, wherewith they are offended.

II. Wee have to consider the Destribution of this offence taken, viz. it consists, either

First, in an indifferent, or adiaphorall action; which is two-fold; to wit, either

I. An action which is indifferent, and remains such; that is, when the thing is indifferent, of it selfe, and in its owne nature; and a man is neither compelled to doe it or not to doe it:

either { Any Publike Command. Or by { Any private Necessitie.

Now here offences must by all means be avoided, and shunned by those, who desire to avoid this woe denounced in the Text. Reade Mat. 17. 27. Rom. 14. 15. and 1 Cor. 8. 9. 13. and 10. 29. &c.

Or,

II. There are actions which are indifferent in their owne nature, but are changed either by the command of the Magistrate, or by some great, or inevitable necessitie; and if a man bee offended with these actions, it is Scandalum acceptum, an offence taken, because the Agent, or doer thereof, doth it not voluntarily, but by a command from authority; and also because the action, or thing done, is not simply, or positively evill; but in its own nature indifferent; that is, a thing which may be done, or left undone, without sinne. Or,

Secondly, this Offence taken consists in a pious, and religious action; as when men are offended with Christ, and Religion, and the Gospell, as was shewed before, §. 2. Now these offences wee must not at all regard, nor shun, and avoid; but if men will bee offended with that which is good, and godly, let them bee offended, Matth. 16. 23. And thus we see the truth of the Observation, that many offences are to be expected in the world, by those who are faithfull in the service of the Lord.

§. 4. But woe be to that man, by whom the offence commeth. Sect. 2.

Our Saviour here denounceth a woe against those who offend; or are stumbling stones unto the children of God; Woe be unto them; that is, they shall perish for ever. Hence then wee may observe.

That offences, and scandals shall be the cause of eternall death; or, hee who offendeth the children of God, or causeth them to offend, shall perish eternally, without repentance. Or, in generall, both the offenders, and the causers of giving offence; both the seducers, and the seduced; both those who stumble, and they who lay the stumbling stone shall be punished, Matthew 5.29. Observ.

Wherein, or how doe they offend, who lay stumbling blocks before men? Quest. 1.

First, such offend, because they give occasion to the Adversaries to blaspheme: and here they are guilty who professe the truth, but do not live according to the truth; who have a forme of godlinesse in their words, but not the power thereof in their lives, 2 Tim 3.5. Wo be to such, who by their hypocrisie, and colour of Religion, give offence unto others. Answ. 1.

Secondly, such offend and sin, in laying of stones of offence before the feet of the faithfull: For a Scandall, or Offence, is either, Answ. 2.

I. A cause of evill, by precipitating, and casting head-long, that which is good. Or,

II. It is a confirmation of evill, by hardning

210 men in sin, and hindring them from conversion; for those who cause others to offend, are causes unto them both of doing that which is evill, and of leaving undone that which is good. And therefore wee must take heed of giving offence, or a Scandalis datis, for by that means wee are guilty of our brethrens sin, and smart, and their blood shall be required at our hands.

Object. 1. But some will object, that offences are necessary: It must needs be (saith our Saviour) that offences come.

Answ. It is true that offences must come, but wo unto them by whom they come. The Wolfe cannot change his nature, and yet hee is blamed for his cruelty: Neither Iudas, nor the Iews did any thing, but what was before determined; and yet they are blamed, and that justly; for the doing of it; because they did it willingly, and out of envie unto him.

Object. 2. But some object, and say againe: That wherewithall many good men are offended, was not done by me for that end, that they might be offended; and therefore it is Scandalum acceptum, non datum, an offence taken, but not given.

Answ. An offence is either

First, voluntarie; as

I. When Lawes are made directly against Religion. And

II. When men exhort, perswade, and tempt unto sin. Now these are the worst scandals. Or

Secondly, there are occasionall offences; and these are therefore condemned, because they are causes of evill; and if hee be threatned, and shal be punish'd, who is seduced; then much more he who is the Seducer. Now we must farther observe; that these occasionall Scandals are either,

I. In doctrin; as when men teach that which is Popish, Idolatrous, and supersticious; now woe be unto such blind, and wicked Leaders of the blind: for both themselvs, and those who are seduced, and mislead by them, shall perish, and fall into the Ditch. Or

II. In Practise, and that either

First, by exhortation; and that either,

I. Docendo, by teaching others to lye, steal, and the like; as parents often do their children, and Masters their servants, for their advantage, and filthy lucres sake. Or

II. Alliciendo, by alluring others unto theft, adultery, drunkennesse, and the like. Or,

III. Terrendo, by terrifying, and affrighting others, with scofs, taunts, derisions, and the like: by which some are kept back from the profession of Religion. Or

Secondly, by Example; and thus great men are great scandals; for an evill life, or example in a Superiour doth much harme, and occasions much evill in, and amongst inferiours. Or

Thirdly, men give occasion of offence by their words; to wit, by their scurrilous speeches, and songs, and oaths, and the like; wherewith pure, and chaste eares are offended.

Object. 3. It will be objected againe, if wee must avoid giving of offence, then it is not lawfull to use the Ceremonies of our Church at all; that is, neither the Crosse in baptisme, nor the Surplice in the reading of divine service, nor the rest; because they give offence: and therefore in regard of the offence are unlawfull, 1 Cor. 10.32.

Answ. 1. First, the Apostle speaks not there of the rites, customs, or Ceremonies of the Church, but of meat sacrificed to Idols: And therefore that place is a stranger to the thing in hand.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Saint Paul forbids the eating of such meat, when it is offensive; and that for conscience sake: that is, not of him who eats, but of the other, 1 Cor. 10.28, 29.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, in these things, these foure rules are to be observed: whereof, Rule 1. I. The first respects Christian liberty: for all things are lawfull, 1 Cor. 6.12. and 10.23.

Rule 2. II. The second respects Christian charity, and offence: for wee must do nothing which may offend our brethren: for if the things wee do be offensive, they are unlawfull, as appears by these places, 1 Cor. 8.13. and 10.32. Rom. 14,15. And I conceive, that it is the scope of the Apostles doctrine, 1 Cor. 8. and Rom. 14. But we must note here, what scandall the Apostle speaks of, whether

First, such an one as doth offend the mind of our brother. Or,

Secondly, such an one as labours to draw our brother to the participation of sin: that is, the Apostle did not so much forbid them the doing of that which might offend the mind of their brother; as the perswading of them to communicate, & partake with them in those things, which they held unlawfull. And this is the scandall, which I rather think the Apostle speaks of in those places.

Rule 3. III. The third Rule respects Christian obedience towards the Magistrate; and here the Law of giving offence is silent: for if the Magistrate command mee to do a thing, which is not evil in it selfe, and my brother be offended with me, for the doing of it, or at the thing which by mee is done; it is then Scandalum acceptum, non datum, an offence taken, but not given.

Rule 4. IV. The fourth Rule respects divine obedience: wee must doe nothing contrary to the revealed will of God, though the Magistrate should command us. Thus wee see

First, that it is lawfull for us to do those things which are indifferent in their own nature.

Secondly, but if our brethren be offended with the doing of them; and there is no necessitie of the doing of them, nor command for the doing of them, then we must forbear the doing of them.

Thirdly, but if the Magistrate shall command us to do them, then we must do them, although our brother be offended by them.

Fourthly, but if the Magistrate shall command us to do that which is forbidden by God, then wee must not do it, though the Magistrate should be offended with us for our disobedience, and refusall. Now there is no question of the truth of all these Rules, save only of the third; and therefore wee will shew, that the command of the Magistrate is more to be regarded, then the offending of our brother; that is, if we cannot avoid avoid it, but that either wee must disobey the Magistrate, or offend our brother, we must rather offend our brother, then disobey the Magistrate: and this wee prove thus.

I. Because the Magistrate is more to be esteemed; and therefore we must rather offend our brethren, then them. Wee do not inquire here, whether offences be to be given, or not? for it cannot be avoided, but that one must be offended: and therefore the question is, whether must rather be offended, our weak brother, or the Magistrate? and wee conceive our brother.

II. To offend the Magistrate by disobeying his command, is Scandalum datum, an offence given to offend our brother by doing that which the Magistrate commands, is Scandalum acceptum, an offence taken. Now as I confesse, our brethren are to be regarded, and not to bee offended, if there were no command, or necessitie enforcing thereunto: so I imagine that wee must rather choose to fall into an offence taken by the weak brethren, then into an offence given to the Magistrate: because the one is our sin, the other is not ours.

III. There will alwayes be some weak ones in the Church, which will stumble at these adiaphorall things: and therefore if these should be respected more then the Magistrate: the Magistrate should never bee obeyed in these things at all: That is, if a man should omit the Ceremonies (although the Magistrate enjoyne, and command them) untill all the people be informed, concerning the lawfulnesse, and indifferencie of them; hee should then never use them at all; because there will be still in the Church, some who will stumble at them.

IV. When wee do those things which give offence, we do them not, for this end, that others may be offended, but that we may not offend, Rom. 14.20. We desire not to disobey the Magistrate, nor that others should be offended with our obedience of him.

V. Thus to offend our brethren: namely, by doing that which the Magistrate enjoyns, is not the Offence, which Saint Paul speaks of: namely, to lay a stumbling stone before them, that they may fall, Rom. 44 13. and so destroy our brother, for whom Christ died, verse 15. 20. For the Apostle speaketh of eating meat offered unto Idols; and hee saith, that some eat it as a thing offered unto an Idol, and their conscience being weak, is defiled, 1 Cor. 8 7. And if they see those who are strong, eat such things in the Idols Temple, their conscience is confirmed, and enboldned to eat those things, which are offred unto Idols, verse 10. And so their consciences are wounded, and killed, verse 11, 12. wherefore we must deny our selvs, rather then thus cause the weak to stumble, and fall, verse 13. And thus wee see the large difference that is between our Ceremonies injoyned by the lawfull Magistrate, and voluntary eating of meat offered unto Idols, which the Apostle speaks of in the place objected.

VI. Those things which of themselvs, and in their own nature are indifferent, being once commanded, are not indifferent, by vertue of the 5th Commandement, which enjoyneth obedience to Magistrates in lawfull things.

Quest. 2. Who give offence to their brethren, and by giving of offence incur this Woe here denounced?

Answ. 1. First, those who do hurt unto their neighbours, Matth. 5 41, 42.

Answ. 2. Secondly, those who offend the consciences of the weak, as Mat. 18. 6.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, they are guilty of this woe, who leade a wicked life: for an evill conversation is scandalous, and offensive, Rom. 2. 24. and 1 Peter 3.2.

Quest. 3. Why must wee be so carefull not to give offence?

Answ. 1. First, because those who are offensive unto the children of God, are not to be tolerated in the Church of Christ, 1 Cor. 10.32. And

Answ. 2. Secondly, because such shall be punished, Mat. 13.41, 42. and in the present Text. And Answ. 3. Thirdly, because offences and scandals are contrary to the whole scope of a Christians life: for the better understanding hereof observe, that there is three-fold scope, and end of a Christians life, all which ends are crossed, and twarted by him, who gives offence.

I. We were created for Gods glory.
II. We were created for our brethrens edification.
III. We were created for the salvation of our owne soules.

Those who offend doe

I. Dishonour God. And
II. Infect their brethren. And
III. Ruin, and destroy their own souls.

Now contrarily,

For the better understanding of this, we must yet observe, that there is a double scandall, or offence: namely,

First, in unlawfull things, as Rom. 2. 24. and 1 Cor. 5. 1, 2. and 2 Cor. 11. 29. Now woe unto him by whom such offences come.

Secondly, in lawfull things, as Rom. 14. 13. and 1 Cor 8. 13. Now concerning these, wee lay down this Rule: That as Religion regulates Christian charity, so love should regulate Christian liberty, 1 John 10. 20. We expound and explain the Rule thus, viz.

I. This must bee understood of indifferent things, not of Religious: for wee must not for our love unto our brother omit, or neglect any religious dutie, or worke: but wee may, and ought to forbeare indifferent things, if our brother be offended by them.

II. This must bee understood of indifferent things, so long as they remaine indifferent, and free: and not of those things which are commanded by lawfull authority, our love unto our brethren must not make us to disobey the Magistrate: but if no such command be, then wee must not offend them: but forbeare those things which are offensive.

III. This must be understood of infirme, and weak brethren, and not of those who are refra-

212 ctory, obstinate, and perverse. Those who are weak, and desire to be informed, wee must be carefull not to offend, as much as in us lies: those who are obstinate, and self-willed, we need not be so carefull to please.

Quest. 5. It is questioned amongst Divines, whether Protestants with a safe conscience, may go to the Popish Masse, or not?

Answ. To this a Reverend Prelate of our Church doth answer negatively; and amongst other reasons brought for the confirmation of his answer, produceth this, drawn from this place: because if any of our Religion goe unto their Masses, hee sins against his brethren, and principally those who are weak: before whose feet he laies a stone of offence, while by his example, he allures, and enticeth them unto the same liberty, whereby their consciences must necessarily bee polluted. Now that it is a sinne thus to offend them, appears by these words: Woe be unto that man, by whom the offence commeth. Neither can it be denied, but that in so doing hee gives offence, at least to the weak: because an offence is nothing else, then something said, or done, Minus rectum, which gives unto another, an occasion of stumbling and falling. Now this deed (of going to Masse) doth give occasion to the weak to suspect, that Masse is not a wicked, & idolatrous action; and so consequently makes a way for him to incline, and fall unto Popery, and Superstition. And therefore they sin who do so, [h].

h Bishop Davenant qu. 7. determ. pag. 40.

Vers. 8. 9. VERS. 8, 9. Wherefore if thy hand, or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life, halt or maimed, rather then having two hands, or two feet, to be cast into everlasting fire. And if thine eye offend thee pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather then having two eyes, to be cast into hell fire.

Something hath beene said of these words before, Chap. 5 29. 30. And therefore I will onely adde a word or two, to what hath been spoken.

Sect. 1. §. 1. If thy hand, or foot, or eye offend thee.

Si scandalizat, if it shall offend thee; σκανδαλιζει, as was said before comes a σκάζω. Claudico; as if our Saviour would say, facies claudicare. Whence we may note.

Observ. That sin makes men stumble, and halt, and fall into danger, Rom. 11. 11, 12. and 14. 4. & 1 Cor. 10. 12. and 2 Cor. 11. 3. The truth hereof further appears thus: wee are commanded,

First, to stand fast in faith and obedience, Rom. 11. 20. and 1 Cor. 16. 13. Galath. 5. 1. Ephes. 6. 13. and 2 Thessal. 2. 15. and 1 Pet. 5, 12. and Colos. 4: 12. and 1 Thessal. 3. 8. And

Secondly, to walk in the wayes of God, Colos. 1. 10. And

Thirdly, to run the race of his commandements, Rom. 9. 16. and 1 Cor. 9. 24. Galath. 5. 7. Now to fall is opposed to all these; namely, to standing, walking, and running. For sin makes men fall, either

I. From obedience; and that either Finally, as Heb. 6. 6. or Dangerously, as Hebr. 12. 15. Or

II. From faith, Galath. 5. 4. and 1 Tim. 6. 21.

What is here required of us? Quest.

First, wee must take heed of Apostasie, that being a sin unpardonable (Heb. 6. 6. and 1. John 5. 16.) if it be, Answ. 1.

I. After illumination.

II. If it be a totall relapse.

III. If it bee conjoyned with presumption against the holy Spirit (Hebr. 10. 26.) there remaines then no more sacrifice for sin.

Secondly, wee must take heed of the cosen Germaine, or rather brother unto this Apostasie; namely, the contempt of Christ, or the Spirit, or the Word, and graces of God. These which follow were the great sins of the Pharisees: to wit. Answ. 2.

I. They spake against Christ, and his Word, Matth. 12. 25. and Marke 3. 22. Hee casteth (say they) out Devils by the helpe of Beelzebub, &c.

II. They contemned the means of grace: the Word and Sacraments.

III. They abused the gifts, and graces of the Spirit: namely, illumination, and compunction.

IV. They spake often against their own consciences. And therefore wee must take heed of these sinnes, which lead unto a totall relapse: wee must not speak against Christ, or religion: wee must not despise the means of grace; that is, either neglect, or abuse the Word, or Sacraments; wee must walke according to our light, and knowledge, and be obedient to all the good motions of the Spirit, and we must principally beware of sinnes against conscience, because they lead unto Apostasie, and Atheisme: Yea,

Thirdly, wee must take heed of all sinne whatsoever; because nothing is so little, that it shall goe for naught: Yea, because every sinne is mortall; Wee must beware, wee fall not Answ. 3.

I. From the course of our obedience, and service of God, unto the service, and obedience of Sathan. And

II. From the liberty of the sons God, into the snares and captivity of sin and satan, 1 Timothy 2. 25.

III. We must take heed that we decline not from the grace of God: for so long as we live holily, God will protect us, but if we tempt him we may justly fear that he will leave us.

IV. We must beware, lest we fall from the comfort of the holy Spirit, Ephes. 4. 29. we must, not grieve the holy Spirit.

V. We must take heed, lest we fall into the lretull hands of God, Heb. 30. 31. for then we shall either be punished with temporall, or eternall torments.

§. 2. Cut it off, pluck it out, and cast it from thee. Sect. 2.

Is the body to be dismembred? Quest. 1.

No; Non mutilandum corpus, sed frænandus usus sinistrus. Calvin. f. Non præcipit damna corporis. Hilar. f. Non in membrorum compage disturbanda. Chrysost. f. Answ. 1.

Why

Quest. 2. Why may not the body be dismembred, and mutilated?

Answ. 1. First, because the members of the body want the sense of sin, Potest cogere manum ut peccet, manum te cogere non potest. Hilar. ſ. Thou maist constrain thy hand, and force it to sin, but thy hand cannot compell thee unto evill.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Otiosum damnum corporis, relictâ voluntate concupiscentiæ. Hilar. It is to no purpose to cut off an hand, and pluck an eye out of the body, so long as lust and concupiscence remain in the soul.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, Quia crimen non carnis, sed voluntatis; non oculus sed per oculum animus instruitur. Chrysost. ſ. Because the fault (when a man sins) is in the will, not in the flesh; and it is not the eye that lustfully looks upon beauty, but the minde by the eye. And therefore unwarrantable was the practise of Leo the first, who cut off his hand, because by the kisse of a Matron he was inflamed, and kindled unto lust. Sabel. 5.6.

Sect. 3. § 3. For it is better for a man to enter into Heaven, having but one hand, foot or eye, &c.

Quest. Shall any be lame in Heaven?

Answ. 1. First, certain it is, that there shall be no deformity in Heaven, neither shall there be any wounds or lameneſse there.

Answ. 2. Secondly, some say that our Saviour speaks of the losse of these members in this life: but it is here said, It is better to enter into life (not to remain or abide in life) having but one hand, &c. And Mark 9.43,45,47. it is called the kingdom of Heaven, and in both places is diametrally opposed to Hell.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, some say that our Saviour speaks comparatively, as if he should say, put case that thou shouldest be deprived of thy eye for ever, yet it were better to have one in Heaven, than two in Hell.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, we may safely, and certainly answer, that the speech is figurative; and therefore the letter thereof is not too strictly to be prested or urged.

Sect. 4. § 4. Then having two, to be cast into hell fire.

Observ. 1. We may learn hence, that it is necessary that we be separated either from God, or from sin: or, that either the sin or sinner must necessarily perish; either sin must be cast off, or the sinner must be cast into hell fire, 1 Tim. 1.19. Mat. 7.23. Rev. 2.5. yea it is an excellent sign of a Saint, and sanctified man, to be totally separated from sin, and the occasions thereof.

Object. Against this it will be objected, If this be a mark of a holy man, then none are holy, for these things can none do, viz. separate themselves from sin, and the occasions thereof.

Answ. Although of our selves we cannot, yet by Gods assistance we may, and that two manner of waies; namely,

First, by a sincere purpose of heart, Acts 11.33. Rom. 7.17,20. And

Secondly, by an increase of grace; for thereby we shall be taught, and enabled

I. To sin more seldome every day than other. And

II. To check, and reclaim our selves sooner from sin, than formerly. And 213

III. To lament, bewail, and be more sorry for our sins, and more condemn our selves for our iniquities, than heretofore. And

IV. To love sinne lesse, but hate it more, then hitherto we have done. And

V. To love good things, and godly duties better every day then other.

Quest. 1. Why is this place so expresly thrice repeated, that is, both Mat. 5.29,30. and 18.8,9. and Mark 9.43,45,47?

Answ. 1. Observ. 2. First, it is repeated for the certainty of the Doctrine; or, to teach us, That the condemnation of the wicked is most certain; or, That sinners shall certainly be cast into hell; Mat. 5.18. and 24.35. Psalm. 19.17. and 1 Cor. 6.9. Gal. 6.7. Psal. 11.6. Rom. 2.8,12.

Quest. 2. How further doth it appear, that sinners shall certainly perish?

Answ. 1. First, because Tophet was prepared for such, as Heaven was prepared for the righteous: and therefore the one is not more sure of Heaven, than the other is of Hell; reade Esa. 30.33. Prov. 16.4. Rom. 9.22,23.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it appears evidently, that the wicked shall perish, thus; The Lord can as well cease to be, as not to be just; but he should not be just, if he should not punish the wicked, and make a difference between them and the righteous: and therefore they shall never go unpunished, 2 Thes. 1.6,7. And therefore sinners must not delude themselves, and think that they may sin and live; for they must either leave their sins, or lose life everlasting; they must either turn from their iniquities, or submit themselves to hell fire and everlasting death.

Quest. 3. Must all adulterers, and drunkards, and swearers, and the like, be cast into hell?

Answ. Certainly all such shall, except they repent; for true Repentance onely approves Faith to be true.

Observ. 3. Secondly, this place is thrice expresly repeated for our instruction; to teach us,

Answ. 3. That the repetition, and recapitulation of those things which are taught, is commodious and profitable, 2 Pet. 1.12. and 3.1. And that

I. Because many often are not present, when things are first taught and delivered. And therefore a short recapitulation of those things can neither be displeasing to those who have heard them, nor unprofitable unto those who heard them not.

II. Because many often are present, which attend not: and therefore a brief repetition will sharpen and quicken their attention. We must sow and water, if we desire that our labours may be profitable.

III. It is evident, that repetition of what hath been formerly preached, is very profitable, because it is very hard for us 1 To understand divine Truths. And 2 To beleeve all saving Truths. And 3 To love all holy duties, and things which are taught unto us. And 4 To remember those things which are delivered, and taught. And 5 Seriously to mark and observe them. Now it is necessary that all these should be done, and therefore 214 fore a brief rehearsal of what was formerly more amply delivered, must needs be profitable unto all who desire to be understanding and good hearers.

IV. A short repetition is yet further profitable in a threefold regard: namely

First, in regard of our selves: for the hearing of that twice which nearly concerns us, doth imprint it deeper, and fixe it the surer in our hearts.

Secondly, in regard of our judgment and understanding; for those things which we understand not at all, or not right, or not sufficiently, at the first hearing we shall understand the better, by a second recapitulation. And Answ. 3. Thirdly, in regard of our Bretheren; for by that means we may be the better inabled to help their memories.

Thirdly, this place is thrice expresly repeated for our meditation; to teach us, That the punishments and torments of Hell, and the eternity thereof, are alwaies to be meditated and remembred. Observ. 4.

Quest. 1. Why must we thus meditate of the bottomelesse pit, and the torments thereof?

Answ. 1. First, because it will be a means to preserve us from sin, And Answ. 2. Secondly, to weane our affections from this wicked world, And,

Answ. 3. Thirdly, it will make us more carefull to prepare our selves for Heaven. And therefore let us meditate, and seriously remember these three things. viz.

I. How suddenly we may be called by death unto judgment. And

II. How severely we shall be judged. Index nec pecuniâ nec pœnitentiâ &c. August de Symbol. No bribe can be fastned upon that Iudge, no teare will prevail with him. Tum Potentissimi Reges Aristotelis Argumenta non proderunt. Hier. Epist. ad Heliodorum. At the day of judgment the most potent Princes shall find no more favour then the poorest persons, yea then neither Tullies Rhetorick, nor Aristotles Logick, will a whit avail them.

III. Meditate how inevitable Hell is, and how impossible it is for a wicked man to avoid the eternall punishment thereof. It is impossible for men by any art, or power, or pollicy, to shunne death; and as impossible to escape judgement after death, and alike inevitable is punishment after judgment, unto all that are wicked dying without Repentance; for Christ hath preached, and the Holy Ghost thrice repeated, That those who will not cut off, and pluck out, and cast from them their sins, shall together with their sinnes be cast into Hell Fire.

Verse 10. VERS. 10. Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones: For I say unto you, that in heaven their Angels do alwaies behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Their Angels.

The Rhemists urge these words to prove the protection of Tutelary Angells; a great dignity and marvailous benefit it is (say they) that every one hath from his nativitie an Angell for his custody, and patrocinage against the wicked, before the face of God, (Hier. s.) And the thing is so plain that Calvin dare not deny it, and yet he will needs doubt of it, Lib. 1. Institut. cap. 14. §. 7. Object. 1.

First, Calvin doubteth not of the Protection of Gods Angels, but whether every one hath a severall Angell appointed for his custody from his nativitie; that he justly doubts, because no place of Scripture evidently proves it. Answ. 1

Secondly, this the Scripture doth avouch, that sometimes one Angell hath the charge of a great many men, sometimes many Angels are ready for the defence of one man, yea all the Angels with one consent do wait for our preservation; as is proved clearly by Calvin in the place cited. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, Hierome, doth not mean, that every one hath his severall Angell, for he alleadgeth for the proof of his exposition, & Paraphrase, The Angell of Ephesus; Thyatyra, Philadelphia, and the rest: Where if the word Angell were to be understood of heavenly spirits, yet it is one Angell, for the Church of a whole City, and not for every person one. Answ. 3.

Fourthly, Chrysostome affirmes that by Angels here are understood not the inferiour, but the superiour: whereby he signifies that every one hath one superiour Angell alone, but yet that he may have divers other inferiour Angels: See Cartwright and Doctor Mayer's. Answ. 4.

The Papists urge this place amongst others; for the proof of the invocation of Saints: In these places, say they (Zachar. 1. 12. Revelat. 8. 3. Daniel 10. 13. Psalm 91. 11. Matth. 18. 10.) the Angels intercede for the living, and have care of them in particular. And therefore much more ought the Spirits, and soules of men so to doe: and consequently we may call upon them. Objct. 2.

First, in some of the places quoted, the Holy Ghost speaks of the intercession of Christ for his Church. Answ. 1.

Secondly, the Argument is sick of a Non sequitur: The Angells intercede for the living, and care for them in particular, therefore so do also the souls of the deceased, follows not: because to the Angels is committed the care of the faithfull in the earth, as appears from this verse, and Psalm. 91. 11. and Heb. 1. 14. But wee reade of no such charge, or power given to the deceased Saints. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, in Revelat. 8. Iohn declares a vision, wherein by Saints, he understands the Saints on earth, and not them in Heaven; and by the Angel he understands Christ, as Daniel. 10. 13. Answ. 3.

Fourthly, in this place here is nothing at all of the intercession of Angells in particular; Scharp. de eccles. triumph. 38. Answ. 4.

§. 2. They behold the face of my Father. Sect. 2.

What is meant here by the face of God, or how many waies it is taken in Scripture? Quest. 1.

First, sometimes the face of God is taken for his Answ. 1.

his presence in generall: as Genes. 4. 16. Iudg. 6. 22 Iob. 1. 12 and 2: 7. Psalm 89. 14. and 96. 13. Zachar. 2. 13.

Answ. 2. Secondly, sometimes the face of God is taken for his familiar presence, as; Genes. 32. 30. Exod. 33. 11. Numb. 12. 8. and 14. 14. 15. Deut. 5, 4. and 34. 10.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, by face is sometimes signified and meant, the sight, knowledge, and acknowledgement of God: Iob 1. 11 and 2. 5. and 13. 20. Psal. 10. 11, and 51, 9. and 139. 7, Eccles. 8. 8. 12. 13. Esa. 26. 17, and 65, 3. Ierem. 4. 1. and 16. 17. Hos. 7. 2. Ionah 1. 3. 10.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, sometimes by Gods face is meant his presence in the Temple, Sanctuary, & Holy worship: as 1 Samuel 2. 18. and 13. 12. and 21. 6. and 2 King. 13. 4. and 2 Chron. 34. 27. Psalm 95. 2. and 119. 58. Ierem. 26. 10. Hag. 1. 12. Zach. 7. 2. and 8. 21. &c.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, the face of God is sometimes taken for his presence in Heaven; as in this verse, and Psalm 16. 11. and 1 Cor. 13. 12. and Revelat. 22. 4. And

Answ. 6. Sixthly, sometimes, for his providence. Psalm. 104. 29. And Answ. 7. Seventhly, for his love, mercy, and favour as Exod. 33. 14. Esa. 63. 9. And

Answ. 8. Eighthly, sometimes for the Majestie, glory and terrour of God. Exod. 33, 18. Iudg. 5. 5. Nehem. 1. 5, 6. Psalm. 68, 8. and 97. 5. and 114. 7. Esa. 63. 1, 2. Ioel 2. 6. 10. And

Answ. 9. Ninthly, sometimes face signifies anger, and revenge. Numb 10. 35. Ierem. 3. 12. and 4. 26. and Psalm. 21. 10. and 1. Peter 3. 12. And Answ. 10 Lastly, by Face is meant, Gods remembrance to punish those that are wicked, Nehem. 4. 5. and Ierem. 18. 3.

Quest. 2. What is the nature, and property of Gods Face?

Answ. 1. First, it is invisible, and cannot be seen. (Exod. 33. 20. 23.) by mortall eye.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it is our hope, and trust. Proverb 17. 15.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, it is sweet, and most delectable. Psalm 89. 14.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, it seeth all things for the proof hereof see the places quoted above. Answer 3. of the former Question.

Quest. 3. What is required of all in regard of the face of God.

Answ. 1 First, we must entreat it and pray unto it in the time of danger. Daniel 9. 13.

Answ. 2. Secondly, we must desire, seek, and long for the sight of his face. [Numb. 6. 6. 25. and 1 Chron. 6. 11, and 2 Chron. 7. 14. Psalm. 24. 6. and 27. 8. and 31. 16. and 42. 2. and 51. 11. and Psalm 63. 1 and 67. 1. and 80. 3. 7. 19.] For thus did David Psalm 27. 9. and Ephraim, Hosea 5. 15. and Israel 2 Chron. 15. 12.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, all must learn to fear and tremble before the glorious face of God. (Psalm. 96. 9. Ier. 5. 22.) as Iob did. 23. 15.

Quest. 4. What benefit do the righteous reap from the Face of God?

Answ. 1. First, hee will not hide it from them, but shew it unto them. (2 Chron. 30 9. Iob. 33. 26. Psalm 22. 24. Ierem. 15. 19. Ezech. 39. 29. Except it be for a while, either for their sins, or tryall; as Esa. 59. 2. Iob 13. 14. Psalm 13. 1 and 30. 7. and 31, 22. and 88. 14. Esa. 8. 17. and 54. 8. and 64. 7.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Gods face is the joy, and rejoycing of the righteous, Psalm 4. 6, 7. and 16. 11.

Quest. 5. What is predicated of Gods Face, in regard of the wicked.

Answ. 1. First, to the wicked it is a fatall face. Psalm. 9. 3. and 34. 16. and 68. 2, and 80. 16. Lament. 4. 16. Ezech. 38, 20 and 2 Thes. 1. 9.

Answ. 2. Secondly, to the wicked it is a terrible Face, Genes. 3. 8, Esa. 19. 1. Revelat. 6. 16.

Answ. 3. Thirdly from the wicked God will hide his face. Deuter. 31, 17, 18. and 32. 20. Ierem. 18, 17. and 33, 5. Ezech. 39, 23, 24. Mich. 3, 4.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, the wicked shall be cast out from the face of God. (2 Chron. 7. 20. Ierem. 7. 15. and 23, 39) as was Israell 2 King 17. 20, 23. and Iudah 2. King 23. 27 and 24. 20. and Ierem. 15. 1 and 52. 3.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, Gods face is set against the wicked, Levitic. 17. 10. and 20. 3, 5, 6. and 26. 17. Ierem. 21. 10. and 44. 11. Ezech. 14. 8.

§. 3. Of my Father which is in Heaven.

Sect 3. Object. The Ubiquitaries object this place for the proof of the Ubiquitie of Christs humanity. They argue thus, Their Angells (saith Christ) alwayes bee bold the face of God in heaven: therefore when they are sent into the earth as ministring Spirits, they are then present substantially both in Heaven and earth [because it is said, They alwaies see the face of God in Heaven,] and therefore much more the humane nature of Christ, which is Hypostatically united τῷ λόγῳ, to the substantiall word, or deitie) may be, and is present at once both in earth and Heaven.

Answ. 1. First, it is no mightie miracle, or wonder, that he which is every where present, should bee alwaies seen by the Angels: Now the Lord is every where, and therefore whersoever the Angells are they are in his presence: but to say that they are every where at once, filling Heaven and earth with their presence (which is peculiar unto God) we utterly deny.

Answ. 2. Secondly, this phrase, to see the face of God, doth denote the blessednesse and felicity of the Angels, they are said, alwaies to see the Face of the Father, because they are alwaies, and eternally happy, continually enjoying the familiar presence of God: they being his servants and Ministers, prest continually to perform his will.

Answ. 3. Thirldly, all the Ancient Divines, and Orthodoxe writers did directly deny, that one and the same Angell could be at one and the same moment in divers places: because (according to the opinion of the Schoolmen) Angeli sunt in loco circumscriptive, non repletive vide Thalmannum, assert. ver doct fol. 114. 6. Arg. 28.

VERS. 15, 16, 17. Moreover if thy Brother shall VERS 15, trespasse against thee, goe and tell him his fault betweene 16, 17. thee

216 thee, and him alone; if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy Brother. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses, every word may be established, And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the Church, but if he neglect to hear the Church, let him be unto thee as an Heathen man, and a Publicane.

These verses occasioning controversies both amongst our selves, and betwixt us and the Papists, it will not be amisse to propound a generall Queon or two.

Quest. 1. What Coherence, connexion, or dependance, have these verses with the foregoing?

Answ. The Coherence is thus; Christ our Saviour tels of Scandals, and offences that shall be given and admonisheth his Disciples of them, and teacheth to avoid them. Verse 5, 6, 7 &c. Then comes he to injuries offered, and shews how men must carry themselves towards such as do offer them wrong, in these three verses &c. And that this is the order, appears both by the Text, and matter. For

First, he admonisheth his to take heed of offending others. And Secondly, he declareth how they are to carry themselves towards such as do trespasse against them.

Quest. 2. What was the occasion of these words?

Answ. The Occasion of these words was (as is generally thought) the state of those daies in our Saviours time, wherein the Jews were in subjection to the Romans, having their authority of Elders greatly diminished by the Romanes, who were Heathens, to whom some Jews became servants: these were Publicanes of which was Zacheus, yea and our Evangelist who sate at the receipt of custome: for which they were to the Jews very hatefull, but therein servants to the Romanes, and so freed from the power and authoritie of the Jews, with whom (as with the very Heathen, and Gentiles amongst them) what Jew soever would have to do for any wrong which they offered, that Jew must call these Publicanes before Romane authoritie and convent them there, and not bring them into any Iewish Court; from which they were exempt by their Service to the Roman state: which liberty was also granted to any other Priviledged Iew which would make an appeal to the Romane Governour, as St. Paul did: to whom the Iews might have recourse if they would recover their rights, or redresse wrongs offred them.

Quest. 3. What is the Scope of our Saviour in these words?

Answ. The Scope of Christ here is, to moderate the passions of the Iewes (rising one against another for wrongs received) that so they might not run into extremities, as mans nature is both hastie and desirous of the utmost revenge at the first. Our Saviour adviseth them therefore, not to deal one with another at first, as they must do with Publicanes and Heathens, who were men hatefull unto them, and exempted from all that power which yet remained amongst themselves; and against whom they held it lawfull to use all extremities to the utmost: but to proceed lovingly; that is, according to the Rules of charity, which prescribeth first all gentle means; and when these will not any way prevaile, then to use extremitie.

What is the sense and meaning of these three Verses? Quest. 3.

Answ. The meaning of these words is; If thy brother a Iew do injurie against thee, which art also a Jew, go thou to him, and tell him of it, between your selvs alone; and if hee acknowledge the wrong, and doth give thee satisfaction, thou art to cease further to call him into question, as being reconciled, and hee won unto thee by this thy loving carriage: but if he doe despise thee (as but one to one) yet use not extremity; but again go to him, and take with thee one or two, before whom thou maiest manifest the wrong received, that they may bear witnesse of it, as also of thy charitable proceeding, and may be a mean to the same partie for thee, to consider of his evils, and to make thee recompence for the same: but if hee regard not their counsell neither; then complain to the authority of the Jewish Synedrion; and let them perswade him to deale well with thee, and to make satisfaction for the injury done. But if hee become so graceless, and so wickedly obstinate, that hee despise it, and so no such means as these will do him good; then use (if thou wilt) the utmost remedy, and deale with him, as if he were no faithfull Iew; that is, bring him before the Roman power, and sue him at Cæsars bar, as if he were a Publican, or Heathen. So that this place is meant of private, and personall suits, and quarrels between man and man, Jew and Jew, as the state stood then, of which our Saviour did speak.

Bishop Bilson of the perpetual government of Christs Church.

5. If thy brother sinne against thee. Sect. 1.

The Papists affirm, that no Generall Councell is of sufficient authority, without the allowance of the Pope: and that hee is in such sort above all Councels, that hee cannot, though hee would submit himself to their sentence. Bellarm. de Concil. lib. 2. Cap. 11. & 14. Now against this, an Argument or two may be framed from this place.

The Scripture here saith; Hee that refuseth to heare the Church, let him bee unto thee as an Heathen man, and Publican. Therefore if the Pope shall refuse the sentence of the Church assembled in generall Councels, hee is no better by the voice of Christ, then an Heathen. Argum. 1

Our Saviour saith here: If thy brother offend, or sinne against thee, &c. Tell the Church: But the Pope is our brother, he being a Christian, and one who prayeth, or ought to pray, Our Father, &c. And therefore the Pope may bee called to the judgement of the Church; and consequently be judged, censured, and punished by the Church. Now the Church doth nothing, but by her Prelates: and therefore the Pope may bee judged by a Councell consisting of Prelates. This Argument was first framed by Gerson, Doctor Parisiensis. Argum. 2

First

First, hereunto Bellarmine answers: Although Gerson said; That the Pope ought to acknowledge himself to be subject unto the Church: yet we answer, that the Pope fulfilleth this Precept; when hee reproveth a man in private, next by witnesse, and after shall himselfe proceed unto publike censure. Bellarm. lib. 2. de Concil. Cap. 19. §. Sed iterum.

Replie. Hereunto as credible a person as the Cardinal is, answers, Christ said not unto Peter, Tell thy selfe, but tell the Church, which is a Congregation in a Councell, Greg. Papa apud Æneam Sylvium, lib. 1. comment. de gest. Concil. Basil.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Bellarmine answers again: By this word Church, is either understood a Bishop, as Chrysostome would have it, or a company of the faithfull with their head. Wherefore in every Bishoprick, all offenders are to bee carried unto the Church, and Bishop of that place: but if that Bishop sin, then hee is to bee carried to a higher Church: namely, to the Arch Bishop, or Patriarke under whom hee is: if an Arch Bishop, or Patriarke offend, they are to be carried yet to a higher Church: to wit, to the Church of Rome, or a Generall Councell, over whom the Pope is: but if the Pope offend, he is to bee reserved to the judgement of God; for there is no Church unto which he can be carried, or before which accused, seeing that without him, no Church can be found which hath an head.

Reply 1. First, this word Church signifieth either an universall Congregation, and Assembly, or a Councell consisting of that Assembly; but it no where signifies only a Bishop: neither doth Chrysostome say, Die Episcopo, tell the Bishop, but Die Ecclesiæ, id est, præsultibus, ac præsidentibus; tell the Church: that is, the Prelates, and Presidents thereof; and so also Theophylact, τοῖς ἐκκλησίας προέδροις And therefore by the Church is alwayes meant some body of men, and never a particular person.

Reply 2. Secondly, Christ in these words remits, or sends Peter himselfe to the Church, as to a superiour Tribunall, or judgement: yea, to a particular Church. Now if every, or any particular Church, have greater authority in judgements, then either Peter, or any of the Apostles: yea, or any particular person; then much more the Vniversall Church, which is represented in a Generall Councell.

Reply 3. Thirdly, the evasion of Bellarmine is idle, viz. That when these things were spoken to Peter, hee was but a private man, and not as yet the Vniversall Bishop, and head of the Church: and therefore hee did justly then acknowledge himselfe to be inferiour unto the Church: For Peter was now an Apostle, but an Vniversall Bishop he was never: And wee leave it unto them to prove. Although I could say that these words were spoken after those, Matth. 16. 18. Thou art Peter, &c. when themselves: yea, Bellarmine himselfe saith, that hee was constituted Head, and Vniversall Monarch of the whole Church: and therefore it relisheth not well to say, that now he is but a private man.

Reply 4. Fourthly, Christ speaks generally: If thy brother sin against thee, whosoever he is; except Bellarmine will say, that the Pope is no Brother; that is, no member of the Church, nor no child of God.

Reply 5. Fifthly, the Pope may sin against another, as well as another man: and therefore Christ sends him to the Church: yea, many of the Popes have beene Heretikes, impure, impious, abusers of themselves, and of others: And therefore by a Councell, or Representative Church, hee is to be judged and censured.

Reply 6. Sixthly, in the Councell of Basil, the case was thus collected out of Saint Hierome, and Augustine; and the two ancient Popes, viz. that it is necessary that the Pope should be subject unto a Councell; for if the Church be a Mother, then must the Pope acknowledge himself to bee her sonne, otherwise how shall he have God for his Father? And this our Saviour shewed, when hee said unto Peter (Tell the Church) which authority if the Pope shall contemne, hee ought to bee accounted as an Ethnick, and Publican. Vide Æneam Sylvium de gest. Concil. Basil. lib. 1. fol. 5. §. Multis: yea, Cardinall Cusanus doth further prosecute this argument, from another sentence of Saint Augustines, wherein he requireth the judgement of a Councell, in determining of a case, after that the Pope had delivered his sentence. Card. Cusan. Concord. Cathol. lib. 2. Cap. 17. pag. 737. If the Reader would see this Pillar of Popery (That the Pope is not subject to a Nationall, or Generall Councell) razed, and pulled down, and that by their own side; let him reade Bishop Mort appeale, lib. 4. Cap. 2. §. 8. p. 451. 452.

Wee affirmed before in the conclusion of the fourth Generall Question, that these verses speak of private, and personall suits, and quarrels between man and man: Now how this is clearly confirmed, and the contrary Objections made by the Separatists fully confuted: If the Reader would know, and see, let him reade Mr. Bernard against the Separatists, pag. 220. 221.

§. 2. Take with thee one or two. Sect. 2.

Why must witnesses here be called?

First, that they may convince the offender of his sin, if so be, he be either ignorant of it, or deny it. And, Quest. Answ. 1.

Secondly, that hee may be left without excuse, if hee offend again. And Answ. 2.

Thirdly, that they may see, and know, that he which hath suffered the wrong, hath done what became him, or belonged unto him to doe, Carthus. f. Argum. 3

§. 3. Tell the Church. Sect. 3.

The Separatists object here against us, and what wee have said: That in these words, Tell the Church; the word Church cannot be taken for the Iewish Synedrion, or the Assembly of Authoritie among the Iewes; which was then as well civill, as Ecclesiasticall.

First, the word Church in holy Scripture, is not alway so strictly taken, as men do now use it, but is used for the assembly of good, or bad Christians, or Infidels, met together to consult, and determine 218 termin: of causes, whether civill, or Ecclesiasticall, Psalme 26.5. Where the Septuagint do translate the word Assembly, by the word, ἐκκλησία, Church: So Prov. 5.4. and Acts 19.32. 39.40 in which three verses the word translated Assembly, is ἐκκλησία, the same which is here translated Church.

Secondly, Beza himselfe by the word Church, understandeth it as spoken here of the Iews; that is, the Elders assembled, who exercised judgement in those dayes; which assembly of Iudges, as here they be called the Church, so in the old Testament they were called the Congregation, which is all one, Num. 35.12,24,25. Iosh. 20.6 9. And therefore our Exposition is warrantable by the word, and this objection is also of no moment against it.

Sect. 4. §. 4. If hee refuse to heare the Church.

Object. 1. The Papists say, that Generall Councels may absolutely determine without Scripture, and bind all men necessarily to the obedience of their Canons: because such a Councell is a representative Church: and for the proof hereof they thus urge this place: Our Saviour Christ saith, If hee refuse to heare the Church, let him be unto thee as an Heathen-man, and Publican: Therefore the Church is absolutely to be obeyed in all things, Bell. lib. 1. de Concil. cap. 18.

Answ. 1 First, our Saviour in this place speaketh not of the Canons, and Decrees of the Church, concerning faith; but only prescribeth the form of Church discipline, for reformation of manners, and correction of sin: If thy brother trespasse against thee, &c. verse 15. where Christ saith no more then this; That Christians ought to obey the sentence of the Church, in censuring of sin; and not that they ought to receive new Articles of faith, if imposed by the Church, though contrary to Scripture.

Answ. 2 Secondly, our Saviour speaketh not of every Church absolutely, but of a Church guided and ruled by his word, and assembled in his name, verse 20. For otherwise by the Iesuits collection, Christ and his Apostles should have been as Publicans, because they obeyed not the Scribes and Pharisees, amongst whom the Church was at that time.

Object. 2. The Papists further produce this place, to prove that the Church cannot erre, but is infallible in her judgement: Christ saith, If hee will not heare the Church, let him be unto thee as an Heathen man, and Publican; but unlesse her judgement were infallible, it were hard: yea, unequall, to hold them for heathen men, and Publicans, which would not obey her Decrees. And therefore the Church (that is, the Pastors of the Church; Bellarm. de verbo Dei, lib. 3. Cap. 5.) cannot erre, but is to bee heard in all things.

Answ. 1. First, it followeth not, that the Church cannot erre, because we are bidden to heare it; for so we are commanded to obey Magistrates, Rom. 13.1. and yet they may command things unlawfull, and in such a case they must not be obeyed, Act. 4.19. It was a Law to the Iews; that in matters of weight they should repair to the Priests, and doe according to that which hee should judge, without declining from it (Deut. 17.8.) and yet the Papists will not say; that Uriah, and Annas, and Caiphas, were of infallible judgement.

Answ. 2. Secondly, the meaning of this place is: That wee must obediently hear the Church, and yeeld unto it, not simply in all things, but conditionally, as long as it speaketh things agreeable to the word of God.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the things properly which Christ here mentioneth, and wherein hee biddeth us hear the Church, are not determinations of faith, but Church censures, and admonitions; wherein it is clear, the true Church of Christ may sometimes decline from the right, and be admonished by her children, notwithstanding this threatning of Christs. Thus the Iewes excommunicated him that was borne blind (Iohn 9.34.) and the East, and West Churches censured one another, about the keeping of Easter, Niceph. lib. 12. Cap 33. If the Reader would see this further cleared, and fully proved from some of their own side, let him reade Mr. White, his way to the true Church, pag. 78. & Episc. Daven. de Iudic. p. 100.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, if the Church may erre in her censures (as is proved in the fore-cited Authors) notwithstanding these words of Christ; then we leave it to the Iesuit, to yeeld some sound reason or other, why not as well in points of faith.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, the judgement of the Church, whether in inflicting of censures, or defining of opinions concerning faith, or determining of differences about Religion, is so farre to be regarded, as it is warranted by the word. For the Scripture neither here, nor no where else doth say; That the Prelates of the Church can never erre in judging.

Answ. 6. Sixthly, this place speaks of a particular Church: for not for every offence of one brother against another, is a Generall Councell to be called. And therefore if there be any weight or truth in the Objection at all, it proves that every particular Church hath an infallibility of judgement, and cannot erre: But this is more then the Papists affirm: But of this more in the next objection.

Tannerus (in colloquio Ratisbonensi sess. 13.) produced this Argument, to prove: That the deciding, determining, and judging of all controversies of Religion, belongeth onely unto the Church; that is, to the chief Pastors, and Bishops only of the Church. He argues thus. If all controversies be to be decided by the Church, and referred unto the Church; then it will follow that the Church is the Iudge of all controversies.

But the Antecedent is true, that all controversies are to be decided by the Church, and are referred unto the Church.

Therefore also the Consequent; That the Church is the Iudge of all controversies. Now he proves the Antecedent from these words: Tell the Church, and if hee will not hear the Church, &c.

&c. Therefore the Bishops, and chief Pastors must expound the doubts in Scripture. Bellarm. lib. 3. de Script. Cap. 3 argues thus.

Our Saviour speaks here of private injuries; but the place is to be understood also of publike injuries, such as Schisme, and Heresie are: Now by this word Church is not meant the whole body of the faithfull, but only the Pastors and Bishops: and therefore Heretikes, and Schismaticks are not to be referred, or turned over to the Congregation of the faithfull, to judge, and censure, but to the Prelates of the Church; because as a man hears, and speaks by his head, so the Church doth by her Prelates; and consequently from the judgement of the Pastors there is no appeale, their sentence, and determination being the last, and utmost judgement.

Answ. 1. First, Hunnius (in eodem Colloquio Ratisbonensi) did rightly distinguish this word Iudge; for there is a double Iudge: namely,

I. A Iudge, who hath absolute authority of judging: now if the Argument understand Iudge in this sense, wee deny the Consequent; for although it be certain, that all controversies which arise amongst Christians, may bee referred unto the Church, that they may have her judgement: yet it is most false, that the Church is a Iudge, which is absolute from all Law, and may pronounce after her own will; and so in effect be the chief, and principall Iudge; that is, the very Rule of Religion, and controversies.

II. There is a Iudge, whose power is limited, and restrained unto the Law: and if the Argument speak of this Judge, wee have nothing to say against it: for wee deny not, but that some; yea, all controvertes may bee referred unto the Church, to be examined, and judged.

Answ. 2. Secondly, wee deny that the last, and utmost judgement of controversies belong unto the Church, her judgement being only Ministeriall.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, we must give eare to the Church, but with a double condition: namely,

I. Wee must be sure, that it be the Church of God, as our Saviour himselfe expoundeth it, ver. 20. Where two or three are gathered together in my name, &c. So that every Congregation is not the Church; but that which is assembled in the name, and authority of Christ. And therefore it is necessary, that we know that Church, which wee hear to be the Church of Christ, and that by the Scriptures; for otherwise wee cannot know the true Church, but by the word, & except it be the true Church, we ought not to hear it at all.

II. Wee must not hear the Church (although it be a true Church) contrary to the Scriptures, but only so long as shee teacheth the doctrine of Christ; for otherwise an Angel from heaven is not to be heard, Gal. 1. 8. If the Pastors, Prelates, and Presidents of the Church shal prescribe those things, which are approved, or prescribed by Christ, wee must hear them, otherwise not: for there have been many Bishops and Councels, which have refuted other Heretiks, and yet have erred themselvs in many other things. Wherefore the Church is not simply to bee heard in whatsoever she saith, or teacheth, or to be believed, and obeyed, in all her decrees, opinions, tenents, and commands, but only then when shee speaketh, and teacheth the truth of Christ: For we are not to beleeve, or credit the Church, but for Christ, and his words sake. I find this answer given by Dr. Willet. Synops. 46. initio. Whitak. de sacra Script pag 317.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, if the judgement of the Pastors and Bishops in a Councell, bee the last and utmost judgement, then not the Popes judgement only, which the most of the Iesuits labour for.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, our Saviour speaks not here of the chief Judge of all controversies, or of the chiefe Interpreter of Scripture, but only of brotherly correction, and admonition, which who contemnes are referred to the Church; and if they will not heare the Church, they are to be excommunicated: For the interpretation of Scripture dependeth not upon the will, and fantasie of the Pope, Cardinals, or Popish Councils, but must be tried by the Scriptures themselvs. Now the reason why wee deny, that the Evangelist speaks here of the supream Iudge, or Rule of controversies, is, because that which is meant, and understood in this place, to bee told to the Church, doth belong unto all Churches, viz. of Constantinople, Ierusalem, Smyrna, Rome, and the rest; not unto all together, but every one severally: Now the Papists themselvs do not contend, that every particular Church is the rule of all controversies. Now that the place is to be understood of brotherly admonition, and reproof, appears thus: namely,

I. Because the speech is of private offences between brethren; as is plain from verse 15. If thy brother shall sinne against thee. But private, offences, injuries, and jars, are not to be referred, either to a Nationall, or Generall Councell, but unto the Ecclesiasticall society, or jurisdiction of every place, by whom the reasons on both sides may be weighed, and known, and judgement accordingly pronounced.

II. Because this is the first degree of publike or Ecclesiasticall judgment; for the former degrees here named by our Saviour, verse 15, 16. are private; to wit, when the wronged Brother doth privatly alone admonish him that did the wrong, or before some few Witnesses. But it was scarsly ever heard of, or at least done, that either private offences, or even publike, and those which belong unto the Church, should presently at the very first be referred unto the Church universall, scattered through the whole world.

III. Because our Saviour speaks here of Excommunication, as some are of opinion; let him be as a Heathen, &c. But Excommunication, and every kinde of Ecclesiasticall censure doth belong also to every particular Church (Concil. Nicen. can. 5.) And therefore in this place by Church, are to be understood the Jurisdictions of particular Churches, and not such a Judge as is absolute, free, and exempt from all Law, having his own will onely for a rule. I conclude this Objection with a double Argument.

Arg. 1. If every Church [which who so hears not, be to be accounted for a Heathen man, or publican]

220 be the abſolute Judge of all Controverſies: then it will follow, that every particular Church is the abſolute Judge of all Controverſies: but the conſequent is abſurdly falſe, therefore alſo the antecedent. Cham. t. 1. p. 26.

Argum. 3 An obſtinate ſinner muſt be referred to the cenſure of the Church: for Chriſt ſaid to Peter, Dic Eccleſiæ, &c. Tell it to the Church, and if he will not hear the Church, &c. Therefore Peter and his ſucceſſours are not the ſupreme Judges: for here he is referred to the Church. Willet, Synopſ. pag. 1304.

Sect. 5. §. 5. Let him be unto thee as an Heathen man, and a Publican.

Queſt. 1. What is meant by theſe names of Heathen man, and Publican?

Anſw. Something hath been ſaid of the meaning of them before, Sect. 1. as alſo, in the generall queſtions before that Section. I do therefore here but onely adde this, That to eſteem one as an Heathen man, or Publican, is not to hate him, but not familiarly to uſe him, or not to be familiar with him who deſpiſeth the voice of the Church.

Queſt. 2 Why muſt we ſhun the ſociety, intimacie, and acquaintance of him who will not hear the Church?

Anſw. 1. Firſt, for our own ſakes, leſt we ſhould be tainted, animated, and emboldned by them to do the like; and ſo we make our ſelves odious unto all who are good.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, for their ſakes who do deſpiſe the voice of the Church, that they may be aſhamed of their contempt: This anſwer is given by Saint Paul, 2 Theſ. 3. 6, 14. We command you to withdraw your ſelves from thoſe who walk diſorderly; and have no company with thoſe who are diſobedient to our word; ἵνα ἐντραπῇ, That he may be aſhamed: where the word is moſt ſignificant, for it denotes ſuch a perturbation of the minde, that he who is affected therewith, ſeeks up and down where he may hide himſelf for ſhame. For as nothing animates a ſinner more, than to ſee Chriſtians, yea the Profeſſours of Religion to love him, and delight in his company: ſo nothing humbles a ſinner ſooner, than to ſee that all good men withdraw themſelves from his ſociety and friendſhip. Now this Chriſtian ſubduction, or alienation is not like the ſubduction of the Anabaptiſts, which is conjoyned with hatred and execration: but our withdrawing of our ſelves from the contemners of the Church, is an Argument of our love unto them: yea, we muſt not ſimply or totally withdraw our ſelves, for the Apoſtle exhorts us to admoniſh and counſell thoſe whom we muſt not be familiar withall: and how can we admoniſh them, except we go unto them, and labour to reduce them into the right way?

Anſw. 3. Thirdly, we muſt have no commerce or fellowſhip with thoſe who deſpiſe the voice of the Church, for the Churches ſake, and the edification thereof: Thus Saint Paul exhorts the Corinthians to excommunicate the inceſtuous perſon, and to give him over to the Devill, leſt he ſhould infect others; for a little leaven ſowers the whole lump, 1 Cor. 5. 7.

Anſw. 4. Fourthly, we muſt not be familiar with thoſe who will not hear the Church, for the Lords ſake, or for his glories ſake: for when wicked and prophane perſons are tolerated, yea loved, and entirely acquainted, and affectionatly endeered unto the Profeſſours of Religion, it cauſeth the name of God to be evill ſpoken of, and blaſphemed among the Gentiles: for thoſe who tolerate ſuch, are thought to be like thoſe who are tolerated, 1 Tim. 6. 1. Cameron de Eccleſ.

Queſt. 3. How many ſorts of ſinners doth our Saviour intimate, or imply in theſe verſes?

Anſw. Vincentius (Serm. hyemal. pag. 540.) obſerves, that there are four kind of ſinners here pointed at, and withall how every ſort are to be handled: viz.

Firſt, there are ſome ſimple, and corrigible ſinners, who when they have offended, and are reproved, thank the reprover, and are ſorry and ſatisfactory for the offence. Now of theſe our Saviour ſaith, If thy brother ſin againſt thee, tell him his fault between him and thee: admoniſh him ſecretly, becauſe he will quickly be convinced of the wrong done, and make thee ſatisfaction.

Secondly, there are ſome who are proud and preſumptuous ſinners, who preſume too much of themſelves, and ſtand too much upon their own juſtification. Now of theſe our Saviour ſpeaks, when he ſaith, Take one or two with thee, that by their words and perſwaſions they may be the ſooner convinced of their offences and errours.

Thirdly, there are obdurate, obſtinate and perverſe ſinners, who are led by the ſpirit of contradiction and obſtinacie, and will be counſelled, adviſed, and perſwaded by none. Now theſe muſt be referred to the Church, that by her power and authority, they may be convicted and humbled.

Fourthly, there are others more prophane, malicious, and incorrigible ſinnners, who neither regard the admonition of their Brother, whom they have offended, nor of their Brethren who in love adviſe them, nor of the Church; but diſobey all, deſpiſe and ſlight all. Now theſe our Saviour ſaith, muſt be held as Heathen men and Publicans.

Verſ. 18. Verely I ſay unto you, that whatſoever ye ſhall binde on earth, ſhall be bound in heaven: and whatſoever you ſhall looſe on earth, ſhall be looſed in heaven. Verſ. 18.

Becauſe much was ſpoken of theſe words before, chap. 16, 19. I therefore here adde onely a word or two.

What is meant by binding and looſing? Queſt.

For anſwer hereunto, we muſt obſerve that theſe words, ligare & ſolvere, to binde and looſe, were uſuall in the Church of the Jews, and therefore the ſignification of them was well known and underſtood, when Chriſt was corporally in the earth; for in the Judaicall Church, ligare, to binde, did ſignifie Interdicere, Prohibere, to interdict and prohibit; and Solvere, to looſe, ſignified Iubere, permittere, to command and permit; and therefore in their language אסר is Prohibere, and התיר is Permit- Anſw.

Permittere. And thus they have a saying, Davidem & Ezechielem nihil ligasse quod non esset ligatum in lege. Wherefore to bind, is to pronounce something to be prophane; and on the contrary to loose is to pronounce something to be lawfull: this therfore is our Saviours meaning, What soever the Church shal declare to be unjust, the cause being truly and throughly known, those things God will declare to be unjust, and on the contrary those things which the Church shall declare to be just, those God also will declare just [a].

[a] Cameron de Ec clef.

Argum. This place is produced by our men against the Papists, who affirm the keys to be promised, only unto Peter: They argue thus.

If the Keys were by Christ promised unto Peter only, then they were given by him also only unto Peter, for he performes what he promises.

But the Keys were given to all the Apostles, and not only to Peter, as appears by this verse. Therfore they were not promised only unto Peter. If the studious Reader would see this Argument canvased to and fro, let him reade Amesius Bel. enerv. tom. 1. pag. 162. ad 167. And because it is so largely handled there, I will but briefly prosecute it, and frame the Argument thus.

To preach the Gospel, and to have jurisdiction of government, do both belong unto the power of the Keys.

But the Keys were equally to all committed: therfore they had all equal power both to preach and to govern. That they all had the power of the Keys equally granted unto them, appears from this verse, wherein the Keys are given to all the Apostles.

Yea Bellarmine himself confesseth that Iames was Bishop, and ordinary Pastor at Jerusalem, and therefore (with Anselm and Aquinas) saith, that he is named first by S. Paul, Galath. 2. Bellarm. lib. 1 de Pontif. Rom. Cap 19. Therefore at Ierusalem Peter was to give primacie to the ordinary Pastor there.

Answ. To this they answer, That Rome was the chief Citie, and therefore Peter being Bishop of Rome, was to have the preeminence.

Replie. But hereunto we reply, that Ierusalem was rather to be preferred in respect of place; for that City was chosen by the Lord himself, to be the chief City of his Church: but Rome through the tyranny & usurpation of the Romans over other Countries was advanced to that dignity, and not by the election and choise of God.

If the Reader would see how this verse is urged by the Separatists for their Church-discipline, let him reade Mr. Bernard against Ainsworth, where the Objection is fairly propounded and fully answered. Pag. 222, 223, 224.

Vincentius (serm. hyem pag 544.) thus commenteth upon them. 221

Answ. First, when the Rulers and Governours of a Citie or land, are gathered together, for the good and benefit of the City or common-wealth: they are then gathered together in the name of Christ, who according to his promise) will bee in the midst of them.

Secondly when the Pastors, Prelates, and Presidents of the Church are convened together in a Convocation or Synod for the good of the Church of Christ; they are then gathered together in the name of Christ, who (according to his promise) will be in the midst of them.

Thirdly, when the faithfull meet together in the house of God, for the celebration of the worship and service of God; they are then gathered together in the name of Christ, who according to his promise will be in the midst of them. Here Vincentius playes with the words, and pleaseth himself with his own conceits, thus

When the congregation is met together in the Temple, there are but Two, that is, Clergy, and Laity, or men or Women; or Three, that is, the people on the Ministers right hand, and those on his left hand, and himself which is in the midst of the Pulpit Or there are but two, that is, the Preacher, and the People: or Three, namely, the Laymen, and the Ecclesiasticall men, and the Preacher.

Fourthly, we adde, that when two or three are privately met together in a family, for Prayer, or other holy exercises; they then are gathered together in the name of Christ; who (according to his promise) will be in the midst of them: for he regards not so much the multitude of supplicants as the sincerity of the heart, and therefore when a little family joyns together about the worship and service of God, then Christ will be present with them, and also assistant and gracious unto them.

Verse 20. VERS. 20. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Where two or three are gathered together,

Quest. What doth our Saviour mean by these words?

§. 2. Shall be gathered together in my name,

Objct. It is controverted between us and the Church of Rome, by whose authority generall Councels ought to be called; and they say that they are only to be called, and appointed by the Popes authority, or his assignment; and that Emperors and Kings have no power at all to call them: and for the proof hereof urge this place thus.

Counsells ought to be congregated in the name of Christ, that is, by him that hath authority from Christ so to congregate them (Nam in nomine idem est quod ex authoritate; for in the name of Christ, is the same; with by the authority of Christ) but Christ did not commit his Church to Tyberius, but to Peter and his successors; when he said, Peter feed thou my Lambes. Bellarm. lib. 1. de Concil. Cap. 12.

Answ. 1. First, the exposition of the Iesuite, is grosse and absurd in a double regard, to wit,

I. If to assemble in the name of Christ be to assemble by the authority of the Pope, then it will follow that none are assembled in the name of Christ, and that Christ will be present with no

222 no assemblies or congregations, but onely those who send up to Rome for a licence, that they may assemble, and come together; then which what more absurde?

II. If it be one and the same thing to convene together in the name of Christ, and by the authority of the Pope, then it will follow, that the four first generall Councels (viz. the Nicene, Constantinopolitane, Ephesine, and Chalcedone Councels) which were so singularly approved of, were not called or congregated in the name of Christ, because they were appointed not by the Pope but by the Emperors: & yet Socrates (lib. 1. Cap. 6.) dare say that they were gathered together in the name of Christ. Cardinall Cusanus goes farther, affirming boldly, that the authoritie of a Councell doth not depend upon the Pope, (Quia tunc non fuissent octo prima Concilia omnia firma, quoniam per Imperatores congregabantur, Card. Cusan Concord. Cathol. lib. 2 Cap. 25.) because so we should thus disanull the authoritie of the Eight first generall Councels, which were appointed by Emperours; &c.

Answ. 2. Secondly, the Assumption of the Objection is false, that Christ gave not the Church to Kings but to Peter, and his successors; For we reade, that the Church was committed to Kings. Esa. 44.25. And David did distribute the Ministeries, and other Kings have had care of the Church. But we no where reade that the Church was committed to the Pope; and therefore it followes not neither, the Church was committed to Peter therfore it belongs to the Pope onely to call Councels.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, this Phrase to bee assembled in the name of Christ doth not signifie the efficient cause of the Assembli, but the form, viz. to be assembled in unanimitie, and concord, and the power and Spirit of Christ: as both Chrysostome (hom. 4. in Matth) & Arias Montanus (in hunc locum) expound the place.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, this phrase, In the name of Christ, doth not alwaies signifie authority but sometimes faith, and the profession of Christ, as Infants are baptised. In the name of Christ: yea sometimes in the name, signifies for Christs sake, as Ephes. 5.20 Matth. 19.29. Iohn. 14. 14. But here it signifies in the power and vertue of Christ. Scharp. de Concil. pag. 392.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, in these words [When two or three are gathered together in my name &c.] the promise of our Saviour is generall, respecting as wel the congregations and Assemblies of the faithfull in prayer, as in Councels. Now shall not Christian men any day pray in the name of Christ unto God, before they have the Popes reall command, or assent?

Answ. 6. Sixthly, Councels are then assembled in Christs name, when they suffer themselves and their actions, to be governed by the Spirit of God speaking in the Scripture.

Ver. 3. §. 3. I will be in the midst of them.

Argum. From these words we conclude that to assemble together in the name of Christ, that is, to hear his word, and receive the Sacraments, is a most manifest note of the true Church: whereunto Bellarmine answers two things, viz.

First, to be gathered together in the name of Christ is not a note of the Church, because it agrees with Heresies and Schismes. Answ. 1.

To be gathered together to preach the word of Christ truly, to hear it reverently, and to receive it sincerely, is to be gathered together in the name of Christ, and doth not agree with Heresies, and Schismes which destroy the Church. Replie.

Secondly, Bellarmine answereth, That this place sheweth not where the Church is, but where Christ is. Answ. 2.

Christ walks amongst the Seven Candlesticks, which are the seven Churches, Revel. 1. 20. and 2.1. He is to be found only in his Church; and therefore where Christ is known to be present, there is necessarily the Church. Replie.

Object: The Papists object this place to prove that a Councel cannot erre, but that the judgment therof is infallible. Christ here saith (saith Bellarmine) Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them, and therfore they obtain whatsoever they desire of God, viz. wisedome, and light which may suffice for the understanding of those things which are necessary for them. And as Christ is present in private, and particular assemblies, to help and assist them in private and particular things; so he is present in a generall Councell, that he may help them in great and publike things; and consequently, they do judge of all such things infallibly. Bellarm. de Concil. lib. 2. Cap. 2.

Answ. 1 First, this place directly respects every particular assembly of the righteous: if therefore by vertue of this promise infallibility of judging be allowed and granted unto men, then it is given also to all Bishops and Ministers assembled together in every particular Councell, and Convocation; which the Papists themselves deny.

Answ. 2 Secondly, in these two or three, to whom Christ promiseth his presence, is not necessarily, included the Pope of Rome; and yet the Papists say that not only the opinion of two or three, but even the judgment of the whole world wants this infallibility, untill the confirmation of the Pope of Rome come thereunto: and therfore from this promised presence of Christ, this infallibility of judging is not rightly collected.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, Gregory de Valentia (analys. fidei lib. 8. cap. 7.) answers, That this place is not to be applied to an infallible certainty of any opinion, wherein many agree: but unto the efficacy of the consent of many; for the obtaining of that which is unanimously desired. Bishop Davenant, de Iudice controv. pag. 97 & 114. ubi ex hoc loco contra hanc infallibilitatem disputat.

Quest. 1. How is Christ present with those who are assembled in his name?

Answ. The Schoolmen say, (and that truly) that there are four degrees of Gods presence, which degrees may rightly be applied, and accommodated to the humane nature of Christ. For

First, the humane nature of Christ is present, naturaliter, with the Son of God, and the Substantiall word Personaliter, personally the humanity being being united unto the Deitie, ἀσυγχύτως, inconfusè, ἀτρέπτως, inconvertibiliter, ἀδιαιρέτως, indivulsè, ἀχωρίστως, inseparabiliter, and therefore the humanity can never be separated from the Deitie.

Secondly, the humane nature of Christ as it is present ἐν λόγῳ, in the Godhead, is present with the blessed Saints and Angels in heaven, Gloriosè, gloriously, who without ceasing behold his glory which was given unto him by his Father. Iohn. 17.24.

Thirdly the humane nature of Christ or his manhood, is present ἐν λόγῳ, with his Church Gratiosè, graciously: governing it, and blessing the Ministery therof, regenerating men by Baptisme, feeding his Children in his Holy Supper with his body and blood, hearing the prayers of the faithfull, curbing their enemies, and at length freeing them from all evill. And this is the presence here promised.

Fourthly, the humane nature which Christ assumed unto his divine, is present with all creatures Vniversaliter, universally; creating them, conserving them, directing them unto a determinate end, containing them within the bounds appointed and set by God, and the like.

Is there not a Pleonasmus or redundance here, ἐκεῖ εἰμὶ ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν, I will be there in the midst of them?

It seems that there is, but yet indeed there is nothing lesse: for this Phrase, To be in the midst, in the Hebrew phrase hath a double signification namely,

First, to be present with some: as is plain from these places, Genes. 23. 6. Ezech. 1. 1. Esa. 52. 11. which is repeated by S. Paul. 2 Corin. 6. 17. Separamini de medio eorum, Be ye separated from the midst of them, that is segregate your selves from them. Now suppose this phrase To be in the midst, had no other signification but this, then there was indeed a Pleonasmus here, and yet such a one as is ordinary and very Emphaticall; thus the Grecians say, πάλιν καὶ πάλιν, and the Latines, Etiam atque Etiam, Again and again: and therefore being the more Emphaticall, it is not superfluous. But we need not thus answer the question; because there is another signification of these words viz.

Secondly, this phrase, To be in the Midst, as it signifies to be present with some: so also to bee president amongst some: or to be chief in an assembly: Thus it is said, God standeth in the congregation of the Gods, and judgeth. In medio Deorum, in the midst (or amongst) the Gods, For in Iudicial assemblies the place of a President is in the midst, that he may both hear all, and be heard by all. Thus Christ is both present with, and President amongst the faithfull assembled together in his name.

Verse 23, 24, &c. VERS. 23, 24, &c. unto the end of the Chapter. Therefore is the Kingdome of Heaven likened unto a certain King, which would take account of his servants; and when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him which ought him ten Thousand Talents, &c.

Quest. 1. What is the meaning of this Parable?

First, the King here spoken of, is God, who is the Lord of all the world. 223

Answ. 1. Secondly, the servants here mentioned are we who are the Subjects of this King. Answ. 2.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the Talents which the Lord betrusted us withall and which prodigally we spent and wasted are the Image of God, and those inherent graces which were given unto us in our first creation, which by the fall we lost:

Answ. 4. Fourthly, the debts which we owe are our sins and trespasses.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, the calling of the servants by name to account, is by the Preaching of the Law, and the accusation of the conscience.

Answ. 6. Sixthly, the payment of the debt, is either the performance of obedience, or the undergoing of punishment for disobedience.

Quest. 2. Are wee able to pay the debt wee owe unto God?

Answ. No, for we are neither able to satisfie for our former disobedience, nor to perform perfect future obedience, unto our Lord God.

Quest. 3. How may we obtain remission of our sins at Gods hands; seeing we are not able to satisfie his justice, nor pay our debts.

Answ. 1. First, wee must do as this servant did to his Master: that is,

I. We must humble our selves before God, as this servant, Who fell down and worshipped.

II. We must pray unto God for pardon, and remission, as he did; Lord have pity, or patience.

III. VVe must promise the payment of our debts, as he did, I will pay thee all: that is, we must promise that our debts shall be paid and satisfied for by Christ, and we must vow new obedience unto God. And then

IV. We may be sure that the King our Master will pardon and pity us, and forgive us our debt.

Answ. 2. Secondly, we must do as this Servant did not unto his fellow servant: that is, we must forgive our brethren, if we desire that our Father should forgive us.

Quest. 4. What debts must we forgive our Brethren.

Answ. By the name of debts are understood all the offences, wrongs, injuries, and the like which are committed against us, by our Neighbour: all which we must be ready to forgive for Christs sake.

Quest. 5. Whether are money debts to be forgiven, or are they altogether excepted;

Answ. Neither: for as the Gospel doth not evert and destroy policy and civill Government, nor prohibit the lawfull exacting of debts: So it doth not allow of cruelty, oppression, extortion, and hard usage, either by publike or private men, neither doth God like those Spirits, who will let men rotte in prison, rather then remit, or release them, although they have nothing to pay: for this servant who would have no pity of his fellow servant, found none at his Masters hands afterwards.

Quest. 6. Why must wee forgive those who wrong, injure, and offend us?

Answ. 1. First, because herein, and hereby we imitate the 224 the example of our Father, who is full of mercy and pitty. Reade Luke 6. 36. Epheſ. 4. 32. Coloſſians 3.13.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, becauſe ſmall and few are the offences of our brethren towards us, in compariſon of ours towards God: That which our brother owes us, is nothing in regard of that which wee owe God, as is to the life illuſtrated by our Saviour in this parable.

I. What doe our brethren owe us; a hundred pence: obſerve here the Roman peny is the eighth part of an ounce, which after five ſhillings the ounce, is 7-d. ob. So that the whole ſumme is but iij.l. ij.s. vj.d.

II. What doe wee owe our God? Ten thouſand talents: now here alſo obſerve: That a talent is 750. ounces of ſilver, which after five ſhillings the ounce, is 187.d. x.s. And the whole ſumme is 1875000. One thouſand thouſand, eight hundred ſeventy five thouſand pounds. And therfore ſeeingour Father ſo freely forgives us ſo great a ſum, we ſhould not ſtick to forgive our brother ſo ſmall a debt.

Anſw. 3. Thirdly, we ſhould forgive thoſe who wrong us, becauſe they are our fellow-ſervants: yea, our brethren, and members of the ſame body with us: now none ever hated their own fleſh: a man will not cut off his hand, if it hit, and hurt his eye; becauſe it is a part of himſelfe: and a man cannot be cruell to any part, or member of his body, but hee is cruell to himſelfe, which is inhumane.

Anſw. 4. Fourthly, wee muſt bee ready to forgive thoſe who offend us, becauſe cruelty againſt ſuch is hurtfull: yea moſt pernicious unto our ſelves, Iames 5.9. He who will not pitty his fellow-ſervants, nor have patience with them, ſhall (with this wicked ſervant) bee eternally puniſhed. For as

I. The King being angry, cals this evill ſervant: And,

II. Reproves his cruelty: And

III. Caſts him into perpetuall priſon. So cruell perſons in the generall judgement, ſhall

Firſt, be cited, and ſummoned to appear, by an angry Iudge. And Secondly, ſhall be reproved, and reproached for their cruelty. And

Thirdly, ſhall be ſubjected, and bound over to perpetuall paines, and unſpeakable torments.

Queſt. 6. How muſt wee forgive, and pardon thoſe who offend us?

Anſw. Wee muſt remit offences after the manner of our heavenly Father; that is, wee muſt labour to forgive our brethren, as our Father forgives us; that is,

Firſt, the Lord pardons citò, quickly; David had no ſooner ſaid, Peccavi, I have ſinned, but hee hears (Dominus abſtulit peccatum tuum) tidings that the Lord had put away his ſinne, we ſee that the Lord is ſo prone to pardon, that the Prophet Ionas is diſpleaſed with his readineſſe, and proneſſe thereunto. Thus ſhould wee be ſlow to anger, but ready to remit, and moſt eaſie to be reconciled.

Secondly, God forgives Totum, the whole debt; he doth not pardon by halfes, but remits all our ſins, Pſalme 103.2,3. Thus we ſhould not forgive our brother only ſeven times, but as often as hee offends us, and that wholly and fully, as though they never had wronged us at all.

Thirdly, our Father gives more then is deſired: his ſervant here intreats him to have a little patience, and he preſently doth not only forbear his debt, but doth forgive the debt. Adam and Eve are not only pardoned, but have over and above a promiſe made of a Saviour: And the Prodigall Child doth only beg, that he may be received as a ſervant, and he is accepted as a ſonne. Thus we ſhould put on the bowels of mercy, and tender compaſſion, and be ready not only to forgive our brethren, but alſo to give unto them; not only to do them no hurt, but alſo to do them what good wee can.

Fourthly, God doth all theſe things, Ex animo, cordially, and verely; for our offences being once pardoned, he remembers them no more, but caſts them into the bottom of the ſea, Mich. 7. Thus we muſt not revenge our ſelves indeed, nor complain, or murmure in word, nor by our carriage or countenance ſhew, that either we will avenge our ſelvs, or would if we could, or harbour any malice, and grudge in our hearts, but forgive from our hearts. For if wee labour in theſe things thus, to imitate our heavenly Father, then wee have a promiſe, that all our ſins ſhall be pardoned by him.

Againſt this which hath been ſaid, fleſh and blood objects many things: and becauſe many therefore I will briefly reſolve them.

My brother, or neighbour reiterates his offences againſt mee daily: and therefore why ſhould I forgive him? Object. 1.

Conſider with thy ſelf, what thou oweſt unto God, and how great thy debt is: yea, remember if thy brother ſin daily againſt thee, ſo doſt thou againſt God; and if thou daily forgive him a few offences, thy Father daily forgives thee many. Anſw.

But my eaſineſſe and readineſſe to pardon him, will make him more obſtinate, and injurious againſt me; and therfore why ſhould I forgive him? Object. 2.

Do thou what is thy duty to do, and what the Lord requires of thee; and commit the ſucceſſe, and event unto God; yea, remember, that although many wickedly abuſe the Lords long ſuffering, and patience, unto their own deſtruction, yet the Lord ceaſeth not to beſtow many mercies upon them, making his Sun to riſe, and his rain to fall, even upon ſuch. Anſw.

But this proneneſſe to pardon thoſe who offend me, will make others deſpiſe, and ſlight me; and therfore for this cauſe, it is not good to bee ſo eaſie, and ready to remit. Object. 3.

Saint Paul hereunto anſwers; that glory, honour, and peace are prepared by God (though not by men) for all thoſe who continue in well doing; notwithſtanding all the lets, and hinderances of the world, Rom. 2. Yea, thoſe who honour God, ſhall be honoured in heaven by God, though deſpiſed on earth by men. Object. 4.

But David curſed his enemies, for their miſchief

chiefe done against him, and prayed for their destruction: and therefore why may not I?

Answ. 1. First, sometimes it is true, that David prayed, against the Counsels of his enemies, and that God would infatuate them, and frustrate them; as that of Achitophel: and thus may wee desire wish, and pray for the peace, and prosperity of the Church, and children of God, and that the Lord would infatuate all the plots of the wicked intended against them. Or

Answ. 2 Secondly, David prayed for some temporall calamity to be inflicted upon the bodies of his wicked enemies, that thereby their soules might be saved: and thus wee may desire the Lord to shew his power, and justice upon obstinate sinners, that thereby they may learn to fear, and tremble before him, and turn unto him, and so by a corporall punishment be freed from an eternall. Or

Answ. 3. Thirdly, David prayed for the finall destruction of his enemies; and that two manner of wayes: namely, either

I. For the destruction of all his enemies in generall, whosoever or whereseever they were. Or

II. For the destruction of some more particularly, whom by divine inspiration he knew to be the enemies of God, and his Church. Now these are not to be imitated by us, wee having in the Gospel both a Precept, and President, to the contrary.

First, wee are commanded to blesse those who curse us, and to pray for those who persecute us, Mat. 5.

Secondly, Christ did not revile, when hee was reviled, 1 Pet. 2. nor curse those who crucified him, but contrarily prayed for them.

Object. 5. Wee are but men, and therefore it must not be expected, that wee should doe as Christ did.

Answ. The dutie here required hath been performed by men, and not only by Christ: yea, if we bee regenerate men, wee also in some measure may perform it. Ioseph, although he was a man, yet hee forgave his brethren, who had sold him to be a slave unto heathens. David was a man, and yet hee forgave Saul his enemy, who pursued his life. Stephen was but a man, and yet he forgave, and prayed God to forgive those who stoned him.

Object. 6. But I am never able to forgive my neighbour, as God forgives me; and therfore it is but lost labour to endeavour it.

Answ. Indeed it is true, that wee cannot forgive, as the Lord forgives, in regard of the quantity, but wee may according to the quality, if we forgive them candidly, cordially, faithfully, and ex animo, for a spark is true fire, and a drop is true water.

Quest. 5. Whether can the remission of sinnes be made void, or not? that is, whether doth the Lord remember, impute, and punish those sins which once hee had pardoned? for it seems by this Parable that hee doth; hee first pardoning the debt, and freeing the servant from his bond, verse 27. and afterwards for the debt casts him into perpetuall prison, there to endure eternall torments? 225

Answ. 1. First, we must here observe: That this is a Parable, and that similitudes and parables are not so to be accommodated, and applied unto those things, for the declaration, and manifestation wherof they were propounded, that they ought to agree, and square with the things themselvs in all things; for then they should not be parables, but the things themselvs. And therfore we must alwayes look to the mind of him that propounds the parable, and observe for what end he propounded it, and what he would have, or principally aims at, in the propounding of it; for otherwise many absurdities will often follow from Parables. Wherfore seeing this is a Parable, wee ought not too subtilly to apply, or rather to wrest, all the words of the Parable, unto the thing wherof Christ speaks: but onely to consider the mind, and purpose of Christ in the propounding of the Parable.

Answ. 2. Secondly, Christ had taught his Apostles, and in them all of us, to pardon those injuries, offences, and debts, which our brethren have committed against us, and do owe unto us, verse 21. 22. And then presently addes this Parable, for the confirming, and declaring of his purpose. Now our Saviours scope herein is to shew; that it is necessary, that they should forgive their brethren, who desire to be forgiven by their Father.

In this Parable,

I. Our Saviour propounds the example of a King, who forgave a great debt unto one of his servants: and hereby would teach us: that wee have a Master, and Lord in heaven, who is gentle, easie to be entreated, and ready to forgive sin; but so, that when wee are not able to pay our debts, or to satisfie for our sins, we beg mercy at his hands, and pray unto him for pitty, and pardon. The King here releaseth not his servant, nor remitteth his debt, until he humbleth himself before him, and confesseth his present inability to pay, and prayeth for mercy: Thus although the Lord be naturally slow to conceive a wrath, and ready to forgive; yet wee cannot hope to be forgiven, except we confesse our sins, and humble our selvs before our God, and crave mercy at his hands; because upon these conditions, the Lord offers mercy unto us.

II. Christ in this Parable propounds unto us the example of a servant, who would not pardon his fellow servant: and lays down the words of the King, his Master unto him, shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellow-servant, even as I had pitty on thee, verse 33. And hereby our Saviour would teach us, that God requires of us, that we should pardon our brethren, who have injured us, when they aske forgiveneese of us, and remit the debts of those, who are not able to pay.

III. In this Parable our Saviour declares the words, and deeds of the King, unto this evill servant; his Lord was wroth with him, and delivered him to the Tormentors, &c. verse 34.

IV. The Parable being expounded, Christ forthwith doth explicate, what his scope is in this Parable, saying; So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if yee from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.

226

Answ. 3. Thirdly, from these words of our Saviours in the Parable; therfore we must not infer, that God will impute unto us, and punish us, for those sins which once he had clean remitted, and done away [because this doctrin is contrary to divers plain places of Scripture, as hath else-wher been shewed] but wee must marke how Christ concludes onely one thing from the whole Parable, and that conditionally: and therefore, unlesse we remit, and forgive our brethren, who injure, and wrong us, wee shall bee punished by God, for those offences committed against him. In a word, Christ by this Parable would shew, that they are miserably mistaken and deplorably deceived: who thinke, that either God hath forgiven, or will forgive them their sinnes, although they neither have forgiven, nor will forgive their brethren their trespasses. Zanch. miscel. de remiss. peccat. pag. 288. Initio.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIX.

Vers. 3,4,5,6. VERS. 3,4,5,6. The Pharisees came unto Christ tempting him, and saying unto him, is it lawfull for a man to put away his Wife for every cause? And hee answered and said unto them, Have yee not read, that hee which made them at the beginning, made them male and female? And said, For this cause shall a man leave Father and Mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and they twaine shall bee one flesh. Wherefore they are no more twaine, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joyned together, let not man put asunder.

Sect. 1. [The Pharisees demanded of Christ, whether it were lawfull for a man to put away his Wife for every cause?]

Quest. The Pharisees here propound a question unto CHRIST concerning Divorce, Whether for every cause a man may put away his wife, or not?

Answ. To this Christ answers negatively, that for every cause a divorce is not lawfull: And this hee proves by divers Arguments, or reasons: namely,

First, from the authority of the Institutor of Marriage, which was God, vers. 6. Whom God hath joyned together, let no man put a sunder.

Secondly, from the Antiquity of the institution of marriage, which was from the beginning, Vers. 4. At the beginning God made them male and female, and joyned them in marriage together.

Thirdly, from the manner of the conjunction and union, which is betwixt a man and his wife: vers. 5. Twaine shall bee one flesh.

Fourthly, from the excellency of the conjugall bond and tye, vers. 5. A man shall leave Father and Mother, and shall cleave to his wife.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And they twaine shall be one Flesh.]

Quest. 1 Whether is Polygamie and Digamie lawfull or not? That is, whether is it lawfull for a man to marry two wives, or more then two?

Answ. 1 First, Polygamie is unlawfull, for after marriage the man hath no more power over his body, but his wife, neither hath the wife power over her owne body, but her husband: but it was never lawfull for the wife to have more husbands then one at once; therefore it was never lawfull for the man to have more wives then one at once.

Answ. 2. Secondly, there are two sorts of Digamie, namely,

I. Lawfull, and improperly so called; and this is, when men have had more wives then one, but not at once, but successively, one after the death, or lawfull divorce of another.

II. Unlawfull, and this is two-fold, to wit, either,

First, direct Digamie, when men have two wives at one time. And

Secondly, indirect Digamie; and this is when a man having put away one wife unjustly marries another: and of this sort of Digamie, the Apostle speakes, 1 Tim. 5.9. Shee must be the wife of one husband. A wife might not by the law of God (if shee had not violated her faith to her husband, nor stained the marriage bed) bee divorced from her husband; but it was permitted amongst the Iewes. Now such a woman as was unjustly divorced from her husband, and married to another, was the wife of two husbands: that is,

I. Shee was the wife of the first husband still, Iure divino, by the law of God. And

II. Shee was the wife of the second husband onely Iure humano, by humane Law.

Quest. 3 What manner of union is betwixt man and wife, that our Saviour here saith, they are but one?

Answ. This union and conjunction of the husband and the wife, by which they become to be but one flesh, may be easily understood, if wee doe but turne our eyes to the end of that Union: Now the end of this union was, that man might have a helper, and assistant in readinesse, yea, and that like unto himselfe. Now man stood in need of such a helper, in many regards; viz.

First, for the procreation of Children, and issues sake; Now although properly the Father be Genitor the begetter, yet he cannot beget a child alone: And hence it is, that the offspring which is brought forth must acknowledge both Father and Mother, but not as two, but as one Parent. Unus enim ab uno est.

Secondly, man stood in need of a helper for the education of children: Now it is impossible (ordinarily) for a man to have any, who will bee more tender, and carefull over his children then his wife, shee being Mother unto them.

Thirdly, man stands in need of a helper, and assistant, that may communicate, and partake with him, both of weale and woe, both of prosperity and adversity: For our joy is encreased when wee have others who rejoyce with us, esteeming our joy their rejoycing, and our good their glee, and our sorrow is decreased when wee have copartners, who mourne and weepe with us, bearing a part of our burden, as though our griefe were theirs. Now ordinarily there is not a greater fellow-feeling of one anothers affaires, or occurrences, betweene any, then there is betwixt the husband and wife.

Fourthly, this union of the husband and the Wife, is seene in the communion of all things; all things being common betwixt them. If the studious Reader would see these two last particulars amplified and enlarged, let him reade Cameron. Myrothec. Pag. 96,97.

232

§. 3. Those whom God hath joyned together, let no man put a sunder.

Sect. 3. Object. Some object this place thus, against marriage after a lawfull divorce. CHRIST saith, Whom God hath joyned, let no man separate; therefore after divorce they still remaine man and wife before God, and may not marry to others.

Answ. The party offending breakes the bond of marriage, and so sinneth grievously both against God and the yoke-fellow: but the innocent party marrying againe after lawfull divorce, onely taketh the benefit of that liberty, whereto God hath set him free through the unlawfull breaking of the bond, by the party offending. Perkins.

It is controverted betwixt us, and the Church of Rome, whether there are more causes of divorce then Fornication only; and they hold the affirmative, and wee the negative. Separation from bed and board may be admitted, say they, for divers causes. Concil. Trid. sess. 24. can. 8. Bellarm. lib. 1 de Matrim. c. 14. Now against this their opinion we urge this Argument drawne from this place:

Argum. What God hath joyned together, man must not separate; But the Papists in devising so many separations (as they doe) from bed and board, doe put asunder those whom God hath coupled: for where the duties of marriage are broken off, there marriage it selfe is also dissolved: if the man and wife be no longer bound to render the carnall debt one to another, and other services of love, the bond of marriage it selfe is loosed betweene them: and consequently they are divided whom God hath coupled. This is Chemnitius his Argument, and is opposed by Bellarmine, and amply answered by Dr. Willet. Synops. 777. 778. To which place I referre the Reader.

It is controverted also betweene us and the Church of Rome: Whether the Pope can dispense with those who are married: and both the practice of the Pope, and the opinion of the Popish writers shew, that by his dispensation he can dissolve lawfull and perfect Matrimony. Now against this we produce this place, That which God hath joyned, man must not separate, or put asunder. Hereunto we may adde. Luk. 16. 18. and 1 Cor. 7. 10. In which places both Christ and St. Paul say, That man and wife joyned by Christ, must abide during life together, or live unmarried, and not be severed by the Popes dispensation.

Argum.

Answ. Bellarmine (Lib. 2. de Monach. Cap. 28.) and divers others say, That those who are married may be separated, if the one party be desirous to enter into holy Orders, though the other be not agreed, if their marriage be not consummate by carnall copulation, but was only publikely ratified and confirmed by the rites of the Church, and the consent of both parties: More plainely their opinion is this, The Pope by his dispensation may dissolve a marriage in these two cases, to wit:

First, if either the man desire to become a Monke, or the woman a Nunne. And Secondly, if the marriage have been onely publikely ratified, but not consummate by carnall knowledge: and the reason to prove this, which is given both by Bellarmine and others is, That CHRIST speakes here onely de matrimonio consummato, and that Matrimonium ratum with which the Pope dispenseth, is not de jure divino. Hereunto we reply.

Reply. 1. First, CHRIST speaketh here absolutely, and maketh no mention at all of copulation, or Popish consummation.

Reply. 2. Secondly, Matrimonie with Papists is a divine Sacrament, and consequently, it both is perfect without carnall copulation, and also indispensable by the power of man: If we may beleeve their owne famous Iesuits Melchior Canus, who saith Spiritus sanctus, et Sacramenti gratia per coitum non datur Canus de locis Lib. 8. Cap. 5. Pag. 246. The holy Ghost, and the grace of Sacrament is not given by copulation.

Reply. 3. Thirdly, it is absurd to say, that marriage begins to be a sacrament by carnall copulation, and was not a sacrament by the Priests action.

Reply. 4. Fourthly, it followeth hereupon that there was not perfect matrimonie betweene Adam and Eve, for their matrimonie was in the state of innocencie, and before all carnall knowledge.

Fifthly, it followeth hereupon, that the marriage betweene Ioseph and Mary, was not perfect matrimonie: for there doubtlesse wanted carnall copulation: and yet the Angell of God feared not to call her Iosephs wife.

Sixthly, both the Pope hath dispensed with marriages, or, by his dispensation dissolved them, even after copulation, and also many popish Doctors deny, that he may give dispensation for the dissolving of those marriages which are ratified and performed according to the rites of the Church, with the consent of both parties, although not consummate by carnall copulation. If the learned Reader would see this to the life prosecuted and proved, I referre him to B. Davenant. De Iudice controv. pa. 138. 139. and Mr. Bels bold challenge, pag. 36. 37. 38. 39. 40.

VERS. 7. 8. 9, They say unto him, why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away? He saith unto them, Moses because of the hardnesse of your hearts, suffered you to put away your wives; but from the beginning it was not so. And I say unto you, whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery; and who so marrieth her which is put away, doth commit adultery. Vers. 7. 8. 9.

§. 1. They say unto him.

Sect. 1. Quest. The Pharisees here demand of Christ, whether Moses comanded that wch was unlawfull? Hereunto our Saviour answers these things, namely, Answ. First, he denies not but that Moses gave a commandement concerning a bill of Divorcement.

Secondly, he grants that Moses did permit them to put away their wives, but he denies that Moses gave any such commandement.

Thirdly, he gives the reason, why Moses did permit that, which in it selfe was unlawfull; viz. because of the hardnes of their hearts, & for the avoyding of a greater inconvenience, namely, murder, as was shewed before. Chap. 5. 31.

Fourthly, he shewes the true, and onely cause, or the onely true cause of divorce, namely adultery: Whosoever putteth away his wife, except it be for fornication, &c. §. 2. Why

Sect. 2. §. 2. Why did Moses command to give a writing of divorce, and to put her away?

What is the difference betweene Repudium (a putting away of a wife) and Divorsium a Divorce? Modestius saith, they differ thus. Repudium; a putting away, hath place, & belongs, unto those who are contracted (thus after Ioseph and Mary were contracted, he thinking her to be with child, was minded Repudiare; to put her away.) Math. 1. 19.) but Divortium a Divorce, is a separation of man and wife, after that matrimonie is consummated, both by publike legall rites, and carnall knowledge. Repudium (Inquit) est inter contractos, at Divortium inter maritum et uxorem, Post matrimonium consumatum.

Sect. 3. §. 3. But from the beginning it was not so.

Bishop Cowper in his seven dayes conference, obserues hence, That if controverlies of Religion were decided, as our Saviour decided the question concerning Divorcement, the quarrell betweene us, and the Church of Rome, were soone ended: For being demanded, whether men might put away their wives, as Moses permitted them? He answers, no: because from the beginning it was not so: leaving this to us as a Maxime in Religion, and a most sure rule whereby to try trueth from falsehood. What hath not beene from the beginning, let it be rejected as a noueltie. Now how many novelties there are in the Church of Rome, which cannot be proved to have been from the beginning, is proved by B. Cowper. pag. 7. 8. 9. &c. And divers of our owne learned * men.

* See Bp. Mortons Appeale, lib. 4. cap. 16. §. 3. pag. 150.

But the Papists will not acknowledge ꝧ any of their opinions or practises are novell, except we can produce the yeare when they were borne, the place wherin they were first brought forth, & the author by who they were first begotten. Now the māner of the resolutiō of this question, doth overthrow this idle evasion of theirs; as appeares thus:

When the Pharisees tempted CHRIST in the question of divorce, asking; Whether it is lawfull for a man upon every occasion to put away his wife? He answers, from the beginning it was not so: reproving the cōmon errour of the Jewes by testimony of Antiquitie, from the word of God, Gen. 2. 24. Where we may obserue that the question propounded by the Pharisees were two, viz.

First, whether is it lawfull?

Secondly, if it be not lawfull, Why then did Moses suffer it? To this second Christ answers. Moses suffered it for the hardnesse of your hearts. But to the first he answers: It was not so (that is, not thought lawfull) from the beginning.

Here the Romanists would have taught the Pharisees to reply upon Christ, thus; If you convince us of error, you must shewe us, When this arose in the Church of God, who first taught it, & what person resisted it; or else this contrarie custome must be maintained as divine, and from the beginning. But the wisdome of Christ seemeth to condemne this reason of folly, when passing over the originall of this custome, he is contented with the revealed will of God in ꝧ beginning of truth: In the beginning it was not so: plainly teaching us, that we are not bound for the confutation of errour, to a positive demonstration of the beginning thereof, but that it is sufficient to deliver a negative, shewing a time when it was not.

But the Papists plead Antiqnity for many of their opinions, which we hold erroneous; to which evasion also our Saviour hath taught us here, how to answer: For he by reforming the corrupt doctrine of divorce (which was ancienter then Moses) by a more ancient constitution, even of that which was from the beginning, did teach us wisely to distinguish of Antiquity, that one is primitive, and hereditary, the other adoptive, of an after invention: There is Ancient, and most ancient, and this must we flee unto, because Antiquissimum verissimum, That which is most ancient, is most true. Tertul.

Quest. What may we safely hold concerning Polygamie, or the having of divers Wives alive at once, which was usuall amongst the Iewes, and seemes here to be reproved by our Saviour?

Answ. 1 First, we hold that it was never lawfull, being either a transgression of, or at the least a digression from the first Institution in the creation. This our Saviour here plainly shewes, saying, From the beginning it was not so: for (verse 4) At the beginning God made them male, & female; one male, and one female: and they two shall be one flesh; where we see that not three or foure, but only two are made in one: therefore Polygamie is a breach & transgression of the first Institution. Mal. 2. 15.

Answ. 2 2. In the Patriarks we deny not, but that before there was yet any Law written, in respect of ꝧ necessity of those times, it was by use & custome tolerated, though not by any dispensatiō authorized.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, among the Gentiles, where there was not the like reason or occasion, Polygamie was neither lawfull, nor tolerable.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, after Moses law was written, and the Church in them increased, we doubt not but that the multitude of Wives was a sinne and corruption. I enlarge not these, because the Reader may see them amplified by Dr. Willet. Synops. fol. 775.

Sect. 4. §. 4. Except it be for Fornication.] In these words our Saviour doth plainly shew, that Marriage is not forbidden after a lawfull divorce; For if hee which puts away his wife but not for fornication, causeth her to cōmit adultery; then he which putteth away his wife for fornication, causeth her not to cōmit adultery. And if he which puts away his wife, unlesse for fornication, and marries another, commits Adultery: then he which puts away his wife for Fornication, and marries another, doth not commit adultery. This argument is largely handled, & discussed, both by Dr. Willet. Synop. pag. 776. 777. and also by Chamierus, de repudiis, lib. 18. cap. 16. tom. 3. fol. 693.

The Papists hold that a man may put away his wife, if he be to enter into Orders: Against which we produce this Argument from this place.

Our Saviour giveth this perpetuall Rule, that no man should dismisse his wife but for Fornication: But Orders is no fornication (although frequently those in Orders be fornicators) therefore not for entring into Orders, is shee to be dismissed. So verse 6. No man must put a sunder that which God hath coupled: but they which are but Contracted, are coupled before GOD; therefore no humane ordinance (such as is the single life annexed to Orders) can separate them.

234

Vers. 10. 11. 12. VERS. 10. 11. 12. His Disciples say unto him, If the case of the man bee so with his wife, it is not good to marry. But hee said unto them, all men cannot receive this saying, save they to whom it is given. For there are some Eunuches, which were so borne from their mothers wombe; and there are some Eunuches which were made Eunuches of men: and there be Eunuches which have made themselves Eunuches for the Kingdome of heavens sake. Hee that is able to receive it, let him receive it.

Sect. 1. §. 1. His Disciples say unto him.]

Quest. The Apostles here demand of CHRIST, whether it bee expedient for men to marry or not, seeing that they must keepe their wives whatsoever they are, except Adulteresses?

Answ. In answer here unto: our Saviour,

First, opposeth the necessity of marriage, which is such, that but few are exempted from it.

Secondly, he shewes to whom this is given, to be free from Marriage; viz. either to those that by some defect of nature are debilitated from generation; or to those who willingly or unwillingly are made Eunuches; or to those who by Witchcraft, charmes, and enchantments are weakned and disinabled from performing the act of procreation; or to those, who neither by nature nor force are gelded, but of their owne accord abstaine, being endued with the gift of Continencie: of which more by and by.

Sect. 2. §. 1. It is not good to marry.]

Quest. How can these words of the Apostles, and that saying of St. Paul, 1 Cor. 7. 1. (It is good for a man not to touch a woman) stand or accord with that saying of the Lords. It is not good for man to be alone; that is, To be without a wife.

Answ. 1 First, the Lord speakes of that which is good and commodious for the whole species of mankind, which cannot bee promoted, propagated, and preserved by one man alone.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Disciples speake here of a personall good; for to them it seemed good for men to put away their wives, as often as they would: but herein they erred.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Apostle Paul also speaketh of a personall good, or commodity, which is joyned with a single life; because the single did more easily undergoe persecution, then the married. Vers. 26.

Sect. 3. §. 3. All men cannot receive this saying.]

The Papists usually blame us, because sometimes wee refuse to subscribe to the opinion of some one or other Father, and ancient writer, yet themselves can reject them by the grosse: As for example. Maldonate the Jesuite (Comment. in Math. 19.) Saith, That almost all that comment upon this place of Scripture doe note, that all men are not capable of the state of single life, because they have not the gift of continencie. Now observe these things, viz.

First, that the Fathers by their exposition of this place, did imply a necessity in some to marry namely, for those to whom the gift of continencie was not given.

Secondly, that the Jesuite himselfe confesseth, That almost all the Fathers doe expound his place to signifie, that it is not in all mens power to live unmarried, because of the want of the gift of continencie.

Thirdly, amongst these, Almost all, he reckons up Origen (Tract. in Math. 7.) Gregory Nazianzen (Orat. in hac verba) And Ambrose (in exhort. ad Virgil.) Who expounds the place as wee have said.

Fourthly, yet hereunto he vouchsafeth onely this answer, I cannot agree hereunto, nor be brought to follow this interpretation, but thinke rather that CHRIST by saying (All men receive not this saying) meant that all men did not understand it. Such is the partiall practise of our Adversaries in condemning Protestants of impudencie, for refusing the testimonies, although but of a few; and yet will Maldonate have it held a point of learning and wisdome in themselves, to reject (as oft as they list) Almost all.

Argum. Against the vow of single life imposed by the Church of Rome upon all the Clergie, wee produce this Argument drawne from this place.

Continencie is a hard thing, and is not given to all, (All men receive not this saying) And therfore it ought not indifferently, and without any difference, to be imposed upon the Clergie.

Answ. 1 First, Bellarmine hereunto answers, That they onely ought to bee Priests, who seeme to have this gift of continencie.

Reply. But there is nothing seene in their Masse Priests, nor in those who enter into Orders, by which it may be collected, that they have this gift any more then others: And certaine vowes and burdens ought not upon uncertaine conjectures to bee imposed upon the consciences of Christians.

Answ. 2 Secondly, he answers, that the Clergie may have the gift of continence if they will.

Reply. But they have no more power to containe if they will, then Paul had to perfect what he would. Rom. 7. 15. Yea suppose that hee might containe that would, yet who (in these things) could be certaine, that alwayes his will should be to abstaine. Quibus datum est, non qui voluerint, dicitur: quoniam non est volentis, neque currentis, sed miserentis Dei, a quo datur donum virginitatis servande. Non dicit, qui vult, sed qui potest capere, quia etsi velles, & non sentis te tanta constantia, ut possis, non es de numero eorum qui possunt capere. Cajetane in hunc locum.

Objct. 1 Against this they object, Christ hath made a generall promise, That whatsoever any asketh of God in his name, they shall receive it. Iohn 14. 14. and 15. 16. And St. Iames saith, If any lacke wisedome, let him aske it of God, who giveth abundantly. Iames. 15.

Answ. 1 First St. Iames saith, If any lacke wisdome (not if any lack the gift of continencie) let him pray, and it shall bee given him: and therefore that place is ill applied to the present purpose.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it is palpably absurd, to understand Christs words without any Limitation; That whatsoever any asketh of GOD for CHRISTS sake hee shall receive it: as for example, example. If this exposition of Christs words (Iohn 14. 14. and 15. 16.) be true, then it will follow, that all the Cardinals, Bishops, and Priests in the world shall be Popes at one and the same time, upon this supposition, that they all prayed to God for Christs sake, to make them Popes when the Popedome is vacant: and so (according to their opinion, that the Pope is the head of the Church) the Church would be made a true monster indeed. But this they will say is absurd; and therefore let them say no lesse of their generall, and indefinite exposition of Christs words.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the holy Evangelist else-where expounds the place, adding this limitation, if we aske any thing according to his will he heares vs. 1. Iohn, 5. 14. And therefore not whatsoever in generall.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, wee say that there are two sorts of gifts; to wit.

I. Some gifts are generall promised to all the faithfull. And.

II. Some are singular, and peculiar; now this St. Paul saith, God distributeth not indifferently to all the faithfull, but as he pleaseth, to one thus, and another so. 1. Corinth. 12. 11. Now the gift of continencie is not one of the first sort, but of this second: and therefore all cannot receive it, though they pray for it.

When the Apostles had said, It is not good to marry; our Saviour replies. All men cannot receive this saying, save they to whom it is given. For there are some Eunuches, which were so borne from their Mothers wombe; and some so made by men, and some who make themselves such for the Kingdome of Heavens sake. Hee that is able to receive it, let him receive it.

From these words Bellarmine collects three things (de Monach. lib. 2. Cap. 9.) namely,

First, that in this place no precept is given concerning continencie or the conservation of Virginity, because in this Chapter marriages are proved and approved. Yet

Secondly, in this place there is given Consilium a Counsell concerning continencie, and the preservation and conservation of virginity; because when the Disciples had said, It is not good to marry; the Lord doth not say, yea but it is good and expedient: but he that is able to receive it, let him receive it. And

Thirdly, from hence he gathers, that this continencie doth not onely afford vnto us, and bring along with it a corporall utility, but it hath also a reward in Heaven; because our Saviour here saith, Some have made themselves Eunuches for the Kingdome of Heavens sake.

Obiect. 2. The summe of his Argument (which hence he brings to prove Supererogatory workes) is this,

Virginity is a good worke, which is not commanded but commended, and yet there is made unto it a promise of the Kingdome of Heaven: therefore there are workes of supererogations, which shall be rewarded.

Answ. 1. First, wee say, that neither in this place, nor in any other, is given a generall command to all men equally, which binds them to lead a single and a virgins life; for this were to forbid marriage which God hath instituted. Yet 235

Answ. 2. Secondly, wee say, that in this place divers men are denoted, who from a particular calling, are obliged to lead a single life: to wit, those, who having received the peculiar gift of continencie, doe make use of it, for the promoting and advancing of the Kingdome of God.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, wee deny, that Christ in this place gave advice or counsell, concerning the single life, as it is taken in the Popish sense. For they by a Counsell understand a worke of perfection promiscuously commended unto all: Now CHRIST here teacheth, that some are capable ἀγαμίας of living unmarried, and therefore he calls these specially unto this single life, and not all Christians equally and alike.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, Christ doth not so call them ad ἀγαμίαν unto this single, and virgins life, as though from or by this estate and worke they might acquire a perfection transcending the righteousnesse of the law of God: but because in this estate and condition they may the more fully and freely, proceed and goe on unto perfection.

Answ. 5. Fifely, these words, Hee that is able to receive it, let him receive it, is not a Counsell which commends the single life unto all men, as a worke of perfection: but a rule shewing to whom belongs the single life, which is an instrument, whereby those who have it may come nearer unto perfection; they having more freedome and liberty to serve the Lord, then those who are encumbred with the care which attends vpon those who are married.

Answ. 6. Sixtly, to that which Bellarmine affirmed, [That virginity was not onely to be conserved and kept, for a corporall commodity, but for a celestiall reward] wee answer, That as the single life is an instrument unto a greater progresse in the Kingdome of grace, so by consequence it brings us unto a greater reward in the Kingdome of glory: but yet it doth not deserve this heavenly reward, in it selfe, but is onely a meanes to carry and lead men in that way which leads vnto heaven, and to the obtaining of a greater measure of glory in that heavenly Kingdome, by the munificence and bounty of God. The summe of all is this, Virginity is neither commanded, nor commended, nor counselled to all men, by Christ: neither is it commended as a worke transcending the spirituall perfection of the Law: and therefore it is not a Counsell in that sense, that Papists defend and maintaine Counsels.

Sect. 4. §. 4. And some have made themselves Eunuches.]

It is a dangerous thing (in the interpretation of Scriptures) when the words are properly to be taken, for to take them figuratively; or contrarily, when the words are figuratively to be taken, to take them properly. When Origen taught at Alexandria he gelded himselfe; because our Saviour here said: Some have gelded themselves for the Kingdome of God, taking these words literally, which are figurative; whereas he propounded almost all the rest of the Scriptures figuratively. Now this fact of his Demetrius the Bishop of Alexandria at first did approve of and commend, but afterwards, when he heard the fame of Origen to increase, and the world to sound his praise, did reprove, and condemne it.

Quest. 1. What is the true meaning of these words, Some have made themselves Eunuches?

Answ. It is not, some have vowed single life (as the Papists dreame) nor some have made themselves Eunuches (as Origen thought) but that there are some, who being assured that they have the gift of continencie, vpon that gift doe endeavour to maintaine there present estate, that so they may the better serve God, and advance his Kingdome, both in themselves and others.

Quest. 2. Who are meant here by Eunuches.

Answ. By Eunuches are meant those who have no need of marriage, and therefore are fit to lead and live a single life.

Quest. 3. How many sorts of Eunuches are there?

Answ. 2. First, there are some who were borne Eunuches from their Mother: who are so cold of constitution that they are unfit for generation.

Answ. 2. Secondly, there are some who were made Eunuches by men; who either for some sinne, or for some disease of the body, have beene gelded: or else so dealt withall by force, for the keeping of Queenes, Virgins, or Concubines, which was usuall amongst the Gentiles, and is yet in use amongst the Turkes.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, there are Eunuches, who have made themselves Eunuches for the Kingdome of Heavens sake. That is, there are some who being endued by God with the gift of continencie, doe devote themselves wholly up to the Service of the Lord, and withdrawe themselves from all carnall and mundane delights, which may distract them from the Lords worke.

It is controverted betweene us and the Papists, whether it is lawfull and meritorious to vowe the vowe of continencie or not? And for the proofe of the affirmative, they produce this Argument drawne from this place.

Object. This word Eunuche doth denote a vowe; and therefore those who make themselves Eunuches for the Kingdome of Heavens sake, are those who have vowed the vow of continencie: The Antecedent Bellarmine proves thus; He is not an Eunuche who onely doth containe, but he who cannot not containe: Now these Eunuches are not compelled to containe for some defect of nature (because they are distinguished from such) nor are constrained by any common Law, because there is no Law which forbids marriage absolutely; and therefore by Eunuches are meant those who have vowed the vow of continencie. Bellarm. Lib. de Monach. Ca. 22.

Answ. 1. First, wee deny the Antecedent, neither doth Bellarmines probation prove it; for whosoever containes himselfe, so long as he containes himselfe, Ex dono by vertue of the gift of continencie, is an Eunuche.

Secondly, wee deny the Consequent; because another cause of continencie may be given besides a vow, that is, the gift of God. 1. Corinth. 7. 9. Yea, the Apostles here did not demand concerning a vow of continencie: and therefore this place speakes nothing of vowing; for undoubtedly CHRIST answers unto the things demanded. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, many did containe and abstaine from marriage, not by reason of any perpetuall vow of continencie, but in regard of the present necessity; to wit, that in the time of persecution they might professe and preach the Gospell the more conveniently. 1. Corinth. 7. 20. Answ. 3.

Why may not all the Clergie, or others, vow the vow of continencie, and single life? Answ. 4.

First, because except the gift of continencie be given by God, such a vow cannot be kept by the flesh. Answ. 1.

Secondly, because no young men or women taking that vow, can be sure and certaine to obtaine that gift of continencie from God, because it is given but to few. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, because single life being (as they say) a Counsell not a Precept, becomes by the vowing of it) a Command not a Counsell: and thus they command that which neither GOD nor CHRIST commands. Answ. 3.

How doth it appeare that Ministers may marry? Quest. 5.

The Germaine Priests and Bishops being forbidden marriage, some 700 yeares after Christ, by Pope Boniface, Hildebrand, and some others, maintained Priests marriages against them, by the word of God; and some of their arguments were these. Answ.

First, because God in the old Testament allowed wedlocke to the Priests. And

Secondly, because no where in the new Testament is it prohibited, either by GOD, or CHRIST. And

Thirdly, because St. Paul saith expressely; That concerning Virginity he had no command from God. And Fourthly, because St. Paul would have Bishops and Deacons to be the husbands of one wife. And Fifthly, because both Christ and Paul affirme, That all men cannot receive this Counsell of continencie, but only they to whom it is given.

5. 5. For the Kingdome of Heavens sake.] Sect. 5.

The Rhemists object this place to prove, that the vow of chastity and single life is both lawfull and meritorious; because Christ saith, Some have made themselves chaste for the Kingdome of Heaven. Object.

First, this is meant onely of those who have the gift of continencie, who if they be sure that they have received it, may vow and purpose single life: but without such assurance, no man can vow continencie lawfully: neither can every man receive this gift that will: as appeares by Verse 11. Answ. 1.

Secondly, as for meriting of heaven, it [illegible] neither by being married or unmarried, but it is the free gift of God through [illegible] Rom. 6. 23. Answ. 2.

VERS.

Vers. 13, 14, 15. VERS. 13, 14, 15. Then were there brought unto him little Children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray, and the Disciples rebuked them. But Iesus said, suffer little Children, and forbid them not to come unto me; for of such is the Kingdome of heaven. And he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

Sect. 1. §. 1. And the Disciples rebuked them.]

Quest. Why did the Apostles of Christ rebuke and blame those who brought Children to their Master?

Answ. It was not out of envie to the children' or the bringers of them, but out of zeale for the honour and quiet of their Master. For

First, they imagined that Christ should be inaugurated into an earthly Throne and Kingdome, and therefore it did not suite with the Majesty of a King, to trouble himselfe with women (which seeme to have bene the bringers of the babes) and young children. And

Secondly, they rebuked those who brought the Children, in love to their Master, that he might not be over-wearied: they saw him to be so troubled, molested, and pressed upon, that often times he could not get leaue, or have leasure to eat; and therefore (they thought) that he would be tired outright, if he were troubled with children too, as well as men. And

Thirdly, hitherto the sicke had come unto Christ, and the Disciples commiserating their sicknesse, and desiring their health, suffered them to come unto Christ; but these children were well, and wanted nothing; and therefore what need was there to offer, or bring them unto Christ? Thus they rebuked them, because they thought it a needlesse worke. Yea

Fourthly, they thought that Christ could doe nothing with or unto these children: And therfore they blame the bringers of them. The Apostles see the children to be young, and as yet neither capable of reason, nor able to heare their Masters words with profit, nor to judge of his miracles; and therefore what should their Master doe with them? Now all these conceits our Saviour implicitely taxeth, in saying, Suffer little Children to come unto me, and forbid them not.

Sect. 2. Obiect. §. 2. Suffer little children to come unto me.]

The Papists say, that men and women at any age (if they be come to yeeres of discretion) may take upon them the vowe of Monkerie: and because we deny this, therefore Bellarmine produceth this place for the proofe of it. Christ saith, Suffer little Children to come unto me: Ergo, young men and maids may become Monkes, and Nuns.

Answ. 1. First, the text speaketh of little children, such as were not yet come to yeares of discretion; now the Papists themselves say, that they must be of yeares of discretion, who undertake this vowe or profession of Monkerie. And therefore this place is corrupely applied to the question in hand.

Answ. 2. Secondly, from this place they might as well conclude, that none can come unto Christ, but through a Monks cowle; because our Saviour saith, Suffer such to come unto me.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the text saith, Of such is the Kingdome of heaven; and therefore by this reason of Bellarmin's, the gates of heaven should onely be open to Monkes and Friars, which is the right heresie of the Pelagians, and Manichees, that promised the Kingdome of God to none, but those who cast away their riches.

Sect. 3. Quest. §. 2. For of such is the Kingdome of heaven.]

Whether or no by Baptisme can and ought the Kingdome of Heaven be applied, and sealed to Infants, seeing by the word, and the other Sacrament it cannot be, and consequently whether are they to be baptized?

Answ. The affirmative (namely, that heaven may be applyed and confirmed unto Infants by baptisme) is proved by divers arguments taken from Scripture; by which also it appeares, that they ought to be baptized.

First, Christ here saith, Of such is the Kingdome of heaven: now none can enter into heaven except hee be regenerate, Iohn, 3. 5. and baptisme is called the laver of regeneration. Titus, 3. 5. And therefore it is necessary that Infants should be baptized, that they might be borne againe of water, and the Spirit, and consequently enter into the Kingdome of Heaven.

Secondly, it is not the will of God, that Infants perish. Matth. 18. And therefore he would have them saved. Now God doth not save them without meanes, but by the laver of regeneration. Tit. 3. 5. And therefore Infants are to be baptized.

Thirdly, if those who are guiltie of sinnes, would not perish in their sinnes, nor for them, it is necessarie that their sinnes should be pardoned, which remission is conferred by the meanes appointed by God for this end; now Peter. Acts. 2. 38. exhorts them to be baptized for the remission of their sinnes. And therefore if we desire that Infants may not perish, we must admit them to baptisme for the remission of their sinnes.

Fourthly, Christ would and commanded Infants to be offred and brought unto him. Matth. 18. Now we cannot corporally and visibly put infants into the armes of Christ, but we doe it by baptisme; for as many as are baptized into Christ (saith St. Paul) have put on Christ, Rom. 6. Galath. 3. And as many as are baptized into CHRIST, are baptized into his death, and are buried with him by Baptisme. Now because there is no question of this, that Infants are to be brought unto Christ (he having commanded it) but that the controversie betweene us and the Anabaptists is concerning the manner, how they ought to be brought unto him, We therefore follow the conduct of the Scriptures, which teacheth us that Infants are to be offred vp, and brought unto Christ and are to put on Christ by baptisme, and consequently, that it is both the will and commandement of Christ, that Infants should be baptized, and by baptisme be brought unto him.

238. him, because of such as are brought vnto him is the Kingdome of Heaven.

Fiftly, Christ would blesse Infants, Marke 10. that is, communicate his merits unto them for their salvation, for this is the true blessing, Genes. 22. Galath. 3. Ephes. 1. Now Baptisme is the meanes or instrument, whereby the benefits of Christ are communicated to Infants: for by baptisme Christ cleanseth and sanctifieth. Ephes. 5. Yea saveth, 1. Peter 3. 21. And therefore Infants are to be baptized, that so the blessing of Christ (that is the participation of his merits) may be communicated vnto them.

Sixtly, when Christ saith: Suffer Infants to come vnto mee, he would have Infants to be made his members, that is members of the Church whose head he is: for they who come vnto Christ are the true members of the Church, Iohn 6. and are baptized into one body, 1. Corinth. 12. And therefore Infants are to be baptized, that they may be made members of the Church whereof Christ is the head.

Seventhly, those for whom CHRIST died, that they might be glorified, he sanctifies, and washes with the laver of water in the word. Ephes. 5. But Christ died for Infants, of whom is the Kingdome of Heaven: therefore he sanctifies Infants, and washeth them with the laver of water in the word.

Eightly, Infants in the old Testament were circumcised, therefore in the new they ought to be baptized, for Baptisme is come in the place of Circumcision. Colos. 2. And there is the same covenant of peace and grace in both.

Ninthly, Christ gave an universall command unto his Apostles of baptizing all, who were to be saved: Matth. 28. Mark 16. But in that number are many Infants; and therefore the Precept of baptizing is to be extended even unto them.

Tenthly, Acts 16. and 1. Corinth. 1. Wee read of whole Families and house-holds which were baptised by the Apostles; and therefore by their practice it appeares that Infants are to be baptized, because in all probability there were some Children belonging to those Families.

Lastly, the Prophet Esay prophecying of the time of the new Testament, Chap. 49. 22. doth not say that onely men of ripe yeares shall be members of the Church, but he saith, I will lift my hand vnto the Gentiles, and set vp my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy Sonnes in their armes: and thy Daughters shall be carried vpon their shoulders. Acts 2. when St. Peter verse 38. had exhorted them to be baptized for the remission of their sinnes, he addes, verse 39. For vnto you is the promise made, and to your children.

Objection. Against this Balthasar one of the first Anabaptists objects. Christ conferred a blessing upon those Infants which were brought unto him, not by baptisme, but by the laying out of his hands vpon them: and therefore we ought not to baptize Infants, but onely to lay our hands on them, not doubting but thereby the blessing of Christ will be conferred vpon them.

First, whether we should embrace rather the practice of all true Christian Churches in all times, or the idle phansie of a few brainsicke Anabaptists, let our enemies judge. Answ. 1.

Secondly, whether we should rather doe that which is enjoyned by precept, and to which is annexed a promise, or that for which wee have neither precept nor promise, let the world decide: Now wee have both precept and promise for baptizing (as was shewed in the former question) but we have neither for imposition of hands. And therefore we leave the Anabaptists, to their owne vnwarrantable and wicked practice, and as not worthy to be learnt, reject it. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, all the actions of Christ are not to be imitated: Why doe we not make a peculiar Sacrament of breathing in the faces of Ministers, or those who are baptized, seeing Christ by so doing conferred the holy Ghost vpon the Apostles, who were baptized, and were to undertake the worke of the Ministery. Hereunto they answere, because wee have neither Precept so to doe, nor promise of any blessing in so doing: and the same wee answere to this their objection. Answ. 3.

VERS. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. And behold, one came and said vnto him, good master, what good thing shall I doe that I may have eternall life? And he said unto him, why calleſt thou mee good, there is none good but one even God? but if thou wilt enter into life keepe the Commandements. He said to him, which, and Iesus said, these, Thou shalt not kill: Thou shalt not commit adultery: Thou shalt not steale: Thou shalt not beare false witnesse. Honour thy Father and mother: and thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy selfe. The young man said unto him, I have observed all these things from my youth: what lacke I yet? Iesus said unto him, if thou wilt be perfect, go sell that thou hast, and give it to the poore, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come and follow mee. And when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowfull: for he had great possessions. Verſ. 16, 17, 18, &c.

§. 1. Why calleſt thou me good, there is but one good, that is God. Sect. 1.

Some object this place to prove that Christ is not God, arguing thus. Objection

He that denies himselfe to be good, denies himselfe to be in nature and essence a God:

But Christ here denies himselfe to be good: Why calleſt thou me good? &c.

Therefore Christ denies himselfe to be in nature and essence a God.

First, that Christ is good evidently appeares thus; to wit: Answ. 1.

1. From his owne mouth, Many good workes (saith he) have I done amongst you; wherefore for which of my good workes doe yee stone me? Now men cannot gather grapes of thornes: and therefore he brings forth good true good fruits, muſt needs be a good Tree.

Anſw. 2 II. The Scripture telleth vs, the creatures of God are good, and are good by Chriſt, and were made by him; and therefore he the Creator muſt needs be good.

Secondly, it is falſe that CHRIST denies himſelfe to be good; for he onely askes a queſtion.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, therefore the conſequence is naught: Chriſt ſaith, Why doſt thou call me good; Therefore he denies himſelfe to be good, followes not: For

I. We muſt conſider unto whom, and wherefore Chriſt uttered theſe words, to wit, they were ſpoken unto a Phariſee, for the repreſſing, and beating downe of his pride: He thought himſelfe to be very good, but when he heares, Chriſt ſeemes to diſlike the phraſe, and not to take the title unto himſelfe, he may then learne to thinke lowlier of himſelfe? for although the Phariſee were good in his owne conceit, yet I cannot conceive that he thought himſelfe to be either ſo good, or better then Chriſt; and therefore ſeeing the Maſter refuſeth to be called good, the proud Phariſee cannot for ſhame but plucke downe his peacocke-plumes.

II. CHRIST doth not ſimply deny himſelfe to be good, but he denies it according to that opinion which the young man had of him, who thought him to be but a merere man: Now in this ſence indeed Chriſt ſaith, that no meere man is abſolutely good.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, St. Ambroſe (lib. 1. de fide. cap. 2.) ſaith well, Non dicit Chriſtus, nemo bonus, niſi Pater, ſed niſi Deus, Deus autem eſt nomen commune et naturæ. Chriſt ſaith not, none is good but the Father, but none is good ſave onely God; now God, is a common name to all the three perſons of the bleſſed Trinity.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, neither the eſſence nor the attributes of God can be communicated unto any Creature; whence our Saviour here ſaith, There is none good but God onely, that is, after that ſort which God is good, to wit, by his eſſence and nature, and therefore truly, and by himſelfe good. And this ſpeech of our Saviours was not ſpoken without cauſe: For looke what good is in the creatures, the ſame is from the Creator, 1. Corin. 3. 8. and Iames 1. 17. Now though the goodneſſe that is in the creatures be from God, yet is it imperfect: whether it be.

I. Naturall, as to be, to live, to have ſence, &c. Or

II. Gotten by art and paines, as the liberall ſciences, vertues, &c. Or

III. Supernaturall, as the knowledge of God, faith, regeneration, &c. But as for God he hath them moſt perfectly, and is good: Who as he is JEHOVAH of himſelfe, ſo is he good of himſelfe. Man although he have all things good, perfectly in reſpect of other creatures, yet imperfectly in reſpect of God: to whoſe goodneſſe, wiſedome, and power, the like in creatures cannot be equall.

Anſw. 6 Sixthly, Chriſt by theſe words. There is none good but God, doth neither deny himſelfe to be good, nor to be God; but it was his mind hereby to reprehend, in that party with whom he ſpake, and in all others, two things: namely. 239

I. That when as wee ſee in our ſelves, or others any good, wee conſider not that it is from God, but admire the ſame as if it were of our ſelves: whereas we ſhould aſcribe all glory and honour unto God, who is the Author of whatſoever is good.

II. CHRIST by this his anſwere would reprehend this in us, viz. That we conſider not the corruption of our nature, namely that all men are naturally evill, and that God onely and wholly is good, there being in him no evill at all. Wherefore Chriſt by this ſpeech of his, would bring all men

Firſt, to the knowledge of God, that he alone is good indeed, from whom all good things come. And

Secondly, to the knowledge of our ſelves, that wee by nature are evill and perverſe. Thus wee muſt not thinke, that Chriſt denied himſelfe to be good: as though hee did exempt himſelfe from being this one alone good God; but onely in that ſenſe that the Phariſee called him good: who conſidered not, that whatſoever was good in the man Chriſt, the ſame was from God, and conſequently from his Deity.

§. 2. If thou wilt enter into life, keepe the Commandements.] Sect. 2

The Papiſts lay downe their opinion concerning the merits of workes, in this manner and forme; God giveth as well everlaſting life and glory to men, for and according to their workes, as he giveth damnation for the contrary workes. And men by their workes proceeding of grace, doe deſerve or merit Heaven. Rhemiſt. Rom. 2. §. 2. and 1. Cor. 3. S. 2. Now for the proofe of the merit of our workes, they produce this text, If thou wilt enter into life, keepe the Commandments; and 1. Timothy 48. Godlineſſe hath the promiſe both of this life, and the next. And whoſoever ſhall forſake any thing for my ſake, ſhall receive an hundred fold in this life, and in the life to come, life everlaſting. And Iames 1. He ſhall receive the crowne of life, which God hath promiſed to thoſe that love him. Now hence they reaſon, life eternall is promiſed to good workes; and therefore as he that promiſeth is indebted by promiſe; ſo he that worketh and fulfilleth the condition meriteth. Or thus, if the promiſe of eternall life be conditionall, then it is neceſſary that thoſe who would be ſaved ſhould fulfill the condition: But Chriſt hath here ſaid, If thou wilt enter into life, keepe the Commandements: and therefore unto ſalvation is required the condition of the fulfilling of the Law. And therefore our fulfilling of the Law is neceſſary, yea the proper and true cauſe of our ſalvation. Or thus (for Bellarmine de Juſtific. lib. 4. cap. 7. urgeth the point in controverſie all theſe wayes) life eternall is promiſed to workes, and a promiſe made with a condition of labour, doth not onely make the thing promiſed a debt, but alſo that he which fulfils the worke may be ſaid to merit the thing

1240 thing promised, and may demand it as his wages, which of right belong unto him. The Argument seemes thus to be framed.

Whosoever shall fulfill the workes, to which the promise of life eternall is made, he merits Heaven Ex condigno, and may challenge it as due debt.

But the faithfull fulfill those workes, whereunto life eternall is promised.

Therefore they merit heaven Ex condigno and may claime it, as their right by worke.

Answ. 1 First, here is a repugnancie in the termes, for promise, and merit, or worke, cannot stand together: now promise (not merit, or worke) is the object of Faith, according to that of the Apostles, It is by Faith that the promise might be sure (Rom. 4. 16.) And that which is of Faith, is not of debt or mans merit; as the Apostle sheweth, Rom. 4. 3. And Ambrose; veniam tanquam ex fide speremus, non tanquam ex debito. Let us hope for pardon as of Faith, not of debt (Lib. 2. de panit. cap. 8.) And therefore if Salvation be by promise it is not of merit but of faith.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the promise, of eternall life indeed is conditionall in regard of the legall covenant, or covenant of workes, and depends upon the perfect and rigide observation of the Law: and therefore our Saviour advisedly and of purpose referres this young man unto this covenant, because he thought that by his good workes he could merit heaven.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the promise of life eternall in regard of the Evangelicall covenant, and covenant of grace, doth depend vpon the condition of Faith; and hereunto are referred all those, who being sensible of their weakenesse and infirmity, acknowledge themselves unable to keepe the Law, or to merit salvation by any thing they can doe.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, of these who are under the covenant of grace, the practise of good workes is required, not as the condition of the covenant, by whose exact observation they may acquire life eternall, or by the violation thereof be deprived or debarred of eternall life: but the practise of good workes is required of them, as a subsequent condition, for the testimony of their thankfulnesse, and progresse in the way of salvation. Although therefore by reason of the infirmity of the flesh, they daily faile in this practice of good workes, yet cleaving close unto the Mediatour by Faith, they doe not fall from the promise of salvation. From whence it is plaine, That the fulfilling of the Law, is not that condition whereunto the salvation of the faithful doth leane, neither that a meritorious efficiencie of workes is necessarily required for the obtaining of life eternall, as Bellarmine affirmes.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, it followeth not, God promiseth life with a condition; therefore by the condition performed wee doe merit: seeing that the reward dependeth vpon the promise which is apprehended by faith, and so is not of merit. And thus it appeares that the Major propositiō is not universall, because a condition may be added to a promise, although there be no proportion betweene the condition required, and the reward promised; as for example, if the King should promise a mighty masse of money to him that would come unto him, he that came, and received the reward promised could not say, he had deserved it, because there was no proportion betwixt the worke and the wages. So if life eternall were promised, yea and given to those who doe what lyeth in their power (as the Papists say) yet they could not say, that they had deserved it ex condigno, because there is no proportion betweene our imperfect and momentary workes, and our eternall and glorious reward. Againe, a promise may be added to the condition of a worke, which of right ought to be performed; that is, a King or Master may promise a Subject or Servant some reward, if they will but doe what they ought to doe; As for example, A Master may promise to his bond-slave that if he will be but a good, faithfull, and profitable Servant unto him for a yeare or two, hee will then set him at liberty: Now though the Servant should doe what is desired, yet he could not claime his freedome, ex condigno, because all servants ought to be good, and faithfull unto their Masters. And thus our Saviour saith of us, Luke 17. 10.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, the Minor proposition is false [namely, that the faithful fulfill the works whereunto the promise of life eternall is made] for there are none of the faithfull but sinne, and therefore none fulfill the workes to which life eternall is promised. Now when wages or a reward is promised to a workeman, that is, to him who shall exactly fulfill the condition which is added to the promise, and yet it is given to him who doth ot fulfill the condition then he who receives it cannot say, that he merited it, but onely that it was given him of grace, not of desert. And such are all the faithfull; wherefore our Saviour teacheth one and all to pray and that daily: Forgive vs our trespasses: and therefore they cannot ex condigno, by their workes merit heaven.

Seventhly, to the place objected wee answer two things; namely.

Answ. 7 I. That none of the places produced or alleadged prove the Minor propolition; and therefore that being false, the conclusion is nothing.

II. The places cited onely proove that there is a promise made to those who worke, but not that the workes are condigne, that is, either not due by some other right, or perfect, that is, such as are supposed in the condition. And therefore they neither establish the Major proposition.

§. 3. Keepe the Commandements.] Sect. 3

Our Saviour sending this young man to the Morall Law, may occasion divers questions concerning the Law.

How

Quest. 1 How doe the Law and Gospell truly differ?

Answ. 1 First, they differ herein, namely.

I. The Doctrine of the Gospell is revealed from above, and otherwayes is unknowne to the wise and prudent men of the world. Matth. 11. I thanke thee oh Father, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and revealed them to babes. And Iohn. 1. The Sonne of God shall teach you. And Math. 13. To you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdome of Heaven. Thus the Gospell is not naturally knowne unto men.

II. The Law in some manner is knowne to reason; for although it was proclaimed in Sinai and published by GOD, yet before that it was knowne, and written in the hearts of men in their first condition, and remained (though much obscured) afterwards: as St. Paul shewes Rom. 1. And that those who have no more then the light of nature, have the Law in some sort writ in their hearts.

Answ. 2 Secondly, they differ thus, Lex data, the Law was given by Moses, Veritas facta, but grace and truth were made by Christ, Iohn 1. Where an Emphasis is to be observed in these words, Dare et Facere, To give and to make. For

I. Moses gave the Law, that is, Moses in the Law did shew and demonstrate unto men, as with his finger, or in a glasse, what righteousnesse the Lord requires of men as his due, namely, the perfect fulfilling of the Law prescribed, or intire obedience, which is absolute in all the parts and Articles of it. But Moses cannot shew a doer of the Law, nor can find one that payes the debt of absolute and perfect obedience amongst all corrupt mankind: But

II. The Gospell shewes and holds out unto us a Doer of the Law, namely Christ, who by doing the Law, hath merited grace for us at the hands of his heavenly Father. For for mankind, or in the roome of mankind he performed the Law perfectly, and absolutely, as he saith himselfe, I came not to destroy the Law but to fulfill it. Math. 5.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Law and the Gospell thus differ, to wit:

I. The promises of the Law are conditionall and particular, promising life onely to those, who perfectly satisfie it according to the will of God; according to this speech of Christs unto the young man, If thou wilt enter into life, keepe the Commandements; and Luke 10. Doe this and live. And thus the promises of the Law are made onely to those who perfectly fulfill it. But

II. The Gospell hath free and universall promises, namely, that God for CHRISTS sake will freely forgive the sinnes of all those who beleeve, Iohn 3. 16. and 1. Behold the Lambe of God which takes away the sinnes of the World: and of his fulnesse wee have all received grace for grace, Iohn 1. 16. Thus the Law hath promise of life, upon the condition of doing and fulfilling the Law; but the Gospell hath a free promise of salvation, upon the condition of beleeving, or laying hold upon the promises by the hand of Faith. 241

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the Law and the Gospell are distinguished in the effect. For

I. The Law doth not bring nor shew grace unto men, but it makes knowne unto them their sinnes, and the wrath of God, which they have incensed by their sinnes, and that condemnation which they are guilty of for their sinnes; and thus it workes in men terrours. But

II. The Gospell doth shew and bestow grace by CHRIST, and the benefits that wee reape by him: It lets us see, how wee are justified before God by Christ, and how for his sake God is reconciled unto us, promising peace and joy unto us in Soule here, and glory and felicity in Heaven hereafter: and thus it workes comfort, and sweet consolation.

Quest. 2 What is the office and use of the Law, that our Saviour sends this young man unto it, keepe the Commandements?

Answ. 1 First, the Law of God doth admonish all men of that rule of righteousnesse, unto which God created them; yea which they were able to observe and keepe, when they were first created, and which God justly yet requires of all: Wee know that in civill things, the violation of a Law, doth not take it away, or abolish it: but although there be transgressions of the Law daily, yet the Law stands firme. So Adams breaking of the Law hath not abolished this rule of righteousnesse, which was given unto man at first to walke by, but it is immovable, and doth still expresse and shew that Righteousnesse and obedience, which men owe unto God as unto their Creator. And this Law the Lord would have to be made knowne unto all men, that every one might understand his obligation thereunto.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Law doth leade us to the acknowledgement of an infinit debt; that is, it humbles, it terrifies, it condemnes unto perpetuall Prison, all the violaters of the tenne Commandements; Matth. 18. The Law accuseth, Iohn 5. There is one which accuseth you even Moses; it kils men, and leaves men deprived of all comfort; it affects with shame and blushing. Our Saviour being about to leave the Earth, Luke 24. gives charge to his Apostles to preach Repentance; and therefore the office and use of the Law is to urge and perswade unto contrition, and sorrow for sinne, and the breach of the Law. Yea without the true knowledge of the Law, either Epicurisme or Pharisaisme doth raigne amongst men.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the office and use of the Law is to shew to those, who are regenerated and justified, according to what Rule their obedience should be begun, exercised, and continued. Iohn being asked by divers of his Hearers what they must doe? Answers, they must be just, charitable, and faithfull; and bring forth fruits worthy of repentance, Luke 3. 8, 11, 12. &c. Which workes were prescribed unto them in the law, and from it. And all those pro-

242 precepts which Chriſt ever and anon gives concerning good workes are agreeable unto the Law: and therefore our lives muſt be framed according to the rule of the Law, and the direction thereof.

Queſt. 1 Why muſt the law be obſerved?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, becauſe God commands it: Now an Argument drawne from the authority of Chriſt or God, ſhould be of great force with Chriſtians: CHRIST would not diſſolve the Law, Chriſt ever and anon ſends us unto the law; and God commands us to obey the Law; and therefore great reaſon there is, that wee ſhould labour and endeavour to obſerve and keepe the Law.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, the obſervance of the law is the worſhip of God: for the workes commanded in the Law are in themſelves good; and the Law is a manifeſtation of God, and his will: and therefore we ought to labour to obey it.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, wee ſhould be carefull to obſerve the Law, becauſe thereby we labour to imitate God, Math. 5. 48. and 1 Peter 1. 13. &c. And Anſw. 4 Fourthly, becauſe in ſo doing we glorifie our God. Math. 5. 16. Philip. 2. 15. And

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, becauſe by our obedience we teſtifie our love unto God, Iohn 14. 15. And

Anſw. 6 Sixthly, becauſe thereby wee confirme our election and vocation, 2. Peter 1. 10. And

Anſw. 7 Seventhly, becauſe by inuring of our ſelves unto good workes, we ſhall facilitate our obedience. Uſus Promptos facit, Uſe makes men perfect and prone, both

I. Unto a holy labour in that which is good: And alſo

II. Unto a godly warring and fighting againſt ſinne and whatſoever is evill. And Anſw. 8 Eightly, we ought to ſtrive to obey the Law, and to fructifie in the practice of holy workes, becauſe the felicity and happineſſe of our eſtate doth encreaſe, by the augmentation of our ſanctity, and the nearer we approach to the nature of bleſſed Spirits.

Anſw. 9 Laſtly, by our obſervation of the Morall law, we ſhall be a meanes to winne and gaine our Brethren. Philip. 2. 15. and 2. Peter 1. 12. And therefore great reaſon there is, that we ſhould labour to obey it.

Sect. 4. §. 4. Ieſus ſaith unto him, Theſe, &c.]

Queſt. Why doth our Saviour here in anſwer to the young mans queſtion, omit the Precepts of the firſt Table, and recite onely theſe of the ſecond.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, not becauſe the Precepts of the ſecond Table, are chiefe in dignity, or more excellent then the firſt; for the duties of the firſt are more excellent then the duties of the ſecond. Nor

Anſw. 2 Secondly, becauſe the more principall Precepts of the firſt Table doe not belong unto the preſent cauſe, namely ſalvation; for they are principally requiſite unto ſalvation. But

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, our Saviour names onely the duties of the ſecond Table, becauſe in theſe wee are moſt eaſily deceived, and ſooneſt by Sathan, and our owne corrupt nature over-reached. And Anſw. 4 Fourthly, becauſe our true obedience to the ſecond Table is but a fruit, effect, or conſequent of our obedience unto the firſt. He that is carefull to performe thoſe duties which God requires of him in the ſecond Table, towards his Brother, and that becauſe God requires it, gives unto the world a good argument and teſtimony of his obedience unto God in the duties of the firſt Table. Read Galath. 5. 6. and 1. Iohn 4. 20.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, our Saviour to this young man recites onely the precepts of the ſecond Table, becauſe the Jewes held theſe ſo vulgar, & eaſie, that there were few but thought that they obſerved and kept theſe ſufficiently enough: as this young man plainly ſaith, All theſe have I kept from my youth up. And therefore for the ſuppreſſing of this preſumption, and rectifying of this vulgar errour, our Saviour by the rehearſall of theſe precepts would teach them, that they obſerve and keepe none of them, as they ought to doe.

Sect. 5. §. 5. Honour thy Father, and thy Mother.]

Queſt. 1 What is the honour that Children owe unto their Parents?

Anſw. To this the Hebrewes anſwer; They owe unto them maintenance, and reverence; they ſhould give them meat, drinke, and cloathing; they ſhould lead them in, and lead them out. And they adde further, we reade, Honour the Lord with thy ſubſtance; and Honour thy Father and Mother: thou art to honour God with thy ſubſtance, if thou have any ſubſtance; but thou art to honour thy Parents, whether thou have any ſubſtance or not; for if thou have not, thou art bound to begge for thy Parents: So ſaith, R. Salomon in his Gloſſe vpon Levit. 10. 3.

Queſt. 2 Whether ought wee to love our Parents or our Children moſt? And whether are we rather to releeve?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, wee are to love our Parents more then our Children, in giving them honour; for they are nearer to us then our Children, being the inſtruments of our being: yea the child is beholden to the Parent, not the Parent to the Child: Yea the Child takes of the Father his body, but not the Father his from the Child.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, we are to ſuccour our Parents in caſe of extreame neceſſity, rather then our Children: For (Filium ſubvenire parenti proprio, honeſtius eſt quam ſibi ipſi, Ariſtot.) It is a more honeſt thing to helpe the Parent, then a mans ſelfe. Yea there is a greater conjunction betwixt the Father and the Sonne in Eſſe abſoluto, then betwixt us, and our Children: and therefore in caſe of extreame neceſſity, a man is more bound to helpe his Father, then his Child.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, when there is not ſuch a caſe of extreame neceſſity, then a man is more bound to helpe his Child, then his Parent. 2. Corinth. 12. 14. The children lay not up for the Parents, but the Parents for the Children: And the reaſon is, becauſe the Father is joyned with the Sonne, as the cauſe with the effect: Sed cauſa inſistit in effectum, the cauſe workes in the effect; and ſo ſhould the Parent communicate unto his child.

§. 6.

Sect. 6. §. 6. And thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy selfe.

Quest. Must wee love all our Neighbours alike, and as well as our neareſt kindred? or are wee bound to love thoſe more, in whom we ſee more grace, although they be ſtrangers to us; then thoſe of our kindred, in whom wee ſee not ſo great meaſure of grace?

Answ. 1 First, wee muſt not love all equally, and alike, as will appeares by the following anſwers.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we are to love thoſe moſt, in whom wee ſee moſt grace Objectivè that is, in reſpect of the bleſſedneſſe that is deſired, becauſe they are nearer joyned to us in God. A Center, out of which iſſueth many lines; the further they are extended from the Center, they are the further diſunited among themſelves; and the nearer they draw to the Center, they are the nearer united; as appeares by the figure in the margent. So thoſe who are neareſt to God, ſhould be neereſt to us, and wee ſhould wiſh to them the greateſt meaſure of happineſſe.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, theſe who are neareſt to us in the fleſh, and in the Lord, ſhould be moſt deare unto us Appretiativè, and in our eſtimation; And thus Chriſt loved John better then the reſt of his Diſciples, John 13. 23. becauſe he was both his coſen German, and had more grace in him; but he wiſhed not a greater meaſure of glory to him then to Paul, Objectivè, Matth. 12. 50. For the underſtanding hereof, let us obſerve here a threefold conſideration of Chriſt, viz.

I. He is conſidered as God,	And thus	He loved not John better then the reſt.
II. He is conſidered as God and man, or as Mediator.		He loved not John neither better then the reſt; for as Mediator he loved them all alike.
III. He is conſidered as Man		He loved John better then the reſt.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, wee are more bound to love our parents, then any other of our Neighbours, both in temporall and ſpirituall things, 1. Timoth. 5. 4. If a Widow have Children, let them learne to requite their Parents: in the Syriacke it is, Rependere fœnus parentibus. Let them pay uſury or intereſt to their Parents. A man divideth his goods into three parts: that is,

I. So much he ſpends vpon himſelfe, his wife, and ſervants. And

II. So much he gives to the poore, and pious uſes. And

III. So much he lends to his Children looking for intereſt backe againe.

Sect. 7. §. 7. All theſe have I kept from my youth vp.]

This young man being a Phariſee, gives us occaſion to move this queſtion;

Quest. How many ſorts of Phariſees there were?

Answ. The Phariſees were a ſect ſo called, becauſe they ſeparated themſelves from others by a Hypocriticall kind of ſervice, and outward ſhew. And Druſius (in Elench. tribar.) maketh mention of ſeven ſorts of them, but there are onely foure uſually made mention of, viz.

Firſt, the Phariſee of praiſe, that did all that he might be ſeene of men; and of this CHRIST ſpeakes, Matth. 6. 21.

Secondly, the Phariſee who ſaith, What is it, that I have not done? as if he ſhould ſay. I have done that which the Law, commands and more. Such a Phariſee was this young man, who boaſted to CHRIST, that he had kept all the precepts of the ſecond Table even from his youth vp. Such are the new Phariſees who ſay, they have workes of ſupererogation: And as the old Phariſees had their Auctarium Legis, Additions to the Law; ſo have the Papiſts good workes to ſpare to others.

Thirdly, the Phariſee of blood (Epiphan. adverſ. hæreſ. Lib. 1.) who knockt his head againſt the wall, So that the blood came: they carried Thornes in their cloathes, and ſpred thornes in their beds, that they might ſleepe the leſſe, and attend their prayers the more. Such are the new Phariſees, the Penitentaries, who whip themſelves untill the blood come downe.

Fourthly, the Phariſee of feare (Druſius in Elench. tribareſ.) who abſtained from doing of evill onely, Formidine pœnæ; for feare of puniſhment.

Sect. 8. §. 8. If thou wilt be perfect, ſell that thou haſt, and give it to the poore.]

The Papiſts by theſe words hope to eſtabliſh and ſtrengthen two maine pillars of Popery: of which ſeverally and apart.

Object. Firſt, theſe words are produced to prove Evangelicall Counſels unto perfection: Chriſt ſaith, Goe and ſell all thou haſt, if thou wilt bee perfect: which is a Counſell of perfection, not a precept given to all Chriſtians: Now that this is not a Precept, but a Counſell, appeares by the context, or very conſequence of the words: For to the young man demanding, What hee ſhould doe to be ſaved, CHRIST anſwers, if thou wilt enter into life keepe the Commandements: where our Saviour teacheth, that the obſervation of the Law is ſufficient unto ſalvation, and forthwith ſubjoynes. But if thou wilt be perfect [that is, if thou bee not content with life eternall, but aſpireſt unto an excellent degree in life eternall, by doing workes above thoſe which are preſcribed in the Law] Goe and ſell all thou haſt. Bellarm. de Monach. Lib. 2. Cap. 9.

Answ. 1 Firſt, this young man was bewitched with the ſame errour that the Papiſts are; viz. He thought that the obſervation of the Law of God was ſo obvious and eaſie; that it might be fulfilled with an ordinary and meane labour: He thought alſo (as doe the Papiſts) that there were ſome voluntary and free workes, of a greater perfection then were the workes commanded in the Law. And therefore ſeeing the Phariſees, Sadduces, and Eſſenes, had their peculiar workes, in which they placed their perfection; this young man deſires that Christ would shew him, what workes he preferres as most perfect, that he might follow after them, All the Commandements (saith he) have I kept from my Childhood: What lacke I yet? As if he would say, The precepts of Gods Law I have fulfilled from my youth with an easie labour: and therefore I intreat thee to prescribe unto mee some more perfect workes, that I may exercise my strength and power in them. Now Christ that he may convince him of his errour, propounds unto him a peculiar precept of tryall, by which it will appeare, that he neither loves God with all his heart, nor his neighbour as himselfe: and consequently, that he had not (as he dreamed) as yet fulfilled all the Commandements of God.

244

Answ. 2 Secondly, this was both a Counsell and a Precept, though not to all, yet to this one man, to discover his Hypocrisie, and vaine confidence which he had in himselfe, as though he had kept the Law, when he was farre from it. And therefore Bellarmine erres here in saying, That in these words of Christs, If thou wilt be perfect, goe and sell all, &c. Is given as a common Counsell of perfection, or of supererogation; for there is given a peculiar precept of probation, exploration, and healing or reducing this young man who was self-conceited of his owne strength, and performances.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, or wee may answer, that this is a Precept, and not a Counsell: Goe saith Christ, sell all thou hast, which words beare the forme of a Command: and againe Mark. 10. 17. Christ saith, This thou wantest, but wee are commanded to supply those things which are defective in us. Philip. 3. 13. Yea these words, If thou wilt bee perfect, are in the effect the same with these, If thou wilt enter into life; now if wee would be saved our Saviour sends us to the Law, Keepe the Commandements. And therefore this is not a Counsell but a Precept.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, it is not onely a peculiar precept given to this young man, but a generall Precept unto all, To love the Lord with all their hearts, and to be content when the Lord requireth for Christs sake, to leave all we have. Calv. inst. 4. Ca. 13. §. 13.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, some Precepts are

I. Observatoria; given for observation and practice; and thus the Precepts of the Law, were given, that they might be obeyed and done. And

II. Some are Probatoria; for tryall; and these Precepts are either

First, for the approving of our sincerity: and thus Abraham was commanded to offer up his Sonne Isaac.

Secondly, for the reproving, and detecting of our Hyprocrisie: And thus this young man was commanded to sell all, &c.

Object. If it be objected, That he was no Hypocrite: because the Text saith, Christ loved him. Mark. 10. 21. I answer

Answ. 1 I. There is a double Hypocrisie; namely,

First, an Artificiall Hypocrisie; and this I conceive he had not. And Secondly, a Naturall Hypocrisie: and this he was tainted withall; for the discovering whereof unto him, our Saviour gives him this Command.

Answ. 2 II. There is a threefold love of Christ; to wit,

First, generall, towards all his Creatures; and thus he loved this young man, but not thus onely. And

Secondly, particular, towards every good thing: whether proceeding from a renewing grace (which this young man had not) or from a common and generall grace; or from a restraining grace which preserves from sinne and evill. And this the young man had, and for this CHRIST loves him. And

Thirdly, there is a proper love, towards those who are Regenerate and borne anew: and thus he loved not this young man.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, Bellarmine erres here in saying. That the young man spake true, when he said All these have I kept:

Answ. 7 Seventhly, grosse and palpable is the errour of the Cardinall, to say or thinke, That to sell all and giue it unto the poore, is a worke of perfection, and supererogation above all the Commandements of God: for the Apostle saith, If I shall distribute all my goods for food for the poore, and have not love, it profits mee nothing. 1. Corinth. 13. 3. By which it evidently appeares, that this worke which Bellarmine extols above all the Commandements of the Morall Law, is nothing, further then it is subordinate to the precept which enjoynes love unto our Brother. Yea it is evident also, that this worke may be done by those, who are void of true Christian love, and consequently, which are guilty of the breach of the whole Law which is fulfilled by Love, and consists in Love. And therefore to sell all, and give it unto the poore, is not a worke of perfection, or supererogation, which transcends the Law of God.

If the Reader would see how Bellarmine excepts against divers things which hath beene said, and how all his instances are full answered; let him read B. Davenant. de justit. actuali. Cap. 44. Page 510, 511. and Dr. Willet. synops. Page 322.

Object. 2 This place is further urged for proofe of the vow of voluntary poverty: CHRIST here saith, If thou wilt be perfect, goe and sell all thou hast, and give it to the poore, and come and follow mee. Now this is properly to follow Christ, to lacke propriety, and live in common: and thus the Apostles followed Christ. Rhemist.

Answ. 1 First, for the full answer to this Objection, I referre the Reader to Br. Mortons appeale, Lib. 5. Cap. 4. §. 3. And because it is there answered, not onely learnedly, but clearly, and plainly also. I will therefore but adde a word or two.

Answ. 2 Secondly, these words are a speciall precept of triall (as wee said before) and therefore are not to be made a generall observatory command, or a Counsell of perfection.

Thirdly,

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this is not a generall precept to all, but given to this one man to discover his Hypocrisie, and vaine confidence that he had in himselfe, as though he had kept the Law, which he came farre short off. Or

Answ. 4 Fourthly, this personall, and particular command was given by Christ to this young man, because he was called to become a Disciple of Christ, and to preach the Gospell, Luke 9.59, And therefore this precept being given not generally to all, but particularly to him alone, wee must not make a generall rule of a speciall commandement or example.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, Gulielmus de S. Amore, as he is cited by Aquinas (Thom. opusc. 19.) Thus expoundeth this precept, Goe and sell all, &c. Ibi mandatam nobis esse paupertatem habitualem, &c. Our Saviour here requireth a habituall, not an actuall poverty; that is, he commandeth us not to distribute, and give actually all away, that wee possesse; but onely requireth an habituall poverty; that is, when the confession of the name of God, and the glory of CHRIST so requireth. Tum omnia deserere parati simus, Then wee should be ready to leave all &c.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, the Apostles themselves had propriety: Peter had a house; John had to provide for the Virgin Mary, whom CHRIST commended unto him: and Matthew made a Feast of his owne goods.

Vers. 24. 25. 26. VERS. 24, 25, 26. And againe I say unto you, It is easier for a Camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle, then for a rich man to enter into the Kingdome of God. When his Disciples heard it, they were extreamly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved? But Iesus beheld them, and said unto them, with men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible

Sect. 1. §. 1. It is easier for a Camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle.]

Quest. What is the meaning of these words?

Answ. 1 First, some say, There was a Gate in Ierusalem called the Needles eye, which was so low and little, that when Camels came that way, both their load must be taken off, and themselves must stoope, before they could passe thorow. So if rich men would enter into Heaven, they must forsake and part with their riches, (as this young man was commanded to doe) and humble themselves, and then they shall be saved, But I conceive this to be but a conceit, and therefore leave it.

Answ. 2 Secondly, both Beza. ſ. and Sylloge variorum Exotic. in Matth. 3.4. page 11. et in hunc locum, Page 145. doe tell us, that in stead of κάμηλον a Camell some read κάμιλον, a Cable: and then thus expounds the words, A man cannot possible put a Cable as it is thorow a Needles eye, but if he untwist it, he may by thred and thred, put it thorow. So rich men cannot possibly come unto Heaven so long as they keepe their riches, but if they will distribute, and impart them unto good uses, then they may be saved. But wee mislike both the reading, and the exposition: For

I. We must not corrupt, and pervert the text when we cannot understand it, this being a cutting, and not a looling of the knot.

II. It is false (by Scripture) that a rich man cannot keepe his riches, and come unto heaven; or be saved, except he give away all he possesseth: for Abraham, Ioseph, Iob, and divers others were rich, who did not part with all they had, and yet were saved no doubt.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, these words are a proverbiall speech; for the Talmud had a Proverbe (Antonius Nibrisſ. de proverbiis Talmuditis.) Are ye of Pambeditha, who can cause an Elephant to goe thorow a Needles eye? These of Pambeditha were great braggers, who said they could doe strange things; hence came that Proverbe amongst them, and Christ useth it. It is easier to cause a Camell to goe thorow a needles eye, then to doe thus or thus, or for such, or such a thing to be.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the meaning is plaine and simple. A young man comes unto Christ, demanding how he may be saved? CHRIST bids him. Sell all, and give it away, and follow him, and then he shall enter into life: Now this being heard he departs, because he had great possessions. Whereupon our Saviour saith, That it is merely as impossible for such a rich man to be saved [That is, which trusteth in his riches, and loveth them, and will disobey God rather then distribute them unto good uses, yea leave Christ, rather then leave them] as it is for a Camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle.

Sect. 2. Object. §. 2. But with God all things are possible.] The Papists for the proofe of the corporall, and substantiall presence of Christ in the Eucharist, produce this place; The Lord saith, that it is possible for a Camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle; and therefore it is not impossible for CHRIST to bee in the Sacrament under the formes of bread and wine. Againe Christ saith, That to God nothing is impossible; and therefore he can make a true body to be in divers places at once. The body of Christ may be where it pleaseth him, and yet shall not need any naturall place, or occupy any roome: He is able to bring a Camell through the eye of a needle (as he saith here) and therefore he can as well, and is no doubt present under the shapes of bread and wine in the Sacrament. Rhemiſt. in Matth. 26. §. 11. et Bellarm. Lib. 3. de sacram. Cap. 6.

Answ. 1 First, it is the Cardinall, not Christ, that saith it is possible for a Camell to goe thorow the eye of a needle: For our Saviour here affirmes no such thing, but rather the contrary, as will appeare by and by.

Answ. 2 Secondly, for full answer unto this objection, I referre the Reader to Amesius Bellarmino enervo. Tom. 3. Page 144. and to M. Hildersam in his knowledge of the true God. Page 174, 175.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the power of God is two fold, to wit, ordinate

246

I. Absolute: now Gods absolute Power is that by which he can doe more, then either he doth or will. Matth. 3.9. Philip. 3.21. Matth. 26.53. Ephes. 3.20. Now by this power it may be said, That God could have made more worlds, and have hindred the fall, and the like. And of this absolute Power our Saviour speakes in this place.

II. There is an actuall Power of God; which is that by which he causeth all things to be, which he freely willeth. Psalm. 135.6. Or that power by which God doeth those things which he wills freely: And this is called by the Schoole men, Potentia ordinaria, Gods ordinary power: Now theologically it is not lawfull to argue, but onely from this Power of God, which is alwayes conjoyned with his will. And therefore in the Objection there is Captio ab homonymia Potentiæ.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, there are some things which cannot be done, or which are said to be impossible unto God: namely.

I. Such things as are contrary to the nature of God: as to destroy himselfe, and not to beget his Sonne from all eternity.

II. Such things whose action argueth an impotencie in the doer; and may be done by the creature, but not by the Creator; as to sinne, to lye, to be madde, to deny his word. Tit. 1.2. and, 2. Timoth. 2.1, 3. Now these things are contrary to the nature of God; and therefore we say, that such things are not of their owne nature impossible, but in respect of God, who is Omnipotent, and infinitely pure and perfect. And

III. Such things as imply a contradiction; for God cannot make a truth false; or that which is, when it is, not to be: as for the world to be created and not created, Gods children elected, and not elected: these are contradictory one to the other, and so impossible. Now such things as are of this quality wee say cannot be done by God, who cannot make two contradictory propositions true; for how can hee that created the World, make now that it should not be created? Now in these things it were better to say, That they cannot be done, then to say, GOD cannot doe them: for thereby wee signifie that the defect is in the thing, which cannot be done, and not in the power of God. Now for a body to be at once in divers and sundry places is impossible by the two latter sorts of impossible things; because it is contrary to the nature of a true body, and includes contradictions, as is proved clearely afterwards. Chap. 26. 26.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, if these kindes of impossibilities be excepted, wee may then say with the Angell, That with God nothing is impossible, Luke, 1. 37. or with the Lord of the Angells in this verse, Though with men many things be impossible, yet with God all things are possible: for there is nothing that can be either spoken of, or imagined, which is not subject unto his power. For the better understanding and confirming hereof, observe that there are three causes onely, why some effect cannot be accomplished by some agent, none of which have place in God. The causes are these.

I. The first is, because there is no similitude betwixt the effect, and the agent, as there must needs be: but what is there that hath not some resemblance with God? If thou have a being, it is like to God in being, who is a most perfect being: and therefore every thing that either is, or may be, is subject to his power.

II. The next cause, why an agent cannot produce an effect, may be, because the effect is more excellent then that the agent can accomplish it: therefore corporall substances cannot beget spirituall, nor inferiour superiour. But there is nothing more excellent then God, who is excellencie it selfe.

III. The agent may want matter to worke vpon, and can neither provide it of himselfe, nor procure it from others. But this can never hinder God, who hath no need of matter, for if it please him to use it, he can create it of nothing. And therefore it is as cleere as the light, that all such things as in nature are, and are not contrary to the nature of God, are subject to his power.

Sixthly, unto the place wee answer, that CHRIST here sheweth, That it is as impossible for a rich man that is high minded, and trusteth in his riches, to enter into heaven, as for a Camell to passe through the eye of a needle: but it is possible with GOD to give rich men humble and lowly minds, and so make them fit for his Kingdome: and also to make the Camell lesse, and so draw him through the eye of a needle. Answ. 6

Seventhly, the Consequence of the argument is not good: they argue thus, to GOD nothing is impossible; and therefore he can make the body of CHRIST to be in many places at once. Now wee know that A posse ad esse non valet consequentia. Such a thing may be; therefore such a thing shall bee; or, God can doe such a thing, therefore hee will doe such a thing, followes not: neither is the question betweene us and the Papists concerning the power of God, what he can doe, but concerning his will, what he doth, or will doe. Answ. 7

Eightly, it is not proved out of this place, that God can or will draw the huge body of a Camell through a needle, the Beast remaining still of that bignesse: no more then it is possible for God, to bring a proud, rich, arrogant man to Heaven, his affections not being altered: Now wee say, that both these are impossible unto God, not because he cannot in his absolute power doe them, but because they are contrary to his will and ordinance: For the one is against the law of Justice, to bring a wicked man to Heaven; and the other against the Law of nature, to cause a great Camell to passe through a small needles eye. Answ. 8

Ninthly, the thing aymed at in the Objection wee say is impossible: It is impossible that God or his word should be false, now the word saith that the body of Christ shall Answ. 9

ſhall remaine, and abide in heaven, untill the time of the reſtitution of all things, Acts 3. 21. And therefore it is impoſſible that now his body ſhould be on earth, ordinarily, and in divers places at once, as they teach. But the impoſſibility, and abſurdity of tranſubſtantiation is ſufficiently illuſtrated afterwards, Chap. 26. 26.

If the Reader would ſee, how ſome things which wee have ſaid are excepted againſt by Bellarmine, let him read Willets Synopſ. pag. 609. and Scharp. de ſacra Cana. Page 1463.

VERS. 28. 29. And Ieſus ſaid unto them, verely I ſay unto you, that ye which have followed mee in the Regeneration, when the Sonne of man ſhall ſit in the Throne of his glory, ye ſhall alſo ſit vpon twelve Thrones, judging the twelve Tribes of Iſraell. And every one that hath forſaken Houſes, or Brethren, or Siſters, or Father, or Mother, or Wife, or Children, or Lands for my names ſake, ſhall receive an hundred fold, and ſhall inherit everlaſting life.

Verſ. 28. 29.

§. 1. Ye which have followed mee in the Regeneration.]

Sect. 1.

Concerning this head of Regeneration, many neceſſary queſtions may be propounded; and becauſe they are neceſſary, I will not balke them, and becauſe many, I will not enlarge them all.

Queſt. 1. What is Regeneration?

Anſw. 1. It is a worke of God, wrought by the word, whereby hee infuſeth the holy Spirit into the whole man, for his owne glory, and our ſalvation. The ſeverall branches of the Definition are theſe; namely,

Firſt, Regeneration is the worke of God, not the worke of man; and hence they which are regenerated are called his workemanſhip, Epheſ. 2. 10. And the worke is appropriated unto him, as the Author of it, Iohn 1 3. and 3. 6. and Ezech. 36. 26.

Secondly, Regeneration is wrought by the meanes and miniſtery of the word; Pſalm. 19. 7. Iohn 15. 3. and 1. Peter 1. 23. and 2. Peter 1. 5. And therefore if we would be regenerated, we muſt attend carefully to the word, as followes by and by.

Thirdly, in Regeneration the Lord infuſeth his Spirit into the whole man, and worketh a true and holy change in all the parts of the ſoule, Wiſdom. 12. 11. and 1. Timoth. 1. 7.

Fourthly, God workes Regeneration in the heart of his Saints, both for his and their glory: where we may obſerve, that as there was a double aime and end in the Worker of Regeneration, ſo there ſhould be in thoſe in whom it is wrought.

Firſt, the Perſon working the worke of Regeneration, aimed therein

I. At his owne glory, Proverb. 16. 4. And

II. At the good, glory, and eternall felicity of thoſe whom he Regenerates: Therefore

Secondly, the perſons in whom the worke of Regeneration is wrought, ſhould aime

I. Principally, and above all, to glorifie their God, in their lives and converſations, who hath done ſo great things for their ſoules, 1. Corinth. 10. 31. And

II. Next thereunto they muſt be chiefly carefull to worke out the worke of their ſalvation with feare and trembling, Philip. 2. 12. becauſe nothing doth ſo nearely concerne them, next unto Gods glory, as the ſalvation of their ſoules.

Queſt. 2. By what ſteps or degrees doth the worke of Regeneration proceed? Or, what are the degrees of Regeneration?

Anſw. 1. Firſt, the Spirit of God, and the Spirit of contrition doth ſhew us our ſinnes; that is, not onely the guilt and danger, but alſo the turpitude and filthineſſe of ſinne; and doth teach us, not onely to deteſt the puniſhment of ſinne, but even ſinne it ſelfe, yea not to hate God, who is the avenger of ſinne, or righteouſneſſe and holineſſe which are contrary to ſinnes, but to hate our ſelves for the violation of the rules of righteouſneſſe, and the provocation, of ſo gracious, and good a God. I might enlarge this particular, but I will but onely briefely branch it out into a double worke of the holy Spirit: to wit,

I. The Spirit of God doth ſhew us three things; namely,

Firſt, our guilt; that is, how wee have tranſgreſſed and violated the whole Law of God; and therefore if God ſhould call us unto judgement, or enter into judgement with us, wee muſt needs accuſe our ſelves, and confeſſe that wee are guilty of the tranſgreſſion; and breach of the Law. And

Secondly, our danger wherein wee are by reaſon of our ſinnes; the wages of ſinne being death, Rom. 6. 23. and the reward of the violation of the Law, eternall condemnation. And

Thirdly, the pollution and filthineſſe of ſinne, how that it is out of meaſure ſinfull, and a thing moſt loathſome both in it ſelfe, and unto the pure eyes of our heavenly Father.

II. The Spirit of God doth negatively not teach unto us theſe two things: viz. either

Firſt, to hate God, becauſe he is the puniſher, and avenger of ſinne, or becauſe he will not ſuffer us to ſinne without puniſhment: for this the malignant Spirit teacheth to men, who have given themſelves over unto ſinne. Or

Secondly, to hate righteouſneſſe, and true holineſſe, becauſe they are contrary unto our ſinnes, luſts, and vile affections, and becauſe for the violation of the rules of righteouſneſſe and holineſſe wee are puniſhed and plagued. For this, Sathan, and our owne corruption teacheth unto us, and not the good, and bleſſed, and holy Spirit of God.

III. The Spirit of God affirmatively teacheth theſe three things unto us: namely.

Firſt, to hate the puniſhment of ſinne: the Spirit teacheth us, that it is a fearefull thing to fall into the hands of God, becauſe he is a conſuming fire: and that thoſe who continue to tranſgreſſe an infinite Law, and to offend an infinite Law-giver, ſhall be infinitly puniſhed with torments intollerable, though alwayes tollerated and borne: and therefore wee are taught by the 248 Spirit to hate these punishments, which are the reward of sinne. And

Secondly, to hate sinne it selfe, which is the cause of this punishment, and that with a perfect hatred; yea not onely in regard of the punishment of sinne, but in regard of sinne it selfe, it being in its owne nature a thing worthy to be detested, and abhorred. Yea

Thirdly, the Spirit teacheth us to hate our selves, for our folly and madnesse, that have loved, and delighted in those things, which are both infinitly evill and ougly in themselues, and shall be so severely, and unspeakably punished without repentance. And this is the first degree and steppe unto Regeneration.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Spirit of God doth excite, and stirre vp in us, an unfained desire of the remission and pardon of all our sinnes; and this is the second step and degree of Regeneration. Now because a wicked man may desire to have his sinnes forgiven him, it will not be amisse to observe the difference, betweene the desire of the Regenerate and unregenerate man.

I. The desire of the Regenerate is serious and solide, they conceive sinne to bee an infinite evil, and a thing so odious unto God, that it separates him from man Ierem. 5. 25. And therefore so long as they are not certaine that their sinnes are remitted, they are uncertaine of the presence of God in them, or of his love unto them, or of their reconciliation unto him; yea untill they are sure that their sinnes are done away, they cannot have any true peace of conscience, or spirituall rejoycing. Now as they earnestly, and unfainedly desire to be certaine of all these: viz., of the presence and love of God, and reconciliation unto him, and peace with him, and with themselves, and of the joy and consolation of the Spirit in themselves: So they incessantly and heartily desire the assurance of the pardon of their sinnes, without which assurance they cannot be assured of the other.

II. The desire of the unregenerate is a confused, and fleeting desire; he wisheth often that his sinnes were pardoned, but the desire thereof doth not constantly possesse his heart: hee may desire remission remissely, sleightly, and casually, but not seriously, and solidly, or vpon those grounds whereby it is desired by the Regenerate man.

III. The Regenerate man desires rather to be purged from the evill of sinne, then freed from the evill of punishment; When the child of God groanes, both under the burden of sinne, and of punishment, and is sensible of both the Evils; then he desires to be freed first from the guilt and filth of sinne, as the greater evill; and prayes unto God more heartily to wash him, and purge him, and cleanse him from his pollution, then to ease him of his paine.

IIII. The unregenerate man is more sensible of the evill of punishment, then of sinne, and more desirous to be freed from that, then this. Thus this earnest and unfained desire of the assurance of the pardon and remission of sinne is the second degree of Regeneration.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the next step and degree of Regeneration, is the Spirit of supplication, and prayer: now three things are here to bee examined by us: namely,

I. Whether pray wee daily unto God, to pardon our sinnes and to regenerate us? And with David cry unto the Lord, to create cleane hearts, and renew right Spirits within us? Psal. 51. 11. And

II. Whether can wee commit our selves unto the Lord, and expect with willing obedience the revelation of his will? can wee when wee pray, say unto the Lord, I flee unto thee O Lord, doe unto mee as shall seeme good in thy eyes? And

III. Whether doe wee obtaine our requests at Gods hand or not? wee should marke the returne, and fruit of our prayers, and see whether (with the King of Niniveh, and the prodigall Child) our prayers be heard, and our suites granted. For if wee can fervently pray, and faithfully commit and commend our selves unto the good will, and pleasure of God, and obtaine our suites at his hands, we may be comfortably perswaded that we are regenerated, because God heares not sinners, Iohn 9. 31.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the last degree and highest step of Regeneration, is the testimony, evidence, and pledge of the Spirit, whereby is sealed unto us, and wrought in us, the certainty of the love of God, together with a full purpose of heart to walke before the Lord, all the dayes of our lives. And therefore wee should examine our selves, whether the Spirit of God witnesse unto our spirits, that God loves us, and that in love unto him, wee purpose to give our selves wholly up unto him.

Quest. 3 Who are Regenerated?

Answ. Onely those who are endued with the knowledge of God, and the faith of Christ.

Quest. 4 What is Regenerated, in those who are regenerated?

Answ. The whole man; that is, as well the body as the soule, but it begins in the mind; and therefore the Apostle exhort us to labour, to be renewed in the spirit of our minds, Ephes. 4. 23. Rom. 12. 2.

Quest. 5 Who Regenerates?

Answ. CHRIST as God by his Spirit: and hence the Apostle saith, Yee are taught by Christ, Ephes. 4. 21. and yee are created anew according to God, vers. 24.

Quest. 6 Unto whose examplar, or according to whose patterne is Regeneration to be wrought?

Answ. According to the exemplar, and similitude of Christ. For those who are regenerated must labour and endeavour to be like unto Christ, 1. Iohn 3. 3.

Quest. 7 Wherein doth Regeneration consist?

Answ. In the putting off the old man, and putting on the new, Ephes. 4. 22.

Quest. 8 What are the parts of this new man which is to be put on?

Answ. True righteousnesse, and holinesse, Ephes. 4. 24.

Quest. 9 Where and when is Regeneration to be wrought?

In

Answ. In this world, and that while wee live but it shall be perfected in Heaven.

Quest.10 For what ends doth God Regenerate us?

Answ.1 First, that wee might serve him in righteousnesse and true holinesse, Luke 1. 74,75. And Answ.2 Secondly, that wee might be saved at the last day, Iohn 3. These eight last Questions I have onely briefely named, because if the Reader would see them all enlarged, let him read Zanch in Ephes. Cap.4. Page 327. 328. 329. 330. 331.

Quest.11 By whom, or by what meanes is Regeneration wrought?

Answ.1 First, by the holy Spirit, as the immediate cause; Iohn 3. 5. And therefore wee must not resist the holy Ghost, nor greeve him, nor quench his motions, but waight carefully for his comming, and attend diligently unto his cals, and cry mightily unto the Lord, to give his holy Spirit unto us.

Answ.2 Secondly, Regeneration is wrought by the knowledge of Christ, or by the word which is the instrument to beget the knowledge of Christ in us, Ephes. 4. 21. Iames 1. 18. And therefore two things are here required of us, if we desire to be regenerate; namely,

I. Wee must attend constantly to the preaching of the word, because the mouth of the Minister is the conduite pipe by which the seed of the word, and the life of grace is derived unto us.

II. Wee must hide the word in our hearts: it is a seed, now if the seed be hid in the earth it will spring vp; it is a medicine, and if it be taken downe it will heale; it is a pure Fountaine, and therefore if we delight our selves therein, it will purge: the word is a quickning word, and is full of life, and therefore if we be carefull to listen to the counsell and direction of the word, and to embrace it, and walke according thereunto, it will be a meanes to animate and enliven us.

Quest.12 What are the fruits and effects of Regeneration?

Answ.1 First, a striving, strugling, and wrastling against sinne: for those who are regenerated will contend with and warre against sinne, as their greatest, and deadliest Enemy. Now because naturall and unregenerate men often resist sinne, it will be convenient to shew the difference betweene the striving of the Regenerate and Unregenerate man.

I. The first difference shewes it selfe in the very faculty resisting: For

First, the naturall, morall, and unregenerate man doth not resist sinne with the Will but with the Conscience; for the Will consents unto sinne and would sinne, but the Conscience reclaimes him, & with-holds him from sinning, and makes him, that though he would willingly, yet he dares not: the Dog desires the meat which hee sees hang, or lye by him, and would gladly eat it, but forbeares for feare, because the whip hangs by, and he knowes he shall be beaten if he doe. Thus the Will of the wicked man runnes after sinne, but the terrour and feare of punishment makes the Conscience withstand. But

Secondly, the Regenerate man resists sinne with the Will, as well as with the Conscience; as he would not be punished, so he would not sinne, and he forbeares tasting of the forbidden fruit, because it is hurtfull unto him, and because he loves it not. Malum quod volo, Romans 7. 19. Paul conceived sinne to be an evill, and therefore with his will resisted it, and those who are Regenerate assoone as they know a thing to be sinne, so soone they hate it, because it is sinne, and not for feare of punishment. This difference betweene the good and bad mans abstinence from sinne is so cleere, that Horace by the light of nature could see it, and thus lively expresse it:

Oderunt peccare mali formidine pœnæ,
Oderunt peccare boni virtutis amore.

And therefore if wee desire to know, whether wee be Regenerated or not, we must not so much enquire whether wee hate sinne or not, Or, whether wee resist it or not: As wherefore, whether for the feare of punishment, or for the love of God, and hatred of sinne as sinne, though no punishment were allotted thereunto by God at all.

II. The next difference betweene the striving and strugling of the Regenerate and Unregenerate man against sinne, shewes it selfe, in the object of the Contention and strife. For,

First, the naturall and morall man, for the most part at least, if not alwayes, strives and warrs onely against grosse and enormious sinnes, and such as are obvious and odious unto men; but for lesser sinnes; which the world makes lesser matter of, or which are unseene and unknowne unto men, they care not to withstand or resist at all. Wicked thoughts, evill words, jeasting which is not convenient, and the like, they never regard: by which they shew plainly, that they feare more to offend and displease man then God. But

Secondly, the Regenerate man wrastles and warres against all sinnes whatsoever, whether great or small, whether externall, or internall, whether of omission or commission: yea hee not onely strives against those evill things, which are conspicuous to the eye of the World, but also greeves for, and strives against, his faint endeavours and drousinesse in the performance of good workes, yea against all evill workes, Lascivious lookes, and corrupt thoughts. And therefore if wee desire to know whether wee be Regenerated or not; let us examine whether wee beare an equall hatred unto all sinnes alike, whether wee are equally watchfull against all sinnes alike, and whether wee equally warre against all alike, because they are sinne, and seene, and taken notice of by God, and displeasing unto him.

III. The next difference betweene the striving of the Regenerate and Unregenerate man against sinne, shewes it selfe in the consideration of those things which move unto this strife; or in the thing

250. thing ſtriving. The Apoſtle Paul ſaith, The Fleſh luſts againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit luſts againſt the fleſh, Galath. 5. 17. Whence obſerve two things, viz.

Firſt, in the Regenerate man, the Spirit luſts againſt the Fleſh: that is, Spirituall reſpects, and conſiderations maketh him forbeare to offend. He is tempted unto ſinne and wraſtles againſt it with manfull wraſtlings, becauſe hee feares to offend his God, yea becauſe he loves his God, and (Res eſt ſolliciti plena timoris amor) perfect love is full of feare: yea for him to put forth his hand unto wickedneſſe, were to crucifie unto himſelfe againe the Lord of Glory, and put him to an open ſhame; and therefore hee reſiſts ſinne even unto blood. In a word, the love of CHRIST conſtraines him to ſtrive againſt ſinne: And thus in him the Spirit luſts againſt the fleſh.

Secondly, in the Unregenerate man, the fleſh luſts againſt the fleſh: that is, Naturall, carnall, and mundane reſpects and conſiderations, cauſe him to abſtaine from Sinne, and to ſtrive againſt it. He is tempted often to Drunkenneſſe, revenge, Fornication, deceiving by falſe weights and meaſures, and the like, and he reſiſts and withſtands theſe temptations; and why? For feare of the Judgements of GOD, or the diſpleaſing of ſome men; or, the ſtaining of his reputation, eſtimation, and credit, and the like carnall reſpects; and thus in him the Fleſh luſts againſt the fleſh.

IV. The laſt difference betweene the ſtriving of the Regenerate and the Vnregenerate man, ſhewes it ſelfe in the meanes by which they reſiſt: For

Firſt, the troubled Conſcience onely of the Vnregenerate man reſiſts; and for the moſt part, by little and little the Conſcience growes ſenceleſſe and hard, and then hee ſinnes without feeling, Epheſ. 4. 19. But Secondly, the Regenerate reſiſts Sinne by the word, and grace of God; and as his knowledge in the word increaſes, and the grace of God is increaſed in him, even ſo his ſtrength, and hatred againſt ſinne increaſes. And therefore if we would know whether we be Regenerated or not, wee muſt examine whether we warre againſt ſinne with Spirituall or Carnall weapons, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. And thus much for the firſt anſwer, and the firſt effect of Regeneration.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, the next effect of Regeneration, is a holy life, and converſation: For thoſe who are in CHRIST, will labour to purge themſelves even as hee is Pure, 1 Iohn 3. and that by Faith, Act. 15. 9.

Here obſerve in the Regenerate foure things: to wit,

I. Hee conceits of Sinne, and lookes upon whatſoever is evill, as a thing not belonging, but as a ſtranger unto him; he knowes ſinne is not his worke, and therefore he imployes not himſelfe therein, but as an enemy hates it, and fights againſt it. But

II. Hee lookes upon that which is good, as his owne proper worke, which he is bound to obey, and to performe; and therefore (according to St. Pauls advice, Philip. 4. 8.) he labours after whatſoever is holy, juſt, pure, and of good report; becauſe the Lords worke is his employment, and the Lords wayes are his path, and as the Lord by the effectuall vocation of his Spirit hath called him unto holineſſe, ſo he labours to walke in the wayes of holineſſe, and to worke the worke of the Lord. Hence

III. When hee is not able to doe that good which he would and ſhould (as a Sicke man ſometimes is not able to diſgeſt his meat) then is he ſenſible of his weakneſſe, and ſorrowfull for it, and apprehenſive of the want of grace in his Soule, as the body is for want of meat: crying out, and complaining of his impotencie and inability with St. Paul, Rom. 7. 15. 19. 24. And

IV. When he finds, that he is not able to doe what he would, then he ſtrives to doe what hee can, and that to the uttermoſt. As it is with an induſtrious man, who being wounded in his legges, and forced through lameneſſe to keepe houſe, ſtrives to be doing ſomething, and employes himſelfe in one good and profitable worke or other, untill he bee able to goe about his affaires, and to follow his owne proper and particular calling. So the Regenerate man, if he be not able to walke in the wayes of God, and to worke his worke as he deſires, through infirmity and weakneſſe, then hee labours to employ himſelfe as he can, and to doe what good workes he is able, with an earneſt deſire of more ſtrength and a faithfull promiſe, and full purpoſe, to runne ſwiftly the race that is ſet before him, when the Lord ſhall give his anckle bones ſtrength, and to worke cheerefully the worke of the Lord, when he ſhall be pleaſed to ſtrengthen his hands. And therefore if we deſire to know, whether wee be Regenerated or not, let us examine our purpoſes and promiſes, our deſires and endeavours of a new life, and holy converſation; for they which are borne againe, will avoyd all evill, impure, and ſcandalous actions, and labour to abound in every good worke, and grieve when they are not able to doe what they deſire, and rejoyce when the Lord increaſeth their ſtrength, and makes them thereby able in ſome good meaſure to obey his will.

Thirdly, the next effect of Regeneration is a Anſw. 3 certainty thereof. Here obſerve theſe things: viz.

I. As an Infant knowes not that it lives, neither is ſenſible of life: So thoſe who are Infants in grace, and newly regenerated and converted, are not ſenſible (for a while) of the Spirituall life of Grace: but when they come to a greater maturity of grace, they eaſily perceive it, and know it.

II. As a melancholy man may thinke himſelfe to be ſicke, yea dead, when in the meane time the actions of life, and motion convince him to be alive: So the Regenerate in the houre of temptation doth often thinke himſelfe to be dead in Sinne, and deprived of all Spirituall life, when in the meane time his feare to offend God, his ſorrow for his ſinnes, his warring againſt ſinne, and his unblameable converſation, ſhewes and proves that he is a living Soule, and alive in the Lord.

III. As

III. As a man by ſome deepe wound, or extreame blow, or the decaying of the Spirits, may faint or ſwound, and become inſenſible of life: So may the Regenerate man after the committing of ſome great and grievous Sinne; as wee ſee in David, Pſal. 22. and 32. and 48. But as thoſe are brought unto themſelves (who faint) with rubbing, and other the like meanes; ſo theſe by the wounds and checks of Conſcience, and by an earneſt endeavour in the exerciſes of Religion, may by little and little returne unto themſelves, and their former aſſurance of Grace and Regeneration.

IV. If the Regenerate man be not an Infant, nor under the burden of temptation, neither hath committed any great or grievous Sinne, then hee may know his eſtate and condition, and that he is alive unto the Lord (1 Iohn 2.13. and 3.14.) becauſe the actions of life prove him to live, and his life is no longer hid from himſelfe. An Jmage or Picture may in outward ſhew bee like to a living man in all things, although it have no life in it at all; but this concludes not, that therefore a living man cannot tell certainly whether he lives or not. A man aſleepe may dreame that he wakes, and workes, or eates, and walkes, when he doth none of them; but it will not follow from hence, that therefore he which is awake, cannot be ſure that he is awake, or certainly knowe what he doth. Thus an hypocrite may dreame that he is a righteous man, when there is no ſuch thing; but the Regenerate man knowes that he is ſuch, and is not deceived. And therefore we muſt examine our ſelves, whether the Spirit of God witneſſe unto our ſpirits that we are the Children of God, and created in CHRIST JESVS.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, the laſt effect of Regeneration, is an encreaſe and augmentation of grace: For as the naturall, ſo the ſupernaturall and ſpirituall life, hath in all the parts thereof a proportionable encreaſe (Iohn 15.2. Coloſ. 2.19.) all the members drawing unto themſelves a fitting augmentation. Here obſerve, that there is a double encreaſe, namely.

I. In quantity; as a man encreaſeth in ſtrength and ſtature untill the age of 25. And

II. In quality; as a man after 25 encreaſeth in wiſedome, ſolidity, experience, and the like.

So the regenerate labours

Firſt, to encreaſe in the quantity, and number of graces, and vertues: Philip. 4.8. and, 2. Peter. 1.5,6,7. And then

Secondly, in the meaſure, degree, and extent of them. For the Child of God muſt labour & endeavour daily, to bring the habits of grace unto act, & when there is in a manner no grace or vertue, which he hath not in ſome meaſure attained unto, and ſhewed forth in his life, he muſt then ſtrive unto a greater meaſure and degree of them. This is clearely pointed out by St. Peter, who

I. Exhorts the Children of God; to adde to their faith vertue; and to vertue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godlineſſe; and to godlineſſe brotherly kindneſſe; and to brotherly kindneſſe charity. 2. Peter. 1.5.6.7. And then

II. Exhorts them to abound in all theſe, verſe 8. But as men both before they be five and twenty yeares old, and after, have agues, feavers, fals, ſickneſſes, which hinder (for a while) their growth and encreaſe both in quantity, & quality: ſo have alſo the Regenerate children of God. And therefore they muſt be ſo much the more watchfull over their wayes and induſtrious in the uſe of all good meanes. And therefore we muſt examine whether we be alwayes children, or whether we growe up daily in grace.

What is here required of all men? Qu. 13.

Anſw. To prove, and examine themſelves, whether they be regenerated, or not; For thoſe who are negligent in this enquiry, and examination, muſt needs be either in perill, or paine, either in danger or diſtreſſe.

Firſt, it is dangerous, and moſt full of perill, to neglect the enquiry of our Regeneration, and take it up onely upon truſt. If a thiefe ſhould goe ſinging to the gallowes, hoping verily that the King would ſend him a pardon, and then find none, but be cut off ſuddenly, contrary to his expectation, his death muſt needs be ſo much the more horrible: So if men crye peace unto themſelves when they are not as yet regenerated; and perſwade themſelves that their condition is happy, when the contrary is moſt true; they will be ſo much the more confounded, when they finde their hope and expectation ſo miſerably fruſtrated.

Secondly, at the beſt, thoſe who neglect ſeriouſly to examine themſelves whether they be regenerated or not, muſt needs be full of anguiſh, ſorrow, and mourning. If a man were lead unto execution, and were ignorant of any pardon granted unto him from the King, he muſt needs goe mournfully to his death, although a pardon did there attend him, becauſe he was not certaine of it. So if thoſe who belong to the covenant of grace be negligent in the examination of their evidence, their comfort muſt needs be ſmall, true faith, and lively hope being the parents of ſolide joy.

What is required of thoſe who are Regenerated? Qu. 14.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, it is required of them, that they be carefull to nouriſh this life in themſelves: For unto thoſe who are regenerated is given both a capacity to receive nouriſhment, and alſo a deſire of nouriſhment: and therefore they muſt be carefull to nouriſh and cheriſh this ſpirituall life, which in Regeneration is infuſed into them. Here obſerve, that there are many things which hinder nouriſhment, and growth, which we muſt warily avoide, viz.

I. Contagion, and infection: thoſe who eate, and converſe, and dwell with ſicke men, oftentimes are taken with the ſame diſeaſe and ſickneſſe whereby they are debilitated and weakned: So he who walkes with a wicked man is made worſe, and his courſe and progreſſe in Religion (ceteris paribus) is hindered. Hence Salomon ſaith, walke not with an angry man, leaſt thou learne his waies:

252 which may be applyed to all Sinners, and a Caveat to the Righteous. to beware of all society which is wicked, Acts 2.42. We are commanded to save our selves from the generation of the wicked because wee may easily bee seduced by them, as Adam was by Eve. David saith, Depart from me yee wicked, because I will keepe the Commandements of the Lord: as if he would say, the Society of wicked men will hinder me from the service of the Lord. So Paul exhorts us to depart from every brother which walkes inordinately; because a little Leaven leaveneth the whole lumpe.

II. Poyson, for that contaminates and corrupts both the meat, and all the nutritive faculties; now this poyson is Sinne, which contaminates and pollutes the whole man, and hinders the increase and progresse of Grace.

III. The excesse of meat which distempers, and disorders the whole body, hurts and hinders the nourishment thereof: this is, the excesse of worldly delights, which though otherwise lawfull, yet immoderately used, becomes a baite, and snare to entrap the soule.

IV. Hunger, and the want of good food hinders the nourishment of the body; for oftentimes the lesse the stomacke eates, the worse it is. So if we starve our soules, and deprive them of their fitting food, no wonder if we doe not growe and encrease in truth. And therefore if we desire to nourish and cherish our spirituall life, which is infused in us in our Regeneration, we must warily shunne all wicked society, we must carefully avoide all sinne and iniquity, we must moderate our delights in all wordly things, and we must feed our soules with spirituall exercises.

Answ. 2. Secondly, as those who are regenerated must be carefull to nourish spirituall life in themselves, so it is required of them also to labour to propagate spirituall life in others. For

Nascitur indigne per quem non nascitur alter
that is,
Unworthily that man doth live:
Which to another doth not life give.

And therefore all the Children of God must watch all occasions of doing good unto others, in their generall calling, as Christians, whether by instruction, or reprehension, or admonition, or consolation; but chiefely every man must be carefull in his particular calling, to bring those unto CHRIST, whom God hath put under his charge.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Ye shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve Tribes of Israel.

Object. Some object this place to prove that CHRIST is not the judge of the world arguing thus,, It is said here, that the Apostles shall judge the twelve Tribes of Israel; and 1. Corinth. 6. 2. The Saints shall judge the World, Therefore Christ is not the onely Judge of the world.

Answ. The authority of judgement, and giving sentence at the last day, is proper to CHRIST alone, and doth neither belong to the Apostles nor Saints; so that they then shall judge onely as witnesses and approvers of CHRIST's judgement: but of this something more fully in the following question.

How shall the Apostles judge the twelve Tribes of Israel, seeing that CHRIST himselfe saith. Iohn 5.22. The Father hath given all judgement to the Sonne?

Answ. 1 First, at the last day of judgement there shall be three sort of Iudges: to wit.

I. Some shall judge in power; now this power is either

First, absolute, and independent: and thus God the Father shall judge the world. Genes. 18. 25. Shall not the Iuage of all the world, doe that which is just? Or,

Secondly, delegate, and derived: and thus Christ as man shall judge the world. Iohn. 5. 22.

II. Some shall judge Assessorie, as Judges laterall, or assistants: and thus the Apostles shall judge the world, as it is said in this verse.

III. Some shall judge by approbation, that is, they shall sit with the Judge in judgement to approve the sentence of the Judge: and thus all the Saints, and faithfull shall judge the world. 1. Cor. 6. 2.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Apostles shall judge the twelve Tribes of Israel three manner of wayes; to wit.

I. By their doctrine, and preaching of the Gospell: because according unto that the sentence shall be pronounced at the last day. Rom. 2. 15. That is, those at the day of judgement shall be acquitted, that have beleeved and obeyed the Gospell: and on the other side they shall be condemned, that would not beleeve, and obey it.

II. The Apostles shall judge the Jewes, by their testimony, which shall so convince them, that they shall not be able to pretend ignorance of that doctrine according to which they shall be judged. As CHRIST saith. Matth. 24. 14. That the Gospell shall be preached in the whole world, for a testimony against them: So the conscience of the Jewes will convince them and bring unto their remembrance, when they see the Apostles, what they both did and said amongst them, for their edification and salvation, and which obstinately and perversely they contemned and despised.

III. The Apostles shall judge the Tribes of Israel, by their example: for if the Jewes should pretend, that the doctrine of the Gospell was too abstruse and sublime for them, and that they were neither able to perceive it, nor receive it; then the Apostles will be set before them, as exemplars of the contrary, who being rude, and illiterate men, did notwithstanding vnderstand the doctrine of the Gospell, and were thereby regenerated, and made the children of God. Chem. harm. pag. 1827. §. ult.

Sect. 3. §. 3. And shall inherit everlasting life.] Quest. 1. Who are enemies unto eternall life? or, erroneous and heroticall concerning it?

Answ. 1 First, the Atheists who deny it. Post mortem nulla voluptas: as any thinke that it is with man as with beasts, when they are dead, they are gone, and they are neither sensible of paine, nor of pleasure after this life. But this is directly contrary to the text.

Secondly,

Answ. 2. Secondly, those are here erroneous, who divide life everlasting: that is, which grant that the soule is eternall, but deny the Resurrection of the body. This belongs unto the enemies of the Resurrection, whereof we have to speake elsewhere; and therefore here I omit it.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Chiliastes and Millenaries are also here erroneous: now amongst them there are divers opinions; namely.

I. Some hold that the joyes of heaven, and eternity it selfe, were onely to continue for the space of 1000 yeares, and then to cease. Danaus. 29. Prateol. 347. b. et. 128.

II. Some held that the Saints should wallow (in the life to come) in all carnall delights, and fleshly pleasures: and this is reported to be the opinion of the Mahumetanes, but Mr. Bedwell shewes the contrary.

III. Some hold a double time; namely,

First, that the righteous should have joy, and the wicked sorrow, and paine for the space of one thousand yeares. And

Secondly, that after that time, the world should be renewed, and the devils, and damned spirits freed from their torments. This was Origens opinion, and it was condemned, and judged erroneous, by the 5. Counsell of Constantinople. Prateol. 378. §. 9.

IV. Some expresse, and explicate this opinion by a μετεμψύχωσις or transmigration of the soule: thus not knowing how to agree amongst themselves.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, they erre concerning life eternall, who hold, that it may be merited by the labours, endeavours, and workes of man.

Object. Against this Bellarmine objects, life eternall is promised to good workes, in this verse; but a promise made with a condition of worke, makes that he which fulfils the worke, doth deserve the thing promised, and may of right require it as his due, and deserved reward.

Answ. Durande. (in. 2. d. 27. q.) answers singularly two things for us: viz.

I. Promissio divina in Scripturis sanctis, non sonat aliquam obligationem, sed insinuat meram dispositionem liberalitatis divinæ.

II. Quod redditur ex promissione præcedente non redditur ex merito operis de condigno, sed solum, vel principaliter ex promisso.

Quest. 2 What (and how many) are the causes of this eternall life?

Answ. There are three causes thereof; to wit.

First, Primaria, the prime and principall Cause; and that is God, namely

I. God the Father, who gives it from himselfe, and from whom all good things come. Iohn. 3. 16. and. 5. 21. and. Iames. 1. 17.

II. God the Sonne, who gives it from the Father, yea gives it as the Father. Iohn. 5. 21. and. 10. 28. Rom. 8. 10.

III. God the holy Ghost, who gives it from the Father, and the Sonne, for the Spirit is life. Iohn. 2. 5. Rom. 8. 10.

And therefore if we desire to be assured of eternall life, let us be carefull to please God the Father, and obey the God Sonne, and seeke after God the holy Ghost. 253

Secondly, Impulsiva, the impulsive and moving cause, and, this is the onely mercy of God: And therefore we must not arrogate any thing to our owne workes, but laud the mercy, and free grace of God. Ephes. 1. 6.

Thirdly, Medians causa; the instrumentall Cause, or Meanes, whereby we are made partakers of this life. Now the meanes are these.

I. The Spirit of Regeneration, who workes the beginning of this spirituall life. Rom. 8.

II. The word of Reconciliation. 2. Cor. 5. 20. and salvation. Acts. 18. 28. Iohn. 6. 68. Rom. 1. 16.

III. The Sacraments, because they seale unto us the grace of God, and confirme our faith.

IV. Hence ỳ Minister of the word & Sacraments is said to save, and to beget in Christ, as the Apostle saith, 1. Corinth. 4. 15. and. 2. Cor. 5. 21. And therefore if we desire to walke in that way which leades unto him, let us pray unto God to give us his holy Spirit, let us attend carefully to the preaching, and reading of the holy word, and approach reverently, and preparedly (when we are invited) to the holy Sacrament of the Lords holy Supper.

Quest 3. Who shall be made partakers of this life eternall?

Answ. 1 First, onely the Elect, and faithfull. Iohn. 17. 9. Acts. 2. 47. Rom. 11. 7.

Quest. 4 If it be here demanded, whether the wicked shall rise or not, at the last day?

Answ. I answer, they shall, but not unto eternall joy, but unto an eternity of torments. Daniel. 12. 2. Matth. 25. 46. and 1. Thes. 1. 8. 9.

Quest. 5 Shall not wicked men rise (at the great day of judgement) unto eternall life? shall not they also live for ever?

Answ. They shall rise unto eternall death, but not unto eternall life: For

I. It is like death herein; as there is no exemption from death, so there is no redemption from hell. And

II. In death there are two things; namely

First, Mortis inchoatio the inchoation of death, or the dolefull, and strong pangs of death, now this wicked men have; for the bitter paines of eternall death are alwayes upon them, & they (with St. Paul in another sence) may justly say, that they dye daily.

Secondly, Mortis consummatio, in death there is the period, perfecting, and consummation thereof: Now this wicked men never have, for they are alwaies a dying, but they never dye.

Answ. 2. Secondly all the Elect shall be made partakers of this everlasting life.

Quest. 6 It may here be demanded, whether the joy of heaven shall be alike unto all, or unlike? whether equall, or unequall?

Answ. 1 First, in heaven there shall be Par gaudium, an equal joy; for every man shall receive his penny, and shall have a fulnesse and perfection of joy.

Answ. 2 Secondly, in heaven there shall be Impar gradus, dus, different degrees of Glory, Daniel, 12. 3.

254

Quest. 7 When shall the Elect and faithfull be made partakers of this everlasting life, both in bodies and soules?

Answ. 1 First, in generall, concerning the yeare, when the Righteous shall rise unto life there was a double opinion: to wit,

I. Some said it would bee 6000 yeares after the Creation: of this opinion were Iustinus, Irenaus, Hieronymus, Augustinus, Lactantius, Hilarius, Rabbi Elias, and some heathens.

II. Some said it would bee 6500 yeares after the Creation: and of this opinion were Cyrillus, Chrysostomus, Hyppolitus, Germanus Constantinopolitanus. Vide Senens. bibl. Sanct. lib. 5. §. 190. pag. 399.

Answ. 2 Secondly, more particularly, there are three times, when this life eternall is by the Elect injoyed, viz.

I. Tempus Inchoationis, There is the time when they are first interested into this life; and that is, when they are Regenerated, Iohn 5. 24. and 17. 3. and 1 Ioh. 3. 2. Thus this fruition of life Eternall is begun in this life. Read Rom. 5. 2. Colos. 3. 3. Gal. 2. 20.

II. Tempus Possessionis. There is the time, when they enjoy this life in Soule onely, and this is presently after death. When

First, the body rests from labour. Revelat. 14. 13. And Secondly, the soule hath a certaine perfection.

Quest. 8 It may here be questioned, If the soule doth not sleepe, as well as the body, untill the generall Resurrection.

Answ. 1 First, some held, that the soule was (like the body) altogether mortall, and the same in men with beasts, as the Nazarens thought (Danaus) and therefore the soule should never be restored to the body, or to life, as the Saducees dreamt.

Answ. 2 Secondly, some held that the soule died, but that at the Resurrection it should be restored againe alive to the body: and thus thought the Arabians.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, some held that the soule died not, but onely when it departed from the body, it fell a sleepe, and slept untill the day of judgement. And of this opinion were well nye 20 Fathers who are reckoned up, by Senens. §. 345. Page. 569. 570.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, some held, that the soule enjoyed the presence of God, before the generall Resurrection, but imperfectly; Pet Mart. 3. 14. 16. Page. 684.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, some hold that the Elect and faithfull, in regard of their soules, doe perfectly enjoy the pesence of God, presently after their corporall dissolution Object Here some object: God onely is immortall, 1. Timoth. 6. 16. and therefore the soule is mortall.

Answ. 1 First, God onely is Eternall, wee onely sempiternall: God is from everlasting, Aparte, ante, and to everlasting, aparte post: but man had a beginning, although he shall have no end, because both soule and body shall be conjoyned together againe at the last day, and shall endure for ever.

Answ. 2 Secondly, God onely is the fountaine of Immortality, having life, and immortality in himselfe, and of himselfe: but we are made immortall onely by him.

Answ. 3 Thirdly that the soule is immortall and dyeth not, appeares thus:

The Scripture saith, the soule goes to God, Eccles. 12. 7. Revelat. 7. 15. and. 14. 4. And Stephen commends his soule to God. Acts. 7. 59. And CHRIST saith, That man cannot kill the soule. Matth. 10. 28. And. Iohn. 6. 40. Christ promiseth to the faithfull, that they shall be raised up, and made partakers of life everlasting.

III. Tempus perfectionis, there is the time when the Elect shall absolutely and perfectly enjoye this life eternall, and that is, in the Resurrection; when the body and soule shall be united and conjoyned together for ever inseparably.

Quest. 8 What is this life eternall?

Answ. 1. Here observe, that life is either — First, it is Life: Increate: as is the life of God. Or Create, and is either Naturall; as is the life of the body; or, the life which we leade in the body. Or Spirituall; which is Inchoate and imperfect in this life. Or Comsummate, and perfect in the life to come.

Answ. 2. Secondly, this Spirituall life consists in the union of the soule with God. Iohn, 17. 21. Revel. 21. 3.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this Communion will be,

I. With the humanity of CHRIST. And

II. With his Deity. And

III. With the Father, and the holy Ghost Iohn. 17. 22.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the difference betweene this inchoate, and that consummate spirituall life, is this, that there God will be all in all by himselfe, without the use of meanes: There shall be no need or use of the word, and Sacrament, and Temples, and the like; nor any use of the creatures, the Sunne, Moone, and the rest: Indeed there shall be an use of the creatures. Rom. 8. 21. but it is for pleasure and delight, not for necessity or want.

Quest. 9 What manner of life shall this everlasting life be?

Answ. 1. First, it may be illustrated, and described by the names given thereunto: Heaven is called

I. A reward: great is your reward in heaven. And

II. An inheritance Rom. 8. 17. and. 1. Pet. 1. 4. And

III. A crowne of glory. 2. Timoth. 4. 4, 8. Revelat. 2. 10, 11. And

IV. A Kingdome. Matth. 6. 33. Luke. 12. 32.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it may be illustrated and described by some similitudes, and resemblances: namely

I. By the feast, and banquet of King Ahasuerus, joy and melody, and dainties in all abundance: But yet it fell farre short of that felicity which is reserved in heaven for the righteous.

II. By this world here observe two things; viz.

First, there are many rare things in the world, which we thinke to be worth seeing, and looking vpon, worth seeking after, and worth enjoying, & keeping. Now if there be such excellent things in this world, what is there in the world to come?

Secondly, there are many and great delights and comforts in this world: Now Si talia in carcere, qualia in patrum? August. soliloq. cap. 31. If there be such joyes in prison what is there in the heavenly pallace, and happy presence of God?

III. By three places, viz. The wombe, the world, and heaven; and that in three regards; to wit,

First, Respectu Locorum, in regard of the places themselves; here three things are observable, viz.

I. As the world is more ample, and spacious then the wombe; So is heaven more spacious and large then the world.

II. As the wombe is darke, and the world light, in comparison thereof; so the world is darke in comparison of heaven. A child seeth nothing in the wombe, but being come into the world it seeth much, yet in comparison of what it seeth in heaven, it seeth nothing in the world, as men know more in the world, then in the wombe, so they shall know much more in heaven, then they doe on earth.

III. In the wombe Methusalem continued nine moneths, in the world 969 years, but in heaven for ever and ever. As our life ordinarily is longer in the world, then in the wombe, so by much it is longer in the world to come then in this world.

Secondly, Respectu nostri, in regard of us; here marke two things; namely,

I. As our delight is greater in the world, then in the wombe; so it is greater in heaven then in the world.

II. As our understanding is greater when we are in the world, then when wee are in the wombe; so it is greater in heaven then in the world.

Thirdly, Respectu roboris corporalis, in regard of the strength of the body; as the body ordinarily is stronger in the world, then it is in the wombe; so it is more agile, strong, and quick, in heaven then in the world.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, it may be illustrated and described what manner of life, life everlasting is, Honore, by the honor thereof, Luke 22.30. and 12.37. 1. Corinth. 6. 3. and Rom. 2. 10. And Answ. 4 Fourthly, Socio, by the companions, we shall there have. Daniel 7. 10.

Quest. 10 What joy, glory, and felicity, shall we enjoy in heaven?

Answ. 1. First, negatively, Facilius quid non sit (August. de utilit. panit.) It is more easie to tell what is not in heaven, then what is: for it passeth all humane understanding, Revelat. 2. 17. and 1. Corinth. 2. 9. Acquiri potest, æstimari non potest. (August. de civ. Dei, 22.) Heaven may be acquired, but it can never be valued to its worth. Revelations 21. 4.

Answ. 2 Secondly, affirmatively, in heaven we shall be happy both in body and soule.

255

I. We shall be happy in heaven in our bodies: For there

First, we shall be freed from all molestations, and evills of the body; namely,

I. From all afflictions, and dangers: because there shall be security.

II. From all diseases, weaknesses, and old age: because there shall be compleat health & strength.

III. From all hunger and thirst; because we shall then have spirituall bodies, 1. Corinth. 15.

IV. From death and corruption; because there shall be eternity.

Secondly, in heaven our bodies shall be nimble and quick, as Mr. Perkins gathers from their sudden ascent into heaven: But this is something curious.

Thirdly, in heaven our bodies shall be beautiful, and faire. Daniel 12.3. Matth. 13. 43. and 17. 5. and Marke 12. 25.

II. In heaven we shall be happy in our soules: For there

First, we shall enjoy a threefold freedome; namely,

I. From sinne, and the power thereof: as Ezech. 37. 23. And

II. From ignorance and imperfection. And

III. From all weake affections, as anger, feare sorrow, and the like.

Secondly, in heaven we shall have a perfection of gifts. 1. Corinth. 13. 10. And Thirdly, there we shall have a sight of God, which is our chiefest good (August. de trinit. cap. 13.) This is that knowledge which Iohn 17. 3. speakes of, and 1. Corinth. 13. 12. and Matth. 5. 6. Hebr. 12. 14.

Quest. 11 Shall we have a corporall sight of God in heaven, as Iob seemes to affirme, Chap. 19. 27. where he saith, I know that my Redeemer lives, and that I shall see him at the last, even with these eyes.

Answ. 1 First, that place is spoken of Christ, the Redeemer of the World, whom the faithfull shall see even with their corporall eyes; because although it be a glorious body, yet it is a true body, and therefore may, and shall be seene.

Answ. 2 Secondly, God hath neither flesh nor bones, and therefore cannot be seene with a corporall eye, but is seene with the eye of the understanding, as Spirits are to be seene.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this sight of God hath in it these foure things; to wit,

I. A knowledge of God, and of his decrees: which we shall see as in a glasse.

II. The love of God, and of the Elect: and this love is proportionable to the former knowledge.

III. Joy for the salvation of the Church, and the enjoyment of Gods presence.

IV. Thankesgiving unto God, and loud Hallelujah's, Revelat. 19. 1, 3, 4, 6.

Que. 12 What may we learne from the excellencie and felicity of life eternall?

Answ. 1 First, we may learne to contemne, and despise all the delights of this world, because they are not worthy to be compared to the joyes of heaven.

Answ. 2 Secondly, in miseries, afflictions, and distresses,

256 we may learne hence comfort, becauſe they are but tranſitory, and momentany, but the joyes of heaven are eternall.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, at the houre of Death, and under the pangs thereof, we may hence learne joy, becauſe death will bring us to CHRIST, and to the end of our hope. Philip. 1.23. and 1 Iohn, 3.2.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, we may learne hence to ſeeke Heaven before all other things, and (next unto God) moſt worthy to be ſought for, Matth. 6.33. As evidently appeares thus.

I. If we long for, and luſt after wordly things, in Heaven there are greater and better.

II. If we hunger after ſpirituall things, in heaven there are perfecter.

III. If the reading, and remembrance of the former queſtions (concerning the joy and glory of Heaven) delight us, in heaven we ſhall find them to be true, yea farre exceeding our expreſſion, and expectation.

IV. If wee deſire greater things then hath beene mentioned, in heaven we ſhall have greater then the greateſt; and this is a praiſe-worthy ambition, to deight the honours of the earth, and to aſpire in our affections and endeavours unto heaven, and the glory thereof. And therefore let us labour to be regenerated, that wee may be glorified.

CHAP. XX.

Verſ. 1. 2,3, &c. VERS. 1,2,3,4,5,6,7. For the Kingdome of Heaven is like unto a certaine houſholder, which went out at the dawning of the day to hire Labourers into his Vineyard. And hee agreed with the Labourers for a peny a day, and ſent them into his Vineyard. And he went out about the third houre and ſaw others ſtanding idle in the Market place, And ſaid unto them, Go ye alſo into my Vineyard, and whatſoever is right, I will give you: and they went their way. Againe hee went out about the ſixth and ninth houre, and did likewiſe. And he went out about the 11*th houre, and found others ſtanding idle, and ſaid unto them, Why ſtand yee here all the day idle? They ſaid unto him, Becauſe no man hath hired vs. He ſaid unto them, Goe yee alſo into my Vineyard, and whatſoever is right, that ſhall ye receive.*

Sect. 1. §. 1. For the Kingdome of heaven is like unto a Houſholder.]

Queſt. What is the meaning of this Parable?

Anſw. St. Hierome expounds it of thoſe who are called unto grace, at divers ages; that is,

Firſt, thoſe who were called in the morning, and ſent into the Vineyeard, are theſe who in their childhood are brought to the obedience of God: whether they were ſanctified in the wombe (as was Ieremiah and Iohn) or, whether they begun to ſerve the Lord, as ſoone as they were capable of the uſe of reaſon, as did Samuell.

Secondly, thoſe who were called at the third houre, are thoſe who are converted unto God, in their youth and adoleſcencie.

Thirdly, thoſe who were called at the ſixth houre, are thoſe who are converted unto God, in their ſtrength and perfect age.

Fourthly, thoſe who were called at the ninth houre, are thoſe who are converted unto God, in their declining, and old age.

Fifthly, thoſe who were called at the eleventh houre, are thoſe who either are converted unto GOD in their decrepite old age, or at the laſt houre and period of their life, as the Thiefe vpon the Croſſe

Sect. 2. §. 2. Which went out to hire Labourers into his Vineyard.]

Queſt. How many ſorts of Labourers are there in the vineyard of the Church?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, there are idle, and ſluggiſh Labourers, who worke the worke of the Lord negligently, thinking to diſcharge their duty towards God with an eaſie and ordinary paines. Theſe are threatned with a Curſe, Ierem. 48.10. and therefore are not to be imitated, but rather to be taken heed of.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, there are in the Vineyard of the Church, wicked Labourers who goe about to deſtroy and lay it waſt; Now theſe are either

I. Hypocrites, and Diſſemblers, who draw neare unto God with their lips, but are farre from him with their hearts, Marke 7.6. Who have a forme of godlineſſe, but deny the power thereof both in their hearts and lives, 2. Timoth. 3.5. And therefore cauſe the word of God, and religion to be evill ſpoken of. Rom. 2. Or,

II. Tyrants, and perſecutors, who (like the wild Boare of the Forreſt) labour with tooth and naile to deſtroy, and lay waſt the Vineyard. Or

III. Heretiques, Schiſmatiques, and perverſe perſons, who by their errours and falſe opinions, make rents, and breaches in the Church.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, there are painfull, and faithfull Labourers in the vineyeard of the Church, who indure much paines, take much care, and uſe the utmoſt of their power, that they may be profitable Labourers, and fruitfull vines in the Lords vineyard. And theſe onely are they whom the Lord rewards with an immortall inheritance.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, Cyprian (ex Anton. part. 1. titul. 5. Cap. 2. §. 8.) ſaith, that there are twelve abuſes in this vineyard, whereby it is endangered, and harmed: to wit,

I. A wiſe man without good workes.
II. An old man without religion.
III. A young man without obedience.
IV. A rich man without liberality, & almes deeds.
V. A woman without ſhame and chaſtity.
VI. A Maſter without wiſedome.
VII. A Chriſtian which is contentious.
VIII. A poore man which is proud.
IX. A King which is wicked.
X. A Prieſt which is negligent.
XI. The common people without diſcipline.
XII. A people without Law. If the Reader would ſee all theſe enlarged, let him read Antoninus in the place above cited. Theſe Maſter Warner.

§. 3.

Sect. 3. §. 3. A peny a day.]

That which Cæsar exacted of the Jewes, was this Denarius or peny (for Denarius, Didrachma, and Numisma, were all one) & this peny was the ordinary hire of a workman for a day (as appears by this place) and the daily wages of a Souldior, as Tacitus saith.

We may observe hence, that with the Jewes, the day was divided into foure quarters.

The first quarter began at sixe of the clocke in the morning, and hel dtill nine: and this is here called, the third houre, verse 3.

The second quarter ended at twelve of the clocke; and is here called the sixth houre, verse 5.

The third quarter ended at three in the afternoone; and is called the ninth houre, vers. 5.

The fourth quarter ended at sixe of the night, and is called the eleventh houre, verse 6.

Where note, that the three first quarters, had their names from that houre of the day, which closed the quarter [for they began the count of their lesser houres, from sixe a clocke in the morning: and our 6,7,8,9,10,11,12, 1,2,3,4,5,6, was their 1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9,10,11,12.] onely the last was called the eleventh houre by our Saviour Christ; whereas among the common people it either was called, or should have beene called by proportion with the rest, the twelfth houre to intimate unto us, that though God in his mercy accept labourers into his vineyard eleven houres of the day, yet he seldome calleth any at the 12th. for that is rather an houre to discharge servants, then to admit new.

Sect. 4. §. 4. Some also at the sixth houre, &c.]

Observe here, that an houre is a certaine part of a day; and is either simple or compound.

First, a simple ho. is either naturall or temporary.

I. A naturall houre is the foure and twentieth part of a naturall day.

II. A temporary houre is the twelfth part of an artificiall day; are there not (saith Christ, John 11) twelve houres of the day wherein men worke? and so here mention is made of the morning, and 3.9th. and 11. houres.

Secondly, a compound houre, is a quar. or fourth part of an artificiall day; as was shewed in the former Section, where we declared what the first, second, third, and fourth quar. of the day was, and when they both begun and ended. Now that wch hath been said concerning the division of the day and houre, will serve to reconcile the Evangelists, who seeme to differ about the suffering of Christ: For St. Marke 15.25. saith: And it was the third houre when they crucified him, St. John 19.14. saith, it was the preparation of the Passeover, and about the sixt houre they delivered him to be crucified, St. Luke 23.44. saith, It was about the sixt houre, and there was darknesse over all the Land. Now the summe is this, that Christ was crucified at the 3. and 6. houre; the 3. houre being ended and gone; the sixt houre going but not ended.

Sect. 5. Observ. §. 5. He saith unto them, goe ye also into my Vineyard.]

We see here that the Labourers stand all idle untill they be called, to teach us, that the beginning of all grace, and goodnesse is from Gods call, and not from our selves. Whence it may be demanded.

Why doth God then blame any for disobedience and wickednesse? Why doth he not call them, seeing he knowes that they can doe nothing without his call? 257

Quest.

Answ. There is a double call, namely,

First, a generall call, by the word Proverb. 1.24. and 8.1.3. &c. and 9.3. &c. Now every Christian is thus called; & therfore the fault is in themselves, because they willingly sleight & despise this call.

Secondly there is a particular call, and that is when men are inwardly moved by the Spirit.

Now I perswade my selfe, that there are none which live under the generall call of the word, but they have also the particular call of the Spirit, which moves them unto repentance and obedience. Now this particular call is threefold, viz.

I. Unto the externall society of Christ: and thus the Apostles were called to follow Christ, Matthew 4.19, &c. and 9. And

II. Unto internall grace; and this is twofold; namely,

First, generall, from which a man may fall, Mat. 20.16. and 22.14. Galath. 5.13. And

Secondly, reall and effectuall; Rom. 8.28. &c. Cantic. 2.10. and 5.2,4. And therefore it is not sufficient for us:

I. To be called generally by the word of God: Or

II. To be called generally by the Spirit of God, for the stony ground heard with joy. But wee must learne and labour,

First, to be changed, and to be made new creatures, 2. Corinth. 5.17. Gal. 6.15. And

Secondly, to be humbled, by a lowly confession and acknowledgement, yeelding our selves to be the Liege Seruants of God, 1. Corinth. 16,20. And

Thirdly, to deny our selves, Mat. 16.24. And Fourthly, to labour to bring every rebellious thought in obedience unto the Spirit, 2. Corinth. 10.4. And

III. There is a particular call, unto particular callings and functions; and thus Bezaleel and Aholiab were called; thus Saul and David were called; and thus Ministers are called to the worke of the Ministery.

VERS. 8,9,10,11,12,13,14,15,16. And when even was come, the M. of the Vineyard said unto his Steward, call the Labourers and give them their hire, beginning at the last, till thou come to the first. And they which were hired about the eleventh houre, came and received every man a peny. Now when the first came, they supposed that they should receive more, but they likewise received every man a peny. And when they had received it, they murmured against the master of the house, saying, these last have wrought but one houre, and thou hast made them equall unto us, which have borne the burden, and heate of the day. And he answered one of them saying, Friend I doe thee no wrong: didst thou not agree with me for a peny? Take that which is thine owne, and goe thy way: I will give to this last, as much as to thee. Is it not lawfull for me to doe as I will with Vers. 8, 9, 10, &c.

258 with my owne ? Is thy eye evill because I am good ? So the last shall be first, and the first last : for many are called but few chosen.

Sect. 1. §. 1. So when Even was come, &c.] Bellarmine (lib. 1. de Sanctorum beatitudine, cap. 1.) produceth this place to prove that the soules of the Saints doe not enjoy the beatificall vision, and sight of God, untill the Resurrection: and he argues thus;

Object. The Master of the family calls all the servants at night, and gives them their hire: Now by Night is understood the Resurrection, as by the Penny is meant Life everlasting. And therefore untill the Resurrection they doe not enjoy the Joyes of heaven, or the presence of God.

Answ. 1 First, Chrysostome (in hunc locum) admonisheth us, not to straine every particular of a Parable, but onely to consider the scope of Christ in the propounding thereof. Now the scope of our Saviour seemes to me to be threefold: namely,

I. That all the elect shall be endued with life eternall, at what houre soever they be called. And

II. To shew that the Fathers and Saints in the new Testament labour a shorter time, then did they in the olde: that is, the elect obtaine Heaven sooner, & in fewer yeares now under the Gospell, then they did under the Law. And

III. To teach us, that not alwayes they who are first called, come first to Heaven; for often they who are later called, come sooner to their journeyes end.

Answ. 2 Secondly, suppose we should admit, and grant, that our Saviour speakes here of the last, publike, and generall Judgement, yet this would not take away the particular Judgement, in which there is given to every man (as soone as he departs out of this life) a part of his reward.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Give them their hire.]

Object. 1 The Papists say, That a man may truly satisfie the wrath of God, for the punishment due unto sinne, by his good workes: and Bellarmine (de pœnit. Lib. 4. Cap. 8.) produceth this place for the proofe hereof, arguing thus.

If good workes may merit or deserve eternall life, then much more may they avert and turne away temporall punishments.

But the first is true from this place, where the Kingdome of God is called wages, or reward; and 2. Timoth. 4. 8. it is called the crowne of Iustice, which God the just Iudge shall give: where the Apostles intimates, That tis a reward justly given to mens deserts.

Therefore good workes may much more redeeme temporall punishments.

Answ. Wee utterly deny, that heaven can be merited with good workes; For

First, St. Paul having first said, The wages of sinne is death, addeth further, but the gift of God is eternall life, Rom. 6. 23. Where he calleth it a gift, and not wages.

Secondly, it is called in this parable, a reward or wages; but not in respect of the workemans labour, but of Gods covenant and promise. For

I. If it were by desert, then he that laboured twelve houres had deserved more, then he that wrought but one. As St. Ambrose saith (de vocat. Gentium. Lib. 1. Cap. 3.) Hora undecima intromissos in vineam, &c. They which were sent into the Vineyard at the eleventh houre, the divine indulgence made equall to the Labourers of he whole day, not paying the wages of their labour, but powring out the riches of his goodnesse, &c. that they which endured much labour, and received no more then the last, should understand, Se demum gratiæ non operis accepisse mercedem. That they received a gift of grace, not a reward of the worke.

II. The Lord saith verse 15. It is not lawfull for me to doe as I will with my owne ? But if they had deserved it, it had beene their owne.

III. St. Paul directly affirmeth, that wages is not counted of favour, but of debt (Rom. 4.) And therefore let the Papists consider, whether they dare say, That to obtaine Heaven is not of Gods favour.

Thirdly, to the testimonie of St. Paul we answer two things; to wit,

I. It is a crowne of justice, but not of ours, but of the justice of Faith in Christ: as the Apostle saith, verse 7. I have kept the Faith. And

II. It is Gods Justice to give it in regard of his promise, not of our desert, as Augustine saith, Ex misericordia promissam, sed jam ex justitia solvendam; it was promised of mercy, but is now in justice to be paid. Serm. 2. de verb. Apostoli.

Object. 3 The Papists object this place, to prove that our good workes merit Heaven; The Lord saith, call them, and give them their hire, or wages, or reward; now the name wages, and reward doth imply and include a merit, and desert.

Answ. Because the matter of this Objection is answered before in the foregoing objection, I therefore here adde onely a word or two. Reward is given two manner of wayes, namely,

First, κατὰ ὀφείλημα, of debt. And

Secondly, κατὰ χάριν, of grace; and this distinction is derived from Rom. 4. 4. Where the Apostle saith, Totidem verbis, To him that worketh is the reward not reckoned κατὰ χάριν, ἀλλὰ κατὰ τὸ ὀφείλημα, of grace but of debt. Where we learne, that there is a reward of grace, and there is a reward of debt; and the reward which is of debt is not attributed to the workes of grace. The Papists say, that there is no reward but of debt, and therefore if our workes shall be rewarded they are meritorious; But on the contrary wee see that St. Paul supposeth that there is μισθὸς κατὰ χάριν, a reward of grace, not of debt. Now if it be demanded,

Quest. How it appeares that there is μισθὸς κατὰ χάριν, a reward of grace? I answer

Answ. It is evident from the Hebrew word (gneqeb) which signifies a Reward; and comes from (gnaqab) which signifies the Heele, or backe part of the foote; because Merces the Reward, is the end of the worke, and the fruite of the worke (which is also the end of the worke) And so גמול signifies both a Reward which is of debt, and more over the fruit of the worke, which is κατὰ χάριν of grace.

Sect. 3. Argum. §. 3. And every man received a penny.] From this Parable we prove against the Papists, that that our workes merit not: and our Argument is this. If the reward be given of merit, then for an inequality of merit, should be given unequall rewards: but unequall rewards are not given; therefore the reward is not given of merit. The assumption is plaine, and manifest by this Parable, for the workes of those who laboured the whole day, and those who wrought but some houres of the day, yea one houre onely were unequall, and yet their reward was equall; for every man received a penny. The proposition is manifest from the very Doctrine of the Papists. If the Reader would see this Argument prosecuted, let him read Chamierus de operum merito, Lib. 14. Cap. 18. §. 1. &c.

Now that the reward is not given of merit, but of grace, appeares thus.

First, those who murmure against the Master, say, That they which were hired last did not deserve their reward; and therefore it was given freely.

Secondly, the Master saith, I will give unto this last, even as unto thee: Volo huic dare, id est, volo huic donare (ut interpretatur Augustinus Serm. 59. de verbis Domini) I will give unto this last, that is, I will bestow upon this last: now Donare to bestow is not ex meritis dare to give of debt, or for desert.

Thirdly, the Master saith, Is thy eye evill, because I am good? therefore life eternall is given of goodnesse, and not of merit. Thus it is evident, that glory was given to those who were last hired of grace, not of desert.

Object. 3 This place is objected against the degrees of glory in Heaven: These Labourers all receive alike every man a penny: therefore there are not degrees of glory in heaven.

Answ. 1 First, Similitudo non tenet in omnibus. Christ intends not here to set forth the equality of Celestiall glory, and what shall be the estate of the godly after this life: but the very drift of the Parable is to shew, that they which are called first, have not cause to brag or insult over others, which as yet are uncalled, considering that they may be made equall, or preferred before them. Perkins.

Answ. 2 Secondly, this followes not, To the workemen is equally given a penny; therefore the glory of Heaven shall be equall; because in this place the penny signifies glory, not a degree of glory: neither doth it follow, glory is given to all the Labourers, therefore also an equall degree of glory.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, to every man is given a penny; that is, in respect of essentiall glory all shall be alike, (for all the Elect shall have the same) but not in regard of accidentall glory, and the degrees thereof: for therein they shall not be equall. Mr. Felton upon Coloss. 1.

Sect. 4. §. 4. They murmured against the good man of the house.]

Quest. 1 How many wayes doe men murmure against God.

Answ. 1 Wee murmure either

First, against the attributes of God: that is, either, 259

I. Against his justice; as Ierem. 6. 10. Ezech. 18. 25. 29. Or

II. Against his equality; as Genes. 4. 5. and in this verse, Matth. 20. 11. Or

III. Against his truth, Esa. 63. 17. Or

IV. Against his goodnesse. Deuter. 1. 27. Or

V. Against his mercy, Esa. 58. 3. Or

VI. Against his providence under the name of Fortune. Flesh and blood often saith, we suffer, and God sees it not, or else he cares not for us: Yea, is there knowledge, and providence in the most high? Or

Secondly, we murmur against the word of God Iohn 6. 60. Or

Thirdly, against Religion; because it is either too strict and rigide, or else because it is false and hereticall, Acts 28. 22.

Quest. 2. Did not those Labourers who were called in the morning justly murmure against the equality of the good man of the house, who gave to the last, as much as unto them?

Answ. CHRIST answers no: and in his answer we have a proposition, and confirmation.

First, the proposition is this, Friend I doe thee no wrong, verse 13.

Secondly, he confirmes this, refelling the recrimination of those, who murmure against him by these five reasons: namely,

I. Because by covenant he ought them no more then a penny, verse 13. where he seemes to argue thus: He is unjust who gives to unequall Labourers an equall reward against his covenant and bargaine: But I have not done it against my bargaine (for I agreed with you all for a penny a day) And therefore I am not unjust, neither have I done thee any wrong.

II. Because thou hast that which thine is, verse 14. Take that thine is, viz. of the Steward: where he argues thus. Injury is not done to him who hath as much wages as he agreed for: but thou hast as much as thou didst agree for; therefore take that thine is, for thou art not wronged.

III. Because I will give to this last freely as much as I give thee by covenant, verse 14. where he argues thus, He which giues unto all as much as he covenanted for, and gives unto some more then they deserve, is bountifull to some, but unjust to none: But this is all I have done; and therefore I doe thee no wrong.

IV. Because I have absolute right and power over that which is my owne, verse 15. and therefore whatsoever I doe therewith is done without any injury to thee at all.

V. CHRIST confirmes his proposition by retorting the Argument vpon him that murmures. Thine eye is evill because I am good, verse 15. Thou envieth my bounty and liberality, and thereby art injurious both to me, and them, unto whom it is extended.

260

Sect.5. §. 5. Wee have borne the heate of the day.] Becauſe before, the Labourers were hired to worke a day, and here they ſay, they have borne the heate of the day; therefore it will not be amiſſe to conſider what a day is.

An Hebrew day is either naturall or artificiall.

Firſt, a Naturall day is the ſpace of 24 houres, containing alſo both the morning and the evening, which are the bonds of every day. Now the Evening is of two ſorts: viz.

I. From the ninth houre to the ſetting of the Sunne.

II. From the ſetting of the Sunne to the ſhutting in of the night, Levit. 23. 5. In the firſt Moneth, and the fourteenth day of the Moneth, betweene the two Evenings ſhall be the Paſſeover of the Lord.

Secondly, an Artificiall day, is the ſpace of time from the riſing of the Sunne to the ſetting; and therefore is longer in Summer, and ſhorter in Winter. Now the Labourers were hired to worke an Artificiall, and not a Naturall day.

Sect.6. §. 6. Take that which thine is, and goe thy wayes.] As all Scriptures, ſo this was written for our inſtruction and admonition; for ſome we ſee here to be rejected of God, but not through any default of his, but of themſelves; that we thereby might learne to beware, leaſt otherwiſe we fall into the ſame fault. For when God calls men unto ſalvation and life eternall, they are not then all of one and the ſame mind.

Queſt. How many ſorts of men are there under the call of the Goſpell, Or, within the viſible Church of Chriſt?

Anſw. In the viſible and externall Church are foure ſorts of Perſons, namely Firſt, ſome may but will not heare the word, and call of God; like the Adder who ſtops her eares. Read for the proofe hereof, Pſalm. 58. and 95.8. Rom. 10.16. Matth. 23. 37. Now ſuch as theſe God will never admit unto his glory, and glorious Kingdome.

Secondly, ſome embrace the Goſpell, for temporall reſpects: The Lord bleſſed Obed-edom and all his houſe, ſo long as the Arke was with him, and a bleſſing doth attend vpon thoſe who favour, promote, and embrace the Goſpell; and therefore many accept of the word, that they may be bleſſed in outward things, and reject and ſleight it, when affluence and abundance doth not accompany it. Now unto theſe the Lord will never give Heaven.

Thirdly, there are many idle perſons in the Lords Vineyeard who will neither labour themſelves, nor ſuffer others to worke, for an idle man is an impediment to others, and a diſturber of others. Some deride others for their devotion, and deſpiſe all duties and exerciſes of Religion in themſelves; Some will neither read nor pray privately themſelves, nor allow of it in others; but by ſcoffes and taunts labour to hinder and deterre them.

Fourthly, in the Church there are many proud murmurers, who thinke more highly of themſelves, then of any other, and perſwade themſelves, that their deſerts exceed the merit and worth of all other, Eſa. 2.12. Now theſe (with the murmurers in the text) God will reject, with an abi, Take that which thine is, and goe thy wayes.

§. 7. Is it not lawfull for me to doe with my owne what I will?] Sect.8.

Some object theſe words for to prove a lawleſſe liberty to deale with their owne things as they liſt: becauſe the Lord ſaith, May I not doe with my owne as I will? Object.

Firſt, that which God doth is very good; and thus it is lawfull to deale with our owne: that is, we may doe good with that we have, for Chriſt commands us to make friends of the unrighteous Mammon, and St. Paul chargeth the rich to be rich in good workes, 1. Timoth. 6.18. But it is not lawfull to abuſe that which wee have, neither doe wee learne that of our Heavenly Father. Anſw. 1

Secondly, this is Gods ſpeech, and his peculiar priviledge, and not ours, who have nothing ſimply our owne. The text ſaith plainly, May I not doe with my owne, &c. Whence we learne that the Lord hath abſolute power over, and right unto all things, but what wee have is but lent unto us. A Lord may doe what he will with his owne goods, but a Steward may not doe what he will with his Lords: Now God is the Lord of all things, and therefore may give and diſtribute them as he pleaſes, and to whom he will; but we are but Servants, and Stewards, and therfore we muſt uſe that which we poſſeſſe, according to the will and pleaſure of our Lord. Anſw. 2

§. 8. Many are called.] Sect. 8.

Our Saviour in theſe words would teach us, That many are called who deſpiſe and ſleight their calling, Prov. 1.24. &c. and Matth. 22.14. Luke 14.18. Iohn 3.19. Obſerv.

Is not the call of God certaine? Iohn 13. 1. Rom. 11.29. Queſt. 1

Firſt, there is a certaine effectuall calling, Romans 8. 28. 30. and 1. Theſſal. 5. 24. And Anſw. 1

Secondly, there is an ineffectuall calling, Matth. 13. 20. Hebr. 6. 4. and 16. 26. And this is the calling which is here ſpoken off. Anſw. 2

How is the call hindred? Queſt. 2

Firſt, by an errour in Judgement: When men thinke themſelves ſecure (Eſa. 28. 14.) and cry peace peace unto themſelves (1. Theſſal. 5.) becauſe they perſwade themſelves that they are good enough, (Luke 18.11.) then they neglect the day of their viſitation, and obſerve not their call. Anſw. 1

Secondly, the call is hindered, by the love of Sinne: Felix trembles, but yet the love Anſw. 2

of

of Covetousnesse makes Pauls words of no efficacy with him. Act. 24. 26. When men are drowned in the pleasures of Sinne, then they contemne that call of the Lords, which would reduce and revoke them from sinne.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, an idle, and lazy, sluggishnesse hinders this call. Agrippa was almost perswaded to become a Christian, Acts 26. 28. but not all together. Vult et non vult piger; the sluggard being called and awakened, answereth & to rise, but deferres and procrastinates it, crying, Yet a little sleepe, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleepe. And therefore if wee desire this effectuall vocation: let us,

I. Learne to deny our selves, and to renounce all selfe-confidence, and high conceits of our owne deserts and goodnesse. And

II. Let us learne to hate all Sinne, and that with a perfect hatred. And

III. To cast off all sluggishnesse, and avoide all idle endeavours, and Soule-killing delayes, and with speed, alacrity, and diligence, undertake the labour of the Lord, and the worke of our salvation unto which wee are called.

Object. Some object these words against the wise, and divine Providence of God: He hath rejected more then he hath elected; because many are called, and but fewe, are chosen: Now this stands not with the providence of an all-wise Creator.

Answ. 1. First, it is not against the most wise providence of God, that there is a greater number of wicked then godly: because he maketh no man evill, but whatsoever he made was very good, and he onely suffereth the evill to be.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it is true, that God hath rejected more then he hath elected, but he did it not without good cause. For

I. Hereby he would shew, that those who are chosen, are chosen of meere grace, and not for any merit, or worthinesse of their owne. And

II. Hereby he would stirre up us to give great thankes unto him, for so great a benefit, in choosing us so few, out of so great a multitude of men, unto eternall life.

Sect. 9. §. 9. And few are chosen.]

Quest. 1 It is questioned by some, whether there be a generall election or not? that is, whether all be elected unto life or not?

Answ. Wee answer no; and the trueth of our negation appeares thus:

First, God hath mercy of whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardens: and therefore all are not elected.

Secondly, our Saviour here saith, Many are called, but few are elected.

Thirdly, few enter into the straite gate Mat. 7. 13, 14. But all that are elected unto life, enter therein. 2. Timoth. 2. 19. And therefore all are not elected, Rom. 8. 30.

Fourthly, the Apostle saith plainly: The election obteyned mercy, and the rest were hardned.

Fifthly, the goates shall goe into everlasting fire, which was prepared for them from the beginning. Matth. 25. And therefore all were not at the beginning elected. 261

Sixthly, universall election is overthrowne by these Scriptures. Iohn. 13. 18. and. 15. 19. 1. Corinth. 1. 26. and. 2. Timoth. 2. 20. Iohn. 17. 9. Rom. 8. 29.

Seventhly, Election is out of a heape, or masse, or multitude, to segregate, or choose some things, or some persons: and therefore all are not elected. Deuter. 7. 7. Iohn. 15. 19. and. 1. Corinth. 4. 7.

Quest. 2 Some demand againe, why there are but few elected, and why God rejected so great a multitude of men, that is predestinated more to death then to life? For if the principall finall cause was his glory, which is illustrated both in the manifestation of his wrath and power against sinne; and in the demonstration of his riches, grace, and goodnesse towards the vessels of mercy, could not this cause have place in the reprobation of a few as well as of many?

Answ. 1 First, who art thou O man that reasonest against God? who hath knowne his minde? or was his Counseller? who is wiser then God? who Rom. 9. 23. and. 11. 34.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we deny that God should have bene as much glorified, or, his glory as much manifested by the reprobation of a few, as it is by many: for nothing could bee done more wisely, or better then God hath done it: And with this answer every godly man should rest satisfied.

Vers. 18. Behold wee goe up to Ierusalem, and the Sonne of man shall bee betrayed unto the chiefe Priests, and unto the Scribes, and they shall condemne him to death. Vers. 18

Quest. Why was it necessary that Christ should be Condemned, and suffer, and dye?

Answ. 1 First, because it so pleased God.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because so he wrought and purchased our Redemption: For it was necessary that hee should satisfie the divine Justice for our sinnes.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, because God so loved the World, that he gave his Sonne unto death, for the Redemption and Salvation thereof. Iohn, 3. 6.

Vers. 22, 23. But Jesus answered and said, Yee know not what yee aske. Are yee able to drinke of the Cup that I shall drinke of, and to be Baptized with the baptisme that I am baptized with? They say unto him, Wee are able. And hee saith unto them, yee shall drinke indeed of my Cup, and be baptized with the Baptisme that I am baptized with; but to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, but it shall bee given to them, for whom it is prepared of my Father.] Vers. 22 23.

Sect. 1 §. 1. Yee know not what yee aske.]

Wherein did the Sons of Zebedee erre in their requests,

262 requests, that our Saviour here blames them? Their petition and request was faulty, and inordinate in three regards; to wit,

Answ. First, because they desired the crowne before victory. And

Secondly, because they desired, and dreamt of a carnall Propinquity, and neerenesse unto CHRIST. And

Thirdly, because out of a certaine Presumption and pride they seeme to have made this request: desiring the chiefest place and glory, yea that they might be preferred before all the other Apostles. Carthus. §. pag. 164. b.

Sect. 2. §. 2. But to sit on my right hand, and on my left is not mine to give.]

Object. The Arrians objected this place against the Deitie and power of CHRIST, thus; The Mother of Zebedees children, desiring that one of her Sonnes might sit at Christs right hand, and the other at the left, in the Kingdome of him: hee answers, To sit on my right hand and on my left, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.

Therefore CHRIST is not omnipotent, or of absolute power, and consequently is not God.

Answ. 1 First, the mother of Zebedees Children desired these things out of a humane affection, acknowledging CHRIST onely to be a man, and his Kingdome some Kingdome of this world: Now our Saviour answers in her sence, that as he is man, it is not his to give: so before, when the young man called him good, he answered there is none good but one, that is God.: because the young man did onely attribute unto him a humane goodnesse.

Answ. 2. Secondly, this was spoken by Christ, not onely in regard of his humane nature; but also (yea rather,) in respect of the present Ministery, for which he was sent into the world: and therefore Christ denies, that it was his worke to assigne to the Elect divers degrees of rewards and glory, in the Kingdome of heaven, this not being the end for which hee was sent into the world, but did depend upon the eternall counsell of the Father, from which counsell hee did not exclude himselfe.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, when CHRIST saith, It is not mine to give, he speakes not of the power of giving, that he might take it from himselfe, or deny it to bee in himselfe, for a little before he had promised his Apostles that they should sit (at the day of Judgement) upon twelve Thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israell. And therefore hee doth not speake of Power, or what he could doe, but onely shewes that it did not become him, neither was convenient to give them that which they desired; for rewards are to be given to those who worke, and crownes to those who contend for the victory. Yea, because the Sonnes of Zebedee (either out of their owne ambition, or their Mothers) did peculiarly begge that for themselves, which was promised to all the Faithfull: therefore CHRIST the just Judge could not, or might not give that which was unjustly demanded: And lastly, it did not become Christ to sooth up them in their ambition, seeing he did (when occasion offered it selfe) dehort others from ambition. Sincler. de fide Dei, lib. 2. pag. 109. b.

Object. This place serves to confute the popish, or Popes practice of canonizing Saints: Bellarmine (de Sanct. lib. 1. cap. 10.) saith, That of Saints some are canonized, that is, publikely allowed to be Saints; and some are not canonized, or received into the Kalender: and the difference betweene them is this; Canonized Saints who are either generally by the Pope so canonized, for the whole Church, or more specially by a Bishop for his Province, or Diocesse, may be publikely prayed unto, Temples built in their names, their Holy dayes yearely remembred, and their Reliques preserved in Churches to be adored: but none of these things may publikely be exhibited to not Canonized Saints, unlesse privatly onely.

Answ. 1 First, neither Canonized nor Uncanonized Saints are thus to be worshipped.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it is grossely absurd to say, That it is lawfull to pray to some Saint privately, and yet unlawfull to doe it publikely: as though there were House-Saints, and Church-Saints, or house-Gods & Church-Gods: as we read Ezech. 8. 10.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, if they be Saints, why are they not all canonized? If they bee all Saints with God, why are they not with men?

Answ. 4 Fourthly, who gave them such power to canonize some Saints, and not other some? Christ here saith, To sit at his right hand, or his left, is not his to give: How then dare the Pope, or any Prelate presume to doe that, which CHRIST assumeth not, as he is man?

Sect. 3. §. 3. But it shall bee given unto them, for whom it is prepared of my Father.]

Argum. We shewed before, that it is questioned whether there be any Universall or generall election of all unto life or not: verse 16. §. 9. qu. 1. Now this verse serves for another Argument to confirme the negative, which wee there (according to Scripture, and from Scripture) maintained to be the truth. Our Saviour here saith, The Kingdome of God shall bee given unto them, for whom it is prepared of my Father: whence it is cleare, that the Kingdome of God is not prepared for all, but for some. St. Paul also sheweth, That there are vessels of wrath prepared to destruction, and vessels of mercy prepared unto glory: all therefore are not vessels of mercy, neither are all prepared to glory. If the Reader would see how this Argument is answered by Snecanus, and Huberus, and how their answers may bee answered, let him reade Dr. Willets Synops. pag. 896. 897.

VERS. 25. 26. But JESVS called them unto him, and said; Yee know that the Princes of the Gentiles, exercise dominion over them, and they that are great, exercise authority upon them But it shall not bee so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him bee your Minister. Vers. 25. 26.

§. 1 The

Sect. 1. §. 1. The Lords of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them.]

St. Bernard applied these very words to Pope Eugenius in this manner: It is plaine (saith he) That here dominion is forbidden the Apostles; how then dare you take upon you rule and Apostleship, or in your Apostleship rule and dominion, for if you will have both alike you shall loose both; otherwise you must not thinke your selfe exempted from the number of them, of whō the Lord complaineth thus: They have reigned but not of me; they have bene, but I have not knowne them.

Sect. 2. §. 2. But it shall not be so among you.]

Argum. We produce this place against the Popes temporall power over Kings and Princes; The Princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over others &c. but it shall not be so among you.

Answ. To this Bellarmine answers, that our Saviour doth not here prohibit rule and dominion, but a tyrannicall and violent domination, and Lordship, as appeares by the word here used κατακυριευουσιν.

Reply. 1. Firſt, our Saviour prohibits that which the sonnes of Zebedee desired: but they did not desire power or licence to rule tyrannically over the rest, but onely Primacie and dominion.

Reply. 2. Secondly, the word here used signifies Lordship: as is evident from Luke. 22. 25. where in the same sense κυριευουσιν is used without the proposition. Amesius. Bell. enerv. tom. 1. Page. 280.

Object. Some object this place against Bishops, Superintendents, and all other Ecclesiasticall persons who exercise any authority or power, over those who are of the Clergie: CHRIST himselfe (say they) seemes here to prohibit this imparity among the Ministers of the Gospell; The Princes of the Gentiles exercise authority over them &c. but it shall not be so with you. And St. Peter. 1. Peter. 5. 2, 3. exhorts them to feed the flocke of God, &c. neither as being Lords over Gods heritage. Therefore all imparity in the Ministery, is contrary to the rule of the word.

Answ. 1. Firſt, it is true, that by the similitude of Christ all the Apostles were like, and equall, both in degree and Power.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it is false, that either from these, or any other places is established and built that parity and equality amongst the Ministers of the Gospell, which they would have who oppose Episcopall dignity.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, notwithstanding this command of our Saviours, the twelve Apostles were in dignity higher, and in power greater then the seventy Disciples. Yea, notwithstanding the same precept of CHRIST, there were ordained and established by the Apostles themselves in the Churches of Ephesus and Creet, and some other places, primary pastors, unto whom was given the power of jurisdiction, not onely over the laicks, but even also over the inferiour Ministers of the same Churches: And therefore neither Christ nor Peter would destroy the difference of degrees among Ecclesiasticall persons; but granting a pastorall priority, and paternall superiority to the Apostles, and their successors the Bishops, doth onely forbid them to use a Regall or Lordlike power, either over CHRISTS Ministers, or Gods people, who are under their rule and government. Bp. Daven. Determ. qu. 42. page. 193. 263

VERS. 28. Even as the Sonne of man came not to be ministred unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransome for many. Vers. 28

Sect. 1. §. 1. Even as the Sonne of man came not to be ministred unto, but to minister.]

CHRIST having before disswaded his Apostles from ambition, and the desire of ruling, and domineering over others, doth now further enforce it by his owne example, and humility.

Quest. Wherein did the humility of Christs ministery shew it selfe?

Answ. 1 Firſt, in the assuming, and taking upon him the forme of a servant. 2. Corinth. 8. 9. Philip. 2. 7.

Answ. 2. Secondly, in his life, and ministerie, he not ceasing to teach the ignorant, and heale the sicke, and worke miracles for the winning of unbeleevers unto him, so long as he was here on the earth.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, his humility shewed it selfe, in his death, and suffering for the redemption of his Church.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And to give his life for a ransome.]

Quest. 1 What is the meaning of these words?

Answ. That he gave himselfe to be a sacrifice for our guilt; and our sinnes being derived, or laid upon him, he underwent for us death and malediction: that is, he gave himselfe to be the price of Redemption for us, and thereby he redeemed us from death and malediction. CHRIST therefore hath not onely freed us per modum Redemptionis, by paying our ransome, but also per modum Satisfactionis: for he who undergoes death for one that is guilty thereof, and by his death frees him from punishment, doth redeeme him Per modum satisfactionis. and thus CHRIST hath redeemed his children Per modum Redemptionis (because he hath freed them from the captivity of Sathan) and also Per modum satisfactionis, because he hath delivered them from that punishment, which they were subject unto, Lubertus contra Socinum. If the Reader would see, how this verse is urged for imputed righteousnesse, and how it is excepted against by Bellarmine, and his exception answered, let him reade, Bp. Davenant de justitia habit. Cap. 28. Pag. 264.

Our Saviour in this place speaking directly, and clearely of the Redemption of his children from sinne, Sathan, the curse of the Law, and the wrath of the Lord; it will not be amisse to answer briefely a question or two, concerning Redemption.

Quest. 2 How manifold is Redemption,

First,

264

Answ. Twofold viz.
First, of the Soule from sinne.
Secondly, of the body from death, Iohn 1: 29. Revelat. 20. 5, 6. To this purpose Bernard saith, Qui enim resurgit in anima, resurget in corpore ad vitam: He that ariseth in soule from sinne, shall arise in body unto Salvation.

Quest. 3 Wherein doth our Redemption consist?

Answ. In satisfying of Gods justice which the Law requires, for the violating of his commandements, for the better vnderstanding hereof observe, that Gods justice is satisfied by these two meanes; namely

First, by suffring the punishment due to sinne, which is the curse of God. And Secondly, by the perfect keeping of the Law, without which there can be no deliverance from sinne, and Sathan, Galath. 3. 10, 12. And therefore we cannot redeeme, or free our selves from condemnation. Hebr. 9. 22. and. 12. 14. And consequently the opinion of popish merit is quite overthrowne.

Quest. 4 By whom was our redemption wrought?

Answ. By CHRIST onely, God and man! Iohn. 3. 16. Acts. 4. 12. Rom. 5. 8. and. 1. Iohn. 5. 12.

Quest. 5 How is this our redemption revealed, or made knowne unto us?

Answ. By the word of God: Read for the proofe hereof, Matth. 11. 12. Luke. 2. 10. Rom. 1. 16.

Object Against the 4th question it is objected, God is said to redeeme us, and therfore not Christ onely.

Answ. 1. First, I deny the consequence: God redeemes us, therefore not Christ onely, followes not, for CHRIST is God; and therefore when indefinitely it is said, that God redeemes us, we may vnderstand Christ, because he is God. But

Answ. 2. Secondly, it is true that both God the Father, and also God the Sonne doth redeeme us, but it is Alia atque alia ratione, not after one and the same, but after a diverse manner. For

I. God redeemes us, but is by Christ. But

II. Christ redeemes us, by himselfe.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, CHRIST hath paid the price of redemption for us, and hath freed us from death by his death, which cannot truely be affirmed of the Father, or the blessed Spirit; and therefore Christ properly and κατ' ἐξοχὴν is said to bee our Redeemer.

Quest. 6 How many things are necessarily required unto a reall and a Redemption properly so called.

Answ. To this Socinus answers, that five things are necessarily required unto a true, proper, and reall Redemption, and if that one of these five conditions bee wanting, it is no Redemption properly. His necessary conditions are these viz.

First, there must be some who are redeemed.

Secondly, there must be some, who doth redeeme.

Thirdly, there must be some from whom, or from whose power, the captives are redeemed.

Fourthly, there must be some price paid. And Fifthly, this price must be paid to him who keepes the Captives in captivity. These things, saith Socinus, are necessarily required in a proper and reall Redemption, and we gainesay it not because all these are found in our Redemption by CHRIST. For

I. It is man who is redeemed: and to this purpose St. Paul saith, Hee hath redeemed VS. Gal. 3. 13. Titus. 2. 14.

II. It is Christ who redeemes us: as is laid downe in the same places of St. Paul.

III. It is principally the Lord, from whose curse and malediction man is redeemed; and lesse principally he is delivered from Sathan, an evill conversation, iniquity, death, and malediction, as it is taken for the punishment of sinn. Read for this purpose. Rom. 11. 32. and. 1. 24. Galath. 3. 22. Revel. 14. 10. and. 20. 2. 14. 15. where it is said. Death, and hell, and whosoever was not found written in the booke of life, were cast into the lake of fire. By whom were they cast? by God: therefore God, not the devill holds men in captivity; For he properly keepes captive, who hath power to inflict the punishment of death & condemnation upon him who is in captivitie: Now this power onely the Lord hath.

IV. Christ himselfe who was slaine and offred for us, is the price of our Redemption. Matth. 20. 28. and. 1 Tim. 2. 6.

V. And lastly, this price must be paid unto God (not unto Sathan) whose debters we are, and whom we have offended. Hebr. 9. 14. and. 10. 9. For the price and debt is to be paide to him that layes in Prison, and not to the Jaylor that detaines and keepes in prison. Lubertus contr. Soc.

VERS 30, 31. And behold two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that JESVS passedby, cryed out saying, Have mercy on us Oh Lord thou Sonne of David. And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cryed so much the more, saying. Have mercy on us Oh Lord thou Sonne of David. Verse 30, 31.

§. 1. And behold two blind men sitting by the way side. Sect. 1.

Quest. 1 Whether is this an Historicall, or an Allegoricall narration?

Answ. Although undoubtedly it be a reall trueth, and was verily performed according to the words of the Evangelists, yet the Fathers and some Expositors have Allegorized it.

Quest. 2 What is observable in the Allegory?

Answ. 1 First, the state of man after the fall; For by nature.

Cæci. I. We are (like these men) blind in our understandings, and blockishly ignorant in Spirituall things.

Iuxta vias. II. We (like these) are beggers, in grace, being herein miserably poore, deprived of all grace, vertue, and goodnesse, and strangers from the favour of God.

Sedentes. III. We (like these) sit, doing nothing, being dead in workes: for so long as we are naturall we are dead in sinne, and so long as we are dead in sinne, we are as unable to worke spirituall workes well, as a man corporally dead is to work corporall or naturall workes.

Secondly,

Answ. 2. Secondly, in the Allegoricall sense of this history we may observe the degrees of our Reparation, and Renovation. For

I. CHRIST passeth by.

II. We heare the noyse.

III. We aske what the matter is. Marke 10.

IV. We then crye, and begge, and sue for mercy.

V. We have many impediments, which hinder us from being heard for a time.

VI. Yet if we continue crying; Christ will
First, call us: And then
Secondly, take pitty of us. And Thirdly, helpe us. But I passe by these.

Quest. 3 How doth it appeare that we are blind by nature?

Answ. It is most evident by these foure following particulars, to wit,

First, if a man should walke in a way, and before him should be a deepe pit, and on one side of him a rich treasure, and he see neither, but neglects the treasure, and fals into the pit: who would say, but this man were certainly blind? Thus we walke in the way of the world, seeing neither the heavenly treasure that is reserved for the righteous, nor the infernall torment which is prepared for the wicked, but neglect the one, and engulfe our selves into the other; and therefore it is evident that we are blind.

Secondly, who will say that he sees, who is not able to discerne betweene light and darkenesse, betweene gold and burning coales? Thus the naturall man cannot understand spirituall things. 1. Corinth. 2.4. but chooseth the burning coales of this world, yea even of hell, neglecting the celestiall gold of life eternall. Naturall men preferre the darkenesse of fables and humane traditions, before the light of the word; yea death before life, and hell before heaven: and therefore who will deny, but that they are blind?

Thirdly, the blind man knowes not whether he goes, ignorant which way to turne, yea often running against a wall. Thus by nature being ignorant of the word and will of God, we know not whether we goe, we know not how to serve God aright, nor when we doe well. And therefore who will deny, but that great is our blindnesse?

Fourthly, the blind often stumble, and easily fall: so as long as we remaine in our naturall blindnesse, and ignorance, we frequently fall into one sinne or other, not being able to cease from sinne. 2. Peter 2. 14. And therefore our deeds of darkenesse, and workes of the flesh doe shew, that we are as blind in soules, as these men in the text were in their bodies.

Quest. 4 What must we doe to be freed from this spirituall blindnesse?

Answ. Doe as these blind men did; namely,

First, let us acknowledge and confesse unto our God, our spirituall blindnesse, and how ignorant we are in divine and celestiall things.

Secondly, let us seeke for, and enquire after the Physitian of our soules, who is able to open our blind eyes. If it be demanded, Who this is? Moses, the Patriarks, Prophets, Evangelists, Apostles, Confessours, and Martyrs, answer with one mouth, that it is JESVS the Sonne of David, who is the light of the world, and which enlightneth every one that commeth into the world. Iohn. 1.9. Isa. 35.5. and. 61.1. 265

Thirdly, we must ingenuously confesse this Physitian; as these did, Iesus thou Sonne of David: we must not be ashamed to confesse and acknowledge him before men, who is able to deliver us, both from the wrath of God, and the rage of men, and this our extraordinary naturall blindnesse. Acts 26.18.

Fourthly, with blind Bartimeus we must cast away our cloakes, and reject and shake off whatsoever may hinder us from comming unto Christ. Hebr. 12.1. we must take up our crosses, and deny our selves, and follow CHRIST; and wee must lay downe our pleasures, and profits, if they keepe us from Christ. But of this something hath beene said before, Chapt. 5. and 7. and therefore I enlarge it no further.

Quest. 5 When, or about what time did this History fall out?

Answ. It was after Christs departure from Iericho, verse 29. and Marke 10.46.

Quest. 6 St. Luke 18.35. saith it was, when he came nigh unto Iericho: and therefore how may the Evangelists be reconciled?

Answ. 1. First, the omitting of some circumstances overthrowes not the substance of the History; for although circumstances should varie, or some should be omitted, yet the summe and matter of the narration may be true.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it is very likely, that these blind men cryed unto CHRIST before his going unto Iericho, and although he heard them, yet hee would not answer them (for the tryall of their perseverance) untill his returne from thence: and thus thinkes Calvin. And thus before Chap. 9.28. Two blind men crye after him in the way, but he answers them not untill he come into the house.

Quest. 7 St. Matthew saith here, there were two blind men, but according to Marke and Luke there was but one; and therefore how can they be reconciled in this particular?

Answ. 1. First, it may be at the first, there was but one, and that another came running after him afterwards, and so two were healed. Or Answ. 2. Secondly, it may be there were two, yea certainly there was, and yet onely Bartimeus is named, either because he was better knowne, or more famous, or more clamorous, running faster and crying louder after CHRIST, then the other did.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, Omne majus continet in se minus; every greater containes a lesse; and therefore there is no contradiction at all amongst the Evangelists. St Matthew saith there was two, St. Marke and St. Luke say, there was one (not that there was but one onely) now where there are two there is one.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, the holy Scriptures are not strict in the the observing of numbers, but are wont to neglect them: and thus our Evangelist, Chapt. 8. 28. saith. There were two possessed with Devils, and St. Marke. 5. 1. and. St. Luke. 8. 26. say, There was one.

Quest. 8 Why did these blind men sit by the way side?

Answ. St. Marke and St. Luke answer, to begge of those who came by, Marke. 10. 46. Luke. 13. 35.

Quest. 9 Why did the Scribes and Pharisees suffer beggars amongst them, seeing God had forbidden it, Deut. 15. 7. and that order was taken for the providing for them, Deuter. 24. 12. &c.

Answ. These things (they thought) tended to their losse, and therefore every man pulled his necke out of the collar: and would rather suffer the poore to begge, then provide for them (of theirs) themselves, according to the Law.

Qu. 10. Seeing God hath prohibited these publike wandring beggars, why doth not CHRIST here reprove them?

Answ. 1 First, because they begged not through their default, but through the careletsnesse of these who would not provide for their relieſe.

Answ. 2. Secondly, because it was lawfull for them to begge, seeing the Magistrates did neglect to take care for them. If the Lord disinable men to worke, and the Governours will not provide for their maintenance, then the Lord allowes them to begge and seeke relieſe from others; for steale they must not, though they starve.

Sect. 2. §. 2. When they heard that Iesus passed by, cryed out.]

Quest. 1 What was the occasion of this their crye?

Answ. The hearing of this tidings, that Christ passed by. Now herein we might observe two things; viz.

First, they heare a great noyse, or tumult, or course of people. And

Secondly, because they know not what it meanes, they aske; where we see that hearing, and enquiring are the causes of their sight: To teach us,

Obser. 1. That wee ought to heare the word, and to enquire, and conferre with the children of God if we desire the removall of our spirituall blindnesse. Reade. Luke. 3. 11. Acts. 2. 37. and. 8. 34. and. 10. 33. and. 13. 15. 42. and. 16. 30. and. 17. 11. Rom. 10. 14.

Quest. 2 Who are here worthy of reproofe and blame.

Answ. 1. First, the Recusants who like deafe Adders stoppe their eares, and will not heare the word of God. Here observe two things; viz.

I. The malice of Sathan, in the Popish Priests, or the sathanicall malice of the Popish Priests, against the Laity: for they neither prohibit them to drinke, nor live, nor marry with Protestants, but onely to pray, and heare, and aske them questions concerning Religion, and these they are charged strictly to avoide which I conceive they have learnt from Sergius in his Alcoran, who prohibited the Turkes to dispute of Religion with any but of their owne sect.

II. We may observe the misery of those misled, and miserable seduced Papists, who obey, and follow this prohibition of their Priests, thinking that they doe God good service, when they abstaine from the hearing of his holy word.

Secondly, they are faulty here among us, who Answ. 2. will not conferre about that which they heare, nor aske questions where they doubt; but heare without any care either to remember, or learne, or understand: whereas we should so heare, that we might understand what we heare and learne something by that which we heare, and remember what we have heard which is profitable for our instruction and edification.

Why did the blind men cry unto Christ? Quest. 3

First, perhaps because CHRIST as man could Answ. 1. not otherwise have heard them. Or

Secondly, because he was hindred by some Answ. 2. weighty employment, or serious discourse: but they weary him with their clamours, and prevaile by their importunity: To teach us,

That we must pray fervently. Here observe Obser. 2 three things; to wit,

First, CHRISTS knew of their blindnesse before, but yet he would be sued, and sought unto Yea

Secondly, although they pray unto him, yet he doth not at first incline unto them, untill they cry. Yea

Thirdly, he doth not lend an eare to their clamours by and by, but (in all probability) deferres to grant their requests till after he returned from Ierischo, as Chap. 9. 28. And what is the reason of all this? Because he would have us importunate. Hence then learne

That God is delighted with importunate Obser. 3 prayers, or with the importunity of his children in praying; Read. Matth. 7. 7. Rom. 12. 16. and. 1. Thessal. 5. 17. and Iames. 1. 6.

Who are here blame-worthy? Quest. 4

First, those who neglect publike prayers with Answ. 1. the congregation. And Secondly, those who neglect private prayers at Answ. 2 home, with their owne families. And Thirdly, those who pray perfunctorily, and Answ. 3. idly, without either vigour, spirit, or intention.

Why doe these blind men crye, or Wherefore? Quest. 5

They cry for a temporall blessing, namely Answ. sight: To teach us,

That prayer is the remedy for the removall Obser. 4 even of temporall afflictions, and evils. For the better understanding hereof observe, That afflictions are either

First, Supernaturall; whether they be

I. Corporall, as witch-craft, inchantment, and the like. Or

II. Spirituall, as temptations, checke of conscience, trouble of mind, and the like. Now prayer onely is the remedy against both these. Or

Secondly. Naturall; here neither prayer alone is to be used without ordinary, and lawfull meanes, (that being presumption) nor is the meanes to be used without prayer (that being carnality) but we must use the meanes, and then pray unto God for a blessing.

Who are here to be taxed as faulty, and blame- Quest. 6 worthy?

First,

Answ. 1. First, those who in sicknesse and naturall evills, use the externall meanes, but despise prayer: for if a man hope in the use of lawfull meanes, without desiring the blessing of God, he doth trust in the meanes, and in himselfe, and shewes that (in his conceit) he hath no need of God at all.

Answ. 2. Secondly, those are more to blame then the former, who in naturall evils have recourse to wicked, and indirect meanes; as dissimulation, deceit, injury, revenge, theft, and the like.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, those are most of all to be reproved, who in supernaturall evils, runne into evill, yea divelish meanes; as charmes, inchantments, and the like.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, they are not to be excused, nor can be acquitted of guilt, who in naturall evils, pray unto God to helpe them, but refuse the use of lawfull and warrantable meanes.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, they deserve not the least blame, who will neither in affliction use lawfull meanes, nor pray unto God for redresse against their evils.

Sect. 3. Vers. 30. Thou Sonne of David.] We see here how the blind men acknowledge Christ to be the promised Messiah, who was promised under a double name; namely,

First, sometimes under the name of David, as Jerem. 30. 9. Ezechiel 34. 23. Hos. 3. 5.

Secondly, sometimes under the name of the Sonne of David: as Esa. 9. 6. and 16. 5. Jerem. 23. 5. And 33. 15. Matthew 22. 42. John 7. 42. Matth. 12. 23. and 21. 9. and 15. 22.

Sect. 4. Vers. 31. Have mercy upon us.] We see here that these blind men desire mercy in generall, but they name nothing in particular, to teach us, That all our prayers are to be referred to the will of God; Not my will but thy will be fulfilled: for we must prescribe nothing unto God, who is infinite in mercy, love, wisedome, and knowledge, but subject our wils to the will of God.

Obser. 1.

Obser. 2. These blind men by desiring mercy (that is, pardon) acknowledge, that they have deserved affliction, as a punishment of their sinne. To teach us, That we ought to confesse every affliction to be the punishment of sinne: But of this we have spoken before once and againe.

Sect. 5. Vers. 31. And the people rebuked them.] It was Quest. 1. Why did the multitude rebuke them?

Answ. They did not rebuke them for begging of men, but for praying unto Christ, whence we learne:

Obser. That impediments in good things are alwayes ready at hand. Or, whensoever we are about the performance of that which is good, we shall be sure to meet with rubbes and lets. Matth. 11. 27.

Quest. 2. What are the hinderances that are obvious in good workes?

Answ. 1. First, the world, which hinders us from good workes two manner of wayes, to wit,

I. Tentando inducendo, by tempting us unto that which is evill; namely, pleasure, honour, gaine, ease, the love of the world, and the like.

II. Terrendo avertendo, by affrighting us from that which is good, by injuries, derisions, persecutions, and the like.

Answ. 2. Secondly, the flesh: now this apprehends the tentations, provocations, and allurements of the world.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the Devill, who hinders us, by casting of lets and impediments before us, and by urging and enforcing the temptations of the world, and the flesh.

Quest. 3. What may we learne from this multiplicity of impediments, in the performance of good duties?

Answ. From thence we may learne foure things, namely

First, where there are no lets, there the worke is to be suspected. If men frequently performe workes, which in their conceit are good without any lets or rubbes, they may justly feare, that they are not such as God commands, and commends: for if they were such, then certainly the envious man, and enemy of all goodnesse, would hinder them if he could.

Secondly, where there are many impediments and lets, it is a signe that the worke which is so withstood is good and godly, righteous, and religious. And therefore the children of God should not be discouraged with the multitude of Remoras in the service of the Lord, but rather encouraged and comforted thereby, because those impediments approve the worke to be good.

Thirdly, to expect lets and hinderances in the performance of good workes, that we may the better learne to prevent, and avoid them.

Fourthly, to resist them manfully, because otherwise we shall never do any good worke well. And therefore two things are here required of us; to wit,

I. Resolution; certainly many perish for want of this; and therefore we must resolve with our selves, that nothing shall hinder us from the service of our God, and the performance of the good duties which we owe unto him whether publike or private.

II. Watchfulnesse; for these two cannot well be severed: we cannot be watchfull indeed without Resolution, and our resolution is idle without watchfulnesse. Read Luke 21. 34. and 1 Peter 5. 8. If a man know that he hath an enemy, who observes and marks both his words and deeds, he will be the more carefull and watchfull both over himselfe, and his actions and words, that so he may have no advantage over him. Thus should we doe, because we have an enemy that sleeps not, but watcheth daily for our destruction.

Sect. 6. Vers. 31. Because they should hold their peace.] In these words we have two things observable, namely,

First, the end of the reproofe. And Secondly, the causes of the reproofe. And

First, we have in these words the end of the reproofe, and this is expressed; They rebuked them for crying after Christ, that so they might hold their peace, and abstaine from praying unto our Saviour. To teach us, 268 That Sathan chiefly desires to hinder our prayers. Thus he made the Apostles drowsie, when they should have prayed with their Master, Matth. 26.

Observ.

Quest. How, and whereby are we hindred from prayer?

Answ. 1 First, many causes often detaine us from the Temple, and house of God, and consequently hinder us from publike prayers.

Answ. 2 Secondly, many causes, occasions, and affaires often wholly hinder us from private prayers.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, oftentimes we deferre, and neglect our preparation, and so our prayers are hindred in regard of the bene esse and well performance of them.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, sometimes the calumnies, derisions, or threats of others hinder us from prayer: It was a strong cord to have kept backe good Annah from praying, or, to have distracted her in praying, to heare the high Priest say she was drunke: and no lesse was it unto Daniel, to know that death did awaite him, if he prayed unto his GOD within so many dayes.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, some are hindred from praying; and that either

I. By the Seminaries of mischiefe, the Jesuites, who perswade Papists not to pray with us either publikely or privately, if they can possibly avoid it. Or

II. By our owne sectaries at home, the Enthusiastes and others, who dissuade men from praying untill the Spirit move them, which often is but once in a weeke, or fortnight, and sometimes longer.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, sometimes we pray perfunctorily, and coldly, and so our orizons become fruitlesse and unprofitable. For

I. Sometimes our bodies through drowsinesse, and sleepinesse, will not permit us to pray.

II. Sometimes our minds are upon other matters, and we neither marke nor observe what requests we powre forth unto GOD.

III. Sometimes we marke what we say, but yet the sacrifice of our prayer is not offered up with fervour, and the fire of zeale. And

IV. Sometimes wee are affected with wearisomenesse and tediousnesse in our prayers. And therefore we had need strive manfully against all these impediments, that we be not by them hindred from praying and well praying.

Secondly, we have now to consider the causes, why the multitude would have had these blind men to have held their peace; namely,

First, because they thought it was a shame for CHRIST to entertaine any discourse with beggars; but CHRIST himselfe thought not so. Or

Secondly, because they thought that they had cryed after Christ for an alme, and so to ease and free him thereof, they bid them hold their peace: but he gives unto them what they desire. Or

Thirdly, because Christ held his peace, when the blind men cryed after him; therefore the multitude thinking that CHRIST could their clamours in all part, bidden them hold their peace: but CHRIST is silent only for the tryall of their faith and perseverance. Or

Fourthly, because by their cryes they disturbed CHRIST in his preaching to the people: and therefore the multitude bid them hold their peace: but CHRIST preferres mercy before sacrifice. Or Fifthly, because the Scribes and Pharisees could not endure to heare them call Christ the Sonne of David, (that is, the Messiah) therefore they charge them to hold their peace.

§. 7. But they cryed so much the more. Sect. 7.

In this History observe these three things; namely,

First, the blind men cry unto Christ, but he seemes not to heare them at all.

Secondly, they persevere, and continue crying, but yet they gaine nothing thereby.

Thirdly, afterwards (as though they had done some evill thing) they are reproved and blamed by the multitude, for their prayers. Yet notwithstanding all this they doe not desist, but are so much the more fervent in their prayers, as is here plainly expressed, and they cried so much the more.

How many things are herein implyed? Quest. 1

Two, namely. Answ.

First, their perseverance; they give not over, but continue praying. To teach us,

That we must be perseverant in prayer, and continue therein untill we have obtained that which we want, or else, untill Gods will be otherwise revealed. Read Rom. 12. 12. and 1. Thes. 5. 17. Luke 18. 1. &c. Matth. 7. 7. and 26. 42, 44. Observ. 1

Why must we continue thus in prayer? Quest. 2

First, because God by with-holding from us what we want and desire, doth thereby onely prove whether wee will give over praying or not. Answ. 1

Secondly, because if we persevere in prayer, we shall be holpen. For Answ. 2

I. We can obtaine nothing without perseverance. And

II. If we persevere in prayer, we shall obtaine what we desire. Hitherto (saith Christ) ye have asked nothing in my name, but ye have obtained it, John 14. and 1. John 4. 16.

Thirdly, we must continue in prayer, because at least it is a comfort to those who are afflicted; and hence CHRIST prayes when his soule was troubled, and St. James commands all to pray, when they are afflicted. James 5. 13. Yea Answ. 3

Fourthly, we must continue in prayer, because Answ. 4

I. It is the service of God. And

II. The solace of the soule. And

III. The remedy against evill.

Secondly, the next thing implied in these words (And they cryed so much the more) is the fervour and zeale of the blind men. Whence we learne,

That wee ought to pray fervently, as well as perseverantly; Rom. 12. 12. Involving these things, namely, Observ. 2

I. We

I. We ſtand in need of many things, but we can expect nothing without prayer, Iames 4.2. If we would have, we muſt aske, Matth. 7.7. For prayer is the cauſe and condition, without which we cannot, and by which we may obtaine any thing at Gods hand; and therefore it is neceſſary that we ſhould pray.

II. We are hindred from good things by Sathan, who is expelled and driven away by prayer alone: and therefore great reaſon there is that we ſhould pray.

III. It is the remedy againſt temptation; as appeares by our Saviours admonition, Pray, leſt ye enter into temptation. And therefore if we would be preſerved from ſinne, we muſt pray.

IV. Prayer is a part of Gods worſhip, and ſervice; now he is to be worſhiped in ſpirit and truth, and ſerved with all the heart, and with all the ſoule: And therefore we muſt offer up unto him ſpirituall, hearty, and fervent Prayers.

CHAP. XXI.

Verſ. 5. VERS. 5. Tell ye the Daughter of Sion, Behold thy King commeth unto thee, meeke, and ſitting vpon an Aſſe, and a Colt, the Foale of an Aſſe.

Our Saviour here by calling himſelfe a King, miniſters occaſion unto us to conſider a little of his Kingdome, and the nature thereof; becauſe King and Kingdome are Relata.

Queſt. 1 What is the Kingdome of Chriſt?

Anſw. That, whereby he doth diſpenſe and adminiſter with authority and power, all things which belong unto the ſalvation of men, Pſalm. 2.6. Daniel 2.44. Luke 1.36.

Queſt. 2 What are the properties of this Kingdome?

Anſw. 1. First, it is an Univerſall Kingdome; and that in three regards: viz.

I. In reſpect of all ages, Matth. 22.43,44,45. For it hath beene from the beginning, and ſhall be unto the end of the World.

II. In reſpect of all ſorts of men which belong unto this Kingdome: for there are ſome of all nations, and vocations which belong thereunto, Daniel 7.14. Revelat. 17.4.

III. In reſpect alſo of all creatures, inaſmuch as they belong unto the good of Gods choſen, and promote or helpe forward their ſalvation, Epheſ. 1.21,22.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, this Kingdome is in the very ſoules, and conſciences of men, Rom. 14.17. Yea

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, it diſpenſeth both eternall life, and death, Revelat. 1.18.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, it is an eternall Kingdome, Daniel 2.44. and 7.14.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, the laſt property of this Kingdome is this, It brings true peace, and perfect happineſſe to thoſe, who are heires thereof, Eſa. 9.6. Epheſ. 2.16. Hebr. 7.2. And hence this Kingdome is called in Scripture, ſometimes the Kingdome of God, ſometimes the Kingdome of peace and glory, ſometimes the Kingdome of light and glory, and ſometimes the Kingdome of heaven, and the world to come, Hebr. 2.5.

Queſt. 3 What is the duty of the Subjects of this Kingdome?

Anſw. 1 First, they muſt admire the ſingular humility of their Lord: and this our Saviour ſeemes to intimate, and imply in this word Ecce, Behold: Tell ye the Daughter of Sion; Behold thy King commeth unto thee meeke, &c. It muſt needs breed and beget admiration in us, if we doe but conſider theſe things; viz.

I. Who comes? The King of glory, and the glory and ſplendor of the Father.

II. Unto whom doth he come? Unto thoſe who drinke iniquity like water, Iob. 15. And therefore Chriſts comming unto us, is no other, then

First, the comming of light to darkneſſe. And Secondly, the comming of righteouſneſſe, to unrighteouſneſſe. And

Thirdly, the comming of life to death. And therefore how can we but admire it? Elizabeth wondred whence it was, that the Mother of her LORD ſhould come and viſite her; and we have much more cauſe to admire, why the Lord himſelfe will come to viſite us.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, the Subjects of this King or Kingdome, muſt rejoyce for the benefits they reape by their King, and priviledges they enjoy, by being Subjects of this Kingdome. And this ſeemes to be implyed here in theſe words, Thy King commeth unto thee. Every Chriſtian ſhould labour to make of this Tibi a Mihi; that ſo they might ſay, My LORD CHRIST hath come Mihi, to me, for this will afford true and ſolide joy.

Queſt. 4 Wherein muſt we rejoyce?

Anſw. 1 First, in prayer, becauſe whatſoever we begge in the name of this King we ſhall obtaine.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, in anxiety and ſorrow for our ſinnes, becauſe this is a faithfull ſaying, That this King came into the World for the ſalvation of Sinners.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, in tentation, becauſe we have a King who is potent, yea Omnipotent; and therefore let us call upon him, that he may deſtroy the workes of Sathan in us.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, in perſecution, poverty, ſickneſſe, and the like; becauſe he is our comforter in perſecution, our riches in poverty, our Phyſitian in ſickneſſe, yea all in all unto us; and therefore we have great cauſe to rejoyce in him.

Obiect. Here it may be objected, oh but he defeires long; for I have beene in miſery, and prayed unto him, and expected helpe from him, and yet am not delivered: how therefore can I rejoyce in affliction.

270

First, be not dismaid, For he that shall come will come, and will not tarry, if he see deliverance to be better for thee, then affliction is.

Answ. 1.

Answ. 2. Secondly, if he deferre his comming, then thinke thou with thy selfe, that his Kingdome is not of this world, and that it is given unto his Subjects in this World to suffer.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, transferre and carry therefore the thoughts of thy heart unto heaven, that thou maist be comforted and delighted with the remembrance thereof. Consider this with thy selfe:

Here J am poore, there shall J be rich.

Here J am sicke, there J shall be sound.

Here, J am contemned, there J shall be honoured.

Here, J am crowned with Thornes, there J shall be crowned with glory: for the remembrance of these and the like, will expell all sense of humane sorrow.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, we must rejoyce also in death, because the sting of it is taken away (Hose. 14. 13.) and because it brings us to the presence of this King, and the possession of this Kingdome.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Subjects of this King or Kingdome, must desire the propagation, enlargement, and promotion thereof. The multitude here sing, Hosanna to the highest, as if they would say, Grant oh eternall God, that this thy King may be acknowledged, and worshipped by all men. And to this purpose wee are taught to pray, Thy Kingdome come.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the Subjects of this King, must helpe forward this Kingdome themselves, as much as in them is. Thus some of the multitude here spread their garments in the way, and those (as is probable) which had no garments to spare, cut downe branches, and strewed them in the way: And thus according to our ability wee must doe good, and thereby labour to advance and enlarge this Kingdome.

VERS. 8, 9. And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way, others cut downe branches from the trees, and strewed them in the way. And the multitudes that went before, and that followed cryed saying, Hosanna to the Sonne of David: Blessed is he that commeth in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest. Vers. 8, 9.

The Papists upon Palme-Sunday, have a solemne procession, which is celebrated, with carrying the Sacrament about, and strewing of rushes, and bearing of palmes, and setting up of boughes, and hanging up of rich clothes, and the singing of the Quiristers; and all this they would warrant by this practise of the multitude in the text. Rhemist. annot. Matth. 21. §. 1. Object.

First, we say that their processions are horrible abusings, and profanations of the Lords institution, who ordained his supper to be eaten and drunke, and not to be carried about in procession like an Heathenish Idoll. Answ. 1

Secondly, that which CHRISTS Disciples, and the people did, they had warrant to doe out of the Scripture: but where are the Papists enjoyned this theatricall pompe? The riding of CHRIST upon an Asse was before Prophesied of Zach. 9. 9. And the Childrens crying out in the Temple, Psalm. 8. 2. And the cutting downe of Palme branches was a Ceremony belonging to the Feast of Tabernacles, truly accomplished by our deliverance in CHRIST. But the Papists have turned the holy mystery of CHRISTS riding to Ierusalem, to a May-game, and Pageant-play. Answ. 2

To whom were the multitude opposite, or contrary in this their practice? Quest. 1

To the Scribes and Pharisees: as is evident by these particulars, Answ.

The people cry:

- First, Blessed is he that commeth in the name of the Lord.
- Secondly, Blessed is the King of Israell, and blessed is the Kingdome of our Father David, which comes in the name of the Lord.
- Thirdly, these desire the prosperity and flourishing estate of this King.
- Fourthly, these rejoyce, and sing prayses unto God, for sending of this King.

But the Pharisees cry:

- First, Cursed is he who commeth in the name of Beelzebub.
- Secondly, we have no King but Caesar, and he that favours any other is not Caesars friend; and therefore this man shall not raigne over us.
- Thirdly, these desire that this King were destroyed, and all his glory laid in the dust.
- Fourthly, these disdaine the honour, and esteeme of this King, and are sorry for it.

Quest. 2 Whereof were the Tabernacles, and Boothes made wherein the people remained in the Feast of Tabernacles?

Answ. Plutarch making mention of this Festivity, saith, That these Boothes were made principally of Ivie boughes (Plut. Sympos. 4. Problem. 5,) But the Scripture reckoneth up foure distinct kinds, Levit. 23. 40. which are thought to be.

I. The Citrine Tree.

II. The Palme Tree.

III. The Myrtle Tree.

IV. The Willow of the Brooke.

PFag. in Lev. 23. The Rabbines teach, that every man brought every morning his burden of the boughes of these foure Trees, otherwise he fasted that day. And this burden they termed Hosanna's Elias Thisbit) Now in allusion hereunto, the people here cutting down branches from the trees; and strewing them in the way, when our Saviour did ride into Ierusalem, cryed, saying Hosanna to the Sonne of David.

VERS. 16. Iesus saith unto them, have ye not read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings, thou hast perfected prayse. Vers. 16 that prayers which are not vnderstood of the party praying are acceptable unto God: and they reason thus, young childrens prayers proceeding from the instinct of Gods Spirit, be acceptable: and so the voices of the like, or of other simple folke now in the Church, though themselves understand not particularly what they say, be marvailous gratefull to CHRIST. Rhem. annot. Math. 21. §. 4.

The Papists produce this place to prove that Object. 1

Answ. 1. First, that all those who pray unto God, by the instinct of his holy Spirit, are acceptable unto him, wee grant; but this is as farre from the thing in hand, as the Objection is from truth.

Answ. 2. Secondly, the children that by the instinct of Gods Spirit cryed in the Temple, Hosanna in the highest, spake in the Syrian tongues, which they understood, and also knew, that they saluted our Saviour CHRIST, as their Messias, whose comming they were taught according to the Scripture to looke for; although they understood not distinctly all mysteries of Christs office, which none of his Apostles did thorowly know, at this time.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this is a grosse conclusion, The children in the Temple spake in a language which they understood, yea uttered those words which in part they understood also; Therefore prayers not understood of the party praying, are acceptable to CHRIST.

Obj. 11 But the Psalmist nameth infants, and sucklings, that can neither speake, nor understand.

Answ. The meaning is not that they prayse God with their mouthes, or voyce, but that the providence of God to his great praise, is manifest out of their mouthes, to whom he hath provided meat before they were borne, and in that great weakenesse, and ignorance, taught them to take it for their sustenance, and call for it in their crying voyce, when they lacke it. So that our Saviour CHRIST, out of that text reasoneth from the lesse to the greater: If God ordained his praise out of infants and sucklings, who can neither speake nor understand; how much more then out of these, who can speake, and have some understanding. Fulke.

Vers. 19 VERS. 19. And when he saw a Figtree in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves onely, and said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig-tree withered away.

Wee say that although the Jewish Church be now but like a withered tree, yet it shall flourish againe hereafter.

Object. Now against this it is objected, CHRIST here cursed this fig-tree (which represented the Church of the Jewes) and said, Never fruit grow upon thee henceforth; And therefore it seemes that this tree, and that Church shall never flourish againe.

Answ. That Fig-tree which was here accursed by Christ, never to beare fruit againe, represented the Jewes who lived then, and those who shall live till the conversion of the Jewes; but when the wrath of God is come upon them to the full, as the Apostles speakes, then the Lord shall call them, and their rod shall flourish againe. 271

VERS. 22. And all things whatsoever yee shall aske in Prayer, beleeving yee shall receive. Verse 22

§. 1. And all things whatsoever ye shall aske in prayer.] Sect. 1.

Our Saviour in these words doth plainly point out this Observation unto us, namely Observ.

That true and Lawfull prayer never wants his effect.

How doth the trueth hereof appeare? Quest.

Answ. First, from these places of Scripture. Psalm. 22. 24. and 50. 15. Iohn. 16. 24. Iames. 5. 16. and Ierem. 29. 13. Amos. 5. 4, 6.

Secondly, from the trueth of God, who is faithfull in all his Promises. 1. Thes. 5. 24. Hebr. 6. 10.

Thirdly, from the ordinance of God; it being the meanes appointed by GOD, for the obtaining of what wee want. Iohn. 14. 13. and 16. 24. and in this verse.

Fourthly, from the mercy of God, who is alwayes ready to supply our wants, and onely waites untill wee pray. Iames. 4. 2.

Fifthly, from the force and efficacy of prayer; whereof we spake before, Chap. 6.

Sixthly, from an absurdity which otherwise would follow; for if we have no certainty of the hearing of our prayers, then we can have no confidence at all. For

I. Wee have none in heaven or earth, to trust unto but onely unto God. Psalm. 73. 25.

II. Wee cannot see him, for none hath seene him at any time.

III. Our onely way unto him is by prayer: and therefore of all men wee are the most miserable, if wee be unsure of his Love to helpe us, or that hee will heare us, and grant our requests. But the contrary (that is, the assurance of the faithfull to be heard) is evident from these places. 2. Chronic. 14. 7. and 15. 2, 15. Psalm. 118. 5. and. 120. 1. Esai 38. 5.

Most evidently from these particulars, to wit,

Whence comes it, that the prayers of many are not heard? Quest. 2

Answ. If we be not heard, we must know, the reason is because wee pray not lawfully; For God is neare unto all those who call upon him faithfully, Psal. 145. 18. But more particularly if our prayers be not heard, the reason thereof is one of these, either

First, because wee are wicked and vnbeleevers: for the prayers of such are abominable unto him, but the prayers of the Righteous are his delight. Prov. 15. 29. Psalm. 145. 19. Or

272

Secondly, because our requests are not lawfull; that is, when either

I. Wee desire those things which are not good; as when we pray for revenge. Or

II. When we desire those things, which stand not with Gods glory, neither sute with our good. Or

III. When we desire those things which are not necessary, but superfluous; serving for the satisfying of our lusts, Psal. 50.15. and 120.1. and 116.3,4. and 18.6. Or

Thirdly, because we are not aright prepared to pray; that is, when either

I. Wee pray without any meditation and examination at all, not considering and pondering either how we must pray, or for what. Or

II. When we pray with our sinnes upon us, and in us: as the people did, Iosh. 7. and. 1. Tim. 2 8. Or

III. When we are not fit to receive such a grace as we pray for: as for example, we pray for a light and assurance of the blessed Spirit in our hearts, but we must not expect the assurance and apprehension thereof, untill we have seriously undertaken to worke out the worke of our salvation, yea vntill renovation, holy affections, zeale, and the like graces be wrought in our hearts. Or

Fourthly, because our prayers are not faithfull: Here observe, that unto a faithfull prayer these things are necessarily required; namely

I. Selfe-deniall, and all selfe-confidence; praying onely in the name of Christ. Iohn 14, 13. And

II. A sure confidence and affiance in God, that if we aske those things which are agreeable unto his will, he will heare us. Mark. 11.24. Hebr. 10.22. And

III. The aide and assistance of the holy Spirit; for if we pray in the holy Ghost, our prayers shall be heard. Iude. 20. Or Fifthly, because we begge things peremptorily, and not with a subordination to the will of God. Or Sixthly, because we doe not persevere in our prayers, but quickly grow weary. And therefore if we desire that our prayers may be always efficacious, and fruitfull; let us labour.

I. That our persons may be holy and pure. And

II. That our requests may be lawfull; that is, Let us desire

First, always those things which are good in themselves. And Secondly, onely those things which may stand with Gods glory, and our good. And Thirdly, onely necessary things. And

III. That we may be rightly prepared before we pray: that is, we must

First, meditate of our wants, and the nature of him to whom we pray. And

Secondly, wee must remove from us the Love, guilt, and pollution of sinne by repentance. And

Thirdly, labour that we may be made vessels of honour, that so we may be capable to receive those graces which we crave. And

IV. Wee must labour, that our prayers be faithfull; that is, not offered up with any hope to bee heard for any merit, or worthinesse that is in us; but powred forth unto God, by the assistance of the Spirit, and with a sure confidence to be heard through the merits and mercies of Christ our Lord. And

V. Wee must always conclude our requests with a willing submission unto Gods will. And

VI. We must continue asking till we have received, and persevere in prayer, untill we have obtained what we want.

§. 2. Beleeving.] Sect. 2.

Our Saviour here by shewing, that Prayer is to be offered up in faith, may move this quære.

What is the proper act of a true, lively, and justifying faith? Quest:

The proper and principall act of justifying faith, is a particular apprehension, and application of the free and gracious promises of God in the Gospell, which are offered unto the faithfull in Christ the Mediator. Now this particular and justifying faith includes in it a generall faith: for if a man should doubt in generall of the truth of the word of God, he could not in particular confidently beleeve the promises of the word made unto him in CHRIST. Yet faith doth not justifie as in generall it assents to the truth of the word of God, but as it is applied to this his principall and proper object, to wit, the promises of grace made unto us in CHRIST the Mediator. Now this appeares thus, Answ.

First, because (Iustificatio peccatoris pertinet ad bonitatem & misericordiam Dei &c. Thom. Aqu. 1. qu. Artic. 6. 45.) The justification of a Sinner doth belong unto the goodnesse, and mercy of God abundantly diffusing it selfe: But wee neither can nor ought apprehend or seeke the goodnesse and mercy of GOD, beyond, and without the promises of grace which are made unto us in CHRIST our Mediator: And therefore in these onely (as in the proper object) is exercised the act of justifying Faith, when, and as it justifies.

Secondly, this is evident also from the distribution of the word: which is divided into the Law and the Gospell: Now in the Doctrine of the Law wee neither must seeke, nor can have Justification (because the conscience of every man who hath any in-sight into himselfe, will tell him that he can never be Justified by that legall covenant, hee not being able to fulfill the Law.) And therefore it remaines that Justification is to be sought onely in the Gospell, that is, in the promises of grace, and that the act of faith as it justifies is principally to be directed unto these promises.

Thirdly, this is manifest from these two cleare testimonies of Scripture: namely.

I. Acts 13. 38,39. For by Christ is preached unto you the forgivenesse of sinnes, and by him all that beleeve, are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the Law of Moses.

II. Ro-

II. Romans 3. 21. But now the righteousnesse of God without the Law is manifested, being witnessed by the Law and the Prophets. Br. Davenant in Colos. 1.4. Page 32.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Ye shall receive.]

Observ. Our Saviour by saying that we shall receive, whatsoever we aske would teach us:

That if we desire to receive we must aske; if we would have our wants supplied, or our evils redressed and removed, we must pray. Read Matth. 7. 7. and 1. Thessal. 5. 17. and 1. Timoth. 2. 1, 8. and James 5. 13. and 1. Peter 3. 7.

Quest. What necessity is there of praying?

Answ. 1. First, wee cannot honour and glorifie our God as we ought, except we pray. For

I. It is a principall part of his worship. And

II. Thereby we testifie that we depend vpon God, 2. Corinth. 5. 7. And therefore if we desire to glorifie and honour our good God, there is great reason that we should pray.

Answ. 2. Secondly, we cannot be sure to be freed from any evill except we pray.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, we cannot be sure of the remission of our sinnes without prayer.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, we cannot hope for either furthering or preventing grace from God, without wee pray unto him.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, we cannot be sure to obtaine or comfortably enjoy any good thing, without prayer. For

I. By prayer we receive those things which we want. And

II. By prayer wee have liberty to use those things which we have. And

III. By prayer the good gifts of God are confirmed, yea blessed unto us. 1, Timoth. 4. 5. And therefore if we desire preservation from evill, and remission of our sinnes, and the grace of God, and the possession of those things which are necessary for us, we must pray.

Vers. 31. 32. VERS. 31. 32. Whether of them twaine did the will of his Father? They said unto him the first, JESVS saith unto them, verily I say unto you that the Publicanes and the harlots, goe into the Kingdome of God before you. For Iohn came unto you in the way of righteousnesse, and ye beleeved him not: But the Publicanes and the Harlots beleeved him. And ye, when ye had seene it, repented not afterward, that ye might beleeve him.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Verily I say unto you.]

Observ. Wee see that CHRIST here affirmes what he speakes, but sweares not; To teach us

That wee must not sweare, Matth. 5. 34. and Iames 5. 12.

Quest. Is not swearing commanded?

Answ. There is a fourefold use of swearing; to wit,

First, a Religious use, in vowing vowes unto God.

Secondly, a Civill use; when men are enjoyned by the Magistrates to sweare, or examined vpon oath, for the finding out of some truth, and this

I. Sometimes concernes a mans selfe, when he is compelled to sweare for the purging and acquitting of himselfe of some crime, whereof he is accused. And

II. Sometimes this concernes a mans Brother, when he sweares onely as a witnesse, or to testifie something of or for, or against his brother.

Thirdly, there is a private use of swearing, in the binding of bargaines, and confirming of contracts, in stead of bonds. This is lawfull if reverently and religiously undertaken, and seemes to be warranted from Psalm. 15. 4.

Fourthly, there is an ordinary, and customary use of swearing, which is unlawfull and wicked, and therefore our communication must be yea, yea nay nay, because whatsoever is more comes of evill, that is, from sinne. Matth. 5. 36.

Quest. How many kind of unlawfull swearers are there?

Answ. 1 First, there are ignorant swearers, who use certaine formes of words, which they know not to be oathes, or evill; as by this bread, and the like.

Answ. 2 Secondly, there are inconsiderate swearers; who take the sacred name of God in vaine when they would not sweare, or meant not to sweare, but the oath breakes forth suddainly.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, there are foolish and unwary swearers, who mourne when they sweare, and resolve they will not sweare, but by and by fall with the Dog to his vomit.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, there are erroneous swearers, who thinke that it is lawfull to sweare, if so be they sweare nothing but truth. But wee see that Christ will not doe it, but saith it comes from evill, even to sweare truthes. Matth. 5. 36. And therefore he will be a swift witnesse against all such.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, there are hasty swearers, who as soone as ever they are provoked and angred, breake forth into rage, cursing, swearing, and all manner of uncharitable, and unchristian speeches.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, there are generous and gentile swearers, who thinke it a point of generosity to sweare now and then, and to confirme with an oath, what they affirme.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, there are envious and malicious swearers, who blaspheme, sweare, and curse, onely out of a contempt of the Children of God, and that they may vexe them thereby. These should all marke the Counsell of the Apostle, Galath 6. 7. and take heed that they doe not deceive their owne soules, for they cannot deceive the Lord, who will reward them according to their wicked workes.

Sect. 2 §. 2. The Publicanes and the harlots goe into the Kingdome of God before you.]

By what meanes the Publicanes and harlots were converted, our Saviour expresseth in the next words, namely, by the preaching of Iohn; but the Scribes and Pharisees were not brought unto the fold of Christ thereby; whence we may learne.

Observ. That the preaching of the Gospell brings great sinners sooner home then those who are lesse, especially that applaud themselves in a shew of piety. Or, great Sinners often submit themselves unto the Gospell, when lesser Sinners stand out. Here Publicanes and harlots are sooner reduced to the faith

274 faith and obedience of the Goſpell, then Scribes and Phariſees; Who gloried in an externall forme of Godlineſſe. Vid. Luc. Brugens. in hunc loc.

Queſt. 1 How doth the truth hereof appeare?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, thus; in great ſinners there is a better ſtep for grace to worke upon, then in ſuch leſſer.

For the underſtanding hereof obſerve; That there are two things belonging unto converſion, viz.

I. The Law, which lets us ſee our ſinnes: and this worke is ſooner wrought in great Sinners, and longer a working in ſuch leſſer. For the Law ſooner convinceth a groſſe offender of the breach thereof, then a proud Phariſaicall ſinner.

II. The Goſpell, which doth allure us to lay hold upon mercy offered therein: Now this is ſooner received of him that is wounded with his ſinnes, then of him who is not ſenſible of ſinne.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, it is evident thus: the leſſer ſinners can eaſily defend and excuſe their ſinnes, whereas the greater doe quickly confeſſe them: as is ſeene in the Publicanes and Phariſees, Iohn 9.

Queſt. 3 Whence comes it, that ſome are greater ſinners then are others? Or, that ſome are great ſinners, and ſome ſmall?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, ſometimes this comes from nature: for naturally ſome are of a fairer temper, then others, and ſome more vitiouſly given, then are others:

Anſw. 2 Secondly, ſometimes this comes from education; for ſome are more carefully, ſome more carnally brought up, and accordingly their outward life is more faire, or ſcandalous.

Queſt. 3 Can any man challenge nothing in the worke of his converſion?

Anſw. No: as evidently appeares thus,

Firſt, there is no merit in him at all either of condignity, or congruity:

Secondly, there is no preparation in us of our ſelves.

Thirdly, there is no power in man to doe any good thing as of himſelfe.

Obiect. If it be thus, then man is excuſable; if he can doe nothing in the worke of his converſion, then the fault is not in him, if he be not converted.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, we once had power and free will to doe whatſoever God ſhould command us, and willingly we loſt it: and therefore we are not excuſable.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, although we can doe nothing of our ſelves, yet God hath graciouſly provided a meanes ſufficient, namely CHRIST, which meanes the Angels had not: And therefore we are not without fault, if we be not converted.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, God hath given his Goſpell unto us, and therein CHRIST is offered unto us, and unto all, and propounded unto all that will repent, beleeve, and obey; and therefore we cannot be excuſed, if we be not converted.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, there is no man deprived of all meanes, and all grace; and therefore none are without blame which are not converted. All men have ſome naturall helpes which they neglect, for which neglect they are juſtly puniſhed. As for example,

I. Mens Creation might teach them Gods mercy.

II. Gods protecting of them, and providing for them daily, ſhould allure them to rely vpon God; and to truſt in him, but they take no notice of theſe or the like things.

Fifthly, men have the booke of the Word, vvhich teacheth them vvhat they ſhould doe: And therefore thoſe, vvho diſobey cannot be guiltleſſe. And Anſw. 5

Sixthly, men have the Booke of Conſcience, vvhich checkes them vvhen they doe amiſſe. And therefore thoſe vvho ſinne againſt conſcience are not to be excuſed. Anſw. 6

Seventhly, God often gives generall graces to thoſe who are out of CHRIST, vvho cannot be excuſed when they neglect and abuſe thoſe graces. Anſw. 7

Eightly, he vvho neglects grace offered, ſinnes inexcuſably, but GOD offers grace in the Goſpell, and wee neglect it. And therefore vve are inexcuſable. Anſw. 8

Ninthly, he that tranſgreſſeth the Law of nature ſinnes inexcuſably: but he that breakes the Morall Law, violates the law of nature, that being vvrit in our hearts at firſt, & ſome glimpſe thereof remaining ſtill; and therefore no tranſgreſſours of Gods Law can be held guiltleſſe or innocent. Anſw. 9

Tenthly, he that violates the Law of nature ſins inexcuſably, but he which heareth, & ſeeth his miſery, and underſtands that ſalvation is in CHRIST, ſinneth againſt the Law of nature if he neglect him, becauſe even nature teacheth us to wiſh vvell, and do vvell unto our ſelves, and to lay hold upon that vvhich is good for our ſelves: and therefore none vvho neglect CHRIST are to bee excuſed. Anſw. 10

Laſtly, the reaſon of our impotency in doing good is founded and built upon our ovvne unwillingneſſe, hard-hartedneſſe, and averſeneſſe) becauſe vve neither love nor deſire to obey God) and not from any neceſſity in the Will, or underſtanding. The Devils cannot but ſinne becauſe the povver of grace is taken from them; but it is not thus vvith us, vvho have this povver of grace, but reſiſt it. And thus vve ſee that none can be vvholly guiltleſſe, or excuſable, vvho are not converted unto God. Anſw. 11

How is grace vvrought ordinarily in great ſinners? Or, hovv are Publicanes and harlots converted unto Chriſt. Queſt. 4

The manner of vvorking grace in prophane perſons, and great ſinners, for the moſt part is this; They ſee and obſerve tvvo things; to wit, Anſw.

Firſt, their ovvne miſery; Here obſerve that they aſcend to the ſight of their miſery by theſe ſteps.

I. They ſee their ovvne ſinnes vvhich they have committed againſt God.

II. They ſee the ſeverity of that Law, vvhich they have tranſgreſſed, and of that Lord, vvhich they have offended, into vvhoſe hands it is a feareſull thing to fall. Hence

III. They tremble, and feare by reaſon of the righteous judgements of God. And

IV. Greeve and mourne that by their ſinnes they have rouſed a ſleeping Lyon, and incenſed and ſtirred up againſt them ſo potent a Foe. And

V. They

V. They confesse and acknowledge, that they are unworthy to come unto God, or to receive mercy from him.

Secondly, they see Gods Mercy, and attaine unto the sight thereof by these degrees:

I. They see the Promises of the Gospell, and the condition of Repentance expressed in the Gospell. Then

II. They come humbly unto CHRIST, desiring that hee would be pleased to mediate and intercede unto his Father in their behalfe, and to reconcile him unto them. And

III. They accept of the conditions, which the Gospell requires: that is, they promise unto God, that if he will give them an interest into Christ, and for his sake make good the promises of the Gospell unto them, that they will repent them of their sinnes by-past, and labour to obey him for the time to come, and expect salvation onely from him. Then

IV. They come unto the holy Eucharist, as a symboll, and confirmation of all these.

§. 3. And yet yee repented not.]

Sect. 3. Quest. 1 Answ. What are the parts of true Repentance?

Repentance consisteth of these two parts; to wit,

I. Contrition or humiliation.

II. Conversion or reformation.

First, Repentance consisteth of Contrition or humiliation, as appeares by the consent of languages; For repentance is called in Hebrew (Nacham) which signifies Irking; and in Greeke it is called μεταμέλεια, after-griefe; and in Latine Poenitentia, which imports the paines of griefe; which harmony of Languages shew, that Contrition and humiliation is a part of Repentance.

Object. 1 The Apostle, 2. Corinth. 7. 10. saith, That Godly sorrow worketh Repentance: where sorrow is distinguished from repentance, as the cause is from the effect. And therefore sorrow or contrition is not a part of Repentance.

Answ. This word Repentance sometimes signifies onely one part of Repentance, and sometimes onely the change and alteration of the mind, and sometime onely the touch of the affection;

First, sometimes Repentance signifies onely one part of Repentance, as in the place objected, and Ierem. 18. If they repent, it shall repent mee &c. That is, I will alter my mind, and repent me of my threatnings.

Secondly, sometimes Repentance signifies onely the change and alteration of the mind; as Acts. 11. 18. where they call the strange change of their mind, by the descent of the holy Ghost, Repentance.

Thirdly, sometimes Repentance signifies onely the touch of the affections; as Genes. 6. It Repenteth me that I made man; and Acts. 26. 20. And he shewed unto them, that they should repent and turne to God; where Repentance being so plainly distinguished from conversion, must needs be restrained to the signification of sorrow and humiliation. And as from this place we may not gather, that Repentance is not a turning to God; so no more may we from 2. Cor. 7. 10. that it is not a godly sorrow.

One part is not a cause of his fellow-part, but sorrow is a cause of the change of the mind. 2. Cor. 7. 10. 11. Therefore sorrow and change of mind are not fellow-parts of repentance. Object. 2

One part may be a cause of his fellow-part, as the sanctification of the soule, is a part of the sanctification of the body, and yet both are parts of sanctification. Answ.

Contrition seemes to be a part of the change & alteration of the mind; for what greater change can there be then for a hard hart to turne soft, and this is contrition, and humiliation; Therefore humiliation and alteration are not two distinct parts of repentance. Object. 3

The Apostle himselfe (2. Cor. 7. 10. 11.) distinguisheth them plainly, saying, Godly sorrow causeth repentance, that is, the change of the mind: for although godly sorrow be a part, and peece of that passive change, which is wrought in us, at the first instant of our calling by God, yet it is a cause of the active change, whereby we change, and alter the purpose, and resolution of our hearts before set on sinne, and now turne them to the Lord: for if we felt not the bitternesse of our sinnes, and were truly touched in conscience for them, we would never heartely forsake, and renounce them. Answ.

Are not the soule threatnings and curses of the Law of themselves availeable unto true contrition, for as much as Iosiahs heart (2. Chron. 34. 27.) was troubled, upon the hearing of the threatnings? Quest. 2

Those threatnings were not meerely legall, but such as were qualified with some tincture of mercy in the Gospell. Afflictions soften our hearts, but how? no otherwise then as wee apprehend Gods mercy in them; so Iosiah apprehended mercy in those threatnings, looking upon them as proceeding from Gods Love, and accounting of them as the wounds of a friend, and thence came the melting of his heart. Answ.

Secondly, the next part of Repentance, is Conversion, or Reformation: observe in this part, as in the former, the harmony of Languages: Repentance is called in Hebrew (Theshuba) a turning: in Greeke μετάνοια. After-wit; in Latine Respiscentia, the be comming wiser after our folly: And thus this consent of tongues shew that the two parts of Repentance are Contrition and humiliation, and Conversion and reformation; Now this second part in a turning from sinne, a change not of place but of qualities, manners, and dispositions from evill to good: and this change is twofold; viz.

First, Passive, whereby God changeth and turneth us: now in this wee are meere patients, and God onely workes: And this is called Regeneration.

Secondly, Active, whereby we being turned and changed by God, doe further labour to turne and change our selves; And this is called Repentance. Read Isa. 30. 20. 21. 22. Ierem. 31. 18. and 1. John. 3. 3.

What are the properties of true Conversion? Quest.

First,

276.

Answ. 1. The properties are these, viz.

First, it must be an orderly change, beginning in the soule, and so proceeding to the outward man, and the actions thereof. Ephes. 4. 23. 24. Ierem. 4. 14.

Secondly, it must be a thorow-change, both in body, soule, and spirit, 1. Thessal. 5. 23. Not

I. As some doe who turne from one sinne to another. Or

II. As others, who turne their understandings from errour to truth, but not their wils from evill to good: as those who of Papists become loose and dissolute Protestants. Or

As those, who turne from many sinnes, and with Herod doe many good things, but yet they remayne unturned from some one speciall sinne.

Thirdly, it must be a constant change; for although it be a perfect change in regard of parts, as a child is a perfect man, yet it is imperfect in degrees; and therefore so long as we live, we must strive unto perfection.

Fourthly, because if we bring not forth fruit we shall be destroyed: as Esay 5. 5. 6. 7. Hebr. 6. 8. Iohn. 5. 14. Answ. 4

Fifthly, because if we doe not answer the Lords expectation, we shall not receive an eternall reward from him, Read Acts 11. 18. and 26. 18. &c. Hebr. 12. 14. and 2. Peter 3. 11. Luke 13. 7. and 2. Corinth. 12. 21. Answ. 5

And therefore those unto whom God hath given more blessings, and afforded more mercies, must know, that more holinesse, obedience, and pious fruits are expected from them, then from others. Read Esa. 5. 1. 2. &c. and Ezechiel 16. 1, 15. &c.

To whom may this not unfitly be applied? Que. 2.

First, it may be applied unto those to whom God hath given his word: and doth Answ. 1

Teach all that are under the Gospell to bring forth better fruits then they, who enjoy not the word. Certainly many things were pardoned to the Fathers of the old Testament, which shall not be remitted to us, because they wanted that light which we have. For although there was amongst them great ignorance; yet because

First, they depended upon the Messiah and Saviour of the World. And Secondly, desired to serve God truly, and sincerely. And

Thirdly, obeyed the Lord in the greatest things (to wit, in the observance of the Morall Law) although in divers other things they erred. And Fourthly, retained and held fast the Foundation: Therefore they had great hope, that God would be mercifull unto them. But we sit in the Sunne-shine and cleare light, and either doe know or may know the will of God; and therefore if we abound not in good workes we are left without excuse, yea a double woe belongs unto us, Iohn 5. 45.

Secondly, this may be applied to those who have the helpe of the Church, that is, Answ. 3

I. Those, who live under the care and tuition of others. More good fruit is expected from those Pupils, Children, and Servants, who live under carefull and religious Tutors, Masters and Fathers, then is from those who live under them which are licentious and vitious.

II. Those who live amongst the good; For more holy fruits are expected from those who live in good places, and enjoy good examples, admonitions, and instructions; then from those who live in wicked places, where they heare nor see nothing but wickednesse.

Thirdly, this may be applied to those who enjoy temporall blessings in greater abundance: That is, the more riches, the more health, the more comforts, and the greater honour we have, the greater should our care be to exceed and excell all those in obedience and sanctification, to whom God hath not beene so bountifull and liberall. And thus this might bee applied to all those, who exceed some others in any gifts, either of body, soule, or fortune. Answ. 4

Vers. 33. &c. VERS. 33, 34. There was a certaine houshold-der, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a wine-presse in it, and built a Tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a farre Country. And when the time of the fruit drew neare, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it, &c.

Observ. Our Saviour by this Parable would teach us, That God takes paines to plant a vineyard for the fruits sake, or that he might have fruit thereof: Or, That God expects sanctity and obedience according to the measure of grace given. The more paines God takes with us, the more fruit he expects from us, Read Esay. 5, 2. &c. Acts. 17. 30. Rom. 6. 4. Ephes. 4. 21, 22, 24. and 2. Timoth. 2. 25.

Quest. 1 Why must we bring forth the fruit of holinesse according to the favour and mercy shewed unto us, and meanes bestowed upon us by God?

Answ. 1. First, because God shewes mercy, and favour unto men, that he might be glorified by their holy lives, and unblamable conversations. Iob. 35. 6, 7. Matthew. 5. 16.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because grace is given unto us, that we might fructifie therein, and profit thereby (1. Corinth. 12. 7.) that is, that we might be brought unto Repentance, and the fruits thereof, Rom. 2. 4. and Titus. 2. 12. The Talents were given to use unto advantage, because he is an unprofitable servant who brings no gaine unto his Master, Luke. 19. 22. and 22. 32.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, because except we bring forth the fruit of holinesse, we cannot obtaine remission of our sinnes: there is no faith without Repentance, no remission without faith; and therefore they are frequently conjoyned together in Scripture. Acts. 5. 31. Repentance and Remission are joyned together. Acts. 20. 21. Repentance and faith are joyned together.

VERS. 41, 42, 43. They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will Vers. 41, 42, 43

let

let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons. JESUS saith unto them, Did ye never read in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner? This is the Lords doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes: Therefore say I unto you, The Kingdome of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.

Sect. 1. §. 1. He will miserably destroy those wicked men.]

Observ. The servants are here abused once and againe, and the Sonne slaine, before the Lord awaketh unto vengeance, whereby our Saviour would teach us,

That God suffers long before he smites; and permits wicked men a great while before he punishes. Read these places following, where we shall find both proofes and examples hereof, Esa. 30. 18. and 65. 2. Psalm. 95. and 2. Chron. 36. 15. Nehem. 9. 30. Genes. 6. 3. and 1. Peter. 3. 20. Act. 13. 8.

Quest. 1 Why doth GOD permit wicked men so long?

Answ. 1 First, because of his owne nature he is long suffering, and slew to anger, Exod. 34. 6. and Psalm. 86. 13. and 103. 8. Joel. 2. 13. Numb. 14. 18.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because CHRIST doth not mediate and intercede, and stand in the gappe, and desires God to spare them a little longer, Psalm. 106. 23. 30. Luke. 13. 8.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, God spares wicked men long; that either

I. They may be converted, and turne unto him 2 Chron. 30. 9. Ezech. 33. 11. and 1 Tim. 2. 4. and 2 Pet. 3. 9. Or

II. That he may be excused, by sparing so long, Psal. 51. 4. Rom. 3. 4. Or

III. That the punishment of the wicked may be the greater: for the higher the blow is fetched the heavier it fals. Psal. 7. 12. &c. Eccles. 8. 13. Ierem. 4, 4.

Sect. 2. §. 2. He will let out his vineyard.]

Observ. Our Saviour by this parable would teach us, That a Church may prove so obstinate, and disobedient against God, that he may reject it, and choose another. Acts. 13. 46. Rom. 11. 20. For

First, God is obliged to no man, any further then they keepe his Commandements; and therefore if any particular Church depart from him, and his obedience, he will also depart from her.

Secondly, when God admonishes any, and they despise it, he takes it so much the worse. And therefore there is no one Church so deare unto God, but if it despise his admonitions it shall be rejected.

Thirdly, when men enter into a Covenant with God, and promise to serve him, and keepe not their words, he takes it worst of all: for he had rather have an open disobedient person, then a dissembler, Ierem. 3. 10. And therefore when a Church shall fall from her first love and faith, and not pay her vowes to her God, she may expect, that the vineyard shall be taken from her, and let out to other husbandmen. 277

§. 3. Unto other husbandmen.] Sect. 3.

Wee may observe hence, that

Conscience is either { Good, whereof I now speake not. Or Bad: which either { Accuseth truly, of which I now speake not. Or Excuseth falsely; and that two manner of wayes; namely

First, Conscience excuseth an unregenerate man falsely, when he heareth the curses of the Law, and blesseth himselfe in the meane time: as Deuter. 29. 19. Iohn. 16. 2. And Secondly, it excuseth him falsely, when he assenteth to the principles in generall; but when he commeth to the particular application he concludeth not truely: as for example, When the husbandmen killed the Lord of the vineyard, CHRIST asked of the Jewes, what should become of those husband men? they answered, He will destroy those wicked men, and let out the vineyard to others: but Luke. 20. 16. When they consider this, that the matter touched them something nearely, then they said, God forbid. The thing which they assented unto in the generall, they shunne in the particular, as if they should say, we are no such men, and wee hope that God will not so deale with us.

§. 4. Is become the corner stone.] Sect. 4.

Quest. What, or how manifold is the use of this corner stone?

Answ. Twofold, namely

First, that it should be the head-stone of the building, which sustaines the whole house: yea by being placed in the corner, it doth conjoyne two wals in one, the Jewes and Gentiles.

Secondly, that it should be a stone of offence to all that perish; and that

I. Per modum offensionis, because many are offended therewith. And

II. Per modum condemnationis, because many shall be judged, and condemned thereby.

First, some perish by falling upon this stone, and by being offended therewith.

Secondly, some perish by reason of this stones falling upon them.

CHAP. XXII.

Verse. 1, 2, 3. VERS. 1. 2. 3. And JESUS answered, and spake unto them againe by parables, and said, The Kingdome of heaven is like unto a certaine King, which made a marriage for his Sonne, and sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding, and they would not come &c.

§. 1. And JESUS answered, and spake unto them.] Sect. 1.

Quest. To how many sorts of men doth CHRIST speake?

Answ. To this a learned Fryar answers, (Dormiscunt de temp. ſerm. 41.) That Chriſt ſpeakes to foure ſorts of men, namely

de

First, to thoſe who are ignorant, as a gracious inſtructer, and teacher; for he admoniſheth the ſimple, and gives to the ignorant wiſedome and knowledge.

Secondly, he ſpeakes to thoſe who pray, as a ſweet and cheerefull Comforter; for thoſe who pray in his name ſhall be heard, and their requeſts granted, if it may be for Gods glory, and their good.

Thirdly; he ſpeakes to thoſe who are penitent, as a faithfull peace-maker, and gracious reconciler; for he ſpeakes peace to the conſciences of thoſe who are truly ſorry and contrite for their ſinnes.

Fourthly, he ſpeakes to obſtinate and obdurate ſinners, as a wrathfull Judge, and terrible avenger. For unto ſuch he will ſpeake in his anger, and vexe them in his heavie diſpleaſure.

Sect. 2. §. 2. The Kingdome of heaven is like unto a certaine King, which made a marriage for his Sonne.]

CHRIST (we ſee here) doth expreſſe our union and communion with him, by a marriage, becauſe it is a ſpirituall marriage indeed. Whence divers queſtions may be propounded.

Queſt. 1. Whether is our union and communion with CHRIST in all things like unto a marriage or not?

Anſw. No: for death divorceth and ſeparateth the husband from the wife, and the wife from the husband; but not us from CHRIST, death being the conſummation of the marriage of the ſoule with CHRIST. Wee are

First, contracted unto Chriſt; and that is when we enter into a new Covenant with him, and give our ſelves wholly unto him, to ſerve him, and to depend upon him.

Secondly, wee are married unto CHRIST in our ſoules; and that is at the day of death, when the ſoule comfortably enjoyes the preſence of CHRIST.

Thirdly, we are married unto Chriſt, both in ſoule and body, for ever; and that is at the day of judgement, or Reſurrection, when the body being conjoyned unto the ſoule they ſhall both enjoy CHRIST with unſpeakeable joy and bleſſednesse.

Queſt. 2 Wherein doth our union and communion with CHRIST reſemble a marriage?

Anſw. 2 First, as at corporall marriages there is joy, ſo alſo is there at this ſpirituall: For

I. The Father rejoyceth in the Bridegroome his Sonne. Matth. 3. This is my beloved Sonne. And

II. The Bridegroome rejoyceth in the Bride. And

III. The Bride rejoyceth in the Bridegroome. For the proofe of this particular and the former, reade Salomons Song; wherein is lively expreſſed both the joy and delight of Chriſt in his Church, and of the Church in Chriſt. And

IV. The Friends of the Bridegroome and Bride rejoyce at this marriage; now theſe friends are the Angels, and therefore it is ſaid, That there is joy in Heaven, when the Bride is married to the Lambe.

Secondly, as there is pompe and bravery at corporall Marriages, ſo is there at this Spirituall: the Bridegroome decks and adornes himſelfe that he may be amiable in the eyes of his wife, and the Bride trimmes and tricks herſelfe, that ſhe may be beautifull in the eyes of her Husband. Read Pſal. 45. Where the rich and royall Robes of CHRIST and the Church are lively portrayed. Anſw. 3

Thirdly, as there are Feaſts and banquets at corporall Marriages; where the gueſts ſit at the table; ſo at the day of Judgement when the marriage of the Church ſhall be conſummate, then all the Elect ſhall ſit with Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, in the Kingdome of God, and ſhall feaſt with the Lambe.

Who are invited and called to this Spirituall marriage of Chriſt? Queſt. 3

Hereunto are called both Anſw.

First, the Jewes, by the Prophets of the Lord; and by Chriſt himſelfe. And alſo

Secondly, the Gentiles, by the Apoſtles and Miniſters of Chriſt: And therefore wee muſt not neglect this call, but labour that we may be married unto our Lord Chriſt, by an everlaſting covenant.

Why muſt we be thus carefull to be married unto Chriſt? Queſt. 4

First, becauſe he is the Sonne and Heire of the King of Kings; and therefore wee can no way be ſo much advanced, raiſed, and promoted, as by this marriage, 1 Corinth. 3. 21. All things are yours if yee be Chriſts, ſaith the Apoſtle; yea Chriſt is the Sonne of God, and God with God; and therefore if we be united unto Chriſt, we are ingrafted (as it were) into God, and made his children. Anſw. 1

Secondly, Chriſt is adorned with all vertues and graces, and is worthy of all praiſe; but we are deſtitute and deprived of all graces and vertues, and worthy of nothing but ſhame and diſgrace. And therfore great reaſon there is that above all things we ſhould labour to contract this marriage, and unite our ſelves unto Chriſt. Here obſerve what Chriſt is without us, of himſelfe, and what we are of our ſelves without Chriſt. Anſw. 2

I. Chriſt of himſelfe without us, is

First, moſt faire yea the faireſt amongſt men. Pſalm. 45. And Secondly, moſt rich; for all Power is given to him, and all things are his. And

Thirdly, moſt noble; hee being the onely begotten Sonne of God. And Fourthly, moſt vertuous and gracious; all graces being in him without meaſure.

II. We of our ſelves without Chriſt, are

First, moſt deformed and loathſome to looke upon, Ezech. 16. And Secondly, moſt poore and beggerly, deſtitute of all grace and goodneſſe. Reve. 3. 17. And

Thirdly, moſt baſe of birth, our Father being an Amorite, and our Mother an Hittite, Ezec. 16. And

Fourthly, moſt vitious, having the ſeed and ſpawne of all manner of iniquity in us. And therefore ſeeing there is ſuch an immenſe and vaſt diſproportion betweene our Lord and us, how ſhould we deſire this marriage, how ſhould we labour for it, and how highly ſhould we eſteeme our ſelves selves, if Christ would but vouchsafe to cast the eye of his love upon us?

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this will be a most fortunate and happy match unto us; and therefore it is not without cause that we should labour so earnestly to effect it. Here observe,

That our marriage with Christ is

First, Conjugium pacificum, a peaceable marriage; for by this new covenant we obtaine pardon and remission of all our sinnes, and are reconciled unto God, Ierem. 31.33, 34. Rom. 5.1.

Secondly, Conjugium facundum, a fruitfull marriage: under the Law we were barren of all good workes, it enjoyning us to do those things, which we lacked power to performe: but Christ gives us power in some measure to doe that, which he requires of us, and so under the Gospel we become fruitfull in every good worke.

Thirdly, Conjugium amabile, a loving marriage; for as the husband and wife are one body, so is CHRIST and his Church, Ephes. 5. The husband calls the wife his delight, Esa. 62. 6. And the wife answers the husband, That she loves him with her whole heart, Psalm. 18.2. And hence followes that sweet Sympathy and kind Communion between Christ and his Children who are married unto him.

I. As Christ suffered in the flesh, so doth his spouse the Church, 1. Peter 4.1.

II. As Christ was crucified, so the Church crucifieth her carnall members, Colos. 3.5. Galath. 5.

III. As Christ died, so by little and little the old man dies in the faithfull, Iohn 11.25.

IV. As Christ was buried, so by Baptisme we are buried into his death, Rom. 6.

V. As Christ is now in glory, so the faithfull shall be glorified with him at the last, Colos. 3.3. and 1. Iohn 3.

VI. As Christ bare our infirmities, so he is still sensible of our miseries; as appeares by his owne words unto Saul, when he persecuted the Church; Saul Saul why persecutest thou me? Acts, 8.

Fourthly, Conjugium insolubile, a knot never to be untied, a match which can never be unmade, and a marriage which shall never be made void. Death may separate husbands and wives, and dissolve corporall marriages, but nothing shall separate the faithfull from Christ, Rom. 8.36. &c. And therefore seeing it is so peaceable, fruitful, amiable, & indissoluble a mariage, we may safely conclude, that it is a happy marriage, and because happy, therefore worthy to be laboured for.

Quest. 5 When are we invited, and called unto this marriage?

Answ. When we are invited, and called to come unto the Table, and Supper of the Lord.

Quest. 6 But may we not (when we feele our selves weake in faith, and obedience) abstaine from comming unto, and forbeare the Lords Table?

First, we are made the worse by abstaining; and therefore we must not forbeare to come. The longer the wounded person absents himselfe from the Surgeon, the worse his wound growes. 279

Answ. 1

Secondly, they who feare to come, and forbeare comming to the Lords Table, because they are weake, dishonour God, as though he would accept of none but strong men in CHRIST IESVS. Answ. 2

Thirdly, by abstaining from the Lords Table, we shall proclaime our selves to be Hypocrites, because if we were not such, we might come, having a warrant to come though we were weak, 2. Chronic. 30. 19. &c. Answ. 3

Fourthly, those who abstaine from comming upon a pretence of infirmity and spirituall weakenesse, give ill example unto others, and cause others to censure them as contemners and neglecters of the Sacrament, seeing they refuse to come although God hath invited them. Answ. 4

Fifthly, to forbeare comming upon such a pretence, is contrary to the Apostles charge, who commands us not to examine our selves, and so stay away, but to examine our selves and then to come, 1. Corinth. 11.28. Let a man therefore examine himselfe, and so let him eate, &c. Answ. 5

Sixthly, those who are most unfit to come unto the Lords Table in their owne conceit, are most fit in Gods opinion: and therefore by no meanes such must forbeare comming. Answ. 6

Seventhly, we must take heed how we deny, or refuse to come when we are invited, lest we thereby incurre the wrath and anger of God, and cause him in his wrath, to deale with us as he did with those who here would not come, when they were called to the wedding, verse 3.7. Answ. 7

Quest. What resemblance was there betweene the Passeover, and this marriage of the Lambe, the Eucharist?

Answ. 1 First, the Paschall Lambe was

I. A token of perseverance in Religion, notwithstanding afflictions and persecutions. And

II. A memoriall of our deliverance from Egypt. And

III. A Thankesgiving for the slaughter of the first borne in Egypt. And

IV. A Lambe called the Lords Passeover, although it be but a signe of his Passeover.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Lords Supper is

I. A token of perseverance in profession, though we be persecuted for it, for CHRISTS sake. And

II. A memoriall of our redemption from death sinne, and Hell. And

III. A Thankesgiving for the death of Christ. And

IV. Called the body of CHRIST, although it be but the Sacrament of CHRISTS body unto us.

Quest. What resemblance is there betweene Baptisme, and this Sacrament of the Lords Supper?

Answ. 1 First, Baptisme is

I. That, whereby we testifie our entring into Christs body. And

II. The badge of our faith. And

III. Our initiation in Gods worship.

280 Secondly, the Eucharist is, that,

Answ. 2 I. Whereby we testifie our union with Christs whole body. And

II. A token of our love to God and our Neighbour. And

III. That whereby we testifie our continuance in Gods worship.

Vers. 11, 12, 13, 14. VERS. 11, 12, 13, 14. And when the King came in to see his guests, he saw there a man, which had not on a wedding garment, And he saith unto him; Friend how camest thou in hither, not having a wedding garment? And he was speechlesse. Then said the King to his Servants, bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into utter darknesse, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. For many are called, but few are chosen.

Sect. 1. §. 1. He saw there a man.]

Observ. Our Saviour by these words would teach us, That Gods eye is upon all his guests that comes to his Table. Reade Zephan. 1. 12. Hebrew. 4. 13.

Quest. Why doth God observe all that come to the Sacrament of Christs Supper?

Answ. 1 First, God hath decreed to judge all things, yea the most secret things; and therefore hee observes all things, yea even our hearts, and reines.

Answ. 2 Secondly, GOD hath ordained to give to every man according to his workes; and therefore he observes both the workes, hearts, and desires of all.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Friend how camest thou in hither?]

Obser. Our Saviour by this loving compellation Friend, would teach us, That God deales in a peaceable manner even with Sinners; as we see by his dealing with Adam, Eve, and Cain. Genes. 3.

Quest. Why doth the Lord deale so friendly with wicked men?

Answ. 1 First, because this manner of dealing of the Lords with men, makes them see their faults the more evidently. And Answ. 2 Secondly, because hereby also God shall be justified in his Judgements. And Answ. 3 Thirdly, because hereby God would teach us to moderate all dissensions, suites, and differences that arise betwixt us and our brethren, with the spirit of meekenesse, and in love, laying aside all bitternesse, envy, malice, rancor, and the like.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Not having on a wedding garment.]

Obser. Our Saviour by these words teacheth us, That God is very angry, and will severely punish all those who come without the robe of CHRISTS righteousnesse unto his Table.

Quest. How; or, by what meanes may we obtaine this wedding garment? Seeing it is so dangerous for us to come without it unto this holy Sacrament of the Lords Supper.

Answ. 1 First, wee must be carefull to strip us of our ragges, and dis-robe our selves of all our sinnes. We must put of the old man of sinne, before we can be cloathed with this wedding garment. Reade Isaiah, 5. 5, 7. Ephes. 4. 22.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we must desire this garment, and long to be cloathed with CHRIST, and to be found having on his righteousnesse: Yea we must seriously long for CHRIST before all other things. Read Psalme 27. 4. and 42, 2. and Esay, 55. 1. Philip. 3. 9.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, wee must seeke it where it may be had; that is, in the word, with watchfulnesse and prayer. Reade 1 Corinth. 10. 16. and Iames 1. 18.

Sect. 4. §. 4. Take him away, and cast him forth.]

Because our Saviour here saith, that this presumptuous and unprepared person was utterly rejected and cast off by God, it will not be amisse to propound a question or two concerning these termes of Rejecting, casting off, and casting away.

Quest. How manifold is casting off, and casting away.

Answ. Twofold, namely

First, Literall and Historicall, and this is either

I. Of living Creatures: as Genesis, 21. 15. Hagar cast away her Sonne Ismaell. Or

II. Of inanimate things; and thus

First, some cast away their Idols, and strange Gods: as Genesis, 35. 2. Isa, 31. 7. Ezechiel, 20. 7.

Secondly, some cast away their weapons: as 2. Samuel, 1. 21.

Thirdly, some reject their meat; this Paul would have none to doe, but to eate what is set before them, and give thankes, 1 Timothy, 4. 4.

Fourthly, some reject and cast away their riches, and possessions; as Eccles. 3. 6.

Fifthly, some reject their houses and habitations: as 2. Chron. 11. 14.

Sixthly, some cast away their garments: as Ezechiel, 26. 16. Ionah 3. 6. Marke 14. 52.

Secondly, Metaphoricall, and Figurative; and thus it is either referred,

I. To the Church, whom God saith was cast out (Ezech. 16. 5.) into the Fields, that is, deprived, and destitute of all helpe. Or

II. To men; and that many wayes: For

First, sometimes man rejects, casts off, and slights man: as Psalm. 22. 6. Lament. 3. 45. Esa, 54. 6. and 66. 5. Yea even sometimes the Ministers and Prophets of the Lord, 1. Samuel 8. 7.

Secondly, sometimes man rejects, and casts off God; and that divers wayes, viz. either,

I. By casting off the Law, Commandements, and obedience of God; as Levitic. 26. 43. and 1. Sam. 15. 23. and 2. King. 17. 15. Esa. 5. 24. Hos. 9. 17. Amos, 2. 4. Or

II. By casting off the Lord himselfe: as 1. Samuel 8. 7. Or

IV. By

III. By casting off and slighting the correction of God, Proverb. 3.11. and 15.32. Or

IV. By slighting divine and heavenly wisedome, Proverb. 8.33. Or

V. By rejecting the protection of God: as Esa. 8.6. it is said, The people cast away the waters of Shiloah; that is, they were not content with those defences, they had, nor would adhere to the promise of God, who had said that he would preserve them, and by his owne holy arme and power save them from all their Enemies, but provided other prohibited and humane helpes for the driving away of their Enemies: Or

VI. By slighting, and rejecting the Sacrifices of God: as 1 Samuel, 2.29.

Thirdly, sometimes man rejects, and cast off, and away his sinnes: as Romans 13.12. Or

III. It is referred sometimes to God, who is said to reject, and cast of man: as Levit. 26. 11, 44. and 1 Samuel 15. 23. Ierem. 22, 28. Ezech. 32.4. Hose 9.17. Now in this Rejection observe these three things; to wit,

First, God rejects, and casts off none without their fault, and demerit, Iob. 36.5.

Secondly, God will never indeed reject, and cast off his elect people, Esa. 41.9.

Thirdly, yet notwithstanding;

I. Man falsely imagines oftentimes that God hath cast off his peculiar people: as Ierem. 33.44. The Lord hath cast off his people: They looking upon the present miseries and calamities of the Lords people, judged them thereby to be wholly rejected of God.

II. Sometimes particular Saints may falsely thinke themselves to be rejected of God: as Ionah did, I have said, I am cast out of thy sight, Ion. 2.4.

III. Yea sometimes God doth indeed reject and cast off a people, with whom he hath made an externall and conditionall covenant: and thus the Jewes are rejected and cast off.

Quest. 2 Why doth God reject and cast off any particular person or people?

Answ. 1 First, because they slight and neglect the Sacrament: and thus he rejects those who refuse to come to the wedding when they are invited.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because they come unreverently, and unpreparedly to this holy Sacrament: and thus he rejects this man who came without a wedding garment.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, because they reject his word, and Law, and thus he rejected Saul, 1 Samuel, 15.23.

Quest. 3 Why will not God cast off utterly any of his Elect people.

Answ. The principall causes are these; namely, First, his owne free Mercy, and Love, Levitic. 26.44. Esa. 54.6. Secondly, his Covenant made with them, Levit. 26. 44, 45. Thirdly, his Truth, Levit. 26.44, 45. Fourthly, because hee is their God. Levit. 26.44. Esa. 41.9. Fifthly, because they are the servants and people of God, Esa. 41.9. Sixthly, because they are elected by him, Esa. 41.9. Seventhly, because his love is constant and immutable, Ierem. 31.36, 37.

Quest. 4 Answ. What is the fruit of mans rejecting of God?

When man shall reject either God, or his word, or his Sacraments, or his correction, or his protection and providence, and the like; he may then expect these things; viz. 281

First, the desolation; ruine, and destruction of the Land; that is, if the rejection of God be generall and nationall, Levitic. 26. 43. and 2 Kings 17.15, 18. Hos. 9.17. And

Secondly, the wrath of God; 2. King. 17.15, 18. Esa. 5.24. And

Thirdly, the invasion of enemies; this is also to be understood of a generall casting off God. Read Esa. 8.6, 7. And

Fourthly, the evill of punishment, either upon their bodies or estates, Levitic. 26.43. And Fifthly, eternall condemnation: thus because this man cast off the feare of God, and presumptiously approached into his presence, cloathed with his sins, therefore he is here cast into utter darknes.

§. 5. Into utter darkenesse.] Sect. 5.

We see here that this poore miserable man is cast into utter darknesse (that is, into the eternall torments of Hell) because he came to this spirituall wedding without a wedding garment. Whence it may be demanded;

Quest. Why doth the Lord punish transitory, and temporary sinnes, with perpetuall punishment, and eternall condemnation?

Answ. 1 First, because man sinnes against God in eterno suo, as long as he lives; therefore he shall be punished by God, in suo eterno, as long as he lives; that is for ever and ever.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the staine, blot, guilt, and pollution of sinne is eternall, never to be wiped off, and therefore the fire and torments of Hell are eternall;

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the sinne committed is an offence against an infinite God; and therefore the punishment ought to be infinite, and that not onely in bitternesse, but in duration and continuance also.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, man by his sinne and fall lost a good which else would have beene eternall; and therefore he hath justly acquired an eternall evill.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, the will of wicked men is eternall in evill; for they would sinne for ever if they could; and therfore it is just with God for ever to punish them.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, the principall faculties erre infinitly; and therefore deserve infinitly, and eternally to be punished: For I. When the reasonable faculty prefers a finite thing before an infinite, it erres infinitly in judging. II. When the concupiscible faculty preferres a finit thing before an infinite, it erres infinitely, in desiring. III. When the irascible faculty preferres a finite thing before an infinite, it erres infinitely in adhering. And therefore when men in their judgments, and affections, & actions, preferre evill before good, sinne before grace, Earth before Heaven, and the Devill before God, they erre infinitly, and therfore deserve eternally to be punished.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, the wicked reprobate can never truly repent him of his sins comitted; and therefore God will never change his sentence, or their punishmēt.

§. 6. Weeping and gnashing of teeth.] Sect. 6

Quest. What are the torments of Hell?

Answ. Intollerable colde, and unquenchable heate: whence the holy Ghost here mentions Weeping and gnashing of teeth.

First, weeping which comes from the moistnesse of the eyes, is occasioned & provoked by heat.

282

Secondly, the gnashing of the teeth comes from cold, August. de gand. Electi & damnat. imp. Or

I. Weeping commeth because of that fire, which can never be quenched. And

II. Gnashing of teeth because of that worme which never dies. Or

First, weeping comes from sorrow. And Secondly, Gnashing of teeth from fury, and rage, Bernard. Acts 7. 54.

Quest. 2. Why will wicked men thus weepe for sorrow, and gnash their teeth for anger and madnesse?

Answ. Because their misery is unspeakeable, their condition most miserable, their torments intollerable, their ease deplorable, and their paines irremediable. For

First, they live so as alwayes a dying, but so die as that they alwayes live. And

Secondly, they which torment, and inflict punishment shall never be weary; and those who are tormented and punished shall never be killed. And

Thirdly, at the day of Judgement when this weeping and gnashing of teeth shall begin, they shall be deprived of all comfort, and plunged into the pit of perpetuall paine; For

I. If they looke below them, they shall see Hell, which gapes for them.

II. If they looke above them, they shall see an angry Judge, who frowneth upon them.

III. If they looke within them, they shall see a gnawing worme of conscience.

IV. If they looke without them, they shall see the world and Elements on fire. And thus nothing remaines for them, but a certaine fearefull looking for of Judgement to come.

Vers. 16, 17. And the Pharisees sent out unto him their Disciples, with the Herodians saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth; neither carest thou for any man: for thou regardest not the person of men; Tell us therefore, what thinkest thou? Is it lawfull to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not?

Sect. 1. §. 1. We know that thou art true.]

Quest. How many good properties of a good Master doe these Disciples observe, and confesse to be in CHRIST?

Answ. These three namely:

First, that he is true; that is, a constant affirmer of truth, and a stranger to lyes, dissimulation, and falsehood. And

Secondly, that he teacheth the way of God in truth; they call the Law and the Commandements of God, the way of God; and they confesse that Christ is a sincere and faithfull interpreter of them. And Thirdly, that he careth for no man; that is, as they will expound it, that he regardeth not the person of any, that is, neither of Cæsar, nor Herod, nor the Pharisees, nor their Rulers. And these are indeed three excellent good properties of a good Preacher, and were truly in CHRIST.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And teachest the way of God in truth.]

Quest. How manifold is truth, and what truth is here meant?

There is a double truth, to wit,

Answ. First, Veritas Christi, the truth written; and of this they speake in this place, Thou teachest the way of God in truth.

Secondly, Veritas Christus, the truth begotten; and of this Christ speaketh John 14. 6. I am the truth. Now Christ did the former Doctrinally, and he was the latter Essentially, Squire. 2 Thes. 2. Page 565.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Thou regardest not the person of any.]

Quest. What is meant by this word Person?

Answ. 1. First, sometimes it is taken for quality, or estate; and thus here, Thou regardest no mans Person; that is, thou respectest not the quality, greatnesse, place or authority of any.

Answ. 2. Secondly, sometimes it is taken for a substance, or for a thing subsisting by it selfe, Ratione individuâ, sed finitâ: and thus Angels and men are Persons.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, sometimes it is taken for a substance subsisting by it selfe, Ratione individuâ, sed infinitâ, et immensâ; and such are the persons in the divine essence, which are indeed distinct, but cannot be disjoyned, because they are of the same nature and essence: yea they are the very divine essence it selfe.

Sect. 4. §. 4. Is it lawfull to give Tribute to Cæsar?] I wholly omit the explication, and unfolding of this question, because if the Reader would see it illustrated to the life, and followed home, together with the foure following verses, let him reade M^r. Woomes, Of the Judiciall Law of Moses, Lib. 1. Chap. 13. Page 49. unto Page 54.

Vers. 19. VERS. 19, 20, 21. And IESVS said, Shew me the tribute money; and they brought unto him a peny. And he saith unto them, whose is this image and superscription? They say unto him Cæsars. Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Cæsar, the things which are Cæsars, and unto God the things which are Gods.

Sect. 1. §. 1. And they brought unto him a Peny.]

Quest. What was this peny?

Answ. This peny was their Tribute money. For the better understanding hereof, observe, That there were two sorts of pence in use among the Jewes, namely:

First, the common peny, which valued of our money 7. d. ob. and of this our Saviour speakes, Chapt. 18. 28.

Secondly, the peny of the Sanctuary, which valued, 1. s. 3. d. of our money, and was answerable to their Didrachmum, and of this St. Matthew speakes in this place; for their Tribute money was Didrachmum, as before hath beene shewed upon Chap. 17. 24. Tremel. in hunc locum.

This Didrachmum, or halfe Shekel, was formerly paid by the Israelites, every yeare after they were twenty years old, towards their Temple, Exo. 30. 13. (Aben Esra in Nehem. 10. 32.) Now Cæsar by taking away this money from the Temple, and changing it into a Tribute for his owne coffers, did in truth take away from God that which was GODS. Hence is the question here here propoſed unto CHRIST [Is it lawfull to give tribute to Cæſar or not?] Chriſt anſwereth, Render unto Cæſar the things which are Cæſars, and unto God, the things that are Gods.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Give unto Cæſar the things which are Cæſars.]

Queſt. 1 Why doth not our Savior anſwer the queſtion directly? That is, either affirmatively or negatively, either that it was lawfull to pay Tribute unto Cæſar or unlawfull?

Anſw. Becauſe the queſtion was altogether full of perill; For

First, if he affirme that it is lawfull to pay tribute, then he incurres the hatred of the people; becauſe

I. It was a ſore, and grievous thing for them to pay Tithes, firſt fruits, oblations, and an annuall peny unto the Temple; and either beſides that Didrachmum which they payed unto the Temple, pay Tribute to Cæſar (as ſome thinke) or elſe have that Didrachmum, which they payed towards the repairing of the Temple, ſeazed upon by Cæſar, and converted unto his owne proper uſe, as others thinke. Now this paying of Tribute to Cæſar was ſo deteſtable, and burdenſome unto the Jewes generally, that our Saviour had incurred their hatred, if he had anſwered affirmatively to the queſtion propounded.

II. It ſeemed an unjuſt, and unequall thing, that the Children and ſeed of Abraham ſhould give, and not rather receive from the Gentiles tribute and cuſtome: and therefore if Chriſt had directly affirmed the queſtion, he had loſt the love of the people.

Secondly, if he deny the queſtion, and ſay that it is not lawfull for them to pay any ſuch Tribute unto Cæſar, then he provokes the anger of the King againſt him. For it was a capitall crime to deny this; as Gamaliel afterwards ſhewed, who relateth how Judas of Galilee periſhed for this ſame cauſe, Acts 5. 37. And thus it was dangerous either to deny or to affirme this queſtion.

Queſt. 2 What direct anſwer doth our Saviour give to this queſtion?

Anſw. 1 First, that Magiſtrates have power over their Subjects: and hence he frameth this Argument:

Major. It is fit and behovefull to give to every man his owne; and conſequently it is equall for Subjects to pay tribute to their Governours. This propoſition is implied.

Minor. But the Romane peny which ye uſe and pay, is a ſigne of their Soveraignty, and Lordſhip over you. This propoſition is expreſſed, verſe 18, 19, 20.

Concluſio. Give therefore unto Cæſar, the things which are Cæſars, and unto God the things which are Gods. For God and Cæſar are not contrary, but ſubordinate Magiſtrates; God is the chiefe, and Cæſar ſubordinate. And therefore render to both of them what is theirs. This is expreſſed, verſe 21.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, Chriſt in anſwering, Give unto Cæſar that which is Cæſars, doth plainly imply, that it is lawfull for them to pay this tributary peny unto Cæſar. And that,

I. Becauſe the peny was Cæſars, both in regard of the matter, and forme. And 283

II. Becauſe it was but a kind of requirall paid unto Cæſar for his patronizing, and defending of them: And therefore our Saviour ſaith, Reddite, Render unto Cæſar &c. And

III. Becauſe this peny was a very tollerable Tribute.

Whether is it lawfull for Subjects to diſobey their Soveraignes, if ſo be, that for ſome hainous crime they be excommunicated by the Church, or Clergie, or ſome of them? Queſt. 3

Firſt, the Papiſts ſay, that if Princes be excommunicated by the Pope, their people, and ſubjects are not bound to obey them, ſo long as they are under that Eccleſiaſticall cenſure. Anſw. 1

Secondly, we the Proteſtants anſwer, That the Law and word of God doth enjoyne and require, that Subjects ſhould obey their Soveraignes in all juſt and lawfull things, and not ſhake of this yoake of obedience upon any ground whatſoever. And this is grounded upon this anſwer of our Saviours, Give unto Cæſar that which is Cæſars, and unto God that which is Gods: and alſo upon St. Pauls teſtimony Titus 3. 1. and St. Peters, 1. Peter 2. 13. If the Reader would ſee this queſtion largely and learnedly proſecuted, I referre him to Br Davenant, Determin. qu. 48. Page 227, &c. Anſw. 2

Whether is the Pope the Cæſar, and Soveraigne Lord of the whole World? Queſt. 4

First, ſome of the Papiſts ſay, that the Pope is Soveraigne Lord of all the world, or at leaſt of all the Chriſtian world; and that the Princes of the Earth are but his Vice-gerents, and Liefetenants. Although this opinion hath great Patrons, (yet Bellarmine (de Pontif. Lib. 5. cap. 2. 3. et 4.) very confidently, and learnedly refuteth the ſame. Anſw. 1

Secondly, Bellarmine there ſaith, That the Pope is not ſoveraigne Lord of the whole world, nor of any part thereof, and therefore he may not at his pleaſure intermeddle with the affaires of Princes. Now herein Anſw. 2

I. He ſhewes that the Pope is not ſoveraigne Lord of the whole world; and proves it by this undeniable ground, becauſe he is not Lord of thoſe provinces which are poſſeſſed by Infidels.

His Argument ſeemes to be this.

Major. He who is not Lord of thoſe provinces and Lands which are poſſeſſed by Heathens, and Infidels, is not Lord of the whole world.

Minor. But the Pope is not Lord of thoſe Provinces and Lands which are poſſeſſed by Heathens and Infidels.

Concluſion. Therefore the Pope is not Lord of all the whole World.

The Major is unanſwerable, becauſe he cannot be Lord of the whole world, who is not Lord of every Kingdome, Province, and Iland thereof.

The Minor he demonſtrates thus:

First, becauſe Chriſt committed none but onely his ſheepe to Peter; and therefore gave him no authority over Infidels, which are not his ſheepe, 1. Corinth. 5. 12.

Secondly, becauſe dominion and the right of Princes, is not founded in grace or faith, but in free-will and reaſon, and hath not ſprung from 284 the written Law of Moses, or CHRIST, but from the Law of Nations, and Nature which is most cleare, in that God both in the old and new Testament approveth the Kingdome of the Gentiles and Infidels as is evident both from Daniel 2.37. and this place, Give unto Cæsar the thing that are Cæsars: with whom St. Paul agreeth requiring the Christians, Rom. 13.5. of his time, not onely to pay tribute to Heathen Kings, but also to obey them for conscience sake; which men were not bound to doe, if they had no authority and right to command.

II. Bellarmine shewes, that the Pope is not temporall Lord of the Christian world; And that

First, because if the Pope were soveraigne Lord of all the Christian world, then Bishops should be temporall Lords of their Cities, and the places adjoyning subject to them, which the Papists will not affirme.

Secondly, he shewes this out of the confession of Popes; Pope Leo confessing, that Martianus the Emperour, was appointed to the Empire by God: he reciteth also the confession of Gelasius writing to Anastasius, and also of Gregory.

III. He shewes, that the Pope is temporall Lord of no part of the World, in the right of Peters successour, and Christs Vicar. For

First, CHRIST neither invested Peter nor his successours with any Kingly authority. Nor

Secondly, was Christ himselfe while he was on the Earth, a temporall Lord or King; and therefore much lesse gave any temporall dominion or Kingdome to his Apostles.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, we answer with divers Romanists, that the Pope may not at all intermeddle with the disposition of Earthly Kingdomes, or restraine, or depose Princes, how much soever they abuse their authority. If the Reader would see both this and the former answer illustrated, I referre him to Dr. Field of the Church, Lib. 5. Cap. 44, 45.

Quest. 5 What is due unto Cæsars, and earthly Kings, that our Saviour here bids us to give unto Cæsar what is due unto him?

Answ. 1. First, unto earthly Kings and Princes we owe Honorem, honour; and therefore St. Peter saith, Feare God, and honour the King, 1. Peter 2. If it be demanded.

Quest. How must we honour them? I answer.

I. We must esteeme honourably and venerably of them: as the people did of David, 2. Sam. 18.

II. We must both know and acknowledge their superiority over us.

III. We must pray for them unto God, 1. Timoth. 2.1, 2.

IV. We must shew a fitting submissive reverence in our carriage before them.

V. We must reverence and honour their Majesty and state, as divine. Psalm. 82.6.

What if Kings or Magistrates be wicked, or Fooles?

Suppose they be, yet they must be honoured; and that

First, by hiding, covering, and concealing of their infirmities. And Secondly, by praying heartily unto God for them.

Secondly, unto earthly Kings and Princes we owe Obedientiam, obedience, and that generall in politike things, because we are commanded to be subject to the higher powers, Rom. 13.1. Answ. 2

Thirdly, we owe unto them Tributum, Tribute, and therefore St. Paul saith, Give tribute to whom tribute is due, Rom. 13. Answ. 3.

§. 3. And give unto God that which is his. Sect. 3

What doe we owe unto God? Quest.

First, it is our duty to worship him, as himselfe prescribes. And Answ. 1

Secondly, to preferre his precepts before the command and authority of the Magistrate. Answ. 2

VERS. 23. The same day came to him the Sadduces, which say, there is no Resurrection. Vers. 23

What are the principall errours, and erroneous opinions of the Sadduces? Quest.

Their Dogmata, Canons, or constitutions were these; to wit, Answ.

First, they rejected the Prophets, and all other Scripture, save onely the five Bookes of Moses, (Ioseph Antiq. Lib. 13. Cap. 18.) Therefore our Saviour when he would confute their errour concerning the Resurrection of the dead, he proves it not out of the Prophets, but out of Exodus 3. 6. I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob; in this Chapter verse 32.

Secondly, they rejected all traditions; whence

I. They were called (Minai) that is, Heretiques, in respect of the generall opposition between them and the Pharisees;

First, because the Pharisees were in repute the onely Catholikes: And Secondly, because in their doctrine, the Pharisees were much neerer the truth then the Sadduces. And

II. In respect of this particular opposition, in the ones rejecting, the others urging of traditions, the Sadduces were teamed (Karaim) Biblers or Scripturists, Drusius de trib. Sect. Cap. 8. Lib. 3 Page 130.

Thirdly, they said there was no reward for good workes, nor punishment for ill in the world to come. Hence St. Paul perceiving that in the Counsell, the one part were Sadduces, and the other Pharisees, he cried out, Of the hope, that is, of the reward expected, and of the Resurrection of the dead, I am called in question, Acts. 23.6.

Fourthly, they denied the Resurrection of the body, Acts 23.8. and in this verse.

Fifthly, they said, that the soules of men are annihilated at their death. Iosephus de Bello Lib. 2. Cap. 12.

Sixthly, they denied Angels and Spirits, Acts 23.8. For a further amplification and illustration of these three latter errours I referre the Reader to Iunius Parallels, Lib. 1. Parallel. 48. Page 64.65.

Seventhly, they wholly denied, Fate, and Destinie, and ascribed all to mans free-will, Ioseph. Lib. 13. Cap. 9.

VERS.

Vers. 28. 29, 30. VERS. 28, 29 30. Therefore in the Resurrection whose wife shall shee be of the seven? for they all had her. IESVS answered and said unto them, yee doe erre, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God; For in the Resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the Angels of God in heaven.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Therefore in the Resurrection whose wife shall she be.]

The Sadduces held (as was shewed before) that there was no Resurrection, and here they propound a question (as it seemes) to prove from an absurdity, that there shall be none. Whence it may be demanded.

Quest. How doth it appeare against the Sadduces, that there is a Resurrection?

Answ. 1. First, if there be no Resurrection, the reason is either

I. Because God is not able to raise up the dead: and to affirme this is impiety, and blasphemy. Or

II. Because God is able to rayse them up, but yet doth it not, because it is altogether unprofitable for men: and to affirme this is ridiculous.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the godly in this life onely differ from the ungodly in hope; and therefore to take away the hope of future glory, were to take away the difference of the righteous and wicked, which St. Paul points at 1 Cor. 15. 19.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Martyrs have laid downe their lives for the Resurrection.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, CHRIST our Captaine rose againe, therefore we also shall rise againe.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, God is the Lord over the dead as well as the living, and therefore in his appointed time he will rayse up the dead.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, because it is a ridiculous thing to beleeve μετεμψύχωσιν a transmigration of the soule, and to deny the Resurrection of the body.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, it is in the will and power of God, that we should be or not be; and therefore it is in his power to make us immortall,

Answ. 8 Eightly, the counsell and decree of God, concerning the raysing up of the dead is immutable; and therefore the dead shall rise againe.

Answ. 9. Ninthly, nothing is disobedient to the authority and power of God; and therefore the dead shall heare his voyce and come forth of the graves.

Answ 10 Tenthly, it is necessary that there should be a reward given to men according to their meede; and therefore it is necessary that there should be a Resurrection, Justin. Martyr.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Yee erre, not knowing the Scriptures.]

It is questioned betweene us and the Church of Rome, whether the Scriptures be necessary, or not; and we affirme, That they are necessary for the people of God, the reading, preaching, and understanding thereof being the onely ordinary meanes to beget faith in us.

Argum. And this wee confirme from this place by this Argumene;

That whereby we are kept from errour and doubtfulnesse in matters of faith, is necessary; but this is performed by the Scripture: Therefore it is necessary. Here two things are to bee shewed; namely

First, that the Scripture keepeth us from errour: this is cleare from these words, yee erre not knowing the Scripture: where our Saviour shewes, that the ignorance of Scripture was the cause of their errour. And

Secondly, if our knowledge were onely builded upon Tradition without Scripture, we should then be doubtfull, and uncertaine of the truth: Thus St. Luke saith, in his Preface to Theophilus; I have written (saith he) that thou mightest be certaine of those things, whereof thou hast beene instructed. Whence wee conclude that although we might know the truth without Scripture as Theophilus did, yet we cannot know it certainly without it.

Sect. 3 §. 3. But shall be as the Angels.]

The Papists teach us to pray unto the Saints, and that we may be the easilier induced to learne this lesson, they assure us, That the Saints heare our prayers; and because they feare, we will not credit this without proofe, therefore our learned Countreymen who can draw Quidlibet ex quolibet, produce this place for the proofe thereof: arguing thus:

Object. As CHRIST proveth here that in heaven the Saints neither marry nor are married, because there they shall be as Angels:

So by the very same reason is proved, that Saints may heare our prayers and helpe us, be they neare or farre off, because the Angels doe so, and in every moment are present where they list, and neede not to be neere us, when they heare or helpe us. Rhemist. sup. §. 4.

Answ. 1 First, our Saviour CHRIST speaketh not of the soules departed at this time, but after the Resurrection; and therefore the Argument is absurd.

Answ. 2 Secondly, CHRIST doth not in all points compare the Saints after the Resurrection to Angels, for then they should be invisible and without bodies, as the Angels are: but in that they have no need or use of marriage.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, it is false, that the Angels may be present in every moment where they list: for they cannot be in more places at once then one, neither are they where they list, but where God appointeth them. Fulke.

Quest. Whether are or ought the Saints and faithfull in this life to be like unto the Angels, and wherein?

Answ. They should labour to be like the Angels, in these things, namely

First, in rejoycing at the conversion of sinners, Luke. 15. And

Secondly, in reverencing the divine Majestie like the Angels, who cover their faces before him, Esa. 6. 2. And

Thirdly, in standing ready prest, to execute the will of the Lord, as the Angels doe, Psal. 103. 20, 21. And Fourthly, in executing the will of God for the manner as the Angels doe; that is, with cheerefulnesse, with sincerity, and without wearinesse.

286 VERS. 32. I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob, God is not the God of the dead but of the living.

Verse 32.

Quest. 1 How, or in what regards is the Lord called Deus viventium, the God of the living?

Answ. 1 First, Ratione causalitatis & providentiæ, because he both created all perfect living creatures, and also provides for all: Now providence hath place onely in those things which have an existence or being in rerum naturâ: but when God pronounced these words unto Moses, Exod. 3.6. the Patriarches were corporally dead, and their bodies dissolved; and therefore it was necessary, that their soules should remaine, and be alive.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the creature is referred unto God in a reall relation which is not founded but onely in an entity and being: and therefore that whose God, God is said to be, must needs be really something, and consequently those Patriarches who were not in regard of their bodies, were in regard of their soules.

Quest. 2 How may we prove or conclude the Resurrection of the body from hence?

Answ. 1 First, because the reasonable soule being the forme of the body, and the substantiall part of man hath alwayes a naturall inclination unto the body, neither hath a perfect subsistence in it selfe, but doth desire to be in man; now nature doth nothing in vaine; and therefore the soule which for a time is separated from the body, shall at last be eternally united and conjoyned unto the body.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because the reasonable soule cannot obtaine perfect felicity, untill she have reassumed the body, in regard of that naturall affection which she hath unto the body. And therefore there shal be a Resurrection of the body.

Quest. 3 How can this verse stand with Romans 14.9? For it is said

Here, God is not the God of the dead but of the living. And

There, CHRIST died that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.

Answ. Our Saviour here denies that God is the God of the dead, that is, that he will not give grace and glory to those who are corporally dead, and shall rise no more; and hence he doth evince the Resurrection of the dead, by this argument.

Glory cannot be conferred upon dead men, as dead men.

But glory shall be conferred upon Abraham, and all the faithfull.

Therefore they shall not remaine alwayes dead, or in an estate of death, but shall rise againe at the last.

Hence the Apostle saith, That CHRIST is Lord both of the living and of the dead; that is, of all the faithfull, who either now live, or are dead, but shall rise at the last day, and of dead shall be made living: as it is said in the Creed, Hee shall judge both the quicke and the dead; that is, those who now are dead shall live againe at the last day.

Vers. 37, 38. &c. VERS. 37. 38. 39. 40. JESVS said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soule, and with all thy mind; This is the first and great Commandement. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy selfe, On these two Commandements hang all the Law, and the Prophets.

§. 1. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God. Sect. 1

Quest. Whether can we love the Lord above all things, as wee are here enjoyned, by nature, or by grace?

Answ. We cannot love the Lord above al things by nature; and therefore grace is simply necessary thereunto; as appeares thus.

First, the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, by his holy Spirit, Rom. 5. and the fruit of the Spirit is love, Galath. 5. yea love is of God 1 Iohn. 4. And therefore without the grace of God, and of his good Spirit, we cannot love him above al things, or as we ought to doe.

Secondly, we cannot fulfill the Law of God without the grace of God; now love is the fulfilling of the Law: and therefore we cannot love God as we ought without grace.

Thirdly, except man (in the state of corrupt nature) be healed by grace, he is averse from God, as from the chiefe and maine end, and turned unto the creature, and to himselfe, as to the principall and last end (as is affirmed both by Thomas and Greg. de Valent.) and therefore a man cannot love God, above all, or as his chiefest good, except by grace he be converted and turned unto God.

§. 2. With all thy heart, and with all thy soule, and with all thy mind, (St. Luke. 10.27. addes) and with all thy strength. Sect. 2.

Quest. 1 What is the meaning of these words, and how are heart, soule, mind, and strength distinguished?

Answ. 1. First, by Heart here are understood all the affections, inclinations, appetites, and desires. For God will be acknowledged the greatest of all, and be loved as the best of all, and above all, and will have our whole affections to be set upon him, as the object of our happinesse.

Answ. 2 Secondly, by Soule here is meant that part which is willing to any thing, or the motions of the will; or briefely, the will and purpose.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, by Mind or Cogitation is meant the understanding and mind: so much as we know of God, so much must we love him: and therefore when we know him perfectly, we shall love him perfectly 1 Cor. 13. 10, 11.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, by strength, all inward actions agreeable to the Law, of God are meant.

Object 1 Against the Popish Counsell of perfection wee urge this place, thus:

We are bound to love God with all our Heart, with all our Soule, with all our Mind, and with all our strength: Therefore whatsoever thing there is, whereby wee may expresse the love of God, wee are bound by Commandement to doe it, it not being left to our owne will: For it is a grievous sinne not to love God more then we doe, if it lye in our power.

Answ. 1. First, Bellarmine (de Monach. lib. 2. Cap. 13.) answers answers thus, Qui Deum diligit super omnia &c. He that loveth God above all things, although he love him not entirely, as perhaps he may, neither doth all things for his sake that he in his power: yet for all this he esteemeth of God as his chiefest good &c.

Reply. Although the Jesuite like a Philosopher truely confesseth in another place that Contradictions cannot be true on both parts: yet here like a deceitfull Sophister he would obtrude upon us Contradictory speeches, and falsely perswade us that they are true: for he saith, a man may love God perfectly and above all, and yet not love him so much as he is able, that is, imperfectly: and so by his divinity a man may love God above all, and yet not love him above all; for if he did he would refuse to doe nothing for Gods love, that is in his power.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Bellarmine answers thus, Diligere corde, animâ &c. est diligere verè, sinceré, non fictè, non simulatè. To love the Lord with all the heart, soule, mind, and strength, is to love him sincerely and truely, not fainedly or dissemblingly.

Reply. 1. I. This is something but this is not all that is commanded in these words: for if it were so then they also who have the smallest degree of true love doe perfectly fulfill this precept; which is absurd.

Reply. 2. II. There is no one of all the Schoole-men, but have attributed some singular Emphasis, in this enumeration of parts, With all the heart, soule, mind, and strength, and that because the amplitude of the Precepts of God require it, wherein many things are included and folded up in few words, and not one and the same thing in many words. If the Reader would see how this Argument of ours is further excepted against and answered, let him read Ames. Bellarm. enervat. Page. 169. tom. 2.

Quest. 2 Whether are the duties of the second Table to be performed with all the heart, soule, mind, and strength, or not?

Answ. 1 First, the duties and workes of holinesse are to be performed with a greater and more intense power, then the workes of righteousnesse: because unto those, and not unto these doth properly belong this rule, To love with all thy heart, soule, and mind.

Answ. 2 Secondly, yet we must not understand this, as though all the power of the soule, heart, and mind were not required in the performing and fulfilling of the duties of the second Table: But

I. Because this is principally required in the workes of Religion, and duties of holinesse. And

II. Because in the workes of righteousnesse, it is not required that we should doe them with all our hearts, soules, and minds, in regard of our brethren to whom they are immediately done, but in regard of God and Religion, who commands and enjoyes them to be done, and who must be obeyed in all things with the heart. And

III. Because a man may love his neighbour too much, and with too much intension, in regard of the materiall act of loving, although not as it is a duty of Religion, or Christian love: but we can no way love God too much, or with too much intension.

Object. 1 It is here objected, if we ought to love God with all our hearts, then we must not love our Parents?

Answ. It is lawfull to love other things besides God, but nothing above God. We ought to love our Parents, but not chiefely: because we ought to love all other things for God.

Sect. 36 §. 3. This is the first, and great Commandement.

Quest. 1 What is contained in this first and great Commandement?

Answ. The worship, service, and love, which we owe unto God: And therefore we ought to have him?

First, in our Understanding; by knowing of him, and his Attributes, properties, and actions, so farre forth as he hath revealed himselfe in his word and workes 1 Chron. 28. 9. John 17. 3. Contrary unto this, is spirituall blindnesse and ignorance. And

Secondly, we ought to have God in our Will; by desiring to obey him, and by beleeving in him, and by placing our confidence wholly upon him: Contrary whereunto is infidelity, unwillingnesse to obey, and confidence and trust, in others, or other things besides God: whether

I. In our selves, as Proverb. 28. 26. whence comes pride, and arrogancie (Deuter. 8. 17. 18. Daniel. 4. 27. Habuk 1. 16.) and vaine glory, or carnall boasting, John. 5. 44. Luke. 10. 20. Or

II. In other men, as Isai. 36. 6. and Ierem. 17. 5. Or

III. In other things; as Riches (Iob. 31. 24. and 1 Tim. 6. 17. Psal. 62. 10. Ierem. 49. 16.) Honour, strong holds, and the like (Obadiah. verse. 3. 4, Psal. 146. 3.) which are but meanes given us of God, whereby to glorify him the better; And therefore our duty in regard of these and other good meanes is, to trust him no lesse when we have them then when we want them, John 13. 15. Now from this Confidence proceeds hope (2 Chron. 20. 1. and Isa. 8. 17. and Psal. 27. 14.) which brings forth spirituall courage; which courage consists in these things, namely

First, in spirituall security; Psal. 3. 5, 6. And.

Secondly, in constancy in good things. And

Thirdly, in patience in time of trouble, and adversity: as 2 Samuel. 15. 10, 11, 12. and Iames 5. 11. and Hebr. 11. 27.

Thirdly, we ought to have God in our Affections: and that

I. By loving him: as Deuter. 6. 5. Luke. 10. 27. and in this place; that as we know and beleeve him to be good, yea the chiefest good, so wee love him above all: and this love is then in truth in us, when we love his word and Commandements (John. 14. 15. 21. 23. Psal. 119. 55. 97.) and discover our love in often thinking and speaking of God to his glory (Psal. 119. 55. Acts. 17. 28. Iames. 2. 17. Malach. 3. 16.) and by desiring of his presence (2 Tim. 4. 8. Psal. 27. 4. and 42. 1.) and by being zealous of his glory above all things, and doing his will cheerefully, Psal. 16. 3. and 119. 97, 131. Contrary to this love is such 288 such a love of our selves and wordly pleasures, as causeth us to leave those duties undone which God requireth of us (1 Joh. 2. 15, 16.) and spirituall slothfulnesse (Revelat. 3. 15.) and indonsiderate zeale (Luke. 9. 54.) whereas the true love of God will move us with Moses and Paul to wish our selves accursed rather, then that the glory of God should any thing at all be stained by us, Exod. 32. 32, Rom. 9. 3.

II. Wee must have God in our Affections by fearing him, above all other things: because he (above all others) is most powerfull and just, Matth. 10. 28. Esa. 8. 13. Hebr. 12. 28, 29. Gen. 18. 27. Iob. 31. 23. Now this feare workes in us a care to approve our selves unto God in all things (Proverb. 8. 13. Gen. 20. 11. Rom. 3. 18.) and is a child-like feare, Psal. 130. 4. Gen. 39. 9. and 1 Peter. 1. 17. Opposites unto this feare, are, the servile and slavish feare (1 Iohn. 4. 18.) and presumption (2 Samuel. 4. 5. 7. Eccles. 11. 6. Deuter. 29. 19. 20. Iude, 4.) and desperation (Gen. 4. 13. and 1 Kings. 19. 4. Acts. 16. 27. and 2 Cor. 2. 7.) Now this good feare of God is then in us, when it is stronger to move us to good, then the feare of men is to keepe us from good, or to move us unto evill. And when we doe not the good we dos onely or principally for feare of men, but of God. Now from this good feare proceeds Reverence of the Majesty of God, in regard whereof we should carry such holy shamefastnesse in all our actions, that no unseemely behaviour proceed from us, that may any wayes bee offensive to him. This holy Reverence was specially prefigured, Deut. 23. 12, 14. Where men are enjoyned, when they would ease themselves, to goe without the Heast, and carry a Paddle with them to cover that withall, which came from them; because (saith the Lord) I am in the midst of them: whereby the impurity and filthinesse of the Mind was forbidden, more then of the body, and the equity thereof reacheth also unto us. Contrary hereunto is irreverence, and prophanesse, when men regard not how basely, vilely, and unseemly, they behave themselves before God.

Quest. 2 How is the love of God called the first Commandement?

Answ. Because it is the Spring and fountaine of the rest. Now it is the Fountaine of the rest, in a double regard; to wit,

First, because it is the efficient, and impulsive cause. And Secondly, because it is the finall cause or end which the rest propose, which is for to declare our love towards God. That is, the love of God constraines us to obey him.

Quest. 3 Why is the love of God called the great Commandement?

Answ. 1. First, because it is the end of all the rest of the Commandements, and of our whole Obedience; for therfore we ought to doe well unto our Neighbour, because we love God, and that we may shew our obedience to him thereby.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because that is the principall worship, for which the Ceremoniall lawes were ordained, and so is opposed unto the Ceremoniall worship, which was appointed for this Morall law.

§. 4. And the second is like unto it. Sect. 4.

Why is the love of our Neighbour called the second Commandement? Quest. 1

First, because it containeth the summe of the second Table; for if wee love our Neighbour as our selfe, wee will neither murther nor hurt him. Answ. 1

Secondly, because the love of our Neighbour must rise out of the first Table, even from the love of God. Answ. 2

How is the second Table like unto the first? or, Why is it said to be like unto the first? Quest. 2

First, because the second Table of the Morall law as well as the first, hath a preheminence and excellency above the Ceremonials; and therefore in regard of this dignity and priority, it is like unto the first. Answ. 1

Secondly, because the same kind of Punishment, even everlasting Death is threatned against every transgression, as well of the second, as of the first Table. Answ. 2

Thirdly, in regard of the coherence and dependance, which the one hath of the other, as the cause and the effect: for a man cannot love his brother, unlesse hee first have the feare of God, whose Image he reverenceth in his brother. Answ. 3

Fourthly, in regard of the Law-giver, which was one and the same of both, Iames, 4. 12. And therefore as often as we sinne against our brother, we sinne against our Father whose Lawes we transgresse, and violate. Answ. 4

Fifthly, the second Table is not like unto the first, in order, or quantity, or dignity. But Answ. 5

Sixthly, in regard of the subject matter or qualities, which is Love in both; and of the condition which is one in both; for a true, sincere, and perfect Love is required both towards God and our Neighbour. And Answ. 6

Seventhly, because as the Love of God is the head or chiefe of all those things, which we owe unto him; so the love of our Neighbour is the head of all those things which we owe unto him. Answ. 7

Here against the words of the text it may be objected; The second Commandement is like unto the first; therefore the first is not the greatest. Object. 1

The love of our Neighbour is like unto the love of God, because it appertaineth to the Morall worship, which is described in the first and second Table. The Answers of the former question solve this Objection; and therefore I enlarge it not. Answ.

It may be objected againe, If the second Table be like unto the first, then our Neighbour is to be made equall with God, and is to be equally worshipped and loved. Object. 2

First, the love of our Neighbour is like unto the love which we owe unto God in respect of the kinde, but unlike in respect of the degree. Answ. 1.

Secondly, the love of God, and of our neighbour is unlike in three regards: viz. Answ. 2

I. In respect of the objects, or things loved: For God and man who are to be loved are divers objects.

II. In respect of the originall; For the love of our Neighbour springeth from the love of God; but not contrarily.

III. In

III. In respect of the degree; for wee are to love God more then our Neighbour.

Sect. 5. §. 5. Thou shalt love thy neighbour.]

Quest. How can we love our neighbour at all, seeing we are commanded to love God with all our heart, soule, and mind?

Answ. 1 First, the sincere and true love of our Neighbour is not contrary to the Love of God, but according, or agreeable thereunto; and therefore it takes nothing away from the love of God, but is rather a fulfilling thereof.

Answ. 2 Secondly, he who loves not his neighbour, loves not truely his God: The husband is commanded to love his wife, even as CHRIST loved his Church; and yet he may love his children too: yea if he love not his children, it is an argument that he loves not his wife, as the mother of his children. The wife is commanded to love her husband, and yet she may love her children; yea if shee doe not love them, it is certaine that shee doth not love her husband, the Father of her children. Children are commanded to love their Parents, and yet they may love their brothers and sisters, yea if they doe not love them, it is a signe that they doe not love their Parents truely. And thus except we love our Neighbour we cannot love our God 1 Iohn. 4. 20.

Sect. 6 §. 6. As thy selfe.]

Quest. In what sense is our neighbour to be beloved as wee love our selves?

Answ. In this precept, Sicut, As, doth not denote an universall and absolute parity, or equality, but an analogy, and resemblance, which likenesse or resemblance principally consists in these things; namely

First, as we would neither doe, nor wish evill unto our selves; so neither must wee unto our neighbour.

Secondly, as we wish well, and doe good unto our selves; so we must also unto our neighbour.

Thirdly, as we doe this unto our selves out of a true love unto our selves; so also must we unto our brethren.

Fourthly, as we love our selves for Gods sake; so wee must love our brother for his sake also.

Fifthly, as wee must not so love our selves, that we would sinne rather then displease our selves; so neither must wee so love our brethren, that we would condescend unto evill, rather then displease them.

Sixthly, as we must not love our selves more then God, so neither must we love our neighbour more then him.

Sect. 7 §. 7. Vpon these two hang all the Law and the Prophets.]

Quest. 1 Wherein doth the whole Law of God consist?

Answ. 1 First, the Lord hath summed up all that he requireth in one word, Love, Rom. 13. 10. Love is the fulfilling of the Law.

Answ. 2. Secondly, he hath enlarged this word in two, In this place (verse 37) Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart; and thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy selfe.

Thirdly, he hath enlarged these two into ten words, Deuter. 10. 4. And he wrote on the Tables the ten words. Answ. 3

Fourthly, he hath yet further enlarged them into Moses and the Prophets, in this verse: On these two Commandements hang all the Law and the Prophets; κρέμανται pendent, hang, even as we hang a thing upon a naile (Esay, 22. 23.) so the Law and the Prophets hang upon these two precepts. Answ. 4

Fifthly, Love, the contents of the Law is twofold; viz. Answ. 5

I. Of God, which consists in worship; and therefore

First, we must worship the true God, with internall worship, and the love of the heart. Precept 1.

Secondly, we must worship the true God truely: Now this true worship of God is described, both

I. Generally; that is, we must worship nothing with God, but worship him without all mixture of Idolatry. Precept 2. And also

II. Particularly: where we learne, that his worship is either.

First, private; for we must honour and reverence his name, and not blaspheme it. Precept 3. Or Secondly, publike; which consists in the workes of the Lords day.

II. Of our brother: Now this love is either

First, externall; and consists in duties which are either.

I. Publike, and enjoyned. Precept 5. Or

II. Private, towards our neighbour: that is,

First, towards his person. Precept 6.

Secondly, towards his chastity. Precept 7.

Thirdly, towards his substance. Precept 8.

Fourthly, towards his reputation, and good name. Precept 9. Or Secondly, internall; described Precept 10. And thus we see the summe and contents of the Law.

Quest. 2 Why doth our Saviour reduce all the Commandements to these two, the love of God, and of our neighbour?

Answ. Because as man consists of two things, namely, a soule and a body; so the body of Religion consists of these two Precepts. And as we see all things with two eyes, and heare all things with two eares, and smell all things with two nostrils, and worke with two hands, and walke with two feete; so in like manner, in these two Precepts (viz., the love of God, and of our neighbour) we see, heare, and worke all things that are necessary to salvation. And therefore aptly are they reduced by our Saviour unto these two. Aureum opus, Page 45.

Quest. 3 What is the meaning of these words; On these two hang all the Law and Prophets?

Answ. The meaning is, that all other legall obedience, which is contained in Moses and the Prophets, doth spring from our love unto God & our neighbour.

Obiect. In the Prophets also is the promise or doctrine of the Gospell: therefore CHRIST seemeth not to speake 290 ſpeake aright in this place.

Anſw. He ſpeaketh of the doctrine of the Law not of the Promiſes of the Goſpell; as appeareth by this queſtion of the Phariſe, which was the chiefe Commandement? not, which was the chiefe Premiſe? And therefore CHRIST anſwereth him directly.

Verſ. 43 44. 45. VERS. 43. 44. 45. He ſaith unto them, How then doth David in ſpirit call him Lord, ſaying, The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies, thy foot-ſtole? If David then call him Lord, how is he his Soune?

Sect. 1. §. 1. How then doth David in Spirit call him Lord.]

David here Propheſying of CHRIST, and ordinarily called The Prophet David, may moue this Quere, How he was a Prophet, and how he Prophecied?

Queſt. There were two ſorts of Prophets, namely

Anſw. Firſt, ſome were Prophets by inſpiration and office, that is, who continued ſtill to be Prophets as Eſay and Ieremy; now theſe were properly called Prophets; & ordinarily the Jewes called them Propheta per miſſionem, Prophets by meſſage, Rabbi, David Rimchi præfat in Pſal.

Secondly, ſome were Prophets onely by inſpiration; and theſe lived not as Prophets, neither continued they in that calling: and thus David and Daniel are called Prophets, although the one was a King, and the other a Courtier; and theſe the Jewes called Propheta per Spiritum ſanctum, Prophets by the holy Spirit onely, becauſe their calling was not ſtill to be Prophets. And thus David was a Prophet, and by the inſpiration of the Spirit prophecied of CHRIST.

If it be objected, That by this reaſon Samuel ſhould not be placed among the Prophets, becauſe he was a Iudge. I anſwer Anſw. Although Samuel was a Iudge, yet he continued ſtill a Prophet, and was Rector of the Schoole of the Prophets.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Sit thou on my right hand.]

Queſt. What is the meaning of theſe words?

Anſw. They are ſpoken of CHRIST, and expounded of him two manner of wayes: to wit,

Firſt, in regard of his Deity thus; Sit on my right hand, that is reſide with me, and be equall unto me, and partake equally with me of my Majeſty and glory: thus the Apoſtle ſeemes to expound the words, Hebr. 1. 3.

Secondly, in regard of his Humanity thus; Sit on my right hand, that is, be thou above all other creatures, and of all other moſt neare and deare unto me, and doe thou perfectly and infinitely abound in vertue, graee, honour and glory, above all others, Angels and men, Carthuſ. Page. 282.

Obiect. This place is obiected by the Vbiquitaries, to prove the Vbiquity of Chriſts humanity: becauſe it ſits at the right hand of God the Father (as is here affirmed by CHRIST himſelfe) which right hand of God is every where.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, if CHRIST be every where, becauſe he ſits at Gods right hand, then it will follow that his ſitting is the cauſe of his bodily Vbiquity, and conſequently, that before this CHRIST was not every where; for the effect cannot be before the cauſe.

Secondly, we grant that the right hand of God is every where, and yet deny, that that which ſits at his right hand is every where. For the right hand of God is ſpirituall, CHRISTS humanity is corporall: and therefore although whereſoever the right hand of God is, there is Chriſts Deity, yet not his Humanity. Anſw. 2

Thirdly, this ſpeech [to ſit at Gods right hand] is a figurative ſpeech for God properly hath neither right nor left hand. Here obſerve that Gods right hand hath a threefold ſignification in Scripture: namely Anſw. 3

I. The right hand of God ſignifieth his power, or omnipotencie; by which he doth all things, and alſo ſhewes himſelfe powerfull; as men oftentimes call their ſtrength, eſpecially in warre, by their right hand, by which they moſt uſe to fight againſt their enemies. So the power of God, eſpecially that which he ſhewes againſt his enemies, is ſignified under the name of his arme, and right hand, as Exodus 15. 6. and Pſal. 118. 16. Now in this ſenſe CHRIST is every where in regard of his Deity, becauſe in power he is equall to his Father, being God with God; but not in regard of his humanity, he not being (as he is man) of equall power with the Father: And therefore his Humanity is not every where.

II. The right hand of God ſignifieth ſometimes the word, the ſecond Perſon in Trinity, becauſe by him the Father created, preſerveth, and ruleth all things. And the Fathers often by Gods right hand underſtand the Sonne of God, as Chriſt calleth the Spirit the finger of God. Now in this ſenſe it followes onely, That whereſoever the right hand of God, is there CHRIST is; but it followes not, that there is his Humanity: for that is not whereſoever his Deity is, which is indeed every where.

III. The right hand of God in this place [Sit thou on my right hand] ſignifieth the dignity, honour, glory, great power, and felicity of God, raigning in heaven. So for CHRIST as he is man, to ſit at his Fathers right hand, is nothing elſe, but that after hee had undergone, and overcome his troubleſome labours, and finiſhed his worke upon earth, hee doth ſit, that is, reſt with his Father in all felicity and quiet: and hath the next ſeat and place of dignity, honour, and glory to his Father: and that he enjoyeth as great authority and power as any creature can enjoy, viz. a finite power, but in ſuch ſort as it farre ſurpaſſeth the dignity, glory, and power of all other Creatures, they being all ſubject to the ſame. If the Reader would ſee this Obiection proſecuted, I referre him to Mr. Hill of the knowledge of the true God, Lib. 2. pag. 119, 120, 121, 122.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Vntill I make thine enemies thy foot-ſtoole.]

Queſt. What is the meaning of theſe words, or what is ſignified thereby?

The

Anſw. The beſt Interpreter of them, is the Apoſtle Paul, who both ſhewes what is meant by ſitting at the right hand of God, and alſo by the ſubduing of his Enemies, 1. Corinth. 15. 24,25,26. He muſt raigne, till he hath put all enemies under his feete; and put downe all rule, authority, and power. And the laſt enemy which ſhall be deſtroyed is death. In theſe words, theſe foure things are implied, and ſignified; to wit,

Firſt, that the Kingdome of Chriſt ſhall have many enemies, who will labour to oppreſſe both the Church and the word. And

Secondly, that Chriſt raignes in the midſt of his enemies, and is more potent, and powerfull then they all: that is, maugre all their power and pollicy, he will ſo ſave and defend his Church on the Earth, that they ſhall never wholly prevaile againſt it. Yea

Thirdly, that at length, his enemies ſhall be made his Foot-ſtoole; that is, at the day of judgement he will ſave, and glorifie his Church, but caſt all the Enemies thereof into eternall fire, And

Fourthly, that all the Enemies of the Church being aboliſhed, vanquiſhed, and put downe, CHRIST ſhall deliver up the Kingdome to his Father: which is not to be underſtood of a direct, and reall reſigning, or forſaking, or giving over of the Kingdome [For of his Kingdome there ſhall be no end] but of a double change of the forme of the Kingdome; For

I. In the triumphant Church he ſhall rule, and raigne, without the meanes of the Miniſtery, of the word, and Sacraments; by which he governes, and regulates the Militant Church. And

II. The triumphant Church ſhall be ſubject to no oppoſition of enemies, nor diſturbance of any, as the Militant Church now is.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſ. 2, 3,4,5. VERS. 2,3,4,5. The Scribes and Phariſees ſit in Moſes ſeat: All therefore whatſoever they bid you obſerve, that obſerve and doe, but doe not yee after their workes; for they ſay, and doe not. For they bind heavie burthens, and grievous to be borne, and lay them on mens ſhoulders, but they themſelves will not move them with one of their fingers. But all their workes they doe, for to be ſeene of men; they make broad their Phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments.

Sect. 1. §. 1. The Scribes and Phariſees ſit in Moſes ſeat: All therefore whatſoever they bid you obſerve, that obſerve, and doe.]

Queſt. Was all that true which the Phariſees taught, that our Saviour bids his Diſciples doe whatſoever they bid them?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, many things (undoubtedly) which the Phariſees held and taught were true: as

I. That there was a God, and that he was one. And

II. That the Meſſiah ſhould come, and by his comming bring much benefit to mankind. And

III. That the Law of Moſes and the Commonwealth of the Jewes, was of and from God. And

IV. That the ſeed of Abraham was the Church of God. And

V. That the ſoules did not dye with the bodies, but remained immortall. And

VI. That there ſhould be a Reſurrection, when all men ſhould receive according to their workes: and divers the like truths.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, in many things (yea in many principall heads of Religion) they erred horribly. For

I. They believed that there was but one true God, and one onely Perſon: and hence they ſaid that CHRIST blaſphemed, when he affirmed himſelfe to be the true Sonne of God, and true God, Iohn 8. And

II. They thought, that the Meſſiah ſhould onely have a humane nature, and taught that he ſhould reſtore the temporall Kingdome of the Jewes: and from the Schoole of the Phariſees it came, that the Mother of the Sonnes of Zebedee ſaid unto Chriſt, Lord let one of my Sonnes ſit on thy right hand, and the other on thy left, in thy Kingdome. And hence alſo it was that after Chriſts Reſurrection, his Diſciples asked him, Maſter wilt thou now reſtore the Kingdome to Iſraell?

III. They taught that the obſervation of the Law conſiſted onely in outward workes, and not in inward; and that the Law did not injoyne abſolute obedience. And

IV. They attributed many things, though not all to Stoicall fate; and taught that there was free-will in man, it being (for the moſt part) in his power, either to doe, or to leave undone that which was good, but yet in ſome things God and Fate helped. And hence they affirmed that it was in the power of man to fulfill the Law of God; yea hence they were puffed up with pride, and boaſting, and confidence in their owne merits, and righteouſneſſe (as perfect obeyers of the whole Law) and deſpiſed the grace, and righteouſneſſe of GOD. And

V. They ſo ſtrictly abſtained themſelves from all workes on the Sabbath day, and taught others ſo to doe; that the healing of the ſicke upon that day (although it were done with a word) and the plucking of eares of corne (although for hunger) were eſteemed haynous offences by them. If the Reader would ſee more of their errours, I referre him to Hoſpinian de origine Monach. Page 4.6.

292

Object. The Papiſts produce this place to prove the authority of the Church in judging of matters of faith; or that the chiefe authority to expound Scripture is committed to the Church, that is the Prelates, Bellarmine (de verbo Dei, Lib. 3. Cap. 5. Teſtimon. 3.) argues thus, Our Saviour here ſaith, The Scribes and Phariſees ſit in Moſes chaire, all things that they bid you obſerve, that obſerve and doe: Therefore we muſt ſtand to the Judgement, and interpretation of the Prelates of the Church. Chriſt (ſaith he) in this Chapter doth principally taxe and reprove the ſinnes and vices of the Phariſees: and becauſe thoſe who are infirme and weake may thinke or collect from hence, that the Prelates are not to be beleeved or obeyed, becauſe their lives are vicious and corrupt: therefore our Saviour doth firſt teach, that notwithſtanding the evill life of the Phariſees, their doctrine is to be beleeved and obeyed in all things.

Bartholomeus Latomus (in defenſ. adverſ. Bucer) argues thus: In theſe words of our Saviours (ſaith he) the authority of the Miniſters of the Church is laid downe, which authority of theirs is abſolute; and therefore the authority of the Miniſters is neceſſary to be obeyed.

Stapleton, the Rhemiſts, and others argue thus; Chriſt ſaith, The Phariſees ſit in Moſes chaire, and all things that they ſhall ſay, do. Where by the Chaire of Moſes is ſignified the infallibity of the Prieſthood under the Law, and was a type of the truth of Religion, in the Apoſtolike Sea of Rome. Vide Staplet. apud Whitak. de author. Script. Lib. 3. page 454 and Br. Mort. Lib. 3. Cap. 15. §. 5.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, we grant that theſe words muſt be underſtood of the Miniſters of the Goſpell, that ſucceed the Apoſtles, as well as of the Phariſees that ſate in Moſes Chaire, Anſw. 2 Secondly, by Moſes chaire is meant neither outward ſucceſſion, nor judiciall authority, but the profeſſion of Moſes Law. Or, To ſit in the chaire of Moſes, is not to ſucceed in the place of Moſes, but to teach according to the Law of Moſes; the Phariſees then teaching Doctrines not agreeable to that Law, did therein not ſit in Moſes Chaire. And therefore from this place is neither proved an infallibility of judgement in the Prelates of the Church to interpret Scripture, nor a neceſſity of obedience.

Anſw. 3. Thirdly, our Saviour doth not ſimply command the people to obey the Phariſees in all points of their doctrine, or teach them, that their locall ſucceſſion did priviledge them from errour; but onely that they ſhould not for their evill life be offended at that which they might at any time teach well: becauſe though their life were wicked, yet that which they taught out of Moſes chaire, that is, to ſay according to Moſes Law, muſt be followed. And thus that which Bellarmine affirmes, [That the Doctrine of the Prelates muſt be obeyed, and beleeved] is to be reſtrained and limited, that is, it muſt not be underſtood abſolutely, and ſimply, but as they ſit in Moſes chaire, that is, teach that which Moſes taught. For otherwiſe it is, Caprio ab Homonymia, becauſe this word Chaire may be taken two manner of wayes; namely either

I. For the Doctrine they taught: Or

II. For their office, or perſons. Now it is evident and cleare, that CHRIST here commands, that the Prelates of the Church ſhould be heard, but in thoſe things onely in which they teach nothing contrary to the revealed will of God; and therefore obedience is due unto thoſe who have the over-ſight of our ſoules, and is to be performed with this exception, if they injoyne and teach nothing contrary to God. And therefore we ſhould alwayes ſeriouſly conſider, whether the thing commanded and taught by them be contrary, or according to the Commandement of God; and to know this, is required the judgement of diſcerning. If we ſhould demand of any of the Papiſts above mentioned: Whether they thinke the people of the Jewes were bound to beleeve the Scribes and Phariſees, when they affirmed, and taught. That CHRIST was an Impoſtor, and deceiver; I know none of them would have held the affirmative, but would have bluſhed to ſay it: and therefore, let them remember themſelves, and allow of ſome fitting limitation in the interpretation of theſe words, Whatſoever they ſhall ſay unto you, obſerve and doe. If the opponents and objecters will not grant us without proofe, that theſe words are to be reſtrained, and limited, we can eaſily evince it by theſe enſuing reaſons; namely,

Firſt, becauſe both their owne and other Expoſitors have limited the words; As

I. Stella (in hunc locum) ſaith, They ſit in Moſes Chaire, Cum bona docebant, &c. when they taught good things, ſuch as Moſes preſcribed.

II. Ianſenius (Concord. in Matth. 23. 2. Cap. 120.) ſaith, Non eſt illis obediendum, &c. They muſt not be obeyed when they teach any thing contrary to that Chaire.

III. Emanuel Sa (in hunc locum) ſaith, Non tenemur hoc loco &c. This place bindeth us not to obey them, if they teach that which is evill, for that is to teach againſt the Chaire.

IV. Maldonate (in locum) ſaith, de doctrina legis, et Moſis loquitur, He ſpeaketh onely of the Doctrine of the Law and of Moſes.

V. Carthuſian (in hunc locum) ſaith, Hoc non eſt abſolutè, et univerſaliter intelligendum &c. When our Saviour ſaith, Doe whatſoever they bid you, we muſt not underſtand it univerſally and abſolutely, but of their leſſons and doctrines which are not contrary to the Law of Moſes.

VI. Eraſmus (ſ. Matth. 23. 3.) ſaith, Cathedrâ Moſis &c. Chriſt did not underſtand by Moſes chaire the doctrine of the Prieſts, but the Law of Moſes; neither were they to be obeyed, further then they taught according to that Law.

VII. Ferus (Lib. 3. in Matth. 23.) ſaith, Præceptum Chriſti, quæcunque dixerint vobis ſervate et facite &c. That CHRISTS Commandement, Obſerve and doe whatſoever they bid you, bound them not to obſerve all the Decrees of the Phariſees, but but so farre forth as they agreed with the Law, &c.

VIII. Let the Reader if he desires more Expositors, read Gloss. in Matth. 23. 2. and Nicol. Gorr. ibid. and Arias Montan. elucid. ibid. & Aquinas 2. 2. qu. 104. Artic. 5, et August. Tract. 46. in Iohan. Where he shall heare them with one mouth and mind say, Sedere super cathedram Mosis &c. To sit in Moses chaire, is to teach according to the Doctrine and rule of Moses Law, and to command things agreeable thereunto; that is to say, true doctrine, and the same that Moses taught: wherein onely they might be followed, and no further.

Secondly, because if the Pharisees be not to be heard, beleeved, and obeyed, in all things, but in some onely, then of necessity we must have another rule, whereby we may be directed in our hearing; for else how can we tell wherein we must follow our teachers, and wherein we must not. And therefore there must be a Judge in Religion, and the matters of faith above the interpretation of the Prelates of the Church.

Thirdly, the Pharisees taught many errors and blasphemies; and that

I. Both against the Law of Moses, Matth. 5. 20. and 15. 3. and 23. 13. And also

II. Against the divinity of Christ (Marke 14. 64. Iohn 7. 48. and 8. 13. and 9. 22, 24. and 19. 7, 15.) And in this regard our Saviour bad his Disciples, Matth. 16. 6, 12. to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which was their Doctrine. Wherein he had gaine-said himselfe, if by Moses chaire he had meant any thing but the prescript of the Law, or by those words had commanded us, in all points to doe according to the Prelates doctrine: for then the Jewes must not have honoured Parents, nor loved their Enemies, nor beleeved in Christ, because the Pharisees taught against these things. I enlarge not this here, because both in the fore-going question something hath beene said, and in the following answer of this objection something shall be said of the errours of the Pharisees.

Fourthly, Moses himselfe did preadmonish us not alwayes to heare all, who sate in his chaire, Deuter. 18, 19, 30, 21. And therefore the Prelates are not to be obeyed in all things which they teach.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, we answer to Latomus his Argument: CHRIST saith, Whatsoever they bid you doe, that observe and doe; therefore the authority of Ministers is necessarily to be obeyed in all that they teach. We deny the consequent; and that for these reasons, viz.

I. Because when the authority of the Ministers is named in the conclusion, either it is to be understood,

First, of all Ministers together in generall; now if he thus understand it, he declines wholly from the true sense of the place: for when CHRIST named the Scribes and Pharisees he understood not every one, as appeares by that which followes, They love the uppermost roomes at Feasts, verse 6. And they say and doe not, verse 3. And doe not after their workes, verse 3. All which cannot be understood but of particular persons; and almost all the Fathers have applied this [Doe not after their workes] unto particular Pastors: as if our Savior would say (according to the Aphorisme) Vivimus legibus non exemplis; People must frame, and direct their lives, according to the Pastors Doctrine out of the word, and not according to their lives and conversations. Or 293

Secondly, by the authority of Ministers, is to be understood every particular Minister whatsoever; now if he thus understand it; then

I. He doth not touch the question, which is concerning the authority of the Church, in judging of matters of Faith; for the Church is not in every particular Minister. And

II. The Papists themselves will not say, That every one that sits in Cathedra, or to whom is given Ecclesiasticall authority, is an absolute Judge of all controversies.

II. Because if the authority of the Ministers of the Church be absolute, and that it is necessary to obey them in all they teach; then it is necessary, that such authority should have beene given unto the Scribes and Pharisees, and such an infallibility in them. For if the Papists will goe about from hence to prove the absolute authority of the Church in judging of all matters of faith and doctrine; then they must needs grant such a power, and authority to have beene in the Scribes and Pharisees; and therefore seeing theirs was not absolute and supreme, no more is the Ministers now. That the authority of the Scribes and Pharisees was not absolute, appeares both by the severall expositions of the Interpreters of this text, mentioned in the former answer; and also by this Medium. If their authority had beene absolute, and that it was necessary to have obeyed them in all things, then we should never have departed from them; but this is false; for Matth. 16. 6. CHRIST saith, Take heed of the leaven of the Pharisees, which the Evangelist expounds to be meant of their Doctrine. Whence we see plainly, that somethings were to be avoided which they maintained and taught; therefore these words of CHRISTS [The Chaire of Moses] doe not signifie absolute authority.

III. Because if the authority of the Scribes and Pharisees had beene such, as that it was necessary to obey them in all things; then they should have beene the rule of truth; but this is false: for the rule is alwayes like it selfe, and never declines a Rectitudine, from truth, and rectitude, but the Pharisees were not alwayes like themselves, (that is, as those that sit in Moses Chaire) and very often did depart from the sincerity of Doctrine, as appeares thus. If sometimes they taught those which was true, and sometimes (yea more often) that which was false, then they did often depart from the truth, and sincerity of Doctrine: But the former is true, therefore the latter. The Assumption is proved from Matthew 15. 3, 4, 5, 6. and 16. 6. From whence it appeares plainly, That the Scribes and Phisrisees not onely offended in this, that they did 294 did not order their lives and conversations according to the prescript rule of the Law, which they propounded to others: but also in the expounding of that Law, they did heape together many Traditions not lawfull, yea and weaken the Law it selfe. Whence it followes, that those who sate in Moses chaire were neither the rule of the Law, or truth, neither the rule, and absolute Iudges of Interpretations. I conclude therefore this great Objection thus: Seeing the Scribes and Pharisees sometimes taught amisse, and sometimes were to be avoided; it is therefore necessary that when Christ saith here, Because they sit in Moses Chaire, therefore obey them, that by the Chaire of Moses is to be understood not any authority of theirs, but rather some Rule, by which it might appeare, when they taught well, when ill. I hold this an insoluble and plaine solution, If the Pastors sitting in the Chaire, are then to be obeyed when they teach according to the chaire, and if teaching contrary to the chaire they are not to be obeyed, (which I thinke none will deny) then the chaire is the Rule of obedience due unto the Pastors; but this chaire is the Law of Moses (as was amply proved before) therefore the Law of Moses is the Rule of obedience, which Law is the Scripture, and consequently the Scripture is that Rule of obedience.

Sect. 2 §. 2. They make broad their Phylacteries.] Having spoken before of these Phylacteries I here passe them by; but if the studious Reader would know further, what these Phylacteries were, what was written in them, whence they were so called, and what is meant by the enlarging of their Phylacteries: Let him read Senens. biblioth. sanct. Lib. 2. Page 92. et Sylloge vocum exotic. Page 153. &c. ad 160. et Godwyn, in his Jewish antiquities, Lib. 1. Cap. 10. Page 51, 52, 53, 54.

Vers. 6 VERS. 6. And they love the chiefe seates in Synagogues:

Quest. What were the chiefe seats which were so much affected?

Answ. For answer hereunto observe, That the manner of their meetings, when Disputations were had in their Synagogues, or other Schooles, was thus, according to Philo Iudaus (quod omnis probus. page 679.) The chiefe Rabbies sate in reserved chaires, these are those chiefe Seats in the Synagogues, which the Scribes and Pharisees so much affected Their companions sate upon benches, or lower formes; and their Schollers on the ground, at the feet of their Teachers.

Vers. 9 VERS. 9. And call no man your Father upon the Earth; for one is your Father which is in heaven.

Quest. 1 Why doth our Saviour forbid his Disciples and the multitude to call no man Father?

Answ. As the Grecians were wont to call the Students in Physicke, ἰατρῶν παῖδες (Erasm. epist. dedic. Hilario præfix.) The children of the Physitians; so the Jewes termed the Schollers of the Prophets. Filii Prophetarum, The children of the Prophets, (2. King. 6. 1.) by reason whereof the Prophets sometimes were called Fathers: as appeares by Elisha's cry, My Father, my Father, (2. King. 2. 12.) whence the Rabbies grew very ambitious of the name Father, which was the reason of this our Saviours speech, Call no man Father upon earth.

Quest. 2 How can this command [Call no man Father upon earth] stand with the Law of God, which commands honour to parents) and the precept of Christ (which else-where enjoynes children to honour their parents) and the practise of the Apostle Paul, who calleth himselfe the Corinthians Father.

Answ. 1 First, this place must not be understood simply, as though it were not lawfull to give the name, and appellation of Father to any: For then indeed

I. St. Paul should have been contrary to his Master, who maketh himselfe a spirituall Father to the Corinthians, 1. Corinth. 4. 15. Yea

II. Christ then should have beene contrary to his Father, who hath himselfe termed Superiours Fathers, in the fifth Commandement; and commanded Inferiours to honour them, a part of which honour is to call them Father. Yea

III. Christ then should have beene contrary to himselfe, who reproveth the Scribes and Pharisees, because they perverted the children, and suffered them not to doe any thing for their Fathers and Mothers, Marke 7. 11. And therefore Christ doth not forbid a bare and simple appellation of Father.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Christ reproveth here onely the ambitious affectation of the Pharisees, who delighted much to be called Fathers;

Answ. 3 Thirdly, our Saviours meaning here is, that they should not call any their Father in earth, as we call God our Father, that is, to put our trust in him, and to make him the author and preserver of our life: for the Lord would have us to trust onely in him, and depend (as his children & heirs) only upō him.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, a Christian hath in him a double man; to wit,

I. An old man, in which respect he hath a carnall Father, whom he must honour so long as he enjoyes his life. And

II. A new man, in which respect he hath God to be his Father, who in CHRIST hath regenerated him by his holy Spirit, and hath given him power to be made his Sonne.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, although there be some who in Scripture are called spirituall Fathers, yet they are not such by nature, but onely by denomination, and participation; Thus St. Paul cals Timothy Sonne (1. Timoth. 1. 2, 18.) in regard of the Gospell which he had made knowne unto him.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, St. Paul cals himselfe (1. Corinth. 4. 15.) the Father of the Corinthians in respect of their conversion, but not primarily, but secondarily; because he was onely the instrument which God first used for their vocation, and regeneration by the Gospell, and not the author or efficient cause thereof.

Vers. 13, 14, 15 VERS. 13, 14, 15. But woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, Hypocrites for ye shut up the Kingdome dome of Heaven against men; for yee neither goe in your selves, neither suffer yee them that are entring to goe in. Woe unto you Scribes, and Pharisees, Hypocrites, for ye devoure Widowes houses, and for a pretence make long prayer; therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation. Woe unto you Scribes, and Pharisees, Hypocrites; for ye compasse Sea and Land to make one Proselyte, and when he is made, ye make him twofold more the child of Hell then your selves.

Sect. 1 §. 1. Woe unto you Scribes, and Pharisees, Hypocrites.]

These Scribes and Pharises were of high esteeme, and reckoning, both in their owne conceits, and also in the opinion of others, none being thought better then they; and yet we see here that Christ slights them, cals them Hypocrites, and denounceth many Woes against them in this Chapter, to teach us:

Observ. That God rejects many as wicked, whom the world & themselves thinke to be happy, and good.

Quest. 1 How doth the truth of this appeare?

Answ. It appears
- First, from these places, Psalm, 50.22. Esa, 58.3. Galath. 6.3. Revelat. 3.17. Matth. 3.9. and 7.22. John 6.39.
- Secondly, because God sees not as man sees: man seeth only the outward appearance, but God seeth the heart, 1. Samuel 16.7.
- Thirdly, because we are partiall Judges in our owne causes, every mans way seeming good in his owne eyes, Proverb. 16.2. but God judgeth according to truth.

Quest. 2 What is here required of us?

Answ. 1 First, we must take heed, and beware of all deceivable Judgement: Now herein three things are included; namely,

I. We must take heed of all popular judgement, (Non si quid turbida Roma) & not beleeve the applauses and acclamations, and good reports of the world: in a word, we must not therefore thinke our selves good, because our Neighbours, and the world proclaime us to be such.

II. We must take heed of our owe proper judgement, and not rest upon a selfe-conceit of goodnesse, as many doe, who thinke themselves to be good enough, and their sinnes to be but small and trivial. Selfe-love makes us to thinke well of our selves, and hinders us from condemning our selves; for no Malefactor would die for his offence (though never so hainous) if he were made his owne Judge.

III. We must be carefull to fit and prepare our selves for the judgement of God, labouring that we may be such, as that he may approve of us, as followes in the next Answer.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we must remember, that we shall come before an all-seeing and all-knowing Judge (Hebr. 9.27.) from whose eye nothing is hid, but all things manifest; And therefore we should be carefull to labour to doe those things, which are agreeable unto his word, and shall be approved by him; for woe be unto those who are wicked in Gods sight.

Quest. 3 What doth the Lord see on Earth which displeaseth him?

First, he seeth some great and rich men, which justifie themselves, and will not be reproved: and unto these he saith, That riches availe not at the day of Judgement, Prov. 10.2. but Potentes potenter tormenta patientur, great men shall have great torments. 295 Answ. 1

Secondly, the Lord seeth some who have a forme of Religion, without truth, 2. Timoth. 3.5. and these are either Answ. 2

I. Private Papists, who joyne with us in outward shew, and come to the house of God with us, but their hearts runne after the Pope. Or

II. Atheists, who seeme to beleeve God, but their hearts are atheisticall, Psalm 14.1. Now these the Lord perswades not to deceive themselves, for they cannot deceive him, Galath. 6.7.

Thirdly, he seeth some who have honesty without zeale; now these he tels, That except their righteousnesse exceed the righteousnesse of the Scribes and Pharisees they cannot be saved, Mat. 5.20. Such neither Answ. 3

I. Hungring after the word of God, or religious duties. Nor

II. Being sensible of their sinnes, or sorrowfull for them. Nor

III. Seeking the glory of God in all things, and above all things.

Fourthly, the Lord sees some, who serve him for base and by ends, for second and sinister respects, whose life is pure, but their hearts polluted; whose outward man is holy, and their inward hypocriticall. Unto these the Lord saith, That the hope of the Hypocrite shall perish. Answ. 4

Fifthly, the Lord seeth some who have many idle motions, that is good desires, and intentions, who doe not nourish them, but suffer them to wither and dye. Now unto all these the Lord will say at the last day, Depart from me I know ye not, Matth. 7.25. Answ. 5

How may we be certaine that the Lord will approve of us, at the day of Judgement? Quest. 4

We may be sure he will, if we walke here according to these rules; and observe diligently these Cautions: Now the Rules include the Cautions, and the Cautions the Rules, as affirmatives and negatives doe one another. Answ.

First, the Rule is, Doe that which is good, and agreeable to the Law, and word of God: The Caution is, Doe nothing which is evill, or contrary to the Law and word of God. And both Rule and Caution is laid downe, Psalm 34.14. Eschew evill, and doe good.

Secondly, the Rule is, Doe that which is good in sincerity, and truth; the Caution is, Do not that which is good for some second end and scope. We must serve God in feare, and love, and out of a desire to approve our selves unto him, and to glorifie his name.

Thirdly, the Rule is, Use carefully the meanes which God hath appointed for the making of us good: the Caution is, neglect not those holy means which God hath ordained. We must. I. Hunger after the word of God, and delight in the hearing thereof: and not call it a wearinesse unto us, or a hard saying. II. We must be diligent in the duties and exercises of holinesse, and not remisse or careleſſe. III. We muſt frequent, and delight our ſelves in the ſociety of the righteous; for of good men we ſhall learne goodneſſe.

Fourthly, the Rule is, be zealous in the ſervice of the Lord, the Caution is, be not key-cold, or luke warme, Apocal. 3. 15. We muſt not onely labour to endure deriſion, danger, and loſſe, rather then neglect or omit the Service of God, but we muſt alſo deſpiſe the care of worldly things, yea neceſſary things, rather then forget our duty towards God: For as the body is more worth then meat, ſo is the ſoule more worth then the body; and therefore the ſervice of our God, and the ſalvation of our ſoules, are to be preferred farre before all other things.

Fifthly, the Rule is, be induſtrious and conſtant in the ſervice of God, and workes of holineſſe; the Caution is, ſerve not God by fits and ſtarts. We muſt not ſometimes ſerve God, and ſometimes Sathan, or ſometimes withſtand ſinne, and ſometimes yeeld unto it; but we muſt ſtrive and ſtruggle againſt ſinne, and labour after whatſoever is good, for terme of life.

Sixthly, the Rule is, be circumſpect and watchful, Marke 13. 33. and 1. Peter 5. 8. The Caution is, be not careleſſe and negligent. We muſt

I. Like Promethens be wiſe before hand, and warily avoid all the occaſions of evill. And

II. We muſt like Epimethens, at leaſt be wiſe after hand, examining our former life, and our former errors; that we may avoid them for the time to come, and ſeriouſly repent us of what is paſt. Here

Firſt, A Longinquo, we muſt examine the errours of our life; and ſee whether

I. They remaine or not, at leaſt in our affections and will. Or

II. Whether we be changed from evill to evill, or from evill to worſe, as from lying to blaſphemy and perjury; from prodigality to uſury and oppreſſion, and the like; now this is to be perverted and not converted.

Secondy, A propinquo, we muſt examine our lives and actions, for the laſt day, or weeke, or moneth, or yeare; and ſee what we have done which we ſhould not have committed, and what we have not done, which we ſhould not have omitted,

Seventhly, the Rule is, we muſt walke wiſely, as well as warily: the Caution is, we muſt not walke fooliſhly, and imprudently, Epheſ. 5. 15. We muſt obſerve and marke

I. What ſinnes doe moſt annoy us, and aſſaile us; and oppoſe theſe manfully even unto blood, Hebr. 12. 1, 4. And

II. What the occaſions of ſinne are which moſt uſually prevaile againſt us, and deceive us. And

III. By what wayes and meanes we may the eaſilieſt, and beſt reſiſt both ſinne and the occaſions thereof. Now here is need both of invention, and wiſedome, and labour, how we may moſt eaſily, and ſafely, and happily, both hinder the courſe of ſinne and further the courſe of piety and holineſſe. I conclude with the Apoſtle: He that walkes according to theſe Rules, peace ſhall bee upon him, and God will approve of him. Galath. 6. 16.

§. 2. Yee ſhut up the Kingdome of Heaven a-gainſt men, &c.] Sect. 2.

We in oppoſition to the Church of Rome affirme, that the Militant and Viſible Church may erre, and we confirme it from this place, and by other midſtes thus.

Firſt, the Militant and Viſible Church conſiſts of meere men, who are ſubject to errour, and ignorance, and whoſe knowledge in divine things is alwayes imperfect in this life. Hence the Pſalmiſt ſaith, All men are Lyars, that is, ſubject to this vanity, that they may fall, and erre, and deceive, and be deceived, according to that trite ſaying, Humanum eſt errare, Man may erre, and is ſubject and prone unto errour. Argum.

Secondly, the Militant Church often in this life ſinnes, yea may ſinne alwayes; for no member of the Church Militant is abſolutely freed and exempted from ſinne: Now if it may ſinne, then in like manner, yea much more, it may erre. For ſinne (which is the vice of the will) is worſe then ſimply to erre, or be deceived in the mind and underſtanding.

Thirdly, betwixt the Church Militant, and Triumphant this is the difference, that the Triumphant Church in Heaven is freed both from ſinne and errour; and therefore the Church Militant labours and travels with both.

Fourthly, we are commanded to examine the words and workes, doctrines and deeds of all, by the Rule of the word of God. Hence our Saviour in this Chapter bids his Apoſtles, and the multitude to heare the Scribes and Phariſees, but yet withall they muſt examine whether they taught according to the Law of Moſes; and in theſe verſes, and thoſe which follow he ſhewes direct and palpable errours in them, although they were indeed the Governours, and in eſteeme the principall members of the Judaicall Church. Read Matth. 5. and 16. 6. and 1. Theſſal. 5. 20. and 1. Iohn, 4. 1. and Philip. 3. 3. From theſe places we may directly conclude, That the Rulers and Governours of the Church may erre, and the people may erre, and conſequently the Church may erre, becauſe that conſiſts onely of Paſtors and people.

Fifthly, Auguſtine (Contra Epiſt. Pelag. lib. 4. Cap. 7.) ſaith, Quomodo Eccleſia in iſto tempore perfecta ſine ruga et macula, cujus membra non mendaciter confitentur ſe habere peccata. How can the Church in this world be perfect and without ſpot or wrinkle, ſeeing the members thereof doe moſt truly confeſſe that they are ſtained and contaminated with ſinne?

VERS. 16, 17, 18, 19. Woe unto you ye blind guides, which ſay, Whoſoever ſhall ſweare by the Temple, it is nothing: But whoſoever ſhall ſweare by the gold of the Temple he is a debter. Ye fooles and blind: Whether is greater, the Gold, or the Temple that ſanctifieth the Gold. And whoſoever ſhall ſweare by the Altar it is nothing, but whoſoever ſweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is guilty. Yee fooles and blind, whether is greater, the gift or the Altar that ſanctifieth the gift. Verſ. 16, 17, 18, 19.

§. 1. Who

Sect. 5. §. 1. Whoſoever ſhall ſweare by the Temple it is nothing.]

The Jewes had certaine formes of fooliſhneſſe, and alſo pretences for their Swearing; teaching that if men ſware by the Temple, or Altar, it was no ſinne. And thus amongſt us many have theſe, or the like pretences for their wicked oathes; viz.

Firſt, ſome ſay they ſweare the truth, and nothing elſe: but every truth muſt not be ſworne, the Lord forbidding all ſwearing in ordinary communication.

Secondly, other ignorant people ſay, they ſweare by nothing but good things; but this doth not extenuate, but aggravate the offence, in the abuſe thereof.

Thirdly, others ſay, they cannot be beleeved upon their bare words, and therefore they are enforced to ſweare: but Gods Commandements muſt not be broken, to winne credit in the world, or to our owne ſpeeches.

Fourthly, others, as ſouldiers and young gallants, uſe to ſweare to teſtifie their courage and gentry: but let them marke the third Commandement, where the Lord (who performes all he ſpeakes) hath ſaid, That hee will not hold him guiltleſſe, who taketh his name in vaine.

Sect. 2 §. 2. Yee fooles and blind.]

We may note here how CHRIST openly oppoſeth himſelfe againſt all errour and falſe-hood; although it be in the Rulers and Governours of the Church, or in the whole Church, to teach us.

Obſer. That we muſt ſtand for the maintenance of the truth, although in ſo doing, we bring our ſelves into danger, and for ſo doing, muſt undergoe great oppoſition. That is,

Firſt, we muſt not betray the truth, but ſtand for it, although like Elias we be alone and forſaken of all, 1 Kings, 19. 10, 14.

Secondly, we muſt not forbeare to publiſh, and profeſſe the truth, although the Governours of the Church ſhould command us, Acts, 4. 19. and 5. 29.

Thirdly, we muſt not flinch from the truth, nor feare to profeſſe and maintaine it, although the King himſelfe with fire and fagot ſhould enjoyne it. Daniel. 3. 18, And the reaſon of all this is double, to wit.

I. Becauſe they who feare men, feare not God. John. 12. 43. Galath. 1. 10. And

II. Becauſe thoſe who deny Chriſt, ſhall be denied by him.

Queſt. 1 Who are here to be damned?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, in generall, all they are worthy of blame, who are fearefull and cowardly, in Gods, and the Goſpels, and Religions cauſe: for in theſe wee ſhould be bold, and let our fortitude be knowne unto all.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, in particular, two ſorts of men here merit reproofe: namely

I. Thoſe who dare not reprove the ſinnes of thoſe great men who are under their charge:

II. Thoſe alſo deſerve reproofe, who dare not profeſſe CHRIST and the truth, in the times, and places of danger, and perſecution: becauſe wee ſhould preferre God and the truth, before our owne lives.

Queſt. 2 How muſt our profeſſion, and boldneſſe in maintaning the truth, be regulated?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, let that be certaine and true, which wee profeſſe; for too much confidence and boldneſſe in doubtfull things is not good.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, let that be fit, and neceſſary to be ſpoken, which we ſpeake; for it is lawfull to conceale that truth, wch is not expedient to be uttred.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, let us have a warrant, and calling for that which we ſpeake, and reprove; for that which is lawfull in one is not lawfull in another. That is, either

I. Becauſe our ordinary callings warrant us: thus Miniſters who are ſet over, and appointed to ſpeake may reprove thoſe things which others have no warrant to taxe; and Counſellors may ſpeake thoſe things which becomes not an ordinary man to utter. Or

II. Becauſe we are friends unto, and intimate with thoſe who deſerve for ſome thing or other to be reproved: for the greater our acquaintance is, the better is our warrant to ſpeake. Or

III. Becauſe we groane under the ſame burden; if wee ſee others oppreſſed, and wronged, and we our ſelves be in the ſame caſe, we may then (I conceive) very lawfully complaine of our injuries and wrongs. Or

IV. Becauſe we are Chriſtians, and Gods glory is endangerd: and therefore our generall calling warrants us to ſpeake and reprove. Or

V. Becauſe we have opportunity, and fit time to ſpeake; and therefore are warranted by a ſpeciall calling and providence of God, who hath offered unto us ſo fit an occaſion.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, let us exhort, dehort, and reprove, prudently, and wiſely; that is,

I. Let us take the fitteſt opportunity, and wait for the apteſt occaſion, when there is hope that we may ſpeake, and perſwade, and reprove, and yet not provoke unto anger. For every time is not fit for reproofe.

II. Let us reprove gently, and in the ſpirit of meekeneſſe; not in bitterneſſe, or with ſatyricall taunts or checks.

Anſw. 5. Fifthly, Let us when we either reprove or admoniſh, doe it in zeale to Gods glory, and in love to our brother; and not out of a humour, or pride, or hatred, as many doe.

Queſt. 3 Doth not our Saviour contradict himſelfe, in doing that, which he forbids others to doe? Matth. 5. 22. he ſaid, Whoſoever ſhall ſay unto his brother Racha ſhall be in danger of the Counſell, but whoſoever ſhall ſay: Thou foole ſhall be in danger of hell fire: and yet himſelfe here cals the Scribes and Phariſes, Fooles and blind guides.

Anſw. As the true Chriſtian, and child of God, doth conſiſt of a double nature, viz., carnall and ſpirituall, ſo there is in him a double anger namely, carnall and ſpirituall; now

The carnall anger is the fruit of the fleſh, and of man, as he is corrupted; and therefore is ſinne and death, Rom. 8. 6. and as evill is forbidden by CHRIST. But 298 The ſpirituall anger is the fruit of the Spirit, unto which the faithfull is led and moved, that thereby ſinne may bee amended, and vice reformed; and by this Spirit, was CHRIST led unto this ſpiritual anger againſt the Phariſees; which is rather to be called Chriſtian reproofe then anger.

The

When wicked men are angry, they are tranſported with madneſſe, fury, and rage; not that they may thereby amend thoſe with whom they are angry, but that they may oppreſſe, diſgrace, or deſtroy them. And this was the anger of the Jewes againſt the Prophets, and the promiſed Meſſiah. Now that anger which proceeds from pride, hatred, contempt, and a ſtudy of revenge is abſolutely forbidden as ſinnefull: but this prohibition doth not take away neither publike nor private reproofes which are joyned and accompanied with Love: And thus CHRIST out of his Love unto the Phariſees, and his duty to God, as he was a Prophet, and his deſire that they might be amended calleth them fooles and blind guides.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Whoſoever ſweareth by the gift that is upon the Altar, is guilty.]

Queſt. What doth our Saviour meane here by the gift that is upon the Altar?

Anſw. For the underſtanding hereof obſerve, That in corrupter times they were wont to ſweare by the creatures (Allium, porrum, & capas inter Deos jurejurando habuerunt Ægyptii. Plin. Lib. 19. Cap. 6. Item Juvenalis Sat. 15) but the Iewes chiefely by Ieruſalem, by the Temple, by the gold of the Temple, by the Altar, and the gift on the Altar. Now this gift in Hebrew was called Corban, and it was one of thoſe oathes, which in our Saviour Chriſts time the Scribes and Phariſees accounted Principally obligatory. If any ſwore by the Altar it was nothing: but if any ſwore by the oblation of the Altar, he was bound to performe it. Hence although Gods Law enjoyned honour, and reliefe towards Parents, yet if they had bound themſelves by this oath Corban, that they would not helpe or releeve them, then they taught they were diſcharged. Ioſeph contr. Apion. lib. 1. Page 147.

Sect. 4. §. 4 Whether is greater, the gift, or the Altar that ſanctifieth the gift.]

Because Smaltius indeed produceth many Arguments to prove that the death of Chriſt was no Sacrifice; therefore ſome of the Schoole-men, and Ieſuits, for the exerciſe of their wit, and diſputation ſake, frame many Arguments for the ſame purpoſe, one of which is this.

Object. 1 Every ſacrifice properly ſo called, hath an Altar properly ſo called: but the death of Chriſt had no ſuch Altar; therefore his death was no proper Sacrifice.

Anſw. 1. Firſt, Perkins (in his reformed Catholike) anſwers, That the divinity of Chriſt was this Altar upon which the humanity was ſacrificed: but I dare not ſubſcribe to this, there being no ſimilitude or reſemblance betweene an Altar, and the divinity of Chriſt. For

I. Wherein can wood or ſtone be like unto the divinity of CHRIST? and how may wee lawfully compare it unto theſe, ſeeing in the Law we are forbidden to liken God unto wood or ſtone?

II. Every Altar ſeemes to be inferiour to its ſacrifice, but the divinity of Chriſt is ſuperiour to his humanity: therefore his divinity was not the Altar whereon his humanity was offred.

Object. 2. Againſt this, this place may be objected; our Saviour here ſaith, Whether is greater, the gift, or the Altar that ſanctifieth the gift? wherein Chriſt ſeemes to imply, That the altar is greater then the ſacrifice. To this we anſwer;

Anſw. That as the Altar ſanctifies the gift, it is greater then the gift; but ſimply conſidered, it is not: that is, if we compare thing with thing, then wee find that the thing ſacrificed is a living creature, and the Altar on which it is ſacrificed is but wood and ſtone; and therefore in themſelves conſidered and as ſuch compared, the gift is greater then the Altar.

III. The divinity of Chriſt may indeed be ſaid to be an Altar, but not ſave onely a Metaphoricall one: now we enquire after a true Altar, for the Papiſts ſay, that a true ſacrifice ſhould have a true Altar; and we ſay, that the death of CHRIST is a true ſacrifice (and not as ſome of the Tranſilvanians ſay, that it may in ſome ſort be called Metaphorically a Sacrifice) and therefore it requires a true Altar.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, the vulgar anſwer is, that the Croſſe of CHRIST was that true Altar; but that was an Altar onely Analogically, not properly; for the croſſe properly is not an Altar, although it is frequent with the Fathers to call the death of Chriſt, Sacrificium crucis, the ſacrifice of the croſſe; and St. Peter ſaith (1 Peter 2. 24.) That CHRIST bare our ſinnes in his owne body on the tree; and St. Paul ſaith, (Coloſ. 2. 15.) Having ſpoiled principalities and powers, he made a ſhew of them openly, triumphing over them in it, that is, in the croſſe. And the ſame Apoſtle ſaith, That he will glory in nothing ſave in the Croſſe of CHRIST: and Bellarmine, when he had accurately handled all the things which belong unto a Sacrifice, he can find nothing to make an Altar of, but the Croſſe: But the Croſſe is not an Altar properly ſo called, for the croſſe, and the Altar differ in their very ends, and ſcope, for the croſſe is ordained for puniſhment, and the Altar for ſacrifice.

Anſw. 3. Thirdly, we anſwer, thoſe things which are required unto a Sacrifice are of two kinds, to wit,

I. Some things belong unto the very eſſence and nature of a Sacrifice. And

II. Some things belong unto the ſolemnity, decencie, and comelineſſe of a Sacrifice. Now an Altar doth not belong unto the firſt ſort, but unto the ſecond; and therefore there may be a ſacrifice without an Altar.

Anſw. 4. Fourthly, we anſwer, that uſuall and ordinary ſacrifices have Altars properly ſo called; but it doth not hence follow, that therefore the ſacrifice of CHRIST muſt have ſuch an Altar, becauſe it was a tranſcendent, and not an ordinary ſacrifice, Chriſt himſelfe being both the knife, oblation, altar and Prieſt.

VERS.

Vers. 20. 21. VERS. 20. 21. Who so therefore shall sweare by the Altar, sweareth by it, and all things thereon. And who so sweareth by the Temple, sweareth by it, and him that dwelleth therein.

Quest. Whether is it lawfull to sweare by the Saints, or by other creatures?

Answ. They take the name of God in vaine, which doe sweare by any other, then by the name of God, and therefore the Rhemists (in hunc locum) erre, who maintaine swearing by the name of Saints. The truth of this answer appeares evidently by these particulars; viz.

First, God commandeth that we should sweare onely by his Name, Deut. 6. 13. and 10. 20. Exod. 23. 13.

Secondly, God reproveth those which sweare by any other then by him: as Zephan. 1. 5.

Thirdly, Invocation belongeth onely unto God, but the taking of an oath is a kind of invocation; therefore it is a service due onely unto God.

Fourthly, in taking of an Oath, we call God to be a witnesse unto our Soule; but God only knoweth the secrets of the heart, and neither Angell nor Saint, nor any other Creature; and therefore we are to sweare by none but God onely.

Fifthly, hee that sweareth, giveth unto him by whom he sweareth, power to punish, if he sweare falsly; but God onely is able to punish the Soule, Matth. 10. 28. And therefore we must sweare onely by him.

Object Against this the Rhemists object thus, It is lawfull to sweare by the name of Saints, because all is referred to the honour of God; as, he that sweareth by the Temple, sweareth by him that dwelleth therein.

Answ. 1 First, in this place CHRIST reproveth the Pharisees for their Swearing, and condemneth it by this argument: that howsoever they thought it a small matter to sweare by the Temple, yet in effect they did sweare by God himselfe: And thus he doth not here justifie swearing by Creatures, but confuteth that nice and unwise distinction of the Pharisees, who taught, That it was nothing to sweare by the Temple, but by the gold of the Temple, verse. 16. CHRIST here shewes, that they could not avoid swearing by God when they did sweare by the Temple, because it was the place of his habitation: and so they did in such an oath take the name of God in vaine. And thus we see the boldnesse of our Rhemists, who dare justifie swearing by creatures by the same reason that CHRIST condemneth it.

Answ. 2 Secondly, our Saviour here saith nothing but this, that in every oath there is an invocation of the divine power, and therefore whosoever sweareth by a creature, committeth idolatry in making it his God.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, if our Saviour should here allow of swearing by Creatures, as by heaven, saying, He that sweareth by heaven sweareth by the throne of God, he should be contrary to himselfe: [for elsewhere he saith, Sweare not at all, neither by heaven, for it is the throne of God, Matth. 5. 34.]

VERS. 23. Woe unto you Scribes, and Pharisees, hypocrites; for yee pay tithe of mint and anise, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the Law, Iudgement, Mercy, and Faith; these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone. Vers. 23

Quest. What things in generall were titheable amongst the Iewes?

Answ. 1 First, their yeerely encrease, was either cattell, fruits of the trees, or fruits of the Land; now of all these they payed tithes even to mint, anise, cummin: as is cleare from this verse.

Secondly, after many corruptions in the Church of the Iewes, many things became questionable, whether they were titheable or no? whence the high Court of their Sanhedrim decreed, That in the things doubtfull which they termed (Demai) though they paid neither first, nor poore mens tithe, yet they should pay a second tithe, and a small heave offering; namely, one part of an hundred. Moses Rotsens. fol. 199. Colum. 3. Now mint, anise, and cummin, seeme to have bene of these doubtfull things, in which, though the decree of their Sanhedrim required but one in the hundred, yet the Pharisees would pay a just tenth; as appeares by this verse; whence it was, that they boasted, That they gave tithes of all that they possessed. Luke, 18. 12. In which they out-stripped the other Iewes, who in these payments, tooke the liberty granted them by the Sanhedrim.

VERS. 24. Yee blind guides, which straine at at a gnat, and swallow a Camell. Vers. 24

Object Bellarmine (Lib. 2. Cap. 1. de Peccato) produceth this place for the proofe of Veniall sinnes; reasoning thus: Some sinnes are compared to things which are most light in their owne nature, and some to things most heavy: Some compared here to Gnats, and some to Camels; and Luke. 6. some to motes, some to beames; and therefore some are veniall, some mortall.

Answ. 1 First, these are proverbiall speeches, and therefore are not to bee extended beyond the scope of CHRIST.

Answ. 2 Secondly, that which is a gnat or a mote comparatively, may be a great mountaine positively, hence the earth is great, and large absolutely, but in comparision of the heavens it is but like a point. And therefore this followes not, some sinnes are small in comparison of others, therefore they are so small and veniall in their owne nature, that they doe not deserve eternall condemnation. Bellarmine himselfe (I know) would confesse if he were alive, that simple fornication were but a small sinne, in comparison of poysoning, and murdering, the Pope, and Cardinals, and Clergie of Rome, and burning to ashes the whole Citie: but from hence to conclude, that therefore fornication is a veniall sinne, were

I. To fall into a heathenish errour (Non est flagitium, juvenem fornicari) who thought that for a young man to commit fornication with a single woman, was a pardonable offence.

II. This

300

II. This were to contradict, and oppose the Apostle Paul even in the very termes; who distinguisheth, and distinctly nameth Adultery and Fornication, and positively affirmeth, that not onely the Adulterer, but also the fornicator, shall never enter into the Kingdome of heaven, 1 Cor. 6. 9, 13.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, in good workes there is such a difference of degrees, betweene the greatest and the least, as there is in sinnes: now the Papists say that ꝑ least good workes merit eternall life as well as the greatest; and therefore not a mote, but a beame is in their eye, who cannot see the least sinnes truely to merit eternall death.

Vers. 25 29. VERS 25. 26. Woe unto you Scribes, and Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye make cleane the outside of the cup and platter, but within they are full of extortion and excesse. Thou blind Pharisee cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be cleane also.

Object. It may here be objected, CHRIST is the promised seed (Gen. 22. 18.) in whom all the nations of the earth are blessed (Galath. 3. 16.) who was not sent to condemne the world, but to save it: (Iohn. 3. 17. and 12. 47. Acts. 3. 26.) and will he twit, and reproach, and disgrace with reproachfull termes and names any. Yea although they were sinners, yet he is mercifull, and meeke, of whom it was foretold, That he should be like a Lambe dumbe before the shearer, not opening his mouth against his persecuters: and we are commanded by him to learne of him to be lowly, and meeke, Matth. 11. 28. And therefore how doth he now upbraid so tartly the Scribes and Pharisees?

Answ. CHRIST doth not calumniate or reproach them out of hatred, as they doe him (Iohn. 7. 20. and 8. 52.) but out of love. Indeed we read that he called Herod Foxe, and the Pharisees, fooles, and blind guides. verse. 16. and blind Pharisees. verse 25. and painted sepulchers. verse. 27. and hypocrites, or dissemblers, and counterfeits, in many verses of this Chapter. but these were onely reprehensions and comminations because they slighted and abused the Gospell. Hence then we may learne.

Obser. That the true Ministers of God are sharpe and tart in reproving the contempt of the Gospell: when they see the word (which is the mighty power of God unto salvation) despised, and scorned, then they stretch forth their voyces like a Trumpet, Esa. 58. and become Boanerges Sonnes of Thunder. Moses was the meekest man in the world, and yet he brake the two Tables for anger, when he saw the Idolatry, and wickednesse of the people, Exod. 32. and afterwards was very angry with Korah and his company, Numb. 16. 15. CHRIST was meeknesse it selfe, and yet hee was angry when the Gospell was despised, and the Messiah, the true Corner stone rejected, Marke 3. 5. and denounceth many woes against such Contemners, verse 13, 14, 15, 16, 25, 27, 29. of this Chapter. Paul, when the Gospell and word of God was slighted and spurned at, separates the Apostles, and departs, and shakes off the dust of his feet, Acts, 19. 9.

Quest. 1. Why must the true Ministers of the word be so sharpe and severe in reproving the contempt and contemners of the Gospell?

Answ. 1. First, because the Gospell is a great grace (Read Rom. 15. 29. and 1. 11. and 1 Thes. 1. 5.) and therefore it is a great ingratitude to slight or reject it, Ierem. 51. 9. Luke, 19. 42. Math. 23. 37.

Answ. 2. Secondly, because the contempt of the Gospell, is the contempt of God: hence CHRIST saith, they have not despised you but me.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, because the contempt of the Gospell is scandalous to those who are without, and makes it evill spoken of. And therefore there is great reason that the Ministers of the word should be sharpe in their reproofes of the contempt of the Gospell, and that, both

I. In regard of the contemners, whose punishment shall be intolerable if they repent not. And also

II. In regard of God, who is despised, when his word is disrespected. And likewise

III. In regard of the Gospell, which becomes odious unto those who enjoy it not, when it is slighted and contemned of those who possesse it.

Quest. 2. What is here required of those people or persons who enjoy the word?

Answ. 1. First, it is required, that they endure patiently the word of reproofe; and not wonder when the contempt of Religion is severely, and tartly reprehended: as wicked children are to be whipped, and franticke men must be scourged, and those who are lethargicall, must be pinched, and with a loud voyce called upon: so those who doe enjoy the word, or have long enjoyed it, and doe not regard it, are sharpely to be rebuked. And Answ. 2. Secondly, it is required of them, to take heed that they doe not provoke CHRIST by the contempt of his word or Gospell. If men be offended with us, men may mediate for us; yea although our sinnes should depresse us, and Sathan provoke us, and the Law condemne us, and the Lord be angry with us, yet CHRIST could reconcile us, and would if we prize as we ought the word of reconciliation, Rom. 8. 25. &c. and 2 Cor. 5. 19, 20. But if CHRIST be angry with us, who shall mediate or intercede for us. If he shut the gates against us (Matth. 25. 22.) and will not owne us: (Matth. 7.) what will become of us? how miserable will our estate and condition be? And therefore if we desire that CHRIST may be our friend, and we Gods favorites, we must not contemne and reject, but respect, value, and obey the Preaching of the Gospell.

Our Saviour having reproved the hypocrisie of the Scribes and Pharisees, who made cleane onely the out side of the cup and platter verse 25; doth now exhort them to cleanse also, yea first, the inside of them. The word here used is worth observing, namely, καθάρισον which signifies to purge in the Physitians sense, as followes by and by.

The care of the Pharisees being onely to keepe the outward man free from the corruptions of the world, and not the inward pure in the sight of God; are reproved here for it by our Saviour, and advised by him unto the contrary: for this 26 verse containes the counsell of CHRIST, concerning the purging of the inward man of the heart: where although the proposition seeme to be single, yet it is indeed double; for our Saviour grants the Thesis, that he may remove the Hypothesis.

The Thesis is purge; The Hypothesis is, not the outward man onely but the inward also, and principally; but I conjoyne them together.

Quest. 2 What is meant by this word Purge? Purge first the inside of the Cup.

Answ. 1 First, sometimes it is taken for sweeping, sometimes for brushing, sometimes for wiping, sometimes for washing, and the like.

Answ. 2 Secondly, but it seemes to have a greater Emphasis, and to signifie something more then all these: And therefore because Physitians who are next unto Divines [I say next, because Theologues are conversant about the soule, Physitians about the body, and Lawyers about the estate; and in that regard the Divine is first, the Physitian second, and the Lawyer third; for as the body is more worth then the estate, so the soule is more worth then the body] use this word in their Art much καθαίρειν to Purge, and καθαρτικὸν Purgation, or purging Potion: and because CHRIST professed himselfe to be a Physitian; and also because the Prophets under the names of diseases and sicknesses did fore-tell of the curing of our sinnes; we will take the word here in the Physitians sense, καθαίρειν, Purge, that is, take a purgation, and purgative potion.

Quest. 4 How many things are observable in Purging?

Answ. Two, namely,

First, the medicine purging: wherein two things are considerable; to wit,

I. What this purgation is?

II. How it comes to be purgative? or whence it is, that so small a potion taken into the stomach, or ventricle, worketh so much, and produceth such effects? namely

First, by its heate.

Secondly, by its attraction.

Thirdly, by its displicencie.

Fourthly, by its contrariety of nature.

Secondly, in purging we must observe also the manner of the receiving of the purgation.

Now here three things are worth our consideration; viz.

I. What is to be purged out: viz.

First, Plethora, the superfluity of good blood.

Secondly, Pinguedo, fatnesse, and windy humours. And Thirdly, Cacochymia, evill, and obnoxious humours.

II. When we must Purge: namely,

First, in respect of the yeare, we must purge in the spring.

Secondly, in respect of the disease, we must purge before the malady be come to its height.

Thirdly, in respect of our age, we must purge in our youth.

III. How long must we purge: to wit,

First, untill we have purged the evill humour out of the body. And

Secondly, untill we have purged it wholy out of the body. Now of all these particularly, and in their order. 301

First, we must consider Medicamentum purgans, the purgation, or purging potion: wherein we have two things to enquire after, namely

First, Quid? What this purgation is, Quest. 3

I. Some say, that it is the crosse, and affliction; others that it is spirituall conflicts, and tentation, others that it is the compunction, and contrition of the heart; and some that it is the holy Spirit. Answ. 1

II. The holy Ghost may indeed be said to be this purgation (whereby sinne is cast out of the soule) by a generall Metonymie of the cause for the effect, otherwise not. Answ. 2.

III. CHRIST indeed is the Phisitian of the soule (Matth. 9. 11.) and the blessed Spirit is the Apothecary, or the hand that reacheth forth Christ unto us, or (more truely) both: and the purgation it selfe, is neither affliction it selfe, nor tentation it selfe, nor any externall or outward things; but the internall motions of the holy Spirit in our hearts. For as the substance of the purgation purgeth not, but the vapours, fumes, and spirits which arise from thence; so it is neither temptation it selfe, nor affliction it selfe that purgeth from sinne (for then all that are tempted or afflicted should be pure from all pollution, which experience proves false) but it is the holy Ghost that workes in, and by these. And therefore if we desire to be washed, and purged from sinne and uncleannesse, we must pray unto CHRIST the Physitian of our soules, that he would be pleased to cleanse us by his holy Spirit. Answ. 3

Secondly, let us now consider, Quomodo catharticum? how the purging potion becomes purgative? or whence it is, that so small a draught, should send forth so much into the draught? Quest. 6

I. Calore, the purgation purgeth by his heat and warmth: for both Galen, and divers other Physitians say, Omne medicamentum purgans est calidum: That all purgatives are hot; and if a potion were compounded of all colde things it would never purge. Answ. 1

Hence then we may learne: That sinne cannot be purged out of the soule, without the warmth and fire of zeale, Read. Luke. 3. 16. and 12. 49. and Marke. 9. 49. and Rom. 12. 16. and 2 Cor. 11. 29. And therefore let us labour that we may be zealous in our Love unto God, and whatsoever is good, and in our hatred unto sinne. Here observe; Sathan knowing the power and might of true zeale, and how it is able to cast downe all his strong holds, and cast him out of our soules; doth therefore endeavour to defame and scandalize true zeale, and that either Observ.

First, Tedio by wearisomenesse, and irksomenesse; it is wonderfull to see in a Christian commonwealth, how little the zeale of Religion is prized, and how much it is slighted, and scorned: which certainly is the worke of the devill himselfe, who is an enemy to man, and whatsoever is truely and spiritually good for man. And therefore we must follow hard after holinesse, without which we cannot be saved: Hebr. 12. 14. remembring that zeale is the fiery Chariot of Elias whereby 302 whereby we are carried or transported, up unto heaven 2 King. 2. 11. And those who are lukewarme shall be spewed out of Gods mouth, Revel. 3. 16. God commanded that the fire which was upon the Altar should never goe out, Levit. 6. 12. thereby to teach us, that the fire of zeale should alwayes burne in the Altar of our hearts, and never be extinguished: without fire the sacrifice could not be consumed; and without the fire of zeale, the sacrifice of sinne cannot be destroyed.

Secondly, the devill doth endeavour to defame, or hinder true zeale, Odio, by hatred; and that two manner of wayes; namely

I. Defamando, by defaming those who are zealous, by a pretence or intimation of hypocrisie: Here

First, those who are thus judged and censured, must (with St. Paul) learne not to set by mans judgement, but labour to approve themselves unto God, by whom they must be judged at the last. And

Secondly, of those who judge and condemne the generation of the just, we demand, why they judge those things which they know not? For

I. Charity forbids this, because that covers a multitude of sinnes, which are seene, and not discovers those which are hid, Prov. 10. 12. and 1 Peter. 4. 8. And

II. What doe they see who thus censure, and judge? Onely good workes, and holy actions, and an unblameable outward life, and conversation; and therefore they should judge the intention by the worke. Indeed the Lord judgeth the action by the intention, but this is his prerogative, because he is the searcher of the heart, and the trier of the reines: but man knowes not the intention of the heart (for who knowes what is in man, but the heart within?) and therefore he must judge the tree by his fruit, Matth. 7. 20. and not censure and condemne to the fire the tree as bad, when the fruit is good, Rom. 14. 4. and 1 Corinth. 4. 5.

II. Sathan labours to make zeale odious, Adulterando, by adulteration of it; he is Gods ape, and can transforme himselfe into an Angell of light, and make many hypocrites, yea heretickes to seeme outwardly zealous, that so zeale may be had in disgrace: The old Pharisees (as may be seene in this Chapter) seemed very zealous, and the new Pharisees (the Papists) seeme so also in many things, and divers at this present seeme outwardly zealous, onely out of hypocrisie. But shall wee condemne zeale therefore in the Abstract? What if some of the Citizens of LONDON or YORKE were covetous, or usurers, or oppressors, or the like; were it therefore a wicked thing to be a Citizen? Suppose that some Lawyers were haters of peace, and stirrers up of strife, and no better then pick-purses; shall we therefore conclude that the Law is evill? If the hands of Judges and Magistrates should be full of bribes, and their hearts of covetousnesse; shall we therefore say, that Iudgement is evill? It is necessary that there should be evill men, that the good may be discerned and knowne; zeale in it selfe is good, though it be abused by many; and therefore we must take away the abuse, but retaine zeale still.

II. Attractione, the purgation becomes to be purgative by attraction; for. Omne purgans attrahit, every thing that purgeth, hath an attractive faculty in it. The humour which is dispersed, and seated, in the more ignoble parts of the body, is by the purgation brought into the ventricle (which is the onely vessell ordained for the receiving of the purgative potion) now the ventricle being overcharged with the weight of the humour, by an avoiding, or ejecting faculty, doth expell it, and cast it forth. Thus sinne having long bene in the habit of the life, and long lurked within, in the hidden man of the heart, is not Purged out, untill it be first attracted, and brought into the Conscience. Whence we may learne, That sinne is purged out by the Conscience; that is, when our consciences accuse us of sinne, or the eyes of our conscience being opened, we see sinne, and seeing of it hate it, with a perfect hatred; then, and never till then, we strive truely to purge it out. Read, Rom. 2. 15. and 2 Cor. 1. 12. and Hebr. 10. 22. and Psal. 139. 21. And therefore let us principally take heed of cauterized consciences. 1 Tim. 4. 2. For so long as we have no conscience of sinne, so long sinne is not purged out. So long as Ioshua had the mouth of the Cave stopped with a great stone, so long he was sure that his enemies, the Kings were there; & so long as a stony heart, stoppe the mouth of conscience, so long the devill knowes, that sinne is there. Wherefore let us arraigne all our sinnes, and summon them to the barre, in the Court of conscience, remembring that if the conscience be wrought to a sight of sinne, and a true hatred thereof, then they shall be pardoned, and purged out.

Answ. 2

Obser. 2

III. Displicentiâ, the purgative potion purgeth by reason of its displicency, and dislike; For. Omne medicamentum purgans est nauseæ provocativum, every purging thing is loathsome to the Ventricle; and that either

Answ. 3

First, because they are bitter, and of a harsh and unpleasant tast; as Aloes, and Coloquintida. Or else

Secondly, because they are irkesome, and loathsome to the Ventricle as all purgatives are (that I know of) except Aloes. Thus sinne is cast out by repentance which is displeasing, and offensive to our nature. That Repentance is offensive to nature appeares thus; viz.

Obser. 3

I. It is bitter: we naturally call the word of God a hard saying, Iohn. 6, 60. and frequently cry out, that the old way of sinne is better, then the new way of repentance and true obedience, Luke. 5. 39. And

II. Repentance is greevous and irkesome unto us; we are ashamed by repentance, to condemne our former lives; and such is the corruption of nature, that we had rather continue in our wicked wayes, then by repentance confesse, that hitherto we have erred from the right way. Repugnat pœnitentiæ natura & verecundia; Natura, quia omnes sub peccato: Verecundia, quia erubescit quisque culpam confiteri, August. Epist. 3. ad Simpl, that is, Both nature and shame are opposite unto repentance; Nature, because all naturally are in sinne: and shame, because all naturally are ashamed to confesse their sinnes. And this is the reason, why so few are converted, and turned unto God; namely, either

sing

First, because idly they spare themselves, and will not take paines to examine their wayes, or sinnes: as many doe, who forbeare this labour because it is no better a worke then raking in a stinking Ditch, and because it would make them out of love with themselves. Or

Secondly, because they are ashamed to confesse and acknowledge their sinnes and errours, Iohn 9. 40. Now we must remember here these foure things, namely.

I. That if we do not judge and condemne our selves here, God will judge, and condemne us hereafter: And therefore it is better to examine our wayes our selves, and to labour to find out our iniquities, while we have leave and space of repentance, then to leave them to be enquired, and sought out by an all-seeing God, when we shall not obtaine one drop or dramme of mercy, though wee seeke it with teares. And

II. We must remember, that it is worse to cover then to discover our sinnes, worse to conceale, then to reveal our iniquities, worse to excuse then to accuse our selves, worse to hide then to confesse our faults: For

First, he that hides his sinne shall not prosper, but he that confesseth shall find mercy, and favour. And

Secondly, he that hideth his sinne dishonours his GOD (1 Iohn 1. 9.) but he that confesseth honoureth his Maker: Whence Iosua said to Achan, confesse thy sinnes and give glory to GOD, Iosua, 7. And

Thirdly, he that hides his sinne shewes evidency, that he preferres either the love of his sinne, or his estimation and credit, before the glory of God, and the good of his owne soule; but he that confesseth his sinnes ingenuously unto God shewes plainly, that he preferres the Glory of his GOD, and the good of his soule before the shame and disgrace of the World, or his owne credit. And

III. We must remember, that Repentance is rightly called, Pœnitentia nunquam pœnitenda, Repentance never to be repented of, 2. Corinth. 7. 10. For he who labours truly to find out his sinnes; will never repent him of that labour: he that is truly sorrowfull for those sinnes which he finds out, will never repent him of that his sorrow; he that truly confesseth those sinnes unto GOD which he sorrowes for, will never repent him of that his confession: he that labours to hate all those sinnes which he hath confessed himselfe guilty of, will never repent him of that hatred: he that purposeth to leave all sinnes which he doth or should hate, will never repent him of that purpose, he that promiseth unto GOD to serve him for the time to come in righteousnesse and true holinesse, will never repent him of that promise: in a word, he that turneth from sinne and whatsoever is evill, and turneth unto God and whatsoever is good, will never repent him of this his repentance and conversion. But on the other side, he who neglects to find out his sinnes, and to sorrow for his sinnes, and to confesse his sinnes, and to hate his sinnes, and neither purposeth to leave his sinnes, nor promiseth to serve God, but continues in sinne and disobedience against him, will certainly repent him (when it is too late) of this his great neglect.

IV. We must remember the reward which is promised unto us, and prepared for us, if we truly repent, notwithstanding the bitternesse, and irkesomnesse thereof unto nature, and flesh and bloud. Now this reward is either

First, spirituall; namely, peace of Conscience, and joy of the holy Ghost. as Iohn 16. 33. Philip. 4. 7. Or Secondly, eternall; to wit, everlasting life, and perfect liberty, and eternall glory, Rom. 8. 18. Now of this reward we have spoken amply before, viz. Chapter 5. 48. and 6. 33. and 19. 29.

Answ. IV. Purgations: become purgative Contrarietate by a certaine contrariety that is in them; For Omne catharticum est natura contrarium, every thing that purgeth is contrary to the nature of the Ventricle, which receiveth the Potion. And the reason hereof is, Ut agat in naturam, et non patiatur ab ea; that so the purgation may worke upon nature, and not be wrought upon by nature; and (according to the Physitians) this is the difference betweene meat and medicine viz.

First, Alimentum, Food received into the stomach, is there Passive, nature working upon it, and disgesting and concocting it, and dispersing the nourishment and moisture thereof into the severall parts of the body. But

Secondly, Medicamentum, Physicke received into the Ventricle, is there active, working upon nature, and ejecting and sending forth what it meets withall. Hence observe Obser. That there is a contrariety and strife betweene the flesh and the Spirit; Or, he who desires that sinne may be purged out, must expect conflicts within himselfe. Read Rom. 8. 6, 7, 12. and 1 Corinthians 2. 14. Rom. 7. 23. Galath. 5. 17. I enlarge not this, because we have spoken something of this spirituall strife before, Chap. 19. 28. qu. 12. Answ. 1.

V. I might adde, that potions become purgative, Modo operandi, by the manner of their working; for a purgation performes a double worke; namely,

First, it attracts and drawes all the humours that are to be purged out into the Ventricle. And so repentance brings all our sinnes into the conscience. Then

304

Secondly, the purgation provokes and irritates the expulsive faculty of the Ventricle, to expell and cast out all those obnoxious and hurtfull humours. So repentance having once brought our sinnes into the Conscience, doth further excite us to purge them out, and to discharge the conscience of them, which is overcharged with them. And thus much may suffice for the first part, namely, Medicamentum purgans, the Potion which purgeth.

Answ. 5

Secondly, the next part is, Modus accipiendi, the manner of the receiving of this purgation; wherein we have three things to consider of; to wit,

Quest. 7 First, Quid purgandum, What is to be purged out?

Answ. 1 I. Plethora, an over-plus of good bloud; or an abundance or fulnesse of good humours in the body; this the Physitians call, A furnisht man, or Athletarum habitus: but iste habitus periculosissimus (Hippocr. et Galen.) It is dangerous for a man so exceedingly to abound with good bloud or humours, for Omne nimium vertitur in vitium, the over-plus of good humours will turne into bad, and upon the least distemper or disorder such a mans health is much indangered. This Plethora is Divitiæ, Riches, to teach us:

Obser. 5 That Divitiarum Plethora, an abundance of riches is very dangerous, a man thereby having fuell for every hellish fire: that is, if a man be rich, he hath a ready supply for the satisfying of every ungodly lust. If a rich man be tempted unto pride in apparell, his money will procure him most rich roabes, if unto drunkennesse or gluttony, his money will buy him the most delicious meate and drinke that is to be had; if unto revenge, for his money he may have instruments of cruelty, or suborne perjurers, or avenge himselfe by suits: if the rich man desire to know any secrets, he hath a golden key which will open any locke, and make a silent man speake: if he be tempted to uncleannesse, his riches perswade him Ἀργυρέαις λόγχαις μάχεσθαι Argenteis telis pugnare, to fight with golden weapons and he shall overcome, because Pecunia obediunt omnia, Golden Bullets will scale the strongest Fort. Now by these and the like animadversions, we may easily see, how dangerous abundance of riches is unto us: if any would see it proved from Scripture, let him read these places, Matth. 13. 22. and 1 Timoth. 6. 9. Genes. 19. 32. Iohn 2. 10. and Prov. 30. 9. 10, 15. and 27. 20. But we have spoken largely of this before. Chap. 6. 24.

Answ. 2 II. Obesitas, fatnesse and grossenesse is to be purged out: or, Obesitas is a phlegmaticall, and windy repletion, which makes the body thicke and fat: and such an one the Physitian cals A grosse or growne man. This Obesitas, is Ventositas honoris, the windinesse of honour; to teach us:

Obser. 6 That ambition and a desire of honour is to be purged out, and avoided: because Honores mutant mores, honours change manners; and therefore the Prophet rightly cals it Locus lubricus, a slippery place, Psalm. 73. 17. Ut fumus petit calum sed perit in aere. As the smoake ascends, and tends upwards, as though it would top the Clouds, and chime the Heavens, but perisheth in the Ayre, and vanisheth and commeth to nothing: so the ambitious man strives to aspire higher and higher, but at last with proud Lucifer is cast downe into Hell.

Quest. 8 Is not honour good? and if so, why then is it to be purged out?

Answ. 1 First, honour in it selfe (when it is conferred upon a man by God, or by man for some worthinesse, or good deserts) is good; but ambition, and an ambitious desire of honour is not good.

Answ. 2 Secondly, I say not that honour is to be purged out, but ambition, and the ambitious desire of honour. Yet

Answ. 3 Thirdly, honour, preferment, and high places, are dangerous baits and snares; and therefore not to be desired, but as perillous, moderately and warily to be borne: that is, if honour be conferred upon any, they must be carefull to behave themselves humbly and lowlily, least they be infected with the vices which attend upon those who are in honour. Now those who are in honour, are in a dangerous estate, in a threefold regard, viz.

I. Facilitate peccandi, in regard of their pronnesse unto sinne: for such know that they are potent, and can defend themselves, and like Lycurgus his great Flies, breake through the Law, and escape from it: as the Tribe of Dan did, Judg. 18. 25.

II. Difficultate reprehendendi, in regard of the difficulty of reprehension; for few dare reprove great men, and few great men will suffer themselves to be reproved, or care for those who reprehend them. Read 1 King. 22. 27. Amos 7. 12.

III. Difficultate pœnitendi, in regard of the difficulty of repentance, for as great men are prone to sinne, and unwilling to be reproved for their sinnes, so they are hardly drawne to repentance though they be reproved. Peccavit David sic Reges solent; Panituit David, sic Reges non solent, August. Lib. 1. de Dav. David sinned, so most great men doe; David repented him of his sinne, and endured the word of reproofe patiently, and so few great men doe.

Answ. 3. III. Cacochymia, all ill juyce, and obnoxious humours are to be purged out; and so the pollution and seeds of sinne are to be evacuated, and purged out of the heart by repentance. Read Luke 3. 3. 8. Acts 2. 28. and 3. 19. I enlarge not this because we have handled it before, Chap. 3. 2.

And thus we have heard, Quid purgandum? what is to be purged out?

Qu. 10 Secondly, Quando, when are these things to be purged out?

Answ. 1 I. Vere, in the Spring; Quia tum rore cœli et calore solis liquescunt humores, et fluunt; Because then by reason of the dew of Heaven, and the heat of the Sunne, the humours in the body become more thinne, moist, and tender. And so the dew and heat of the Spirit mollifies our hearts. Hence observe.

That the best time to purge our sinne, is when our hearts are mollified, and softned by the the motions and operations of the holy Spirit. Here observe three things; viz.

First, our hearts naturally are stony, and stones we know will receive no stampe nor impression; But

Secondly, God powres water upon our hard hearts and then they begin to grow soft: Read Esa 44.3. Ioel, 2.28. Iohn, 7.37. Ezech. 36.25, 26. for these places both prove and explaine the point. And

Thirdly, when our hearts are thus mollified by the worke of the holy Ghost, then is the fittest time for us to labour, to cast out sinne.

Que. 10 What is here required of us?

Answ. 1 I. We must remember, and acknowledge, that it is not in our power to repent when we will, we being like metall hard, and molten; that is, hard by nature, and molten by grace: and therefore untill God melt and soften us by his Spirit, and grace, we cannot repent.

Answ. 2 II. We must watch for the motions, and operations of the Spirit in our hearts, as the diseased people waited (for the Angels troubling of the water) at the poole of Bethesda. For the Lake is the conscience, the Angel is the holy Ghost, the sicke and diseased, are sinners: and the sicke were not cured, except they presently stepped in, so except, when the Spirit toucheth and woundeth the conscience, we bring our sinnes into our consciences, we cannot be healed. And this is the cause, why

First, many goe unto perdition; because they will not acknowledge the time of their visitation, Luke 19.44. And

Secondly, why their damnation is just; because they will not heare the Lords call: As those who are in prison should wait for the opening of the Prison doore, so we (who by nature are the captives of Sathan) should wait, when the Lord opens the prison doores, and cals us forth, for otherwise we shall be left without excuse, Prov. 1.24, 26. &c. Amos 8.12.

Answ. 3 III. We must therefore run when God cals upon us, and lay hold upon all offers of mercy, which God, makes unto us. Fronte capillata, post est occasio calva; that is,

Before occasion hath much haire,
But she behind is wholy bare.

When occasion presents her selfe unto us, wee should lay hold upon her, because if she turne her backe upon us we cannot then hold her though we would. The Grecians observed a true difference betweene καιρὸς Occasion, and χρόνος Time, to wit, that every καιρὸς Occasion, was χρόνος a Time; but not contrarily, that every Time was an Occasion; and therefore we must strike while the iron is hote; and worke while the waxe is warme and soft; we must convey our selves from the Ilands of sinne before the icy hardnesse of our hearts be againe congealed; we must neither delay the time, nor delude our selves, nor despise the Spirit, nor destroy our owne soules through a slothfull lingering: but labour that all the sparkes of the Spirit may be kindled into a flame, and all the conditions of mercy willingly accepted, and yeelded unto. 305

Answ. 2 Viribus constantibus, we must purge while we have strength of nature; or, before our sicknesse comes to his height and strength, lest the strength of the Ventricle be so decayed, that it is not able to doe his office; or lest if the Ventricle be sicke it vomit up the purgation. Thus we must strive to bring our sinnes into our Consciences, and then to purge them out, before we be hardned through a habite, and custome of sinne. Or

Obser. 8 We must repent us of our sinnes, before our sinnes have increased to too great a heape. Profitable is the advice of the Phylitians here;

Ovid. Principiis obsta, sero medicina paratur,
Cum mala per longas convaluêre moras:
That is,
If Physicke bee neglected long,
Our paines and griefe must needs be strong.
Therefore at first withstand that ill.
Which daily groweth worser still.

We must give no way to the water course, but stop the breach at the first, withstand the least and smallest beginnings of sinne. We are wont to say of our sinnes, as Lot did of Zoar, These are little ones, and little regard or care is to be had of them: At ne despicias quia parva, sed time quia plura (August. de 10. chordis) We must not despise them because they are small, but feare them because they are many. Many drops may hollow a stone, and sinke a Ship; yea drowne the World, many Bees may kill a Beare, and wormes may destroy Antiochus, and Lice Herod: and therefore we must slight no sinnes because they are petty ones in our eyes, but remember that there is nothing so little that shall goe for naught. We thinke the neglect of preaching, and publike Prayers, and the prophanation of the Lords day, and petty oathes, to be small sinnes, not worth the speaking of, thus heaping (as the Proverbe is) Athos upon Ætna so long, till the stomach being debilitated vomite up all good meanes. If David had (with Iob) made a covenant with his eyes, he had not fallen. If Peter had marked the first crowing of the Cocke, he had not sworne; and if Esau had sought for mercy in time with teares, he had not beene rejected, Hebr. 12.17.

Answ. 3 III. Ætate juvenili, we must purge when we are young, Quia in sene humores sunt viscidi; Because the humours in old men are more tough, viscous, and clammy: Thus sinne by custome becomes habituall, and habites like a second nature, are hardly left: Wherefore we must learne to repent in our youth, and to serve our God in our best and young yeares, Eccles. 12.1.

Obser. 9 There are three watches; Whereof

306 The first, is, Pueritia, Childhood: And
The second Adolescentia, Youth, And
The third Senectus, old age. Now those who have neglected to purge out sinne in their Childhood, must deferre it no longer, but forthwith purge it out in their youth, and those who have spent both Child-hood and Youth in vanity, must not delay it a day more, but while it is said, To day, turne to the Lord, lest sinne become so habituall, usuall, and naturall unto them, that they cannot cease to sinne, 2. Peter 2. 14. Nam quos diu ut convertantur tolerat, non conversos durius damnat (Hier. ſ. Matth. 20.) The longer time and space that God gives us unto repentance, the greater shall our punishment be, if we repent not. And therefore we must doe as Seneca said he did: that is, [Ante senectutem ut bene viverem, in senectute ut bene moriar] labour in our youth to live well, and in our age to dye well: because if we should not turne from our sinnes untill our old age, then we should not leave sinne, but sinne us: and this is the great and grosse errour of the world, for men not to begin to repent untill they be going out of the world, nor to thinke of living well, untill they are a dying: but this we must take heed of, because they seldome dye well, who live ill, if we live unto Sathan, we must not expect to dye unto God.

Queſt. 10 Thirdly, Quousque purgandum? How long must we purge?

Anſw. 1 I. E Corpore, we must purge, till we have purged that which was hurtfull out of our body; for otherwise if the obnoxious humour be brought into the ventricle and not then cast our, it kils by overcharging and suppressing the stomach. So if sinne be brought into the Conscience, and not then purged out, it drives to insensibility, or desperation.

Anſw. 2. II. Totum, we must labour to purge all the evill humours out of the body; lest otherwise we fall into a Relapse (if any remainders be left behind) and our second sickness proves more perillous then the first. Hence two things are observable, to wit,

First, that we must labour to leave all our sinnes; for he that is guilty of one sinne is guilty of all And

Secondly, that we must labour to leave all sinne for ever, Matth. 12. 45. 2. Peter 2. 20.

One question more may be demanded from these verses, and the precedents namely,

Que. 11 To what purpose tended all the speeches of CHRIST?

Anſw. The words of our Saviour tended either

First, to the praise of his Father; and many are the speeches to this end, in St. John, and Matth. 11. 25. &c. Or

Secondly, to teach men what to doe; and hereunto belong all the precepts and instructions of the Gospell. Or

Thirdly, to reprehend wickednesse and vice; and hereunto are referred all the reprehensions, and comminations of the Gospell, and this Chapter speakes principally of these.

Verſ. 34 35. VERS. 34, 35. Wherefore behold, I send unto you Prophets, and Wisemen, and Scribes, and some of them ye shall kill and crucifie, and some of them shall ye scourge in your Synagogues, and persecute them from City, to City: That upon you may come all the righteous blood shed upon the Earth, from the blood of righteous Abel, unto the blood of Zacharias, the sonne of Barachias, whom ye slew betweene the Temple and the Altar.

§. 1. Behold I send unto you Prophets, and many of them ye shall kill and crucifie. Sect. 1.

Argum. It is disputed betweene us, and the Romanists, whether St. Peter were at Rome or not? and we say that if he were there, yet he could not sit there five and twenty yeares as they hold; but that it is probable, that he was never there: and herein we have some evidence even from other Churches: viz.

First, from some of their owne side: as Lyranus (upon this place) saith, Some of them ye shall kill, as Iames the Brother of Iohn, &c. and some yee shall crucifie, as Peter and Andrew his Brother. And thus he thinkes that Peter was crucified at Ieruſalem.

Secondly, from the Greeke Church; as Chryſoſtome (upon this place) saith, Behold I send unto you Prophets &c. Intelligit Apoſtolos, et qui cum Apoſtolis fuerunt: He understandeth the Apostles, and those who were with the Apostles; whence it appeares, that his opinion is, That some of the Apostles should be crucified at Ieruſalem: But they can shew non else to have beene crucified there, unlesse it were Peter or Andrew: and Bellarmine (Lib. 2. de Pontif. Cap. 10.) confesseth that Andrew was put to death in Achaia.

Thirdly, from other Divines of the reformed Churches, who have objected also against Peters being, and dying at Rome: as Vldaricus Velenus, who hath written a Treatise of this Argument: and Illyricus, Lib. cont. primat. pap. and Calvin: Lib. 4. Inſtit. Cap. 6. §. 15. Magdeburgenſ. Centur. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 10. Col. 561.

Fourthly, from the South & Æthiopike Churches although they deny not Peter to have beene at Rome, yet they hold it of more certainty that he was at Antioch, which made the great Emperour there aske Alvares (Alvares deſcript. Æthiop. Cap. 29.) Why they divided the Churches of Antioch and Rome, seeing the Church of Antioch was in a manner the chiefest, untill the Counsell of Pope Leo &c. And indeed of Peters being at Antioch there is evidence in Scripture, Galath. 2. 11. but of his being at Rome none at all.

§. 2. From the blood of righteous Abel. Sect. 2.

Queſt. At whom did the Church of the faithfull begin?

Anſw. At Abel; and thus our Saviour seemes here to begin it.

Obiect. Against this it may be objected, That if we reckon the Church from Abel, we leave our Adam who was the first faithfull man.

Anſwt. First, the Fathers used so to accompt the Church: Augustine (ſ. Pſalm. 92.) Eccleſia eſt, qua ab ipſo Abel uſque ad finem: The Church begins at Abel, and continues to the end of the World.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, our men also reckon the Church from Abel, Lubbert. de eccleſ. page 7. 13, 23. And

Thirdly,

Answ. 3. Thirdly, our learned Doctor Field gives the reason: God wanted not a Church in Adam, yet because Abel was the first, that the Scripture reporteth,

I. To have worshipped God with Sacrifice. And

II. To have beene divided from cursed Cain. Therefore we usually say, That the Church of the redeemed began in Abel. De eccles. page 9.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, Alexander de Ales (part. 3. quæst. 95. memb. 4.) saith, Ab Abel dicitur incepisse Ecclesia justorum, sicut ecclesia malignantium a Cain. The Church of the righteous is said to beginne at Abel, as the Church of the wicked doth at Cain. Ratio hujus est &c. And the reason hereof is, because although Adam was the first righteous man, yet if the Church of the Righteous should therefore be said to begin at him; then by the same reason the Church of the wicked should begin at him also, because as he was the first Saint, so he was also the first Sinner; as he was the first righteous man, so he was the first rebellious. Now it is not meete that both the Churches should take their beginning at one and the same man: Et ideo recte distinguuntur duo &c. And therefore fitly there are two distinguished; that so from a Righteous man (namely Abel) the Church of the Righteous might take her beginning: and contrarily, from Cain, who was finally wicked, the Church of the wicked might likewise take hers.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Unto the blood of Zacharias, whom ye slew betweene the Temple and the Altar.]

St. Augustine [Serm. 242. de tempore] layes down the History of this Zachary thus. Zacharias the high Priest, reproving the rebellious people for their neglect of the worship of God, and his sacred Lawes, was slaine of the people; and the detestable band of the Jewes dyed the pavement with his blood, in the ninth yeare of the raigne of Joas King of Iudah: which cruelty against this good man the whole Nation of the Jewes paid deare for; for when a yeare was past, an Army of the Syrians came up against Ioas, and slew all the Princes of Iudah and Hierusalem; Rabbi Iehosua reporteth that 21 1000. were slaine in the Field, and 9400c. in the City, for the expiation of the bloud of Zacharias, which bloud boyled out of the earth till that day, as it were out of a seething Caldron.

Quest. Unto whom may this murder be fitly resembled.

Answ. Unto those who receive the Lords Supper unworthily: For

First, when the Jewes slew Zacharias they slew a Prophet; and they who receive the Lords Supper unworthily, slay the chiefest Prophet of all.

Secondly, as Zacharias was slaine by the Jewes on the Sabbath day; so is Christ by the unworthy receivers of this Sacrament, it being ordinarily celebrated upon the Lords day.

Thirdly, as the Jewes shed Zacharias his bloud in the Temple, so doe unprepared Communicants spill and spurne the blood of Christ in his Fathers house.

Fourthly, as the Jewes slew him upon the Altar, so Christ is crucified againe upon the Lords Table (the Metaphoricall Altar) by wicked receivers.

Fifthly, as there was no dust to cover the blood of Zacharias, where it was shed, so no more is there at the Lords Table. Weemse christian synag. pag. 287. 307

VERS. 37. O Hierusalem, Hierusalem, thou that killest the Prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together; even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not. Vers. 37

§. 1. O Hierusalem, Hierusalem.] Sect. 1

Why doth our Saviour repeat, or double this word? Quest.

First, he shewes hereby, how he is (in a manner) amazed with admiration, that after so many great benefits, the Jewes should yet remaine unthankfull. And Answ. 1

Secondly, he shewes hereby his detestation of this ingratitude. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, he excites them hereby unto a serious meditation of their misery and his mercy, of their rebellion, and his pitty, commiseration, and deploration for them. Answ. 3

§. 2. How gladly would I have gathered you together but ye would not.] Sect. 2

What is the true sense and meaning of these words, Oh Hierusalem, I would gladly have gathered thy children together, but ye would not? Quest.

First, some answer that Christ by his Antecedent will would gather the Jewes, as a Hen gathereth her Chickens; but by his consequent will, he would scatter them through all Nations. Damascene (de orthodox fid. Lib. 2. Cap. 29.) doth set downe two wils of God; the one προηγουμένην or Antecedent; the other ἑπομένην or Consequent. Now some Moderne Divines describe both the parts of it thus. Answ. 1

I. The Antecedent will of God (say they) is that whereby God doth wils any thing to the reasonable creature, before all the actions of it, or before any act of that creature.

II. The Consequent will is that, whereby he doth will any thing to the reasonable creature, after any one act, or after many acts of the creature. Their meaning is this, God at first did really, and fully intend, and will, to save the Jewes, but afterwards perceiving their stubbornesse, obstinacy, and disobedience, he did intend and will to destroy them.

Secondly, others answer that Christ as man willed their conversion and salvation. See the second Answer of the foregoing Objection. Or Answ. 2 Answ. 3

Thirdly, Christ speakes this by way of approbation in regard of them, and their good: I would have gathered them together, &c. That is, it would have beene well with them, and for them, if they would have heard my cals, and turned unto me, but they would not, and therefore they shall be made desolate and miserable, verse 38. Or Fourthly, our Saviour speakes this by way of command; I would have gathered you together, &c. That is, I commanded you to come unto me, and it was your duty to have come at my call, and to have given the utmost of your endeavour to obey my behests; but ye would not, and therfore for the neglect of your duty, you are left without excuse. Or Answ. 4

308

Fifthly, Christ hereby shewes the nature of his word, and the dispensation thereof: which doth instantly perswade unto faith and obedience. But of this more in the last answer. Or

Answ. 5

Answ. 6 Sixthly, our Saviour meanes, that by these meanes which the Jewes enjoyed many were and are daily effectually called unto God and converted.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, Christ speakes here to Ierusalem, and saith, That he would have gathered her Children together; but Hierusalem her selfe resisted with all her power. Now Hierusalem is one thing, and her children another, who here are expressely distinguished from the City.

I. By Hierusalem we may understand the Priests, Levits, Scribes, Pharisees, and the Prince of the people, for these did most of all withstand CHRIST.

II. By her Children, we may understand the people. Now our Saviour saith, That he would have gathered together these children (and questionlesse he gathered together many of the) but the Scribes, Pharisees, and Priests, did withstand it with all their might, and as much as in them lay.

Answ. 8 Eighth, our Saviour speakes here of his revealed will, Calvin (harm. Evang.) saith, That the will of God here spoken of, is to be considered by the effect. When he sendeth forth Preachers to move all to turne unto him, he is rightly said, that he would gather them; Cajetane (in hunc locum) excellently explicates these words of our Saviours: Quoties volui? voluntate signi, praecipiendo, monendo, visitando per Prophetas, et demum per meipsum. How often would I have gathered you together: that is, by my revealed will; for I have counselled and advised you, I have commanded and injoyned you, I have visited and called upon you both by my Prophets, and also by my selfe. Now this appeares to be the genuine sense of these words, by these particulars; viz.

I. From these words, woe be unto you which kill the Prophets, and stone those who are sent unto you.

II. From that Adverbe of number (Quoties, how often,) which is adjoyned to the act of willing; Quoties volui? How often would I?

Ninthly, for the complaint of Christ: we say, that he justly complained of these who would not come unto him, and beleeve in him, and obey him, although they were destitute of grace; because they were deprived of it by their owne fault, who willingly continued in that bad estate wherein they were, and did not endeavour as much as they might unto a better. Answ. 9

§. 3. As a Hen gathers her Chickens under her wings.] Sect. 3.

What analogy or resemblance is there betweene Christs love unto his people, and the Hens unto her young ones? Quest.

First, as the Hen nourisheth her Chickens with her wings, when they are unfeathered: so doth the LORD nourish, and cherish, and refresh, those who are Infants in grace, covering them with those wings under which are healing and salvation. Answ. 1

Secondly, as the Hen provideth food for her Chickens, and will not eate her selfe, till she perceive them to be full: so the Lord careth for his Children, and provideth for them whatsoever he sees them to want and stand in need of, whether spirituall or temporall. Answ. 2

Thirdly, as the Hen defends her young ones against raveneous birds, and fights unto blood with Kites, and such birds of prey for their safety: so the Lord protects, and defends his children against all their adversaries, whether bodily or ghostly. Answ. 3

CHAP. XXIIII.

Vers. 1, 2. VERS. 1, 2. And JESVS went out and departed from the Temple, and his Disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the Temple. And Iesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? Verely I say unto you there shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be throwne downe.

Why doe Christs Disciples shew him the buildings of the Temple, which they knew were not unknowne unto him?

First, they did this to move him to mercy, and lest the Temple should have beene destroyed, as he affirmed before, Chapter 23. 38. Or

Secondly, the Disciples did this, that upon a serious consideration and observation of the Pompe and statelinesse of the building, our Saviour might be the more carefull to preserve it from destruction; as though God regarded outward ornaments and pompe. Or

Thirdly, they shewed him the Temple to insinuate secretly thereby, how difficult, yea impossible it was for it to be destroyed, especially considering the strength of the City also. And hence our Saviour seemes to answer, See yee not all these things, &c.

When was this prediction fulfilled, That not one stone should be left upon another, which should not bee throwne downe?

This prophecie was not onely accomplished in the destruction of the old Temple, but then also, when in Iulian the Apostates time, the Jewes being by him encouraged to build the Temple, what was built in the day, was cast downe in the night; and besides a fire fell from Heaven, that consumed the worke, and worke-mens instruments: which Cyrillus Bishop of Hierusalem then seeing, applied unto that event this prediction of our Saviour. Sic Socrat. Lib. 3. Cap. 17.

VERS.

Vers.3. VERS. 3. And his Disciples said, Tell us, What shall be the Signe of thy comming, and of the end of the world?

The Apostles aske CHRIST a question, but receive no direct or definite answer; they would know when the day of Judgement would come; but CHRIST answers them generally, that the comming thereof is uncertaine, and will not be yet a good while: whence two Questions may be made, viz.

Quest.1 Why will not CHRIST designe, and tell unto them, and us, the certaine yeare and day when hee will come unto Judgement?

Answ.1 First, he will not definitly and punctually shew it, that we might watch, and pray, and give our selves unto holinesse and righteousnesse. And Answ.2 Secondly, that hee might represse, and stay our curiosity.

Quest.2 Why doth CHRIST so long deferre his comming, seeing the world is set upon mischiefe and wickednesse?

Answ.1 First, that the number of the Elect might be compleatly gathered together. And

Secondly, that thereby he may prove the faith, hope, and patience of his children. And

Thirdly, that the godly may be incited thereby unto Sanctification and purity, Luke, 21.34. And Fourthly, that the wicked may be left without excuse, Rom. 2.1;4. and 2 Pet. 3.8,9.

Vers.5. VERS. 5. For many shall come in my Name saying; I am CHRIST: and shall deceive many.

Our Saviour in saying here, that many shall come in his name, saying, they are CHRIST, seemes to imply, that many Antichrists under the name of Christ shall deceive many. Whence these questions may be demanded; namely,

Quest.1 How many waves is the name CHRIST taken, that our Saviour saith here, Many shall come in his Name, saying, they are Christs?

Answ.1 First, it is taken sometimes Commonly; and thus the name of Christ belongeth to all that are anointed of God; and that either to the speciall calling of a King, Prophet, or Priest, or to the generall calling of a Christian. And in this sense it is taken, either

I. More largely for the whole body of those who professe the name of Christ, whereof some are members of Christ in title and profession onely. Or,

II. More strictly for the society of the Elect, the Citizens of heaven, who have the marke of God (Revel. 9.4.) and are not onely in shew and profession, but also indeed and in truth members of the mysticall body of CHRIST.

Answ.2. Secondly, the name of Christ is taken sometimes properly, and peculiarly, ὁ Χριστὸς and signifieth JESVS the Sonne of God, who was anointed with the oyle of gladnesse above all his fellowes, and is the head after a generall manner, of all Christians, but more especially of the Elect.

Vers.6,7 VERS. 6,7. And yee shall heare of Warres and rumors of warres: See that yee be not troubled: for all these things must come to passe, but the end is not yet. For Nation shall rise against Nation, and Kingdome against Kingdome, and there shall be Famines, and Pestilences, and Earthquakes in divers places.

These verses, and divers others which follow in this Chapter, doe partly respect the troubles of the Church, and partly the destruction of Ierusalem, and the wonders which went before it: and therefore a word of either.

Quest.1 When was this fulfilled, There shall be warres and rumours of warres?

Answ. There have been Warres and rumour of warres in former ages. For in the first 300 yeares after Christ, were tenne most terrible Persecutions: and since in Europe the Church of God hath been wonderfully persecuted by the Romanists in the hundred yeares last past, and upwards. And thus this Prediction respects the Church of Christ.

Quest.2 What prodigious and wonderfull things fell out before the destruction of Ierusalem?

Answ. The wonders which were seene before Ierusalem was destroyed, besides the threatnings of the Prophets, were such, as might well perswade the Iewes of their Calamities and miseries not then beleeved, but afterwards felt. These, are the words of Iosephus, and those which follow, Ioseph. l.7.c.12.

First, they saw right over the City of Ierusalem, a fiery burning Comet, most like a bloody naked Sword flourishing to and fro over the Citie, which continued for the space of one whole yeare.

Secondly, there was a sudden cleere shining Light, as bright as day-light being in the night-time. Now this light only shined about Salomons Temple, and about the sacrificing Altars, the which the Iewes construed to be their better fortune, but were therein deceived.

Thirdly, an Oxe being brought to the Temple to be slaine and sacrificed upon a festivall day, according to the Iewish manner, brought forth (against the course of nature) a Lambe in the midst of the Temple, which was terrible and monstrous.

Fourthly, the East brazen gate of Salomons Temple [which was so great, and so heavy with iron barres, and great brazen bolts, that Vix a viginti viris claudaretur, twenty strong men could scant shut it] opened it selfe most willingly. And this some of the ignorant Jewes prognosticated should be some great good thing to come.

Fifthly, upon the 21 day of May was seene a sight, which seemed to be an hoste of men armed running on Horseback, and in Chariots, about the City in the skyes, a little before Sun-setting.

Sixthly, when the Priests went unto the Temple in the Feast of Pentecost, as they were wont to doe by Night, to celebrate divine Service, they upon a sudden felt the ground quiver under their feet, and the Temple shooke, and a voyce speaking, Migremus hinc, let us depart hence.

Seventhly, and lastly, there was a Country-man, one Iesus the sonne of Ananus, who for 7. yeares and five monoths before the destruction, ceased not daily crying and exclaiming in every corner of the City, and in every street, but especially in the Temple upon the Sabbath day, saying, Vox ab oriente, vox ab occidente, vox a quatuor ventis, vox in Ierosolymam, & Templum

&

310 & vox in omnem hunc populum. That is, a voyce from the East, and West, and the foure corners of the world; a voyce against Ierusalem, the Temple, and the whole Nation of the Iewes. This cry he continued, though he was punished by the Magistrates, and brought before Albinus the Romane, which was then Cæsars Deputy in Ierusalem, insomuch as he was thought to be some furious foole; and therefore they whipped him, and let him goe, and being gone from them he cryed, Va, va civitati, va phano, va populo, & va mihi. Woe, woe be to this City, woe be to the Temple, woe be to the Jewes, and last of all, woe is me for my selfe. This Iosephus (who wrote this History) saw with his eyes, and heard with his eares.

Verse, 9. VERS. 9. Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and yee shall be hated of all nations for my Names sake.

Our Saviour here fore-telling his Disciples of the afflictions and persecutions which attend the faithfull, may occasion these two questions: viz.

Quest. 1 Whether is it lawfull Vim vi repellere, if we be persecuted, to resist, and rebell, and take up armes against those who persecute us, though it were the King himselfe?

Answ. We must not rebell, nor avenge our selves. Saul through wicked Doegs meanes slew 85 Priests. 1 Samuel. 22. 18. And yet Dauid will not suffer his servants to avenge it. 1 Sam. 26. 9. Ahab by Iezabel slew Naboth, and yet Elias doth not depose him, 1 Kings, 21. 8, 18. Herod slew Iames, and would have slaine Peter, Acts, 12. 2. And yet Peter deales not with him, as with Ananias, Acts, 5.

Quest. 2 What are the Remedies against Persecution, or, what must we doe in times of Persecution?

Answ. 1 First, we must flee from it, if wee can without offence, Math. 10. 23.

Secondly, if we cannot flee from it, we must suffer it, Math. 24. 13. Luk. 21. 19.

Thirdly, we must pray against it, Psalm. 50. 15. Dan. 6. 10. Acts, 12. 5.

Fourthly, wee must referre, commit, and commend our selves to God. Dan. 3. 17.

Fifthly, we must cheerefully expect that heavenly and happy reward which is promised unto all those who suffer for CHRIST patiently. Matth. 5. 11. Rom. 8. 18.

Vers. 11 VERS. 11. And many false Prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many.

Obser. Our Saviour in these words doth expressly teach this truth unto us, That there are some who pretend to leade men unto CHRIST, but indeed intend to seduce and deceive them, Rom. 16. 18. and Titus, 1. 10. and 2 Pet. 2. 1.

Quest. 1 Why doe false Prophets, and false Teachers goe about to deceive others? Doe they not also deceive themselves?

Answ. 1 First, some deceive through obstinacie, and perversnesse, Ierem. 23. 1. and 29. 9. Philip. 3. 18. and 1 Tim. 4. 1. and 2 Pet. 1. 12.

Secondly, some deceive through Covetousnesse, Answ. 2 2 Pet. 2. 15. Iude, 11.

Thirdly, some deceive through pleasure, and drunkennesse, Esa. 28. 7.

Fourthly, some being past feeling themselves, and of cauterized Consciences, labour to deceive others, Ephes. 4. 19. and 2 Tim. 4. 2.

Fifthly, others seduce and are seduced, that is, doe deceive others, and are deceived themselves. (Read 1 Kings, 22. 23. and 2 Tim. 3. 13. Ezech. 14. 9. and 2 Thessal. 2. 11.) And that either

I. Because they are ignorant, and blind; as Esay, 56. 10. Or

II. Because they doe not examine, whether that which they teach, be true or false. And therefore seeing there are so many false Teachers, we must take heed, and not beleeve every spirit.

How may we know, or discerne false Teachers, Quest. 2 and deceitfull Prophets?

First, wee may know them by their Covetousnesse; for such for the most part are covetous. Answ.

Secondly, we may know them by their flattery; for such for the most part are fawning flatterers.

Thirdly, they goe unto those that are ignorant, credulous, and simple, 2 Tim. 3. 16.

Fourthly, they goe when, and whither they were not sent, Ierem. 14. 15.

Fifthly, they labour to hinder and harme the true Prophets of the Lord, Amos, 7. 10.

Sixthly, they teach secretly, and like wilde beasts creepe abroad in the night, Psal. 104. 20. whereas Veritas non quærit angulos, Truth seekes no corners.

Seventhly, they laud, praise, and commend Ignorance, contrary to the Apostle, Coloss. 3. 16.

Eightly, they prohibite the Scriptures, and hinder the Preaching of the word. Lucernam extinguunt fures, Theeves put out the light; because darknesse best becomes their deeds of darknesse: now the Word is a light; and therefore false Teachers are afraid to be discovered by it.

Ninthly, they appoint and choose another Judge besides the Scripture for the tryall of their Doctrine; namely, Traditions, and custome, and the like, Math. 15. 9. Coloss. 2. 8.

Tenthly, they teach another Gospell besides the Gospell of CHRIST; and doctrines contrary to the word of God, Deut. 18. 20. Gal. 1. 8. Ezech. 13. 3, 14. and 1 Timoth. 1. 3. and 6. 3. Although Teachers should neither doe nor speake against the truth, 2 Cor. 13. 8. Thus the Papists teach,

I. That the Father may be painted; contrary to Deut. 4. 15. And

II. That Creatures may be worshipped; contrary to Acts. 10. 26. Revel. 19. 10. and 22. 9. And

III. They teach humane devices, and will-worship; contrary to Coloss. 2. 18, 23.

Eleventhly, they teach divellish doctrines, 1 Tim. 4. 2. And Twelfthly, they despise Authority, 2 Pet. 2. 10. Iude, 8.

Thirteenthly, they teach lyes, and (Pias fraudes) godly deceits, Ierem. 29. 9. and 1 King. 13. 18.

How may we beware and avoyd these, or, What Quest. 3 are the remedies against false Teachers, and deceitfull workmen?

First,

Answ. 1 First, we must not be too credulous, and inconstant, Ephes. 4.14. Heb. 13.9.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we must be frequent and diligent in hearing and reading the word of God, 1 Pet. 2.2.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, wee must search the Scriptures, and examine those things which are taught by the Scriptures, Iohn, 5.39. Acts, 17. 11.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, we must pray unto God, to give us wisedome, and understanding, and to leade us in his truth. Iam. 1.5. Psal. 119.33.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Shall bee saved.]

Obser. Our Saviour by these words would teach us, That the end of all the Promises, the perfection of man, the very complement of happinesse, and the chiefest felicity man can expect or looke for, is to be saved with CHRIST in the Kingdome of heaven, Read Matth. 5.3,8,10. and 13.43. Marke. 10. 30. Luke. 12. 32. and 22. 29. and Iohn. 3. 15, 16, 36.

Quest. 1 How doth it appeare that salvation is mans greatest felicity?

Answ. It appeares thus, because we were created unto this, that God might be glorified by our conjunction with him. We were created in the Image of God, for these ends; viz,

First, that we might enjoy him for a time in grace. And Secondly, that at length we might enjoy him for ever in glory. We

I. Know God darkely, and imperfectly: And

II. At last we know him perfectly, and clearely. 1 Cor. 13. We are now in darkenesse, and the image of God is naturally obliterated in us: but it shall be restored againe in the knowledge of God (Iohn 17.3.) and that

First, in grace, And

Secondly, afterwards in glory: which is called life eternall.

Quest. 2 Who are here blame worthy?

Answ. Those who are carefull for all other things, and onely careleſse of Heaven, and their everlasting happinesse. Here observe foure degrees of such men; namely,

First, some at first are like bruit beasts, wallowing in pleasure, and wholly following sense, and appetite; when they are weary of this, then

Secondly, afterwards they become foolish (Rom. 1.21.) turning from pleasure, unto the world, and riches, and oppressions, and cruelty, and covetousnesse, and deceit, thinking gaine godlinesse, 1 Timoth. 6.

Thirdly, then they grow sluggish in Religion, beginning with Balaam to wish for heaven and happinesse, but in the meane time doe nothing for the obtaining thereof.

Fourthly, if they doe performe any Religious duties, and holy exercises, then by and by they grow proud Pharisees; hoping to obtaine heaven by their owne endeavours; or workes of righteousnesse, or outward observances; and here stop, dreaming of salvation, and resting in these dreames, untill being awakened unto Judgement, they find that they are but wels without water, and lamps without oyle.

Quest. 3 What is here required of us?

To labour and endeavour to be made partakers of this salvation. Here observe, that there are two things to be laboured for: namely

Answ.

First, that we may enjoy Christ, Philip. 1.23. This is the first in our intention, though the last in execution: and it is a good degree and step unto heaven, to long for it, and above all things to desire it. And Secondly, that we may obtaine Christ. This goes before the other in worke, for we must obtaine Christ by faith on Earth, before we can enjoy him in Heaven. And therefore we must deny our selves, and goe out of our selves, placing no confidence or trust in our selves at all, but onely in CHRIST JESVS, labouring to apply him by faith unto our soules, Iohn 5.24. And endeavouring to encrease in obedience, faith, and all graces, untill we enjoy him fully in heaven.

Sect. 3. §. 3. This Gospell of the Kingdome.]

Quest. What names, or Epithets are given to the Gospell in the word of God?

Answ. 1 First, it is called the Gospell and word of God, 2. Corinth. 2.17. and 11.7. and Ephes. 6.7. And

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Gospell of CHRIST, Marke 1.1. Colos. 3.16. And

Thirdly, from its quality, it is called the good word of God, Hebr. 6.1. and 1. Timoth. 4.6. and good seed, Matth. 13.23. and sound doctrine, Titus 2.1. And Fourthly, the Gospell of the Kingdome of God, Marke 1.1. and in this verse. And Fifthly, the word of grace, and salvation to those who believe, Rom. 1.16. and 1. Corinth. 1.21. and Ephes. 1.13, 14. And

Sixthly, the word of life, Philip. 2.16. both because it shewes us, that faith is the way and meanes to come unto life, and also because it is a meanes to beget faith and spirituall life in us.

Seventhly, it is called the word of reconciliation and peace, because it shewes unto us that reconciliation which is wrought betweene Christ and us, 2. Corinth. 5.18, 19. Ephes. 6.15. And Eighthly, the word of truth, Colos. 1.5. and 2. Timoth. 2.15. and 1. King. 10.6. and 17.24. And

Ninthly, the word of faith, Romans. 10. 8. And Tenthly, the eternall Gospell. Revelat. 14. 6. And Eleventhly, the doctrine of the Spirit. 1 Cor. 2. 4. And Twelfthly, the sword of the Spirit. Ephes. 6. 17. And Thirteenthly, it is called seed, Matth. 13. 33. because it brings forth fruit according to its proper kind. And

Fourteenthly, foode. Matth. 24.44, 49. And hence feeding is sometimes put for Preaching: as Iohn 21. 15. And

Fifteenthly, the word of the crosse, because it layeth downe, and sheweth unto us the history of CHRIST crucified. 1 Cor. 1. 17, 23. Galath. 6. 14. And

Lastly, it is called the Gospell of the glory of Christ. 2 Cor. 4. 4. and Ephes. 1. 5, 6. and 1 Tim. 1. 11. and Ephes. 1. 12, 17, 18.

The

The names of the Gospell shew its nature, excellency and worth.

Sect. 4 §. 4. This Gospell shall be preached in all the world.]

Object. Bellarmine (de Roman. Pontif. Lib. 3. Cap. 4.) urgeth this place as an Argument to prove, that Antichrist is not yet come; because before the comming of Antichrist the Gospell must be preached in all the world; for at his comming all exercise of Religion shall be hindred, by reason of the great persecution which shall be under him. But there are many great Countries, which never yet heard of the Gospell; and therefore as yet it hath not bene preached in all the world: and consequently, Antichrist is not yet come.

Answ. 1 Firſt, there is nothing here at all of the comming of Antichrist, that being added onely by the Cardinall: our Savior layes downe this Proposition; viz, Before Christs second comming the Gospell shall be preached in all the world. The Iesuite addes that, Before Antichrists first comming the Gospell shall be preached in all the world.

Answ. 2 Secondly, our Saviour speakes not here of Antichrists comming, but of the preaching of the Gospell Vniverso orbi, To all the world, before the destruction of Ierusalem; as appeares from verse 16. Then let them which be in Iudea flee into the mountaines. See Answer 5.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Bellarmines reason is weake. He saith, The Gospell shall not be preached in the world, after Antichrist is once revealed, because of the great persecution which shall be under him. This is no good Argument, for notwithstanding the most grievous persecutions in the Primitive Church under the pagan Romane Emperour, yet the Gospell was propagated, and increased still.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, Carthusian (in hunc locum) by the preaching of the Gospell in the whole world, understands the cõversion of some of all sorts, degrees and nations, unto the truth, and profession of the Gospell. And in this sense he conceives (and it is very probable) that this prediction was fulfilled in the time of the Apostles, and before the destruction of Ierusalem by the Romans. Hence St. Paul speaking of the Apostles, alleadgeth that of the Psalmist, Surely, their line, or sound went through all the world. And CHRIST saith to his Disciples, ye shall be my witnesses in Iudea, and Samaria, yea even unto the utmost parts of the earth: and commands them to preach the Gospell to every creature, and to goe to all nations to teach them. And hence St. Paul saith, The word of the truth of the Gospell is come unto you, as it is in all the world: Colos. 1. 5, 6.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, Chrysostome, Theophylact, Euthymius, & Hilary, interpret this place of the end and destruction of Ierusalem, before the which the Gospell was preached to most parts of the world: but our Saviour immediately before having spoken of the whole earth, I conceive he meaneth here the end of the same.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, we must not understand by these words [The Gospell shall be preached in all the world] That the Gospell must be preached to the whole world at one time: for that was never yet seene, neither (as I take it) shall be: but that it shall be published distinctly and successively, at severall times, to one nation after another: and in this sense Mr. Perkins conceives the Gospell to have bene already preached to the whole world: and concludes from hence that the first signe of Christs comming is already past. If the Reader would see, how this is opposed by Bellarmine, and answered by Dr. Willet, let him reade his Synops. pag. 1167. arg. 1.

Seventhly, we must not by the whole world, understand all the particles of the world, but many (or the most) parts thereof; and yet the same Gospell shall come unto the rest virtually, because no sorts of men shall be excluded from the participation of the benefits thereof, as is plaine from Rom. 10. 18. and Colos. 1. 6, 23. If the Reader would see how this answer is opposed also by the Cardinall, let him read Ames. Bell. enerv. tom. 2. Pag. 196, 197.

VERS. 15. When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, stand in the holy place; who so readeth let him understand. Vers. 15.

§. 1. When ye shall see the abomination of desolation stand in the holy place.] Sect. 1.

Quest. When was this fulfilled and accomplished, or, when was the abomination of desolation set in the holy place?

Answ. This was accomplished when the Romanes caused the spread Eagle, and their abominations to be displayed in the Temple, contrary to the Law. Alex ab Alexandro.

§. 2. Who so readeth let him understand.] Sect. 2

Object. Salmeron the Jesuite urgeth thus these words, to prove that the Scripture is so hard, and difficult, that though Lay-men should read them, yet they could not understand them: Our Saviour speaking of the abomination of desolation, mentioned by Daniel, admonisheth those who read to understand what they read; where it is remarkable, and observable that Christ begins in the plurall number [Cum videritis abominationem, when ye shall see the abomination, &c.] but ends in the singular [Qui legit, intelligat, Let him that reads understand] whereby he would teach us, That more shall read the Scripture then shall understand it.

Answ. 1. Firſt, the consequence is naught, More people read the Scripture then can understand it; therefore no Lay-man must read it, followes not, for many Lay-persons, have more understanding and knowledge, and learning, then many of their Priests have.

Answ. 2 Secondly, our Saviour speakes here of one onely place of Scripture, and that a Prophetical one, and not of the whole Scripture; now we grant that prophecies are obscure, and hard to be understood, untill they be accomplished, but we deny that therefore the whole Scripture is difficult: For this is a grosse conclusion, Prophetical places are difficult and hard to be understood; therefore also historicall: and this, More read prophetiall places, ces, then doe understand them; therfore also historicall; yea, therefore none must read historicall, or any other places or parts of Scripture.

Fourthly, our Saviour speakes not here, Per modum Prohibitionis, sed per modum admonitionis, by way of prohibition, but of admonition; he forbids none to reade either Daniel or any other booke of holy writ, but admonisheth all to attend and marke diligently the place, that in the reading of it they may in some measure understand it, and learne from it, how truely things long before foretold, come to passe, and are accomplished according to the prediction. To vnder to understand, is common to all the places of Scripture, and not peculiar to this propheticall place; and therefore all Scripture that is read should be diligently observed and considered, that in the reading thereof we may understand it.

Vers. 21. 22. VERS. 21. 22. For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be. And except those dayes should be shortned, there should no flesh be saved: but for the Elects sake those dayes shall be shortned.

Sect. 1. §. 1. For then shall be great tribulation &c.]

Object. The Papists say, that Antichrist shall not come till towards the end of the world, when shall be the greatest persecution that ever was (Bellarm. de Rom. Pontif. lib. 3. Cap. 7.) and they would prove it from this place. CHRIST saith, There shall be then such great tribulation in the world, as was not since the beginning of the world, neither shall be: Therefore the greatest persecution shall be towards the end of the world.

Answ. 1 First, it is plaine by the Text, that this great tribulation is propheſied to come upon the Iewes; for in the next verse before he saith, pray that your flight be not in the winter: and then it followeth, There shall be then, or, as St. Marke saith, In those dayes there shall be such tribulation, 13. 19. And in the 17. verse, Woe shall be to them that give sucke in those dayes; which must needs be understood of the destruction of Ierusalem: for at the comming of CHRIST, there shall be one and the same case of all, whether of those that give sucke, or of those who give none.

Answ. 2. Secondly, it cannot be meant of the last tribulation in the world, because the words are, That as there was none such since the beginning of the world; so there shall be none such after: Therefore there shall be tribulation after, though none such.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And except those dayes should bee shortned, none could be saved, &c.]

Object. The Jesuites hold, that Antichrist is not yet come, neither shall come untill towards the end of the world, and when he comes, hee shall raigne but three yeares and a halfe, and then the world must end. (Bellarm. de Rom. Pontif. lib. 3. cap. 4. Rhemist. in Apoc. 11. §. 2. 4.) and they argue from this place, thus, The Lord saith here, That unlesse those dayes (that is, of Antichrists persecution) should be shortned, and consequently the Persecution very short, no flesh could bee saved: but how can the time of Antichrists persecution be very short, if it shall last above or about a thousand yeares? Bellar. de Rom. Pontif. lib. 3. cap. 8. & Rhemist. in hunc locum. §. 6.

Answ. 1. First, though Antichrist raigne above or about a thousand yeares, yet is his raigne short, in respect of the eternall Kingdome of CHRIST.

Answ. 2. Secondly, the whole time from Christs Ascension untill his comming againe, is counted but short, Revelat. 22. 20. I come quickly: and St. Peter saith, That a thousand yeeres before God is as one day, and a day as a thousand yeeres, 2. Pet. 3. 8. And therefore it followes not, that if Antichrist shall raigne a thousand yeeres, his raigne cannot be short.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, we are to distinguish betwixt the time of Antichrists continuance, and the time of his hotteſt persecution (which Bellarmine confoundeth,) the latter being much shorter then the former.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, our Saviour here saith, That except those dayes (to wit, of tribulation) were shortned, none could be saved: Now by Salvation here is either meant the salvation of the body, or, of the soule:

I. If we understand the salvation of the soule, then the soules of the Elect and faithfull perish no more by persecution, then by dissolution or mutation. None could be saved (saith CHRIST) except those dayes of tribulation should be shortned; that is, (saith the Romanist) except God should put an end to that tribulation by putting an end to the world. If then by salvation here be meant the salvation of the soule, then (in their sense) which is absurd the meaning is this, That except God put an end to the persecution of his children, by putting an end to the world, their soules could not be saved.

II. If by salvation here be meant the salvation of the body [as is plaine from the phrase, No flesh shall be saved] then, an end must be so put to their tribulation, that they may live longer on earth, being freed in their bodies from it: for how are their bodies properly saved, if God put an end to their persecution, by putting an end to their lives, or to the world? and therefore if by salvation here, be meant the safety and preservation of their bodies, then of necessity the world must not then end, when they are freed and delivered from their tribulation.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, the tribulation here spoken of, is to be understood of the calamity of the Jewes in the siege of Ierusalem; which if it had continued any longer the nation of the Iewes had bene utterly destroyed. See for the proofe of this, the first answer of the former objection.

Vers. 24. VERS. 24. For their shall arise false Christs, and false Prophets, and shall shew great signes and wonders: insomuch that (if it were possible) they shall deceive the very Elect.

Sect. 1. §. 1. They shall shew great signes and wonders.]

If the Reader would see those many particulars wherein we and the Church of Rome differ concernin ning Miracles, clearely treated upon, and fully determined; I referre him to that Reverend Prelate Bp. Mort. Appeale lib. 3, Cap. 17. 18, 19. where Romish Miracles are amply confuted both from this text of Scripture and others.

314

Sect. 2. §. 2. Insomuch that (if it were possible) they shall deceive the very Elect.]

Our Saviour here doth intimate, that it cannot be that the Elect should be seduced, or perish.

Object. If this be a true doctrine, then many will give themselves over to impiety and security: If the elect cannot perish, or be seduced or mislead into any fundamentall errour, then many will growe impious, presumptuous, and secure.

Answ. Although many abuse this doctrine, yet their abuse thereof doth not hurt the truth of it at all: The divell abused Scripture, but our Saviour would not for that leave the use of it, yea we say with the Apostle, if any call upon the name of the Lord, he must depart from iniquity. 2 Tim. 2. 19. That is, if any hope to be saved by CHRIST, or, to come unto God, they must abstaine from sinne, and walke in that way which leads unto heaven.

Quest. 1 Why cannot the Elect perish?

Answ. 1. First, because there is a seed of God and grace remaining in them. 1 Iohn. 3. 9. And Answ. 2 Secondly, because the Lord upholdeth him with his hand (Psal 37. 24) and sustaineth him by his grace. 2 Cor. 12. 8, 9. But those who turne the grace of God into wantonnesse, are reserved by him unto judgement, Iude 4.

Vers. 27 VERS. 27. For as the lightning commeth out of the East, and shineth even unto the West: so shall also the comming of the Sonne of man be.

Object. 1 There are divers differences betweene us and the Papists concerning CHRISTS comming to judgement, one amongst the rest is about the place, where he shall appeare, which boldly they appoint to be in the East: because our Saviour saith, That his comming shall be as the lightning that shineth from East to West. Bellarm. de cultu sanctor. lib. 3. Cap. 3.

Answ. 1 First, by this similitude CHRIST onely sheweth the suddennesse of his comming: therfore it must be pressed no further, then to that purpose for the which it serveth.

Answ. 2. Secondly, our Saviour saith plainely, That the Kingdome of God commeth not with observation (Luke. 17. 20.) either of time or place. And therefore when men say unto us, Behold here, or, Behold there, we ought not to beleeve them, verse 23. As though they could point out CHRISTS comming with the finger, either in the East or West. If the Reader would see these answers confirmed by the expositions both of Fathers, and moderne Interpreters, I referre him to Dr. Willets Synops. pag. 1176. of the fifth edition.

Vers. 28 VERS. 28. For wheresoever the carkase is, there will the Eagles be gathered together.

Quest. What is the meaning of these words?

Answ. 2 First, Paracelsus for his weapon-salves sake thus wrests the words, where the carkase is [that is, the body] there will the Eagles [that is, the spirits of the blood] be gathered together. The absurdity of this exposition is clearely shewed by Mr. Foster, in his spunge to wipe away this Weapon salve; and I doe not beleeve that Mr. Flood who so stoutly maintaines the lawfulnesse of that wonderfull salve against him, will defend this exposition, or undertake to prove this to be the sense of this place.

Secondly, Origen by the carkase understands the Church, by the Eagles the Doctors of the Church, and by their gathering together, their union and consent in the faith of CHRIST crucified. Answ. 2

Thirdly, some by Carkase here understand the passion of Christ, by the Eagles the Saints, and by their gathering together the efficacie of his merits sufficient for all, Hierome. Answ. 3

Fourthly, others understand this place to be an adumbration of the day of judgement, by the carkase understanding CHRIST the Iudge, by the Eagles the soules going to judgement, and by the gathering together, the generall judgement. Thus Chrysost. Hilar. Ferus, Aretius, Stella, Maldonat. Answ. 4

Fifthly, others interpret this place of the Saints ascending up into heaven whether Christ hath carried his humane body, which suffered death for us, that where CHRIST now is, there all his Saints shall ascend, and be hereafter. Thus August. and Gregor. and Muscul. And this seemes to be the truth; for the Disciples (Luke. 17. 37.) had asked Christ, whether the Elect should be taken? To this Christ answers, wheresoever the body is, &c. In which similitude we must observe, That as the nature of the Eagle is to flye unto the carkase though it be farre off; so the faithfull and heavenly Eagles above all things long to feed of Christ, and to be where he is. And againe, as the Eagle is content with the carkasse, in what place soever it is, so the Elect regard no more, nor more then this to be where CHRIST is. Answ. 5

VERS. 30. And then shall appeare the signe of the Sonne of man in heaven. Vers. 30

What is meant by the signe of the Sonne of man? Quest.

I dare not undertake to determine this question, but in the handling of it, will onely doe, as many more have done before me, that is, shew the opinions of others, and which of them I rather adhere unto Answ.

First, Lyranus thinkes that this signe shall be the signe of the Crosse, and Speare, and nailes, and other instruments of Christs death, altogether, and not any one of them onely. Answ. 1

Secondly, Lactantius is of opinion, that before Christ descend to judgement Cadet repente gladius é Cœlo, a sword shall suddenly fall from heaven, that the righteous may know, that the Captaine of the Lords hoast is comming. Lactant. lib. 7. Cap. 1. Answ. 2.

Thirdly, Zaga Zabo the Æthiopike Bishop saith, That CHRIST shall beare the crosse before him, & in manu gladium, and a sword in his hand, Answ. 3.

to avenge himselfe upon his crucifiers, and all the enemies of his Crosse. Damianus de morib. Æthiop.

Answ.4 Fourthly, some by this signe understand the signe of the Crosse onely; but yet with some differences: For

I. some thinke this signe shall be the signe of the Crosse in mens foreheads.

II. Others think that this signe shall be a banner (with the signe of the Crosse in it) displayed before in signe of victory. Gloss. interlin.

III. Others avouch, that the Sonne of man shall appeare in the day of judgement, with a Crosse borne before him. Bellarm. de sanct. Lib. 2. Cap. 28 et Rhemist. in hunc locum et Chrysost. et Muscul. And Chrysostome renders the reason, why this sign of the Crosse shall appeare; namely, for the justification of Christ, when he shall enter into judgement with his enemies: as if a man being hurt by the throwing of a stone at him, should bring the stone along with him unto judgement, for the quicker convincing, and greater confusion of him that threw it at him. Musculus thinkes that it shall be borne in triumph, against all the wicked, and also against the Prince of the world himselfe, both to shew the freedome and deliverance of the Elect, and also to declare unto all the world, that this JESUS which was crucified is the Almighty Lord of Heaven and Earth.

Answ.5 Fifthly, some thinke, that by this signe is meant the very body of CHRIST, having the testimonies of his sufferings upon it, that is, the wounds of his hands and feet, and side: and Chrysostome thinkes that this may be: And Dr. Willet doth incline to this rather then the former, although simply he assents to neither. It is more like (saith he) that Christ at his comming should shew the markes and prints of the nayles, and speare in his body, then the signe of the Crosse: for those were felt and seene in his body after the Resurrection, so was not the other. but it is a bare conjecture without any ground of Scripture, that the wounds are either now in Heaven to be seene in the glorious body of Christ, or that they shall be beheld and looked upon in the day of Judgement. The wicked indeed shall behold him whom they have pierced; but it followeth not thereupon, that he shall appeare as pierced. How is it possible that either the body of Christ being perfectly glorified, should still retaine any spots or blemishes, or that they could be espied in so glorious a body, which with the brightnesse thereof shall obscure the Sunne.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, our Ecclesiasticall Expositors doe understand the signe of the Sonne of man, to be the Sonne of man himselfe: Celesti potentia praditus, quasi signo in sublime erecto, &c. Being endowed with celestiall power, as with a signe he shall turne the eyes of the world towards him, Calvin et P. Martyr.

Answ.7. Seventhly, the signe of the Sonne of man in the heavens, is nothing else (as I conceive) but his conspicuous and glorious appearing, who shall come in great glory, as a signe in the heavens to be seene of all the world. Now I cannot imagine, that it signifies any such visible signe as is formerly conceived in the five former answers; because it is said (Mark 13.19. and Luke 21 27.) Then shall they see the Sonne of man. Whereby it appeares (or at least seemes) that the signe of the Sonne of man, is the Sonne himselfe in his glorious appearing. 315

Eighthly, it is great presumption, so boldly to affirme as Bellarmine doth, that it shall be the signe of the Crosse, having no Scripture for it at all. Other signes we find, that Christ hath appeared with, as the signe of the Raine-bow (Revelat. 10. 1.) with a two edged sword (Revelat. 1. 16.) and with a booke in his hand (Revelat. 10. 2.) Now wee have more reason to beleeve, that Christ may appeare with those signes, by the which he hath sometime shewed himselfe, then they have for the signe of the Crosse. Answ. 8

VERS. 31. And he shall send his Angels with a great sound of a Trumpet, and they shall gather together his Elect from the foure winds, from one end of heaven to the other. Vers. 31

The Jewes had a Feast called the Feast of Trumpets, which differed from other new Moones in this, In other new Moones they blowed no Trumpets; but in this they blowed from the Sunne-rising till night, Shindler in voce שופר

What was the reason of this blowing and great noise of Trumpets? Quest.

The reason hereof in generall, I take to have beene, to make their New-yeares day the more remarkable, because from it all their deeds and contracts bore date, and their Sabbaticall yeares and Jubiles were counted thence: But why it should be made remarkable by the sound of Trumpets or Cornets, there are three conjectures, viz. Answ.

First, the Hebrewes thinke, it was done in memory of Isaac his deliverance, and that they did therefore sound Rams hornes, because a Ram was sacrificed instead of him, Fag. in Levit. 23.

Secondly, Basil. (in Psalm. 80.) is of opinion, that the people were hereby put in mind of that day, wherein they received the Law in Mount Sinai with blowing of Trumpets.

Thirdly, others thinke it was to put them in remembrance of the Resurrection, which shall be with the sound of Trumpets; according to our Saviours words in this place, He shall send his Angels with a great sound of a Trumpet.

VERS. 36. But of that day and houre knoweth no man, no not the Angels of heaven, but my Father onely, St. Mark 13.32. addes, Neither the Sonne of man. Vers. 36

Sect. 1.

§. 1. But of that day knoweth no man.] The Papists say, that Antichrist shall raigne but three yeares and a halfe, and shortly after that time the world shall end: against which groundlesse Argum.

316 opinion we urge this place thus, If Antichrist should raigne but three yeares and a halfe, as our Adversaries teach, and that then immediatly the world should end; then it is possible to assigne the time of Christs comming to judgement, so soone as Antichrist is revealed; But our Saviour saith here, of that day and houre knoweth no man, no not the Angels; yet Bellarmine takes upon him to set downe the very day of Christs comming, to wit, just 45. dayes after the destruction of Antichrist.

Sect. 2. §. 2. No not the Angels, nor the Sonne of man.]

Object. 1 Some of the Papists have objected this place for the proofe of their Æquivocation. Our Saviour said to his Disciples, that he himselfe knew not the day of Judgement, but his Father onely: which by consent of holy Fathers is to be understood, that he knew it not (ut significaret eis) that he would tell them. And thus Ambrose, Chrysost. me, Theophilus, and Basil expound it. And Garnet at his arraignment objected St. Augustine, and wholy depended upon his judgement in the same exposition.

Answ. 1 First, we might vie Fathers with the Æquivocator, who otherwise expounded these words, but forbeare it, only reciting 5 words of their owne Iesuit Maldonate, Multi veteres patres (Athanas. Nazian. Gregor. Theodor. Cyrillus, Autor operis imperfecti in Matth.) docuerunt Christum, quatenus hominem diem judicii ignorasse; that is, Many ancient Fathers have taught, that as Christ was man he knew not the day of judgement.

Answ. 2 Secondly that St. Augustines exposition (which Garnet did onely select) doth imply no mentall Æquivocation is amply proved by Bp. Morton, in his modest Answerer, part 3. Chap. 11. Page 74 unto which place I referre the Reader, because it is something long.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Papists say that their mentall reservation is then onely requisite, when the hearer is incompetent, and unfit to understand the clause reserved: Now it were senseless to imagine, that the Apostles were not fit to understand, or unfit to know that clause, for our Saviour else-where saith, It is not for you to know the times and seasons, Acts 1.7. And why was not that (ut vobis significem) at this time also seasonable for them to understand? Yes doubtlesse, if that were the meaning of his words, they understood it, and then it was no concealed reservation; and if it were not his meaning, there was no æquivocation.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the purpose of the Æquivocator is by his secret reservation. To delude his hearer, now this were blasphemy to say that Christ did æquivocate, that is, delude and deceive his Disciples. If the Reader would see this Objection further answered, let him read Bp. Mort. in his answer to the modest answerer, part 3. Chap. 11. Page 75, 76.

Object. 2 The ancient Arrians did frequently object this place to the godly for the proofe of their pernicious and blasphemous doctrine, that Christ was not God; they argued thus, God knowes all things, Christ knew not all things [for he was ignorant of the day of judgement] Therefore CHRIST is not God.

Answ. 1 Our Saviour speakes here of his humane nature, not of his divine; for as he was man, he knew not that day and houre, but as he was God he knew it. Sometimes Christ speakes to his Disciples as man, sometimes as God; as man he enquires where Lazarus was buried? as God he knew it, for he had before told his Disciples that Lazarus was dead. As man he askes what men thought, and said of him? as God he knew, for he was not ignorant of their very thoughts, as is plaine from these Texts, Iesus knew their thoughts; and why thinke you evill in your hearts? and the like.

Nazianzene answers further, that Christ speakes this, as divers other things, for the honour of his Father, whom he preferres before men [No man] and Angels [No not the Angels] and himselfe [Nor the Sonne of man] that all men might learne to honour the Father above all, and to seeke his glory more then their owne. Answ. 2

Againe Nazianzene saith, That to know signifies sometimes to make knowne, or to make others to know; and thus he thinkes that CHRIST knew not the day of Judgement; that is, he knew it himselfe, but he would not make it knowne unto them. But I conceive (with Simler de filio Dei Lib. 2. page 112, a.b.) that the first Answer is the truth, viz. that Christ knew it as God, but not as man. Answ. 3

Quest. How doth it appeare, or how may it be proved, that Christ at all knew of this day?

Answ. 1 First, Christ is the wisedome of the Father [Heb. 1. .] And therefore if the Father know that day and houre (which the Arrians deny not) then he cannot be ignorant thereof.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Christ was in the Father, and the Father in him [Iohn 17.21.] And therefore those things which the Father knew, the Sonne could not be ignorant of.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Christ knew the Father, which of all things is the greatest; yea as the Father knew him, even so he knew the Father (Iohn 10.15.) And therefore we must not imagine that he was (in regard of his Deity) ignorant of the last day.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, Christ is the Author of time (Iohn 1. 1.) and therefore undoubtedly he knowes how long time shall last, and when time shall be no longer.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, he foretold all those things wch should go before the day of judgement, and the fore-running signs thereof, and therefore he could not be ignorant of the time it selfe, when it should be.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, Christs ignorance of the day of judgement was a testimony of his humane nature, and shewed that he was true man; and therefore he was ignorant thereof onely as man.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, our Saviour doth not say (Mark 13.32.) None knoweth that day, Ne filius quidem Dei, No not the Sonne of GOD, but Ne filius, No not the Sonne; and therefore as he was the Sonne of God he knew it.

Answ. 8 Eighthly, our Saviour doth not say, The Angels know not of this houre, nor the holy Spirit: whence we may collect, That if the holy Ghost know it, then much more the substantiall Word Christ, who made all things, and knew all things.

Answ. 9 Ninthly, our Savior doth not say unto his Apostles, Watch, because I know not, but, because ye know not not when the time is, or when the Maſter of the houſe commeth, Marke 13.33, 35. Intimating thereby that he knew the time of his ſecond comming, but he would not make it knowne unto them, that they might be the more watchfull, and circumſpect.

Anſ. 10 Tenthly, if it be himſelfe that muſt come unto judgement (as is plaine from Iohn, 5.22. and Acts 17.31. Rom. 16. and divers other places) then it is againſt ſenſe and reaſon to imagine that he ſhould be ignorant of the time, when he will come. If the ſtudious Reader would ſee this Queſtion amply handled, I referre him to Athanaſius Orat. 4. contr. Arianos, where divers and ſundry other reaſons are brought to prove that Chriſt as God knew of the houre and day of judgement, and was onely ignorant thereof as man.

Verſ. 37, 38, 39. VERS. 37, 38, 39. But as the dayes of Noe were, ſo ſhall alſo the comming of the Sonne of man be. For as in the dayes which were before the Flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage, untill the day that Noe entred into the Arke; and knew not untill the Flood came, and tooke them all away: ſo ſhall alſo the comming of the Sonne of man be.

Sect. 1. §. 1. But as the dayes of Noe were, &c.] The ſcope of our Saviour ſeemes here to be twofold, viz. to teach us,

First, that the day of judgement is certain, though the time be uncertaine: of which elſe-where Obſerv. Secondly, that ſecurity is a forerunner of the laſt judgement: or when men generally grow carnally ſecure, then judgement is neare even at the doore.

How manifold is Security?

Queſt. 1 Anſw. 1 First, there is a particular Security, which is twofold; namely, either

I. Of danger: and this is twofold, to wit, either

First, temporall; and this ſecurity is

I. Sometimes found in the faithfull, who often are bold and venturous without warrant, and ſo tempt the providence of God. And is

II. Sometimes found in the wicked, who neglect lawfull meanes for the preventing of danger, yea oftentimes runne into danger, and never conſider how they have incenſed the Lord by their ſinnes. Or

Secondly, ſpirituall; and this is the ſecurity

I. Of evill, and wicked men who cry, Peace no evil ſhall come unto them, but it ſhall goe well with them both here, and hereafter. Or

II. Of ſtate; now this ſecurity alſo is twofold, namely, either

First, temporall; and this ſecurity is

I. Sometimes found in the godly; David in his proſperity ſaid, he ſhould never be moved, Pſalm. 30.6.

II. It is frequently found in the wicked, who being in honour, and proſperity, never thinke of any change of ſtate or condition, but beare themſelves as though they ſhould never be moved indeed. Or Secondly, Spirituall which hath place in the wicked.

Now this carnall ſecurity conſiſts in theſe two things; namely,

First, in a lacke or want of feare: Carnall men not fearing the wrath, anger, and righteous judgements of God, become ſecure. And

Secondly, in a neglect of the meanes, and acts, and exerciſes of Religion, for none are ſo ſecure as thoſe who never trouble themſelves with the duties or workes of Religion at all.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, there is a generall ſecurity, both of State and Danger; and that is, when a Land or Monarchy, or, the whole world, growes univerſally wicked, and generally ſecure, not ſo much as thinking of, or expecting any danger at all. Now of this, the point above obſerved ſpeakes; The world was never more ſecure, then before the Flood; the Jewes never more ſecure then before the Captivity, and the deſtruction of Ieruſalem, inſomuch as they would not believe the wonders and ſignes which went before it, and which were mentioned before verſe 6, 7. Queſt. 2. And the world ſhall be as ſecure as ever, when the day of judgement comes: and Nations ordinarily ſhall be, and are moſt ſecure when dangers approach, and judgement is neare even at the doore: And therefore we ſhould all labour carefully to avoid this carnall ſecurity, as a ſure fore-runner of ſome enſuing Judgement.

Queſt. 2 Why muſt we take heed of Security, and ſo earneſtly labour to avoid it?

Anſw. 1 First, becauſe this carnall ſecurity is a ſigne of maturity and ripeneſſe in ſinne, eſpecially where the admonitions of the word are: That is, thoſe perſons, or places, or lands, which enjoy the word, and notwithſtanding the admonitions and comminations thereof againſt their great nationall, epidemicall, and crying ſinnes, doe remaine quiet and ſecure in their ſinnes, are come unto a certaine maturity and perfection in ſinne, and are neare unto judgement. And therefore great reaſon there is, that we ſhould carefully labour to beware of this carnall ſecurity.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, carnall ſecurity in ſinne, or notwithſtanding ſinne, opens a gappe to Gods judgements, layes a man open unto God, and diſarmes him of all defenſive Weapons; for ſecurity ſhewes a procraſtination of repentance, and without ſpeedy repentance there is no way to flee from, or eſcape the wrath to come, Matth. 3.7, 8. And therefore if we deſire freedome from the feareful judgements of God, we muſt take heed of ſecurity.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, GOD commands us to be watchfull, and circumſpect, and invites us to carefulneſſe Marke 13.32, 35. and therefore we muſt take heed of carnall ſecurity.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, God reveales his will unto his ſervants the Miniſters, who (as Noah foreſeeing the unparallelled deluge preached repentance unto the world, ſo) doe preach repentance unto us, and daily threaten ſome judgement (either temporall or ſpirituall) to come upon the Land, if we lye drowned in carnall ſecurity, and doe not awake unto repentance and new obedience: And therefore it is not without cauſe that we ſhould carefully avoid carnall ſecurity.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, watchfulneſſe is good, ſecurity frequently

318 brings along with it evill and mischiefe; and therfore it is carefully to be avoided. Feare doth often produce a good effect, and the watchfull man doth frequently prevent danger; whereas the secure fals into it.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, there can be no true security amongst us, nor freedome from evill, if we consider these things; namely,

I. Our sinnes, and the nature of them, and our continuance in sinne. And

II. Our God, whom we offend by our sinnes, and who sees, and registers all our sinnes, and who is able to avenge himselfe upon us for our sinnes, and whose justice and truth will not permit him to spare our sinnes without repentance. And

III. How God hath punished others for our admonition and terrour: we have heard of Plague, Famine, & Warre, amongst our neighbours, wherewith they have beene wasted; which heauy judgements we cannot but thinke (in regard of Gods infinite justice) to have come upon them for their sinnes; and we have cause to thinke that CHRIST saith unto us, That they were not greater sinners then we are; and therefore except we repent, we shall likewise perish. Wherefore it is most dangerous for us to be secure.

Quest. 3 Who are here worthy of blame?

Answ. 1 First, they are extreamly faulty, who thinke that state to be the happiest, where there is no feare; for the contrary is most true, and security is a sure

Answ. 2 signe of approaching misery.

Secondly, those also are to be taxed, who thinke the godly to be melancholy men, because they feare danger, when neither danger nor distresse appeares:

Quest. 4 What is here required of us?

Answ. 1. First, a serious consideration of the roote of our security: we should consult with our selves, and see, from whence it springs; and whether we have just cause to be secure or not?

Answ. 2 Secondly, it is required of us to be watchfull over our selves, and wayes, and to arme our selves, against the Judgements of God, and prepare to meete him. And Answ. 3. Thirdly, to awaken others who are sleepy, and secure, because security shews, that judgement hangs over their heads. If we should see a house on fire, and perceive some alleepe therein, we would awaken them, and not suffer them to perish: how much more then should we doe so, when we see men lulled asleepe in carnall security, when the judgements of God hang over their heads. And it is required,

Answ. 4 Fourthly, that we should meditate of our death, and repent before our death; It was the saying of a Rabbi, Repent one day before thy death; that is, every day; we should daily expect death, and by unfained repentance prepare daily for it.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, we must doe as Noah did, make an Arke against the over flowings of Gods judgements; and labour that our God may be reconciled unto us.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, it is required of us, that we should bring forth fruit, and grow and increase in grace, labouring daily more and more for it; for thereby we shall be kept from security.

Quest. 5 What are the causes of security, and the remedies against it?

Answ. 1 First, ignorance, errour, or an erroneous opinion of the nature of sinne, and the providence of God, causeth security. Many thinke that God neither sees, nor observes their sinnes, neither will punish them; because (as some of the Heathen thought) all these terrene and sublunary things are ruled by chance and Fortune. The ignorance of God, and of the nature of sinne, or the incogitancy of both causeth security; for no wonder if we doe not feare those things, which we neither remember, thinke of, nor know.

The Remedy against this Cause is, to thinke sinne to be out of measure sinfull, and to learne to know the Lord, to be Omnipotent, Omniscient, and Omnipresent. We must remember, that God sees all things, and by his providence governes all things, and hates sinne with a perfect hatred, and will punish (undoubtedly) sinne in all those who will not repent them of it, and turne from it.

Answ. 2 Secondly, a neglect of those meanes which God prescribes to be used causeth security, and ignorance: For none (ordinarily) are more secure, then they who most neglect all exercises and duties of Religion. Now the Remedy against this is, to be diligent, industrious, and frequent in all holy means, and duties both publike and private.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, incredulity of the word of God, and of his judgements causeth security: when mens hearts grow hard, sleepy, and unfaithfull, neither beleeving the promises, nor threatnings of the word, nor the judgements of God; then they grow secure. Now this infidelity is strengthened by our sensuality; for as the light of the Sunne darkens the light of the Starres, so the light of sense darkens and obscure the light of holy and spirituall things, we being naturally backward to beleeve any thing which is not plaine and perspicuous to sense. The Remedy against this cause is to labour for the knowledge of the word, and to assent to every good word of God, as infallibly true; yea to remember that Heaven and Earth shall passe away, before one jot, or tittle of the word fall to the ground unaccomplished; because if God have spoken, he will also certainly doe it. And therefore we must feare his threatnings, and beleeve his promises.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, a presumption of the mercy of God causeth (at least) corroborateth, this infidelity; for when men thinke that he who made them will save them, and though they sinne, yet grace shall abound; then they speedily waxe carnally secure. The Remedy against this is not to presume of mercy without repentance, obedience, and faith, the Lord having said, That though he be mercifull and gracious &c. yet he will by no meanes let the impenitent sinner goe unpunished (Exod. 34. 4, 5, 6.) And againe, that he that made men, will not have mercy on them, and he that formed them will shew them no favour, if they be wicked and rebellious, Esa. 27. 11.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, prosperity causeth security, and makes men feareless: as we see in David, who in his prosperity said, that he should never be moved, Psalm. 30. 6. And in Iob, who said, I shall dye

in

in my nest, Iob 29.18. And in the Church of Laodicea, Revelat. 3.17. The remedy against this is, I. To remember, that neither love nor hatred is knowne by these things, Eccles. 9.1. And II. That all these outward things are vaine, transitory, and as mutable as the Moone. And III. That all our riches and abundance cannot availe us at the last day, nor free us from the judgements of God here. Read Proverb. 10.4. and 11.4. and Iob. 15.21. and 21.7. &c. unto 14. verse, and Psalm. 73.3. &c. unto the 18 verse.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, security is caused often by Gods lenity and long suffering; or, because sinne is not avenged, but punishment deferred. Wicked men thus wickedly ruminate with themselves, I have sinned often, and long, and am yet spared, and perceive that the threatnings of preachers are but scare-Crowes; and therefore now I may be secure and need feare no evill, though I runne on unto sinne as a Horse unto the battell. The remedy against this is, to remember Quod differtur non aufertur, That forbearance is no payment, but although the Lord spare long, yet he will not spare alwayes, but punish at the last, The longer the blow is a comming, the deeper and deadlier it wounds; and the longer God spares, the stronger are his stroakes; for his Mill workes but slowly, but when it grinds, it grinds men to powder.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, Philautia, selfe-love, humane confidence, and pride of heart causeth security; for when men are proud or selfe-conceited, or lovers of themselves, they then quickly grow secure, trusting to broken Reeds, and Egyptian staves, which will faile them at the last. The remedy against this is, to deny our selves, and renounce all confidence in our selves, and to flee onely to the merits, and mercies of CHRIST.

Answ. 8 Eighthly, the custome of sinning is another cause of security; For

I. Custome takes away the sense of sinne making it habituall and naturall unto us. And

II. Custome is corroborated with the shame of mutation and alteration: For men are ashamed to be Changlings, and to turne from their former wayes, thereby acknowledging their former errours; and say to themselves, Sciens videnſque pereo, Although I see my sinne, and foresee my ruine, yet I will perish rather then now forsake that which I have so long followed. The Remedy against this, is to labour against the customary practise of sinne, and to learne to be truly sensible of sinne, and to remember that it is not evill but good, not miserable but happy, not disgracefull but praise-worthy, to turne from evill unto good, from the Devill unto God, from sinne unto grace, from errour unto truth, from the wrong way to the right, and from the way that leads unto perdition, to the way that leads to life and salvation.

Answ. 9 Ninthly, the care of the world, and abundance of worldly imployments, makes men carnally secure: for the love and care thereof doth so take up, and possesse the whole man, that there is no time to care or labour for either grace or glory. The Remedy against this is, not to love the World (1. Iohn 2.15.) nor to labour for the World (1. Timoth. 6. 9.) but to seeke first the Kingdome of Heaven, and the righteousnesse thereof, and then not feare, but God will afford unto us those temporall things which are needfull for us, Mat. 6. 33.

Tenthly, false Teachers are causes of security, for when those who are to deliver the Lords message, speake lyes; and those who are commanded to stretch forth their voyces like Trumpets, and reprove the iniquity of their people, shall sow Cushions under their elbowes, and cry peace, peace unto them; no wonder if that people be lulled asleepe in a carnall security. The Remedy against this is, to pray unto God for faithfull Pastors, and to endure those patiently who reprove our sinnes, and labour to rowse us from the bed of security; and if we have those who speake peace unto us, not to take it upon trust, or their bare words, but diligently examine our selves by the word of God, and see whether the Lord speake peace unto our consciences, or whether we be of that number, unto whom the Prophet from the Lord saith, There is no peace, Esa. 41. Answ. 11

§. 2. So shall the comming of the Sonne of man be.] Sect. 2.

How manifold is the comming of Christ? Quest.

First, some say that there is a double comming of his; to wit, Answ. 1

I. By-past, which Comming the Jewes understood not. And

II. To come, which Comming we expect and looke for, August. super. 9 Psalm. Now the difference betweene these is this; the first Comming was in the flesh, the second is unto Judgement; the first was for the manifestation of the truth, and for freeing us from sinne, and for the drawing of of us unto God, but the second shall be for the judging of all men. Thom. Aq. 3. part qu. 1. art. 6. ad. 3. qu. 36. art. 1. qu. 40. art. 1. et Chrysost. super illud Iohannis. Non misit Deus filium suum ut judicet.

Secondly, others [Gerson vero part. 2. Serm. de Verb. Dom. Matth. 11. 28. Venite ad me omnes, &c. et Pelbart. Lib. 3. Rosarii Theo.] say, that there is a fourefold comming of CHRIST; namely, Answ. 2

I. His comming in the flesh; Hence it is said (Iohn 1.) The word was made flesh; and he came unto his owne, and his owne received him not.

II. His comming into the mind; and of this he speakes, Iohn 14. If any man love me, we will come unto him; that is, not onely God the Father, and God the holy Ghost, but also God the Sonne.

III. His comming unto the death of man: as Mark. 13. Watch and be prepared, for yee know not the houre when the Sonne of man will come; namely to call you unto death.

IV. His comming unto the finall judgement; and of this he speakes, Luke 21. Then shall ye see the Sonne of man comming in his glory. Now this last Advent is a happy comming unto the good and godly, for then shal they be made partakers of everlasting happinesse, but a miserable and most unhappy comming to the wicked and ungodly, for then shall they be condemned and bound over unto eternall torments for ever and ever, Mat. 25. 41.

320

VERS. 42. Watch therefore, for ye know not, what houre your Lord doth come.

Vers. 42.

Our Saviour (by an unanimous consent of all Interpreters) speaketh here of the day of Judgement: but because there is a particular Judgement of every particular person at the day of death, and a generall judgement of all men and women in generall, at the last day; therefore some apply this (& that neither unfitly, nor unprofitably) unto the houre of death, and some unto the day of Judgement: of the last more amply by and by, and of the first briefly from this verse.

Christ giues us here to understand, that we are altogether uncertaine of the day and houre when he will come to call us either to death or judgement; and therefore because we are sure that he will come, but unsure when, we must watch and prepare our selves against his comming to call us unto death. In a word, we must daily expect death, and duly prepare to entertaine, and welcome it when it comes; because we are altogether ignorant, when the Lord by death will call us unto judgement.

Observ.

Quest. 1 Why hath the Lord hid the day of death from us, and ordained that it should be unknowne and uncertaine unto us?

Answ. 1 First, God hath decreed that the houre of death should be uncertaine unto us, for this end, that we might live the more holily and purely: For it is a great folly for a man to live in that estate or manner, that he would not dye in; that is, to live in sinne, when he would not dye in sinne, seeing that death may come unto him every moment. And therefore in regard of this great uncertainty of the time of our dissolution, there is great reason that our lives should be holy and pure, as we desire our deaths to be.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the day o death is uncertaine, for this end, that we might doe the more good unto others; if we knew how long we should live, we should be the more careleſse to helpe, and relieve others, and the more prone to live wholly unto our selves: And hence the Apostle exhorts us, while we have time, to doe good; as if he would say, we are not sure how long we shall live, and what good we do unto others, we must doe while we live; and therefore while it is said to day we must doe good to others, and not live wholy to our selves.

Quest. 2 How is death to be expected?

Answ. Not onely patiently, but joyfully, desiring and praying for it, Bring oh Lord my soule out of prison.

Quest. 3 Why must we desire death, and not rather feare it?

Answ. 1 First, because so long as we live here, the soule remaines in the body, a darke, dangerous, and obscure Dungeon. Hence Iob saith, we are involved in darkneſse, and repleniſhed with misery and labour; and so long as we live we are subject to many evils.

Answ. 2 Secondly, death is to be desired, and not feared, because after death, we shall praise, please, and serve God more cheerfully, and perfectly, then we can in this life. And Thirdly, because we shall be more happy in heaven then we can be in Earth: And therefore if we desire perfectly to be freed from all evill, and perfectly to injoy whatsoever is good, and perfectly to obey and serve our God; we must then desire, (and not dread) death, because then and never till then, shall these truly and perfectly be.

VERS. 44. Therefore be ye also ready, for in such an houre as you thinke not, the Sonne of man commeth. Vers. 44

§. 1. Therefore be ye also ready.] Sect. 1.

Our Saviour speakes here of their preparation, and expectation of the last Judgement; wherein there are two things observable; to wit,

First, the persons exhorted: Yee.

Secondly, the thing whereunto they are exhorted.

First, from the persons exhorted three things may be observed; namely,

I. Although the Disciples and Apostles of Christ (to whom he now speakes) were holy, righteous, and good persons, forsaking all things to follow the Lord of all things, Iohn 6. 66. Yet even they are admoniſhed of the day of Judgement: to teach us, That the godly are to be warned to prepare themselves against the day of Judgement; Obser. 1

Why must the godly be admoniſhed hereof?

First, because the day and time is uncertaine unto all: and therefore all should be admoniſhed to prepare themselves. Que. 1 Answ. 1

Secondly, because the good are prone to neglect in tanto the expectation thereof, and preparation thereunto, carrying a body of sinne and corruption about them so long as they live here; and therefore it is not needleſse a whit to admoniſh them thereof. Answ. 2

II. Although Christ knew that his Disciples should be safe and saved at the day of judgement. Yea had foretold them, that they should sit on twelve Thrones then, to judge the twelve Tribes of Israel, Chap. 19. 28. Yet he doth exhort them to expect it, and to prepare for it: To teach us, That it is needfull to exhort the best to prepare themselves against the great day of judgement. Obser. 2

III. Although, the Apostles lived many hundred years before the day of Judgement, yet Christ exhorts them to prepare themselves for it, and to expect it: To teach us,

That a frequent expectation of the last day, and a fitting preparation against it, is fit and convenient for all generations and ages of the world. Obser. 3

Secondly, the thing whereunto they are exhorted, is to prepare themselves; Be ye ready; that is, (as is expounded, verse 42.) Be ye watchfull: To teach us.

That we ought to be principally carefull, that the day of the Lord come not upon us unawares, Marke 13. 37. Obser. 4

Why must we be thus carefull to watch, wait for, and prepare our selves for the day of the Lord? Quest. 3

First, because it is a matter of the greatest moment; for if the day of judgement should come upon us unawares, and unprepared, we should then suddainly loose Earth, Heaven, God, and all good things; and be made partakers of horrour, Hell, the wrath of God, and all evill things. Answ. 1

Secondly, because none can escape the day of Answ. 2

the

the Lord, therefore all should carefully wait for it: The truth of this appeares thus.

I. God is not blind, neither can he be deceived, Galath. 6. 7. For at the last day, the Bookes shall be opened (Daniel. 7. 10.) wherein the names, and actions of all persons are written.

II. Sathan will accuse all, and because his time is then at the last period, he will rage the more, and more vehemently prosecute all wicked men with hatred and malice.

III. The conscience of every wicked man will cry against him, and the mouth thereof then will not be stopped. And therefore it is unpossible that any wicked man should escape that day seeing every wicked man hath so all-seeing a Iudge, and so clamorous a witnesse, and so malicious an accuser.

Quest. 3 What is here required of us?

Answ. 1. First, we must take heed of security, and carelesnesse, seeing that Sathan is so watchfull, 1 Pet. 5. 8.

Secondly, we must meditate alwayes of the day of Judgement; that is, both of the uncertainty thereof, and also of the sudden comming thereof, and likewise of the nature thereof. Quoties diem illum considero, toto corpore contremisco, sive enim comedo, sive bibo, sive aliquid aliud facio, semper videtur illa tuba terribilis sonare in auribus meis; Surgite mortui, venite ad judicium. As often (saith Hierome upon Matth.) as I consider the day of Judgement, my whole body trembles; yea, whether I eate, or drinke, or what else soever I doe, me thinkes, I heare that terrible Trumpet sounding in my eares: Arise yee dead, and come to judgement.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, wee must examine our selves, by the Purity of that law and word of God, by which we shall then be judged; and see whether our actions will endure the tryall of that fire, and touch of that Lydius lapis, or touchstone.

Sect. 2. §. 2. For in such an houre as you thinke not of, the Sonne of man commeth.]

Quest. 1 How many things are observable in these words?

Answ. Two to wit,
- First, the comming of Christ; wherein there is --
  - First, the certainty thereof:
    - First, the person; The Sonne of Man.
    - 2ly, the action; He shall come.
  - Secondly, the Effect thereof
- Secondly, the time of his Comming, which shall be —
  - I. Unknowne. And
  - II. Sudden. And
  - III. Unexpected.

Quest. 2

Answ. First, Quis? Who shall come?

The Sonne of man, that is, CHRIST; observe here that many names are given unto him, but the holy Ghost useth this [The Sonne of man] when he speakes of the humane nature. Here therefore he meanes that CHRIST shall come in his humanity, and hence would teach us, Obser. 1 That CHRIST shall really, and verily come, in the truth of his humanity, to judge the world. Reade Acts. 1. 11. Iob. 19. 25.

Quest. 3 Secondly, Quid? what shall CHRIST doe? Veniet, He shall come. Whence we may learne:

That the comming of Christ unto judgement is most certaine, when there shall be time no longer. 321

Obser. 2

Against this Atheists object, The world hath bene alwayes as it is: therefore it shall not be changed, or destroyed by any judgement. Object. 1

I. It is false that the world hath bene alwayes; for the continuance thereof, from the Creation to this present yeere of our redemption. 1638. is but 5612. yeares, as may be proved by Scripture, and is proved by Mr. Perkins from Scripture. Answ. 1

II. The world was destroyed by the Flood; and therefore it is false, that it hath alwayes bene as it is. Answ. 2

III. As the world was first destroyed by water. so it shall at the last be destroyed by the other active element the fire. Answ. 3

The Atheists object againe, It is a thing unbeseeming the Lord, to create those things which hee shall, and which he will destroy; especially considering that all things which he created were good Gen. 1. 13. yea perfect, Deut. 32. 4. Object. 2

All things which the Lord created were good in a threefold regard: namely Answ.

First, in respect of their beginning, and originall; for they were good as God created them, but man hath fallen from God, and is now become evill. And

Secondly, in respect of their end, viz. the glo- of God; for all things were made for his glory. And

Thirdly, in respect of their perfection, as they were Gods workes; for anger, revenge, drowning of the world, burning of the world, yea the condemnation of the world, and whatsoever the Lord doth or shall doe, is perfectly just, and consequently good in respect of God.

Quest. 4 How doth it appeare that Christ shall come unto judgement, when the world shall be destroyed? or, how may it be proved that the world shall have an end?

Answ. 1 I. Against the Philosophers it may be thus proved; namely,

First, from this reason, because that which is moved by another, is not eternall; and therefore the world is not eternall either a parte ante, or, a parte post. To this,

I. Some answer, that the world is a living thing, and that the Sunne is the life thereof. But what can be more foolish then this?

II. Others answer that Heaven is a living thing; and Aristotle cals it, The first mover, and Plato, The God of nature, yea Aristotle ὁ ὄντως, The beeing of all things; which can be no other then God, and consequently he is the Mover, and moderator of all things. And

Secondly, from this reason, because εὐδαιμονία, happinesse, is the perfection of man, as Aristotle saith: but in this life there is no true happinesse; therefore it is necessary that there should be another life besides this. Solon said truly to Crœsus.

——— ——— ——— dicique beatus
Ante obitum nemo, supremaq; funera debet.
That is,
None perfect joy, and blisse can have,
Till death have forwonded them in Grave.

Thirdly,

322 Thirdly, from these testimonies; to wit,

I. Of all Nations, who dreame of some Religion, some kind of Eternity, some God, some supreme Power, and some manner of life after death. And

II. Of the Philosophers; to name but one or two, Zoroastres (who lived 400 yeares before the Trojane warre) and Athenagoras, and Pythagoras; and others: Tunc ille Dominus, mundi Monarcha, malignitatem, vel diluvione diluens, vel igne consumens, vel &c. Hermes trism. de mundo. Et Sybilla

Exuret terras ignis, pontumq; polumq; — & post
Sanctorum sed enim cuncta lux libera carni
Tradetur, fontes æternaq; flamma cremabit
——— Tunc quisq; loquetur
Secreta, atq; Deus reserabit pectora luci.
Tunc erit & luctus, stridebunt dentibus omnes.
(Augustin. de Civit. Dei, 18. 23.

Answ. 2 II. Against the Atheists, or Atheisticall Christians it may be thus proved; namely,

First, from these ensuing reasons; to wit,

I. From the end of Christs comming, which was to destroy the workes of Sathan, 1 John, 3. 8. Now his chiefest workes were Sinne and Death; and therefore the time shall come, when the faithfull shall cease from sinne, and when Death shall be swallowed up in victory.

II. From the justice of God, who hath threatned in Justice to recompence tribulation, and anguish, and wrath, &c. to every one that is wicked, Rom. 2. 6. &c. But this is not fulfilled upon them in this life: and therefore necessarily there must be another, Luke, 16.

Secondly, from these Testimonies; to wit,

I. Of many who either dyed not, or else have risen againe, and have beene restored againe unto life; as Henoch, Elias, Lazarus, and many who arose with CHRIST, as witnesses of his Resurrection, and divers who were raised up by the Apostles.

II. Of many plaine places of Scripture. Read Iob, 19. 25. and 1 Corinth. 15. Dan. 12. 2. and Jude, 4. and 1 Thess. 4. And therefore seeing undoubtedly the world shall end, and that at the end thereof CHRIST will come unto Judgement, let us watch, and be ready. and examine our selves.

Quest. 5 What must we examine in our selves, for ꝑ better fitting and preparing of us, against this dissolution of all things, and comming of CHRIST.

Answ. 1. I. We must carefully examine our Regeneration, and internall spirit: and herein inquire after these three things; namely,

First, our change; whether we be changed or not; whether we hate sinne with a perfect hatred or not; and whether ingenuously we condemne our forepassed life; And

Secondly, our cheerfulnesse; whether we forsake our sinnes with the consent of our hearts; yea rejoycing in the leaving of them, as a Conquerour rejoyceth in his Triumph. And

Thirdly, our humility; whether we boast of what we doe, or worke out the worke of our salvation with feare and trembling?

II. We must carefully examine our repentance, and newnesse of life; for otherwise all other things are in vaine. Quest. 6

Thirdly, concerning the effects of CHRISTS Comming it will be demanded; Cur venies, Why he will come? Answ.

I answer he will come, first to judge the world, and secondly to end and destroy the world. Now here three things are laid downe in this history; viz.,

I. That this Comming will be full of horreur and terrour unto the wicked, verse 30. And

II. That at this Comming all the Saints shall be gathered together, verse. 31. And

III. That then all these things shall be dissolved, verse 35. and 1 Peter. 4. 7.

Quest. 7 Concerning the day, and houre of CHRISTS Comming it will be demanded; When hee will come?

Answ. 1. First, the day and houre is unknowne, Daniel 12. 4. and verse 36. of this Chapter. and Marke. 13. 32. and Revel. 10. 14. Acts. 1. 7.

Answ. 2 Secondly, this day whensoever it comes will come suddenly; in the twinckling of an eye, 1 Cor. 15. 52. and 1 Thessal. 4. 17. yea so suddenly that we shall then have no time to prepare our selves. Matth. 25. 10. Because this is the time of preparation, that will be the time of retribution; and a tree being once fallen cannot turne it selfe on the other side. This is the difference betweene death and the last judgement; before the sudden approach of death we may repent, as Mr. Latymer said, betweene the falling of the hatchet, and the separation of the head: but no repentance at the approach at the last day. And therefore we should (before it comes) prepare our selves, and that

I. By repentance and true conversion unto God, Hebr. 3. 13. &c. While it is said to day. And

II. By faith; for without faith we cannot please God (Hebr. 11. 6.) and there can be no true faith without repentance (2 Tim. 4. 4.) and new obedience.

Answ. 3. Thirdly, the time of CHRISTS comming will be in an houre when we looke not for it; or, it will come unawares, and altogether unexpected: And this is the worst of all; for although it be unknowne, yet if we did expect it, it would not find us unprepared; but it will come when we know not, ye when we feare it not at all, and so become a horrible houre unto us. The point observable from hence is this.

Obser. 3. That Christ will come unto judgement, when we are most secure, and most negligent. For the better taking up, and confirming of this, we will consider three dependant particulars, viz.

First, the Causes, why we neglect the Comming of Christ: that wicked men neglect Christs Comming, is plaine from Luke. 21. 34. and verses 38. and 49. of this Chapter. Now the Causes why they neglect his comming are principally these two; namely

I. The joyes and delights of the world: which are either

First, lawfull, as laughter, play, mirth; now concerning these the Apostle saith, Let those who rejoyce be as though they rejoyced not (1 Cor. 7. 31.)

that that is, they muſt not be profuſe in their laughter, but moderate in all worldly delights and pleaſures. Or

Secondly, unlawfull; as drunkenneſſe, gluttony, uncleanneſſe, and the like, wherein wicked men wickedly rejoyce Read, Luke. 21. 34. and verſes. 38. and 49. of this Chapter.

II. The cares, diſtractions, and employments, of the world cauſe us to neglect the comming of CHRIST.

Here obſerve three Cauſes; to wit,

Firſt, Cauſa juvans, the helping and furthering Cauſe; and that is, the care of our vocations, and callings. Now although callings are warrantable and lawfull, and a provident care in the managing and following of our callings be warrantable and lawfull, yet our care may be too exceſſive, and immoderate even in our Vocations. Pſal. 127. And hence the Apoſtle exhorts thoſe who buy to be as though they bought not &c. 1 Cor. 7. 31.

Secondly, there is Cauſa laqueans, the bewitching, and enthralling cauſe, and that is, Covetouſneſſe, oppreſſion, and the like. Matth. 13. 22. and 1 Tim. 6. 9. Theſe we muſt principally take heed off, they being as pernicious to our poore ſoules, as bird-lime, or ſnares, are to the poore birds.

Thirdly, there is Cauſa occidens, the killing cauſe, to wit, worldly ſorrow (2 Cor. 7. 10.) which cauſeth death.

Secondly, men being once overcome with theſe cauſes, they then become ſecure, and ſleepe feareleſſely, Matth. 25. 5. and verſe 38 of this Chap. and verſe 48. That is, they either regard not Chriſts Comming, or elſe they preſume that he will deferre his comming. And Thirdly, then CHRIST will come, in the night in the laſt watch of the night, when men ſleepe; Matth. 14. 25. and verſe 43. of this Chapt. That is, when he is not expected or looked for.

Verſ. 46. 47. VERS. 46, 47. Bleſſed is that ſervant, whom his Lord when he commeth, ſhall find ſo doing. Verily I ſay unto you, that he ſhall make him ruler over all his goods.

Object. Some of the Papiſts produce this place to prove the Invocation of Saints, reaſoning thus, The good ſervant is here promiſed a reward of bleſſedneſſe, even to be placed over all that his Lord hath; whereby is meant, That Saints after their departure, are made Protectors of the Militant Church of Chriſt: And therefore we may pray unto them. Bellarm. de beat. Sanct. Cap. 28. & Coſter. Enchir Cap. 14.

Anſw. By the context it is plaine, even in the judgement of their Jeſuite Maldonate, that it is, an explanation of the parable going before, Chapt. 25. 19. where it is ſaid [A long time after will his Lord come] whereby doubtleſſe is meant the ſecond comming of CHRIST. Maldonat. Jeſ. com. in Matth. 25. 19, 31. And in this ſame Chapter it is ſaid, when his Lord ſhall come, which cannot be underſtood, but of the ſecond coming of Chriſt.

Verſ. 48, 49, 50, 51. VERS. 48, 49, 50, 51. But and if that evill ſervant ſhall ſay in his heart, My Lord delayeth his Comming, and ſhall beginne to ſmite his fellow ſervants, and to eate and drinke with the drunken: the Lord of that ſervant ſhall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not aware of: and ſhall cut him aſunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth. 323

Sect. 1. §. 1. But if that evill Servant ſhall ſay in his heart &c.]

Obſer. The ſcope of our Saviour in theſe words (as I take it) is to teach us, That when wicked men moſt deride the judgements of God, then they are moſt neare them: Read Gen. 4. 7. and 7. Matth. 25. 5, 10. and Revel. 3. 10. and Eſa. 5. 26. 27.

Queſt. Who are here to be blamed, and reproved?

Anſw. 1. Firſt, thoſe who deride the judgements of God. Eſa. 5. 19. Ierem. 17. 15. and 20. 8. Ierem. 4. 4. Many there are who laugh at the comminations and menaces of the Miniſters of the word, and in their wickedneſſe and drunkenneſſe ſay: Let him preach anger, and judgement, for we feare it not, certainly unto ſuch the Lord will come, in an houre when they are not aware, and give them their portion in hat Lake where there is nothing but weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, they alſo are to be reproved, who although they deride not the threatnings of the word, denounced by the Preachers thereof; yet in the meane time they preſume, and feare them not, ſaying unto themſelves, we hope the judgements of God will not approach as yet, and if they doe we ſhall not be ſubject unto them, but delivered from them. This Non morieris, thou ſhalt not dye, was the firſt dart that the Devill threw at man. Gen. 3. 2. And preſumption like the Trojane horſe, brings a concealed enemy in the belly thereof, which wounds before it warnes: And therefore we muſt not preſume.

Queſt. 2. To whom may this be fitly applied?

Anſw. 1. Firſt, to thoſe who thinke that though they ſinne yet no evill ſhall come vpon them (Eccleſ. 5. 4. &c.) neither ſhall they be puniſhed at all. Many argue

I. From the mercy of God, thus, God is mercifull; and therefore hee will not puniſh ſinne, And

II. From others, thus: ſuch and ſuch have ſinned greatly and grievouſly, and yet no evill hath come unto them; therefore ſinne ſhall not be puniſhed at all. And

III. From themſelves, thus; we have taken this courſe, and followed this way long, and as yet God hath not manifeſted his anger againſt us: and therefore we hope, that our ſinnes ſhall never come unto judgement, nor we for our ſinnes unto condemnation. And thus they altogether forget; that

Firſt, God is juſt as well as mercifull. And Secondly, that his word is true, and ſhall certainly be accompliſhed. And

Thirdly, that the longer the Lord ſpares, the more exquiſitely, and unexpectedly he will puniſh. And

Fourthly, that by theſe arguments they ſhew themſelves to be the Devils Proctors, pleading with

with all their might for sinne and rebellion against the Lord of glory.

Answ. 2. Secondly, this may be applied to those, who extenuate and lessen their sinnes, as though they deserved not to be punished for such petty offences. Some sticke not to say, Lying, swearing, lascivious words, and the neglect of holy duties, are not such great matters; And therefore they being guilty of no greater sinnes, they hope they shall not be punished. But

I. Although these sinnes should be granted to be but small, yet they are many; and therefore will certainly condemne without repentance. But

II. They are not small. For

First, God hath said, that he will never hold the swearer guiltlesse Command. 4. And

Secondly, lying is a sinne directly against CHRIST, who is truth it selfe; and therefore St. Iohn saith, that all lyars shall be shut out of the Kingdome of heaven, Revel. 21. And

Thirdly, wicked thoughts draw downe Gods heavie judgements upon such as harbour, and give way unto them (Gen. 6. 5) therefore much more will wicked words destroy the soule. Wisdom. 11. 1.

Fourthly, to neglect the duties and exercises of Religion, is to neglect the service of God, and consequently to be unprofitable servants; now all such shall be cast into utter darknesse, where shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, Matth. 25. 30. And therefore let us not deceive our selves by the smalnesse of our sinnes.

Sect. 2 §. 2. And give him his portion with Hypocrites.]

Quest. 1 What duties of Religion may an hypocrite doe, or, how farre may he goe?

Answ. 1 First, he may have whatsoever nature hath given at any time to any, or can give.

Answ. 2 Secondly, he may have a temporary faith; which includes two things in it, to wit,

I. A knowledge of the word. And

II. A perswasion of the truth and authority thereof.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, by the law he may be brought both to acknowledge his sinne, and the merit of it.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, from hence the conscience may be terrified, and the heart wounded with sorrow for sinne, And Answ. 5 Fifthly, he may assent to the covenant of grace, that it is a sure and certaine covenant, and he may beleeve the sufficiency of the merits of CHRIST.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, he may beleeve that God is faithfull and true, and will in his due time performe all his promises unto his servants. And Answ. 7 Seventhly, as he may sorrow for his sinnes, so he may strive and struggle against sinne. And Answ. 8 Eighthly, hence from these fruits of his faith may arise joy, and a willing submitting of himselfe to heare the word of God, and to heare it with gladnesse as Herod did, Marke. 6. 20.

Quest. 2 What foundations of faith hath an hypocrite to rely upon?

Answ. The holy Spirit moues the children of God, to labour for faith, and to approve, and manifest their faith, by a true sincerity and solide change in all things: But the hypocrite hath other false foundations to build his faith upon; namely,

First, he conferres himselfe with wicked men, and then concludes, I am not like this Publicane, but much better then he, or these wicked ones; and therefore I need not feare.

Secondly, he compares himselfe with himselfe, and then concludes, that his knowledge in divine things is more then it hath bene, and his profession fairer then formerly, and his life more refined, then it was at such a time: and therefore in regard of this cleare change that is wrought in him, he needs not feare.

Thirdly, he compares himselfe with the righteous, and he heares what the world saith of them, that (because they oppose themselves against the vices of the times, therefore) they are contentious and proud, Esa. 8. 18. Wisdome. 2. 15, 16. And therefore he thinkes himselfe in a righter, and better way then they, and consequently needs feare no evill.

Fourthly, he judgeth himselfe by his outward estate: and because God blesseth and prospereth him in whatsoever he takes in hand; therefore he confidently perswades himselfe, that his pathes are straight, and his wayes pleasing unto God, although a wicked man may abound in all outward good things, Reade Iob. 21. Ierem. 12. 1, 2. Malach. 3. 15.

Fifthly, he imagines that because Gods mercies are above all his workes, therefore they shall also be extended beyond his promises: and consequently that he need not feare, though he be faulty.

Sixthly, he perceives that he is free from the temptations of Sathan, which others feele, and groane under; and therefore he perswades himselfe that the Devill dares not deale with him, and consequently that he needs not feare any evill to come.

Object. Bellarmine affirmes that Salomon was damned, and confirmes it hence: Hypocrisie is a sinne odious unto God, and lyable unto many heavy and grievous plagues, as appeares from this verse: But Salomon was a most palpable and grosse hypocrite, neither did ever adhere unto God sincerely, although he had a shew of zeale at the first, as is evident from 1 King. 11. 4. where it is plainly said, That his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his Father.

Answ. 1. First, this place proves not that the heart of Salomon was in no sort intire and sincere, but onely that it was not so intire and sincere, as was the heart of David his Father: for sanctification is given to the elect unequally in this life; and therefore that is not presently evill which is lesse good.

Answ. 2. Secondly, this particle Sicut, As, is not here a note of quality, but of equality, not of likenesse, but of measure: that is, these words [His heart was not perfect, (that is, as perfect) as was the heart of his Father David] doe not simply denote the quality, but onely the same degree of quality: for that place of Scripture aymes at no other thing then that the Kingdome was not so well ordered and governed under, or, by Salomon, as it was by Vers. 6.

Sect.
Obj.

Obj.

by David; who although he were not free from all blame, yet he never suffred the true worship of God to be corrupted in his Kingdome, neither did defile himselfe with any Idolatry; which things Salomon was guilty of, and which considered in themselves are so great and greevous sinnes, that St. Peter (by an Antonomasia) cals them, The pollution of the world. 2 Peter. 2. 20. But yet not so great as that the Lord cannot renew his children from them by repentance, and did Salomon, as appeares by the Booke of Ecclesiastes which was writ after his fall, to testifie his repentance. 325

CHAP. XXV.

Vers.6. VERS. 6. And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold the Bridegroome commeth, goe ye out to meet him.

§. 1. And at midnight there was a cry made.]

Ten Virgins expect the Bridegroomes comming, and at length at midnight there was a cry &c.

Whence many things might be observed, which I but onely name; to wit,

First, that our life is a perpetuall expectation or CHRIST; or, we ought to expect Christ through the whole course of our lives. And

Secondly, that we ought to expect CHRIST alwayes with our Lamps burning, and oyle in our Lamps, like the wise Virgins. And Thirdly, that CHRIST will come, when we least of all expect it.

Sect.2. §. 2. Behold the Bridegroome commeth.]

Obser. We may observe hence, That CHRIST is the Lord and Husband of the Church, Ephes. 5. 25. &c. For

First, he loves it. And

Secondly, he wooes and makes suit unto it. And Thirdly, he contracts and marries himselfe unto it, Hose. 2. 19. And Fourthly, he protects and defends it. And Fifthly, he communicates all good things unto it, and gives it an interest into whatsoever is his. 1 Cor. 3. 21. And

Sixthly, he gives himselfe unto it. And Seventhly, he is carefull to beautifie and adorne it, Eph. 5. 25.

Obser. The scope of our Saviour in this is place to declare his comming; to teach us,

That the comming of CHRIST is a thing of great moment, Reade Luke. 2. 11, and Ioel. 1. 9.

Quest. How many wayes doth CHRIST come?

Answ.1. First, he comes in the flesh; and this comming was fore-told by the Prophets (Esa. 61. 1. &c. and 62. 11. and Zachar. 9. 9.) and is now past.

Answ.2. Secondly, he comes in glory; and this comming is mentioned in these places (Psal. 50. 2. Ioel. 1. and Acts. 1. 7.) and is yet to come.

Answ.3 Thirdly, he comes in spirit, strength, and power; and thus he commeth for a threefold end; namely

I. Sometimes for to revenge, as we may see in these places Psal. 50. 2. Esa. 13. 9. and 30. 27. and Amos. 4. 12.

II. Sometimes for to helpe, and succour: as Psal. 80. 2. Esa. 40. 9. &c. and 59. 20. And

III. Sometimes for to comfort, and cherish, as Esa. 61. 1 &c. Iohn, 15. 20. Hebr. 13. 37.

§. 3. Goe ye out to meet him.] Sect.3.

Obser. Our Saviour would teach us in these words, That we must prepare our selves, for the comming of the Lord, Amos. 4. 12. Or, because he will come unto us, therefore we must prepare to meet him.

Quest. How must we prepare to meet the Lord?

Answ.1 First, in generall by walking in his waies, Psal. 101. 2.

Answ.2 Secondly, we must prepare to meet the Lord, by the confession of our sinnes, and the contrition and sorrow for them, Amos. 4. 12. And

Answ.3 Thirdly, with our Lamps in our hands, not extinguished but burning, Luke, 12. 35. And Answ.4 Fourthly, with a wedding garment upon us, Mathew. 22. And Answ.5 Fifthly, which joy and delight. Matth. 21. 5.

Vers.9. VERS. 9. But the wise answered, saying, Not so, lest there be not enough for us and you, but goe ye rather to them that sell, and buy for your selves.

Argum. It is questioned betwixt us and the Papists, whether good workes as they are satisfactory, may be applied unto others? and we say, that all which a man can doe is little enough, yea too little for himselfe; and therefore much lesse can he satisfie for another. This we prove from this place, The wise Virgins make this answer to the foolish, we feare there will not be enough for us, and you: upon which words Augustine writeth thus, Vnusquisque pro se rationem reddet, nec alieno testimonio quicquam adjuvatur apud Deum &c. August. serm. 22. in Matth. Every man shall give account for himselfe, neither is a man helped by anothers testimony before God, to whom the secrets of the heart are evident: every man scarce sufficeth for himselfe, to whom his owne conscience doth beare witnesse. Now if the other words which follow be objected, Goe to them rather that sell, and buy for your selves; Origen shall make answer, who understandeth by those who Sell, the Doctors and Teachers of the Church. Non omnium habentium oleum, est etiam dare ex eo aliis, &c, Orig. tract. 32. in Matth. It is not the part of all that have

oyle

326 oyle to give to others, but it belongeth onely unto them which are appointed to sell it : one hath gathered doctrine, which may be sufficient for himselfe to live well, but not to be a Doctor or Teacher to others.

Argum. It is questioned also betweene us and the Church of Rome, whether the sufferings of the Saints belong to the Church treasure? And we say, that it is a most horrible blasphemy to affirme that the passions of the Saints must be added to Christs satisfactions to make up the treasure of the Church. Yea this opinion is so impious, that Durandus himselfe dislikes it, and argues against it from this verse; The wise Virgins say, lest there will not be enough for you and us; Durand. in 4. dist. 20. quest. 3. Therefore the Saints have nothing to communicate to others.

Reply. To this Bellarmine answers, That the Virgins speake not of satisfaction, but of the oyle of grace and love, which every one keepeth to himselfe, and cannot powre forth upon another, Bellar. lib 1. de Indulg. Cap. 4. To this we answer two things; viz.

Answ. 1 First, if the oyle of charity cannot be communicated, then not the price of good workes, which proceed from charity, being the fruits thereof: for no workes are good without love, as the Apostle saith, 1 Cor. 13. 3. And therefore a man cannot lend the price of his workes, but he must also lend his charity, which maketh them precious.

Answ. 2 Secondly, these Virgins speake not of their justice or righteousnesse, which they hold to be litle enough for themselves; and thus Bernard expounds the words, Give us of your oyle ; Stulta petitio ; vix justus salvabitur, &c. Bern. serm. de Virgin. A fooliſh request: for the righteous shall scarce be saved, and the oyle of their owne righteousnesse hardly sufficeth the Saints unto salvation, how much lesse themselves and their neighbour. Noe, Daniel, and Iob, shall not deliver a sonne or daughter, but like as the soule that sinneth shall dye, so that soule that doth righteousnesse only shal be saved.

Vers. 10. VERS. 10. And while they went to buy, the Bridegroome came ; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage, and the doore was shut.

Object. It is controverted betweene us and the Papists, whether the dead have any benefit by the Indulgences of the Church? Bellarmine (lib. 1. de Indulg. Cap. 14. qu. 1.) proveth it (at least in his owne opinion) thus. The prayers of the living and other workes by way of impetration profit the dead: therefore, the same workes, as prayer and fasting, being also satisfactory doe also benefit them by way of satisfaction.

Answ. 1 First, the argument followeth not, we may pray for the dead; therefore we may also satisfie for them: for we grant that we may one pray for another while we live, but we cannot one satisfie for another, because supplication is of mercy, but satisfaction is of desert.

Answ. 2 Secondly, neither is it true that the prayers of the living doe profite the dead; for request, and intercession avayleth not after sentence is given, and judgement past, which is in the finall end and departure out of this life; as is evident from this verse, for after the gate is shut there is no entring, Willet, synops. fol. 1212.

Vers. 11. VERS. 11. Afterwards came also the other Virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us. Vers. 11

Obser. Although these fooliſh Virgins have no part in CHRIST, yet they come boldly, and desire to enter into heaven. to teach us, That many are seduced and deceived by a false confidence, Reade Luke. 18. 11. Matthew. 7. 22. John. 7. 49. and 9. 24.

Quest. 1 From whence comes it, that so many are seduced and deceived by a false trust?

Answ. 1 First, it proceeds sometimes from internall selfe-love; we naturally thinke well of our selves, being blinded with selfe-conceits, but God judgeth according to truth Rom. 2. 2.

Answ. 2 Secondly, this comes sometimes from some externall and internall testimonies; as for example.

I. They see some to be worse then themselves. And

II. Many to be as bad as themselves. And

III. They highly price that honesty which they see in themselves. And

IV. They have a forme of Godlinesse in their lives and conversations. 2 Tim. 3. 5. And

V. They have (perhaps) some sparkes of the conscience of sinne, and of sorrow for sinne, and some desire of God and heaven, and some hope to enjoy them. But these, and greater then these may be in reprobates, Hebr. 6. 4. and 10. 26. 2 Peter 2. 20.

Vers. 12. VERS. 12. But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not. Vers. 12

Quest. Is not CHRIST omniscient? doth he not know all things, and all men? how then doth he say here, I know you not?

Answ. There is a double knowledge; namely

First, Negative, and this the present text speakes of; Verily I know you not; and Chapt. 7. 23. Depart from me, I know you not: that is, I acknowledge you not, neither ever did, as mine; and therefore depart from me.

Secondly, Positive; and this knowledge of God is threefold; viz.

I. Intuitiva, whereby God knowes all men, and all things And

II. Approbativa, whereby God knowes all the faithfull. And

III. Vindicativa, whereby God knowes all wicked men.

Vers. 19. VERS. 19. After a long time the Lord of those servants commeth, and reckoneth with them. Vers. 19

Sect. 1. §. 1. After a long time.]

How many things are observable in this verse.

First,

Answ. Three. First, Tempus, the time when the Master commeth, and that is, after a long time, Quando?

Secondly, Author, The person comming; and that is, Christ, the Lord of those servants. Quis?

Thirdly, Wherefore this Lord commeth, and that is, to reckon with his servants. Quorsum?

Quest. 2 How can God be absent a long time, seeing he is every where always, or how can Christ be absent from his faithfull servants a long time, seeing he hath promised to be with them even unto the end of the world, Matth. 28. 20.

Answ. 1 First, I omit at this time the Schoole distinctions of the Humanity, Deity, providence, and grace of CHRIST.

Answ. 2 Secondly, there is a double presence of CHRIST; namely, I. Cryptica, and secret; and thus Christ is perpetually present with his servants. II. Apocalyptica, and revealed; and thus we expect him in the Clouds hereafter. And of this the Text speakes.

Observ. Our Saviour by these words [After a long time] would teach us, That the Lord doth not presently, but after many delayes, and much prolonging of the time, judge the wicked. Read Exod. 34. 6. Numb. 14. 18. Psal. 103. 8. and 145. 8. Luke 20. 9. Genes. 15. 13, 16. and 6. 3. and 2 Chron. 36. 16. Esa 30. 18. &c.

Quest. 3 Why doth not the Lord call wicked men to account presently, but after much procrastination and delay?

Answ. 1. First, he doth this for the greater judgement of the wicked, that their sins may waxe ripe unto vengeance. Read Esa 5. 19. and 2 Peter 3. 4. and 2 Thessal. 2. 11. And therefore the opinion of the common sort of people is fooliſh and false, who I. Thinke the godly miserable, because they are not presently freed from calamity and misery, Wisdom 3. 1. &c. and 5. 4. II. Thinke the great ones of the world happy, because no evill befals them at all, Iob. 21. 7. &c Psal. 73. 4. &c. But if they be wicked they shall be cut off at the last, Iob. 21. 4. Psal. 73. 18. None are blessed, but they whose sins shall not be imputed unto them, Psal. 31. 1. &c. And therefore wicked men (though never so great) are not happy, 2 Peter 2. 4, 9.

Answ. 2 Secondly, God doth this [that is, spare wicked men long] for the tryall of the godly and faithful, yea he punisheth his owne oftentimes much for the exercise of their patience; as we may see, 1 Peter 1. 7. and Esa. 57. 17. but most plainly in Iob, who was afflicted, & that sharply in all kinds; viz.

I. In his cattell, Chap. 1. II. In his children, Chap. 1. III. In his owne body, Chap. 2. 7. IV. In his kindred, Chap. 6. 4. and 19. 13. V. In his servants, Chap. 19. 15. VI. In his wife, Chap. 19. 17. VII. In his soule, in his sleepe and dreames, Chap. 7. 14. VIII. By his wife, Chap. 2. 9. IX. By impatiencie, Chap. 7. X. By his three friends, Chap. 16. 2. XI. But more particularly by Elihu, Chap. 32. Yea XII. By the Lord himselfe, Chap. 38. And all for the tryall of his patience, confidence, and perseverance.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, God with-holds just vengeance from the wicked a long time, for the approbation of his long suffering and patience, 2 Peter 3. 9. Luke 13. 7. and 1 Timoth. 2. 4.

Quest. 4 What is here required of us, Or what may we learne hence?

Answ. 1 First, Judges must learne hence to punish gently, and with great deliberation, not rashly, or malitiously, for anger is the worst Counsellour that a Judge or Magistrate can have. The Lacedemonians alwayes before battell offered sacrifice to the Muses and Clemencies. The Romans tyed a bundle of rods or sticks to their mortall hatchet, that so (before any could be beheaded therewith) they might have time to consider, whether the party deserved death justly or not. So the Venetians carried the punishing sword alwayes covered, that there might be time to consider of the fact before execution. Athenodorus advised Augustus, to say over (when he was angry) the Greeke alphabet, before he executed his anger, or punished him with whom he was angry. Charilaus the King of the Lacedmeonians, being incensed said, Occiaerē nisi iraſceterer I would kill thee if I were not angry. And therefore from the Lords long suffering, and these examples, Judges may learne to execute judgement in clemencie and with mature advice.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we must learne not to frustrate the Lords expectation, but to amend our lives, labouring that the long suffering of God may lead us to repentance: for otherwise with the fruitlesse Figtree we shall be cut downe (Luke 13. 9.) and with the unprofitable thornes and thistles we shall be cast into the fire, Hebr. 6. 8. And therefore we ought seriously to ruminate, and remember these few things; to wit, I. How long God hath spared us, and with-held his just judgements from us. II. How often, and how long we have provoked the Lord unto anger by our sinnes. III. How small time (for any thing we know) remaines behind to glorifie our God in, and to worke out our owne salvation, and to repent us of our sinnes. IV. How suddainly the Lord comes; viz. like a thiefe in the night, when we expect him not. V. Why he will come when he comes; namely, to take account of us, and to punish us with everlasting fire, if he find us in our sinnes. VI. We should seriously consider, how long we intend to continue and proceed on in our sinnes, and when we meane to loath and leave them, whether we resolve to live in sinne, and dye in iniquity or not; Or whether we thinke it probable, that although we spend our lives in disobedience and rebellion against God, yet he will accept of us at our death.

§. 2. The Lord of these servants commeth.] Sect. 2

Who is this Lord? Quest. 5

God, or rather JESUS CHRIST; For Answ.

First, this Lord punisheth with perpetuall paines, verse 20. And Secondly, is called the Sonne of man, verse 31. Who although he deferre his comming a long time, yet he comes at last: to teach us

That although the Lord seems to procrastinate his comming yet he will certainly come. Read Gen. 15. 14. Nahum. 1. 2. Psa. 50. 21. Deut. 32. 37. Psa. 7. 12. and 78. 66. Esa 30. 18. &c. Ierem. 51. 56. Now the reasons hereof are these two; viz. Observ.

328

First, becauſe the Lord doth not ſpare for ever, but onely for a time. And Secondly, becauſe he ſhould not be juſt, if he did not puniſh rebels at the laſt, Pſal. 12.5.

Queſt. 2 Whom, or what will God judge at the laſt?

Anſw. 1 First, every Nation, Matth. 25.32. that is, both thoſe who are under the Law, and thoſe who are without Law, Rom. 2.15. And

Anſw. 2 Secondly, every man: that is, both high and low, rich and poore, Maſter and Servant, Parents and Children, Read Revelat. 6.15. and 19.18. and 20.13,15. and 7.3. &c. and 17.14. and 19.9. and 21.27. And Anſw. 3. Thirdly, all ſinnes, whether publike or private, great or ſmall, externall or internall; for both God, and Sathan, and the conſcience of wicked men will accuſe them; & therefore nothing ſhal eſcape either unſeen, or uncenſured, or unpuniſhed, Rev. 20.12.

Sect. 3 §. 3. And reckoneth with them.]

Queſt. 1 When will this reckoning be?

Anſw. God threatens all ſorts of ſinnes with all ſorts of puniſhments, but principally with eternall, and this place ſeemes to ſpeake of the finall judgment, becauſe eternall rewards are promiſed, verſe 21, 23, 30. Quidam de longanimitate Dei, at mihi videtur Reſurrectio quoq; ſignificari. Chryſoſt. ſ.

Queſt. 2 What muſt we give account of at the laſt day?

Anſw. 1 First, of our ſelves, Rom. 14.12. that is, of thoſe things which we have done in this life 2 Cor. 5.10.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, of thoſe gifts and graces which were given unto us; and this the Text ſpeakes of, for he reckoneth with them about the Talents which were betruſted unto them. For the word here uſed is συναίρειν λόγον, and is alſo to be read, Matth. 18.23,24. where (and every where) it ſignifies to render an account, or to make up a reckoning. Computare.

How manifold is the ſpirituall account or reckoning?

Twofold, namely either

First, of men amongſt themſelves; and this is twofold; to wit, either, I. When a man reckons with his neighbour whom he hath offended; and this is called ſatisfaction. II. When a man reckons with himſelfe; and this is threefold; viz.

First, when a man computes and counts his afflictions; as Rom. 8.18. and 2. Cor. 4.17. And

Secondly, when a man computes and counts his pleaſures; as Philip. 3.8. &c. And Thirdly, when a man computes and counts his perſeverance in labour, Mat. 18.23. But this preſent portion of Scripture ſpeakes of none of theſe: therefore I paſſe them.

Secondly, of men with God; and this is twofold; namely either

I. When men give account unto God for others; that is, thoſe who are under their charge; as Acts 20.28. and Hebr. 13.17. Or

II. When we give account unto God for themſelves, and thoſe graces and gifts which the Lord hath beſtowed upon them: as Rom. 14.12. and 2. Cor. 5.10. And of this the Text ſpeakes. Whence we may learne.

Obſerv. That the time will come when we ſhall give an account unto God both of our workes and gifts, Luke 16.2. For the better confirming of this, mark theſe three things; to wit,

First, that all things we have are given us by God, and therefore he may call for them, and call us to account for them, when he pleaſeth, Iob, 21.

Secondly, thoſe things which we have are not given, but onely lent unto us by God; and therefore he may juſtly call us to account for the uſe of them, Levit. 19.9.

Thirdly, God hath lent us thoſe things we have, not to lye idle by us, but to improve, and augment, 1 Cor. 12.7. All gifts and graces are given to profit withall; that is,

I. Spirituall graces are given for augmentation, and increaſe, 1 Peter 2.2.

II. Other gifts & good things are given for the helpe of Spirituall graces; that is, either

First, Ut adjumenta, as helpes, and thus wiſdome and memory are given for the greater increaſe and furtherance of piety and Religion: and externall good things are given for the better quieting of the mind, & ſhewing forth of the works of charity.

Secondly, Ut ſolamina, they are given as comforts; that the mind being employed intently in the ſervice of the Lord, it may be refreſhed, and the ſpirits ſupported, by a moderate uſe of the refreſhments afforded.

Who are here to be taxed? Queſt. 4

Thoſe who thinke themſelves full, and whole, and abſolute poſſeſſers of thoſe things which they injoy, whereas they are but onely Stewards and diſpenſers, and betruſted with them by God, for ſome end or uſe. Anſw.

For what end or uſe doth God give Riches, and temporall things unto men? Queſt. 5

First, for his owne glory; for he hath made all things, and he doth all things for his glory; and ſo ſhould we doe (1. Cor. 10.31. Coloſ. 3.17.) wherefore we muſt examine our ſelves, how we glorifie our God by thoſe things which we injoy. Anſw. 1

Secondly, for their good, that they may be the more carefull to increaſe in holineſſe and in all vertuous qualities. Anſw. 2

Thirdly, for the example of their brethren; that by their good and religious uſe of riches, others may be incouraged to doe good in the like kind, and to communicate to the neceſſities of the Saints. Anſw. 3

Fourthly, for the comfort of their lives, and the better enabling of them to beare the croſſes and diſaſters of this life. Anſw. 4

What is here required of us? Queſt. 6

We muſt prepare our ſelves for this reckoning and caſt up our owne accounts, examining what we have done, that ſo we may prevent the judgement of God. What muſt we examine, or cõpute? Anſw. Queſt. 7

First, in generall we muſt examine our ſelves and our workes. Anſw. 1.

Secondly, more particularly, two things are to be examined, and carefully caſt up; to wit, Anſw. 2

I. Our actions & ſins, eſpecially thoſe ſins which are obſerved, and marked, and wch ſhall be moſt ſeverely puniſhed at ye day of judgmẽt. as for example

First, diffidence and diſtruſt of God, as Eſa 30.8. we uſually place our hope and truſt upon the world, Iob. 31.24. And if we be in penury have no peace at all within our ſelves, fides eſt quod vides, we believe no more then we ſee; and therefore when our riches faile, our faith fades. 1. Diffidentia.

Secondly,

2. Contemptus verbi. Secondly, a contempt of the word, and Law of God, Esa 5.24.

3 Superbia. Thirdly, pride, Esa. 47.7. either against God or man.

4. Odium. Fourthly, hatred of our brethren, and the wayes of God.

5. Provocatio fratrum. Fifthly, provocation of our Brethren, 1 Peter 4.3. And that

I. Sometimes unto duels and slaughters. And

II. Sometimes unto the prophanation of the Lords day. And

III. Sometimes unto adultery and fornication.

IV. Sometimes unto drunkennesse, Abak. 2.15.

6. Verba otiosa. Sixthly, idle words, for even these are observed, and threatned, Matth. 12.36. Now there are three sorts of these; to wit,

I. Some are contrary to holinesse; as swearing, blasphemy, and scoffing at holy things.

II. Some are contrary to righteousnesse; as lying, brawling, and the like, Revelat. 21.8. and 22.15.

III. Some are contrary to sobriety; as filthy, and lascivious words, or songs, Ephes. 5.4.

Now because the Lord sees, and markes, and threatnes to punish all these, we must examine which and how many of them have beene in us, or committed by us, that so we may labour seriously to repent what is by-past, and to amend for the time to come. We must take heed that we doe not distrust either the providence, promise, or love of God; we must be principally carefull, not to despise the will and word of God; we must beware of pride, hatred, and wicked words in our selves, and of provoking others unto wickednesse; because all these shall be punished when the Lord comes to reckon with us.

Benedictiones spirituales. II. We must examine and carefully cast up the blessings and mercies given unto us by God, whether Spirituall, or corporall, or Externall.

Firſt, there are Spirituall graces given unto us by God, which we must give account unto him of, as

1. Verbum I. The word, and the preaching thereof, John 12.48. Hebr. 2.3. And herein two things are to be examined. viz.

First, how we love it, and whether we prepone or postpone other things before it?

Secondly, how doe we apply the word, doe we make it a Rule, a Ballance, a Touch-stone, applying it to our words, workes, and thoughts? In a word, doe we direct our lives thereby? These things we had need examine, because they will be inquired and searched into, when the Lord comes to take account of us.

2. Spiritus II. The holy Spirit is another spiritual grace given unto us: for as the Lord gives the word unto our eares, so he gives also the Spirit unto our hearts; and as the word without cals, so the Spirit within moves us; and therefore we must examine,

First, whether we strive against these good motions, labouring to extinguish them; or whether we embrace, nourish, and labour to kindle these sparkes into a flame? And

Secondly, whether doe we acknowledge in these good cogitations, compunctions, and motions the finger of God, and his gracious call, or whether do we thinke them idle thoughts, and so (as needlesse or unnecessary) let them suddainly fade and dye?

Thirdly, whether do we follow & obey the counsell, & direction of the Spirit, or whether do we disobey and despise it? For we must give account of these at the comming of our Master, and therefore in the meane time we ought to examine our selves in them.

3. Communio sanctorum. III. The communion of the Saints is another spirituall grace given unto us by God; that is, as the Lord gives us the call of his word, and the motions of his spirit, so he also gives us the examples and exhortations of the godly; and as this is a great blessing, so no small account must we give of it at the last. And therefore we should examine these three things; viz.

First, whether we love and like the society of wicked or righteous men most.

Secondly, whether we like and approve of the good examples of the godly, or whether we despise and deride them?

Thirdly, whether we follow the good examples of good men, or praise them onely, but imitate them not at all? For for these we must give account of unto God at the last.

Corporalia. Secondly, there are corporall endowments given unto us by God, which we must be accountable unto God for: as for example,

1. Prudentia I. Wisedome, which is a gift comming from heaven, and excels all temporall things: Now herein we must examine,

First, whether we bend our wit unto oppressions, wrong, injury, strife, contention, and the like. Or

Secondly, whether we employ it in gathering together the thicke clay of this world. Or

Thirdly, whether we bury it in pleasure, as the unprofitable servant did his Talent in a napkin. Or Fourthly, whether we use our wisedome unto the glory of God, or the advancement of Religion, or the good of our brethren, or the increase of our owne grace and goodnesse?

2. Ingenia II. Wit is another corporall blessing given unto us; and therefore we must examine, whether we use our quicknesse and wit (with Bezaleel and Aholiab) unto the service of the Church, or (with many) to the composing of chaffie, and lewd poemes, and idle unprofitable Bookes?

3. Constantia Magnanimitas. III. Constancy and Magnanimity may well be called a corporall blessing, and is given by God, it being a rare morall vertue, if it be not rash, but prudent. And therefore those who are indued herewith must examine; Whether

First, they convert this their constancie unto revenge? Or whether

Secondly, they convert it, unto the protection of the Gospell, or the good of Religion?

4. Comitas morum. IV. Courtesie, and affability is a singular corporall blessing given unto many by God, who must examine if

First, they use it not to adulation and flattery, like Court-holy-water.

Secondly, if they use it to the winning and reclaiming of their brother from his wicked wayes?

5. Memoria V. Memory is another Corporall blessing given by God unto many, who must use it to the bettering of their inward man: That is, they must employ their memories in retaining and treasuring up of those saving truths which they 330 either heare or read from the word of God. For the Lord will take a reckoning of all these.

Externæ Thirdly, there are Externall blessings given unto us by God, which we must be accountable unto him for; as for example

1. Honor. I. Honour, which is given for the good and helpe of the Church and Common-wealth; but is used

First, by some unto seditions and factions in the Common-wealth. And Secondly, by others unto oppression and revenge. And

Thirdly, by others to helpe their friends, kindred, and acquaintance in evill, and to free them from the punishment of the Law. And Fourthly, by others unto pride and a contempt of others. And Fifthly, by others unto wantonnesse and all manner of lasciviousnesse. But if we be raised by God unto honour either in Church or Common-wealth, and desire to give an acceptable account thereof unto him: let us imploy our honour

I. Unto a just execution of righteous judgement, without partiality.

II. Unto the honour of the Gospell.

III. Unto the helpe and comfort of the godly. Read Hester. 4. 14.

IV. Unto an example of piety, and purity, Phil. 2. 15.

2. Divitiæ II. Riches, are given by God unto some, who unthankfully, and wickedly use them either;

First, unto the oppression, and utter impoverishing of the poore. Or Secondly, unto covetousnesse, and usury, and the like. Or

Thirdly, unto pleasure, and idlenesse. Or

Fourthly, unto uncleannesse, prodigality, and all dissolute courses. Or Fifthly, unto pride in apparell. Or

Sixthly, to voluptuousnesse, gluttony, drunkennesse, and the like. Indeed it is lawfull to spend much in building, planting, apparell, meat, &c. if it be done modestly. And therefore we must examine these few things; namely,

I. Whether we be wholly transported with these or not. And

II. Whether we make our gold our Gods, or whether we can despise it, and are able to judge of those things which are more excellent. And

III. Whether the backe and the belly of the poore blesse us for feeding and cloathing them?

3. Exercitia. III. Exercises and Recreations are lawfull, and allowed by God modestly, and moderatly used; But

First, some are not content with lawfull Recreations, but thinke there can be no mirth or delight, without drunkennesse, swearing, revelling, wantonnesse, and the like.

Secondly, some are too immoderate in the use of lawfull Recreations, spending whole dayes and nights in gaming and play, using them more like callings then refreshments.

4. Pax. IV. Peace, a singular temporall blessing is given unto us by God, although many of our neighbors have beene worne out and wearied with Warre. Hebr. 11. 37. &c. Amos 8. 12. Now what hath this long temporall peace brought forth?

First, in some ignorance. And Secondly, in others carelessenesse. And Thirdly, in others atheisme. And Fourthly, in others carnall security, and a contempt of the word. And Fifthly, but in a very few thankfulnesse and obedience. These things we had need exactly to cast up, because our Lord will call us to account for them all at the last day.

VERS. 21. His Lord said unto him, well done thou good and faithfull servant, thou hast beene faithfull over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. Vers. 21.

§. 1. Well done thou good and faithfull servant.] Sect. 1.

Wherein doth the fidelity of a servant consist, or, what is required of a faithfull servant? Quæst.

First, it is required of him not to waste, or scatter, or disperse his Masters goods committed to his charge and care, Luke 16. And therefore we must take heed that we doe not misspend any of the Lords Talents betrusted unto us, whether spiritual, corporall, or externall. Answ. 1

Secondly, it is required of him not to take unto him the goods of his Master; that is, not to defraud robbe, or steale from him, to spend upon himselfe, or any of his family or friends; as Iudas did who carried the bag and was a Thiefe. And therefore we must take heed that we rob not God of his honour, by arrogating and ascribing any thing unto our selves which is good, and derogating from him, who is the Author and Fountaine of every good gift, and every perfect being, Iames 1. 17. For we have nothing which we have not received from him, and therefore we ought not to boast of it; as is cleare from this Parable, none of the servants having any thing of themselves, but receiving all their Talents from the Lord. Answ. 2

Thirdly, it is required of a faithfull servant not onely to keepe his Masters goods committed unto him, but also to improve them, and increase them, he was held as an unprofitable servant and condemned, who hid his Talent in a Napkin, but he that exercised the gift of God, and increased the number of the Talents is here pronounced to be a good and faithfull servant. And therefore we must labour to grow up from one degree of grace unto another, and strive to increase both in the quantity and quality of graces, that so our Master may receive advantage and glory by us. Answ. 3

§. 2. Thou hast beene faithfull over a few things.] Sect. 2.

Because Riches (as was shewed before) is one of the Lords Talents betrusted unto men, it may be (and that not unfitly) demanded; Quæst.

How Riches may be aright possessed? Answ.

Because this hath beene largely handled before, Chap. 6. 19, 24. I therefore briefly answer it here with Antoninus (Part 4. Titul. 5. Cap. 17. §. 1.) A man useth his Talent aright

First, when he gives to every man his right, paying his debts, and keeping his covenants, contracts, bargaines, and promises with all men.

Secondly,

Secondly, when he is liberall and mercifull unto all that ſtands in need, and upon every occaſion.

Thirdly, when he is magnificent in the effecting of great workes, when he is able to goe through with them; as the building of Schooles, Hoſpitals, Churches, or the like.

Fourthly, when he is hoſpitable and helpefull unto ſtrangers, captives, and incarcerated perſons.

Fifthly, when he is charitable, and bountifull to his poore friends and kindred,

---

Verſ. 24, 25, &c. VERS. 24, 25, 26, 27. Then he which had received the one Talent, came and ſaid; Lord I knew thee, that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou haſt not ſowne, and gathering where thou haſt not ſtrawed: And I was afraid, and went and hid thy Talent in the earth: Loe, there thou haſt that is thine. His Lord anſwered and ſaid unto him; Thou wicked and ſlothfull ſervant, thou kneweſt that I reape where I ſowed not, and gather where I ſtrawed not: Thou oughteſt therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my comming I ſhould have received my owne with uſury.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Thou wicked and ſlothfull Servant.]

Queſt. What was theis Servants fault, or wherein did he offend, that he is upbraided with theſe termes of wicked and ſlothfull?

Anſw. 1 First, he ſinned in detaining his Maſters money unprofitably by him. And

Anſw. 2 Secondly, in excuſing himſelfe, that he had done his Maſter no wrong, but had honeſtly reſtored unto him what was his, Behold (ſaith he) thou haſt that thine is. And Anſw. 3 Thirdly, in laying the fault upon his Maſter; I knew that thou wert an hard man, &c. I enlarge not theſe becauſe they are illuſtrated by Muſculus, in hunc locum.

Sect. 2 §. 2. I ſhould have received my owne with uſury.]

Object. This place is objected for the lawfulneſſe of Uſury: Why didſt thou not put for th my money &c.

Anſw. Concerning Uſury we have laid downe our opinion before (Chap. 5. 31, 42.) ſomething largely; and therefore I here anſwer briefly to this objection thus; grant that this be ſpoken in alluſion to the practiſe of common and cruell Uſurers, yet the Scripture doth no more allow of the common trade of uſury, by borrowing a ſimilitude of them, then of injuſtice in the Parable of the theeviſh Steward or of theft, in ſaying Chriſt ſhall come as a thiefe in the night. Luke 16. 1. or of the Heathen Olympicke games, in comparing the practiſe of Chriſtianity to thoſe races, 1 Corinth. 9. 24. and 1 Theſſal. 5. 2. or of charmes and incantations in likening the wicked to the deafe Adder, not hearing the voice of the Charmer.

Verſ. 28, 29, 30. VERS. 28, 29, 30. Take therefore the Talent from him, and give it unto him that hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath ſhall be given, and he ſhall have abundance, but from him that hath not, ſhall be taken away, even that which he hath. And caſt ye the unprofitable ſervant into utter darkeneſſe, there ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth. 331

§. 1. And give unto him that hath ten talents.] Sect. 1.

Illa bona quæ uni detrahuntur, ne aliquid boni pereat, alteri dantur; ut ſi quis moriatur morte corporali, fratres ejus et affines in ejus bona ſuccedunt. Bonavent.

§. 2. Caſt the unprofitable ſervant into utter darkneſſe.] Sect. 2.

For the underſtanding of theſe words obſerve, That there were ſome priſons within the City of Ieruſalem, and ſome without the City. Within the City, as the houſe of Ionathan, which was neare the Kings Pallace, Ierem. 37. 15. So the Dungeon of Malchior, the ſonne of Hammelech, Ierem. 38. 6. So they had priſons without the Gate, as that Priſon wherein Peter was put, Acts 12. 10. And when they had paſſed the firſt and ſecond Ward (that is, the quaternions of Souldiers which kept him) they came unto the yron Gate which leadeth unto the City: This Priſon was without the Gate neare Mount Calvarie, and it was the loathſomeſt and vileſt priſon of all, for in it the Thieves who were carried to Calvarie to be executed were kept. And Chriſt alludeth to this priſon in this place, Caſt him into utter darkeneſſe, &c. which alluſion could not be underſtood, unleſſe there had beene a darke priſon without the City, where was utter darkneſſe.

Verſ. 31, 32, &c. VERS. 31, 32, &c. When the Sonne of man ſhall come in his glory, and all the holy Angels with him, then ſhall he ſit upon the Throne of his glory. And before him ſhall be gathered all nations, and he ſhall ſeparate them one from another, as a Shepheard ſeparateth the ſheepe from the Goates. And he ſhall ſet the ſheepe on his right hand, and the goates on the left hand. Then ſhall the King ſay to them on his right hand, Come ye bleſſed of my Father: inherite ye the Kingdome prepared for you from the foundations of the world. For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I thirſted and ye gave me drinke: I was a ſtranger, and ye lodged me. I was naked, and ye clothed me: I was ſicke, and ye viſited me: I was in priſon, and ye came unto me. Then ſhall the righteous anſwer him, ſaying, Lord when ſaw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or a thirſt, and gave thee drinke? And when ſaw we thee a ſtranger, and lodged thee, or naked and clothed thee? Or when ſaw we thee ſicke, or in priſon, and came unto thee? And the King ſhall anſwer and ſay unto them, Verily I ſay unto you, inaſmuch as ye have done it unto one of the leaſt of theſe my brethren, ye have done it to me.

§. 1. When the Son of man ſhall come in his glory.] Sect. 1.

Queſt. What is the difference betweene the firſt and ſecond comming of Chriſt, that it is ſaid here, he ſhall come in glory?

Anſw. 1 First, his firſt comming was in the fleſh, in a moſt abject and lowly manner, Eſay 53. 2. but his ſecond ſhall be glorious both in regard of body & ſoule.

332. Secondly, his first comming was in the forme of a Servant; Philip. 2. 7. but his second as the Answ. 2 Lord and Maiter of all men, Hebr. 1. 2.
Answ. 3 Thirdly, at his first comming he had but one fore-runner (Iohn Baptist) who preached and proclaimed his comming in a solitary place; but at his second he shall come with a shout, and shall descend from heaven with the voyce of an Archangell, and the Trumpet of God, 1. Thessal. 4. 16. Psalm. 50. 3.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, in his first comming he was accompanied and followed onely with twelve men (his Apostles) who were of the meanest and lowest sort of people; but in his second comming he shall be accompanied with many millions, both of Angels (in this verse) and of Saints, Iude 14.

Answ. 5. Fifthly, in his first comming, he walked upon the Earth after the manner of men; but in the second he shall be carried by a certaine cleare Cloud, Chap. 24. 30.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, at his first comming he raised only three to life, that we read of; but at his second he will raise all, Iohn 5. 28.

Sect. 2. §. 2. He shall separate them, as a Shepheard divideth his sheepe from the Goates.]

The Papists say, that those who are guilty of Originall sinne onely, shall not be punished with Hell fire, but (if they dyed before the committing of Actuall sinne, and without Baptisme) they shall be shut up in Limbo infantum, where they shall neither be sensible of paine nor pleasure. Against Argum. this Tenet we object this place, thus; Christ at the last day shall judge all the world, and all the men in the world, separating all Nations, ages, and sexes, into two parts, viz. the right hand, and the left; and therefore necessarily those who are polluted onely with Originall sinne and not washed, with the blood of Christ, must be either sheepe or goates, placed either on the right hand, or on the left; but they are not sheepe, nor shall be placed at Christs right hand, for such shall possesse life eternall (as is here plainly affirmed) yea the Papists say that those who are polluted with originall sinne, and not purged with the blood of Christ, shall never enjoy the Kingdome of Heaven: And therefore such shall be set on Christs left hand amongst the goates. Now those who are placed on Christs left hand, are not onely called accursed (Goe yee cursed) but are also condemned unto eternall fire, which is a sensible punishment.

Sect. 3 §. 3. And he shall set the sheepe on his right hand, and the goates on his left.]

For the understanding of this phrase of the right hand, and the left observe, that when three are going together, or sitting together, he that is in the midst is in the chiefe place, but he that standeth upon his right hand is in the second place; & he that standeth on his left hand is in the third place; and in this sense we are to understand these places, viz. Matthew 20. 21. where the Mother of Zebedees Children desireth that one of her sonnes may sit at Christs right hand, and another at his left, where Christ is in the highest place, and he that sits on his right hand in the second place, and he that sits on the left in the third place. So here, He shall set the sheepe at his right hand, and the goates at his left, where Christ is in the highest place, and the Sheepe in the second, and the Goates in the third, and last.

§. 4. Come ye blessed of my Father, possesse the Kingdome prepared for you; for I was hungry, and ye fed me, thirsty and ye gave me drinke, sicke, and ye visited me, naked, and ye clothed me, a stranger, and ye tooke me in.] Sect. 4.

Why doth not the Iudge of all the World say, Inherit the Kingdome prepared for you, because you have worshipped and served God aright, or because you have beleeved on him aright, or because you have persevered in faith? but omitting these, onely reckons up the workes of mercy and charity? In a word why doth the Lord here rather recite these workes of charity, then others of piety, or constancy in Religion even to the death? Quest. 1

First, the Judge of all the World alleadgeth and mentioneth these workes, because they were noted, observed, and made manifest even to the goates, but the worship of God, Faith, and the true perseverance of the sheepe which consists in the integrity of the heart is onely knowne unto God, and unknowne to the Goates. The workes of mercy are more conspicuous to the eyes of the world, then the workes of piety are; and therefore the Lord doth rather alleadge those then these. Answ. 1

Secondly, the Iudge of all the world doth rather mention these workes of mercy, because there is nothing more naturall unto men, then to doe good unto men, the companions of nature. Answ. 2

Thirdly, these workes of mercy are here mentioned, because true faith is wont, and ought to exercise it selfe by these principally towards her neighbour. Answ. 3

Fourthly, because the workes of mercy directly and evidently include love and charity, the Queen of all vertues. Answ. 4

Fifthly, because Christ hereby would excite and provoke all men unto these workes of mercy, seeing that they shall undoubtedly be rewarded with life everlasting, verses 34, 46. Answ. 5

Sixthly, the Iudge mentioneth the workes of mercy, that the mouthes of the wicked Goates may be stopped, and that it may evidently appeare how justly God denies mercy unto those who would shew none unto their brethren. Answ. 6.

Seventhly, that he might intimate, that the estate of the godly is for the most part in this world full of calamity and misery; and this Christ admonisheth them of, lest being terrified hereby they should faint and fall under their burthen. For it is the godly (for the most part) who are pinched and pained with hunger, and thirst, and persecution, and the like; and therefore our Saviour forewarnes them of this, and warnes them to looke for this, and lest they should hereby be too much discouraged, he gives them a double consolation, namely, Answ. 7

I. That this misery and affliction of theirs, is his, In as much as ye did it to them ye did it to me, and hence the Apostle St. Paul calls his sufferings, Christs sufferings, 2. Cor. 1. and this he learnt from Christ himselfe, who cryed unto him (when he was going to afflict the members of Christ; Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? Acts. 9. And

II. That the afflictions and miseries of this life shall be rewarded with life eternall.

Answ. 8. Eighthly, Carthusian (in hunc locum) saith, the Judge of all the world alleadgeth these workes of mercy oney, because the Scripture is most plentifull and copious in the commanding, and commending of these workes. And Answ. 9. Ninthly, the same Authour, in the same place, gives this excellent answer, that Christ mentioneth onely the workes of mercy to teach us, that our salvation, and grace, and whatsoever good thing else is in us, proceeds from the mercy of God, depends upon the mercy of God, and is perfected by the mercy of God, Carthus. s. Pag. 104. a.

Object. 1 Bellarmine produceth this place to prove the workes of charity and mercy, or almes deeds to be meritorious; Christ saith here, Receive the Kingdom prepared for you; for when I was hungry you fed me &c. Therefore Almes merit eternall life. Bellarm. de bon. operib. in particular lib. 3. Cap. 4.

Answ. 1. First, this place proveth not that almes deeds merit heaven: but it rather sheweth, that Christ in mercy crowneth the charitable workes of his children: heaven is given though not for their good workes, yet according to their good workes: And this Kingdome was prepared for them before the beginning of the world, yea before they had done any almes-deeds; therefore they could not merit that which was prepared for them, and given them, before they had done any good thing.

Answ. 2. Secondly, there is no proportion betweene the Almes which we give unto the poore, and the glorious, & heavenly reward which God gives unto us & therefore our almes-deeds cannot merit heaven.

Quest. 2 Whether ought we to visite those who are sicke, that our Saviour reckoneth up this worke amongst the rest?

Answ. 1. First, it is lawfull for Physitians to visite those who are sicke, it being their profession, and office to take care of such: And therefore they are blame worthy, who

I. Will visite onely great and rich men, and not poore; and come onely to faire buildings, not at all to poore Cottages. And

II. Who having skilfull Physitians neare them, will neither (when they are sicke) send for them, or unto them.

Secondly, it is lawfull for people to visite those who are sicke (if the sickneſſe be not infectious) and is their duty so to doe; as appeares thus.

I. We must doe to others as we would have others doe unto us: now who would not be glad to be comforted, and visited by friends, when they are sicke? And therefore this is peoples duty one towards another. And

II. To visite the sicke is a Christian worke and a worke best beseeming a Christian: and therefore no Christian should be a stranger unto it. And

III. It is a most equall and fitting thing to visite the sicke: for who will hide his face from his owne flesh? Esa. 58. 7. Now Christians are members of one another: and therefore should not be strangers unto this duty. And

IV. To visite the sicke is commanded in the Scripture, Iob. 2. 11, 12, 13. yea lauded by Christ in this place, verse 36. And

V. This duty shall be rewarded, both on earth, Psal. 41. 1. and in heaven, in this place. And therefore if people desire either the praise, or reward of Christ; they must visite the sicke.

Thirdly, it is the Ministers duty to visite the sicke who are under his charge, if (as our Canon excepts) the sickneſſe be not contagious; as appeares thus.

I. They must take care for their whole flocke in generall, and for every member of their flocke in particular; and therefore they must not absent themselves from them in the time of their sickneſſe, it being a fitting season to administer saving advice and counsell unto them. Reade Ezech 34. 1. 2, 3, 4.

II. People principally stand in need of consolation and comfort when they are sicke; whence we see that Christ was cheered and refreshed in his agony by the company and consolation of Angels, Luke. 22. 43. And therefore Ministers must visite their sheepe, when they lye on their sicke beds.

III. Those who are sicke are exhorted to desire the visitation of the Ministers, and the Ministers are commanded to visite those who are visited with the hand of sickneſſe, Iames. 5. 14. And therefore they neglect both their duties to God and man, if they be back-ward herein.

Quest. 3 What are the fruits of hospitality, that our Saviour reckons it up amongst the rest of the workes which shall be rewarded?

Answ. 3 First, if the studious Reader would see this enlarged and seven fruits of hospitality expressed: let him reade Stapleton, Antidot. anime. pag. 181. 182, 183. where he shall find something false, something fabulous, and something true.

Answ. 2 Secondly, God is so well pleased with this duty of hospitality to the poore and to strangers, that he hath, and doth often incline the hearts and affections of great personages to seeke the love and familiarity of them who are given thereunto, although they be their inferiours, and of low place in respect of the world: and by this occasion, those who descend from great houses, doe often match with those who are obscure: thus Raguel the Priest of Madian for his hospitality unto Moses, was (by the providence of God) rewarded with this, That that great and incomparable Prophet became his sonne in Law, Exod. 2.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, God is so delighted with this duty of hospitality, that he hath made the wives (of the lovers thereof) fruitfull, which were barren before, and without children; and by this meanes hath delivered them from that reproach which was counted great in old time; as is cleare from the Shunamite, 2 King. 4 for whom the Prophet of God obtained a sonne, because she ordinarily received him with joy into her house.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, some for hospitality have had their dayes prolonged by God; as we may see in Rahab, Ioſh. 2. And

Fifthly, it is of such force, that by meanes of it corporall diseases have bene cured in the houses of them, who have kindly entertained the servants of God, even by the servants of God themselves: as we may see from Acts. 18.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, for this duty of hospitality, God hath multiplied the store of the hospitable; as is cleare from 1 King. 17. where the widdow was rewarded (for her entertainment to the Prophet) with a multiplication, and miraculous augmentation of her oyle and meale.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, it is of such vertue, that it is oftentimes an occasion to many that be ignorant, to come to the knowledge of God, and of their salvation; as Zacheus did, who having received beyond his expectation JESVS CHRIST in to his house, and entertaining him as kindly as possibly he might; heares that which was as marrow to his bones, viz, This day salvation is come unto thine house.

Answ. 8 Eightly, some being given unto hospitality, have (instead of men) entertained and received Angels into their houses yea God himselfe, that is, the second person in the B. Trinity: as we see truely in Abraham, who received Christ and two Angels into his house, Gen. 18. and in Lot, Gen. 19. and Hebrew. 13. 2.

Object. 2 The Papists object this place for justification by workes, arguing thus; We are judged according to our workes, therefore wee also are justified by them.

Answ. The last judgement is not the justifying of a man, but a declaration of that justification which we had before obtained: therefore the last judgement must be pronounced, and taken, not from the cause of justification, but from the effects and signes thereof. Perkins

Object. 3 From hence the Papists would also prove if they could, that our good workes are the meritorious causes of life everlasting: because good workes here are rendred as the cause, why eternall life is rendred. Their argument is this, That is the meritorious cause of the Kingdome, for which the Kingdome is adjudged and given to the sheepe. But for these workes of mercy and charity, the Kingdome is adjudged and given to the sheepe. Therefore these workes are the meritorious cause of this Kingdome. The Minor proposition they confirme thus, The Judge here saith, inherit the Kingdome, for I was hungry, and ye gave me meat: For that is, because ye fed me; for the causuall particle Enim, For, doth expresse the true cause of the inheriting of this Kingdome. Canisius Catech. &. Rhemist.

Answ. 1 First, some say that good workes are the efficient cause of the Kingdome, but yet [Non per modum meriti, sed per modum viæ & medii] not by way of merit, but of meanes; because (as followes in the next Answer) they are the way and meanes unto this Kingdome.

Answ. 2 Secondly, good workes are alleadged not as the meritorious cause or reason of life, but as the way and order thereunto. Habet vitam æternam fides &c. Faith hath life eternall, as a good foundation, and good workes also, whereby a righteous man is proved in word and deed. Ambros. officior. lib. 2. Cap. 2. Good workes then are recompensed as testimonies and prooses of our faith, or as signes shewing the sincerity of our faith, and not alleadged as the meritorious cause of life eternall. And this is evident from the very text. For

1. CHRIST saith, Inherite the Kingdome, or take and enjoy the Kingdome as an inheritance; now an inheritance is not of merit. Againe he saith, which was prepared for you from the beginning of the world; That is, before ye were, and before yee had either done good or evill; and therefore it was prepared, and is imparted freely.

II. The elect and faithfull themselves doe plainly deny all merit, in these words, Lord when saw we thee hungry, or naked &c. As if they would say, it is nothing which we have done neither of such worth that thou O Lord should thus accept it as done unto thee, or thus infinitely reward it, Scultet. Idea cone. Pag. 646.

Thirdly, there is but one worke onely, which is meritorious of eternall life, and that is, the merit of the Sonne of God. Answ. 3.

Fourthly, the Assumption is false; for not for the workes of the sheepe, but for the blessing of the Father, whereby he hath blessed the sheepe, with all spirituall blessings in CHRIST; that is, by and for that (ἀυτου) all sufficient, and superabundant satisfaction and merite of Christ, is the Kingdome of heaven adjudged and given unto them. Answ. 4

Fifthly, unto the causall particle enim, For we answer, that it signifies indeed a cause, but not the meritorious cause of the Kingdome, but a declarative cause of the just sentence pronounced by the Judge; that is, that his adjudging and giving of life eternall vnto the sheepe on his right hand, was a just and righteous sentence, because by their workes they had truely declared and shewed forth that they were Christs sheepe, that is, faithfull and beleevers. If the studious Reader would see this Answer (concerning Enim) learnedly enlarged, and fully prosecuted, Let him reade Bp. Daven. de just. actual. Cap. 32. pag. 411. obj. 9. and Pareus. f. Page 848. b. and Amesius Bel. enerv. tom. 4. p. 207. Answ. 5

Object. 5 Against our last words of our former Answer they object againe, The Judge doth not say inherite the Kingdome, because you are faithfull, or because you beleeved, but, because you fed me, and cloathed me, and the like. And therefore For doth denote the meritorious cause, and not a declarative cause onely of the justice and equity of the sentence.

Answ. 1. First, as the Judge doth not say, inherite the Kingdome because ye are faithfull, so neither doth he say, (as they say) because ye have merited and deserved it:

Answ. 2. Secondly, the Reason why our Saviour doth mention their workes, rather then their faith, we shewed before quest. 1. of this §.

VERS. 41, 42, &c. Then shall he say unto them on the left hand, Depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire, which is prepared for the Devil and his Angels. For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I thirsted, and ye gave me no drinke: I was a stranger, and ye lodged me not: Naked, and ye clothed me not: sicke, and in prison, and ye visited me not. Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or a thirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sicke, Vers. 41. 42. &c. or in prison, and did not minister unto thee? Then shall he answer them, and say, Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire.]

The foure last things are Death, Judgement, Hell, and Heaven, and they are thus differenced, Nothing is more horrible then Death, nothing more terrible then Judgement, nothing more intollerable then Hell, nothing more delectable then heaven, Bern. And therefore blessed are they who by death are brought unto heaven, but wretched and infinitely miserable are all they who by Judgement are sent unto hell.

Quest. 1. Which are the last words which shall be uttered in this world?

Answ. Sphinx answers, these in the text, in this Elegiake.

Aspera vox, Ite, sed vox benedicta, Venite.
Ite malis vox est apta, Venite, bonis. that is, (heares
This word DEPART, the Goates with horrour
But this word COME, the Sheepe to joy appeares.

And hence Bernard (in Psalm. 91.) prayes O Domine in die illo libera me a verbo Aspero; O Lord deliver me at the great day from that soule, killing word, Depart.

Quest. 2. What harme is there in this word Depart or in the whole sentence?

Answ. These words are as so many mortall and ghastly wounds, and poysoned arrowes sticking deepe in the flesh, unto every wicked man: For this sentence and doome, doth containe five incurable and insufferable blowes, which are given to such; to wit,

First, Depart, get you gone, flee hence, out of my sight, and from the society of the Elect, for ever.

Secondly, yee cursed, which loved not blessing; and therefore are now justly excluded out of heaven, and deprived of all felicit and happinesse.

Thirdly, into the fire; not into the scorching flame, or parching heate, but into the burning fire.

Fourthly, into everlasting fire; not into a fire that will either burne and quite consume them, or, which will be consumed it selfe at the last; which will either cause them to dye, or dye and extinguish it selfe: but into everlasting fire, which shall never goe out; but torment them world without end.

Fifthly, with the Devill and his Angels; as they said unto the Almighty, depart from us, we desire not the knowledge of thee or thy Law, and wished that the righteous might be taken out of their sight; so they shall be excluded and driven out of the presence of God, and deprived of the society of Saints and Angels, their companions, thenceforward being onely devils, wicked Angels, and damned spirits. Then will they (oppressed with griefe) crye out,

I. To the Sunne; O Sunne, hitherto thou hast refreshed us with thy comfortable light, but now we shall never see thee more; but must be cast into everlasting darkenesse. And 335

II. To the Aire; oh aire thou hast often refreshed me with thy sweet breath, and wholesome smell; but now I must enjoy no aire but detestable stinking vapours, and stifeling sents. And

III. To the Earth; oh earth thou hast often delighted me with many rare dainties, fruits, liquors, and the like, but now I must never tast good bit or drop more, but be reserved unto endlesse hunger. And

IV. To the Water; oh water how often have I bene cheered with thy drops and draughts, but now I must goe where I shall thirst eternally. And

V. To the faithfull; oh holy Saints, for your sakes and societies, I have escaped many temporall judgements, and enjoyed many temporall mercies, but now I must never come into your company nor see you any more, but must converse with devils for ever and ever. And

VI. Lastly to CHRIST; oh holy Lord, thou hast often called me unto repentance, obedience, and faith, promising to receive me into favour, to be reconciled unto me, and to pardon all my sinnes, but now for my impenitency and hardnesse of heart, I am justly cast out of thy favour and presence and must now suffer for my sinnes, insufferable sorrow and smart, in everlasting fire. And thus those who are not like unto the righteous in piety, shall never be like them in eternall felicity.

This place is urged by the Papists against us, to prove, that Infants dying unbaptized shall not suffer any sensible torment in hell: and is produced also by us against them, that they doe. I will consider and treat briefely of them particularly.

Salmeron the Jesuite argues hence thus; Those who would not exercise the workes of mercy and charity, are adjudged to everlasting fire, but those who did, are rewarded with life eternall. Now children are neither of that number who could and would performe these good workes, nor who could but would not performe them; and therefore it is necessary that there should be some middle place (that is, Limbus infantum) betweene the glory of heaven, and the torments of hell, for these Infants. His Argument seemes to be this. Object. 1.

Whosoever are sent unto hell fire, are to be reckoned up with those who could, but would not performe the workes of charity, and mercy.

But children are not of this number; Therefore children shall not be sent into hell fire.

First, the Major is the Jesuits, not our Jesuses; for in CHRISTS words we onely read, that those who would not exercise these workes of charity should be cast into hell fire: and not contrarily, that all who are cast into hell fire would not exercise workes of charity Answ. 1.

Secondly, we may distinguish of this word which he useth, Connumerari, to be numbred together, or to be reckoned up with such or such; for this is twofold; to wit, Answ. 2.

I. Connumerari in peccato, to be numbred together in sinne, that is, to commit the same kind of

336 of ſinnes and thus drunkards are reckoned up with drunkards, and ſwearers with ſwearers, and fornicators with fornicators, and theeves with theeves, and the like. Now in this ſenſe the Major is falſe: for undoubtedly other ſinners (beſides unmercifull and uncharitable men) are caſt into hell fire: and therefore why not Infants ſtained with mans firſt tranſgreſſion?

II. Connumerari in pœna, to be numbred together in puniſhment, that is to be tormented with the ſame kind of puniſhment, wherewith others are tormented. Now in this ſenſe the Minor is falſe; for into the ſame fire are caſt murderers, ſwearers, drunkards, adulterers, lyars, and idolaters, and therefore why not children polluted with originall ſinne? Cham. t. 3. de pœnis peccati lib. 6. Cap. 4. §. 9. 10. fol. 165.

Argum. Now on the other ſide we urge this place to prove, that Infants dying without the pardon of originall ſinne are condemned to hell, where they are ſenſible of torments, and ſhall inſufferably be tormented: We argue thus, CHRIST ſhall ſay to the goates on his left hand, that is, to thoſe who are condemned. Depart from me yee curſed into everlaſting fire, prepared for the devill and his Angels: But of this number are Infants which are condemned to hell: Therefore they ſhall ſuffer torments in everlaſting fire. If the Reader would ſee this argument oppoſed, and the reply anſwered, let him reade Dr. Willets ſynopſ. fol. 877.

VERS. 46. And theſe ſhall goe away into everlaſting puniſhment: but the righteous into eternall fire. Verſ. 46

Queſt. 1 How doe the wicked enter into hell, and the godly into heaven?

Anſw. By the powerfull and commanding voice of CHRIST, which is of that force, that neither the greateſt rebell that ever was amongſt men, nor all the devils in hell ſhall be able to withſtand it.

Queſt. 2 How can theſe words [The wicked ſhall goe into everlaſting puniſhment] ſtand, or accord with thoſe of the Prophet, The Lord is mercifull, and will not be angry for ever, Ierem. 3. 12.

Anſw. The Prophet ſpeakes of Gods anger in regard of thoſe who repented; for with ſuch God will not be angry for ever. He chaſtens indeed the faithfull when they ſinne, but it is but with temporall puniſhments (as is evident from, Eſa. 5. 7. and Ierem. 18. and Ezech. 18.) and when they repent and turne unto him, then he repents him of his puniſhments, and corrections, and turnes unto them in love.

Now Chriſt ſpeakes here of perverſe and obſtinate ſinners, who will not (by the long ſuffering of God) be led unto repentance, and unto whom God will be a ſwift, and ſevere Iudge.

CHAP. XXVI.

Verſ. 1. 2. VERS. 1, 2. And it came to paſſe, when IESUS had finiſhed all theſe ſayings, he ſaid unto his Diſciples, ye know that after two dayes is the Feaſt of the Paſſeover, and the Sonne of man is betrayed to be crucified.

Sect. 1. §. 1. After two dayes is the Feaſt of the Paſſeover.]

Queſt. 1 From whence was this Feaſt called the Feaſt of the Paſſeover?

Anſw. Not A paſſione from ſuffering (as ſome thinke) but from paſſing: for פסחא in Hebrew is (Peſach) which comes from the root (Paſach) Tranſiit, or Tranſultavit: to paſſe over. For from Exodus. 12. it appeares that Firſt, the children of Iſrael that night went forth with haſt out of Egypt. And

Secondly, that the Angell who ſlew the firſt borne of the Egyptians, did that night paſſe over the houſes of the Iſraelites, ſeeing their doores ſprinkled with blood. Yea

Thirdly, this their Paſſing out of Egypt, was a Type of Chriſts paſſing from this world to his Father, as thinkes Carthuſian. ſ. pag. 304. b.

Queſt. 2 How may the Evangeliſts be reconciled, who in ſhew ſeeme to differ in the laying downe of this Hiſtory? For in this verſe, St. Matthew ſaith, that after two dayes was the Feaſt of the Paſſe-over, but verſe 17. he ſaith, that this was done in the firſt day of unleavened bread, which St. Marke expounds to be the firſt day of the Paſſe-over: And therefore St. Matthew ſeemes to contradict himſelfe, in the one verſe ſaying, that it was two dayes before the Paſſe-over, in the other verſe that it was the firſt day of the paſſe-over. Againe St. Iohn Chapt. 13. 1. ſaith this was before the Feaſt of the Paſſe-over: St. Marke. Chapt. 14. 12. ſaith it was on the firſt day of unleavened bread, when they killed the Paſſe-over: which ſeemes to croſſe one another.

Anſw. For the reconciling of theſe, we muſt obſerve theſe things, namely Firſt, that the Hebrewes begun their day at even; as appeares by Levit. 23. 32.

Secondly, that the Paſſe-over according to the Law was to be celebrated upon the fourteenth day of the firſt moneth Niſan: as appeares, Exod. 12. 6, 18. And from the beginning of that day (that is, from the Even) they were wont to eate unleavened bread.

Thirdly, CHRIST celebrated the Paſſe-over upon that day which was preſcribed by the Law: becauſe he would be ſubject to the Law in all things.

Fourthly, the day of preparation was the day before the Paſſe-over, which anſwers to our Friday, See after verſe 17.

Fifthly, the firſt day of unleavened bread was the the fourteenth day of the moneth Nisan, which was the first day of the weekely Feast of the Passeover (For the celebration of this Feast continued seven dayes) Now this fourteenth day of the moneth Nisan, is not to be understood from the beginning of the day, (that is, from the setting of the Sun of the thirteenth day) but from the last part of it; and in this last part was the Lampe killed, and eaten betwixt two Evens, according to the Law, Exod. 12. 6. And therefore this was done in the former part of the first day of unleavened bread, that is, about sun-set of the thirteenth day of the Moneth Nisan, Let the Reader for a more full satisfaction of this question, looke upon Sharp. Symphon. 330. See also. Carthus. s. pag. 108. a. and Iewish Antiq. 139.

Sect. 2. §. 2. The Sonne of man is betrayed to be crucified.]

Quest. Why did our Saviour fore-tell his death and suffering to his Apostles?

Answ. 1 First, lest they should have thought that he had beene apprehended, and crucified accidentally, without his knowledge, or against his will.

Answ. 2 Secondly, that he might strengthen the minds of his Disciples against future scandals; for darts seene before they hit are the better avoided.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, that he might shew unto them, that he feared not those who kill the body; seeing he neither declined the place of suffering, nor shunned his adversaries, but rather offered and presented himselfe to their hands.

Vers. 7. VERS. 7. There came unto him a woman, having an alabaster boxe of very precious ointment, and powred it on his head, as he sate at meat.

Quest. 1 Who was this that anointed Christs head?

Answ. It was Mary.

Quest. 2 What Mary was it?

Answ. 1. First, some say there were three Maries, who anointed CHRIST, namely

I. Shee who anointed him in the Pharisees house, 7. 37, 38. And this was Mary the harlot.

II. Shee who annointed his feet in Bethany in her owne house: And this was Mary the sister of Lazarus, Iohn. 12. 3.

III. Shee who powred the ointment upon his head in the house of Simon the Leper, Marke. 14. 3. and in this verse. Now of this mind are Origen tract. in Matth. 35. Theophilact in Luc. 7. Euthymius in Matth. 26.

Answ. 2. Secondly, some say there were onely two Maries who anointed CHRIST; to wit,

I. Mary the harlot, who first in the Pharisees house annointed his feet, and afterwards in the house of Simon the Leper annointed his head.

II. Mary the sister of Lazarus, who annointed his feet when he supped at her house. Of this opinion are Chrysost. hom. in Matth. 81. and in Iohn. 61. Bernard. in serm. de Magdalena.

Answ. 4 Thirdly, some say there was but onely one Mary who annointed Christ; and that was Mary the sister of Lazarus, who was also called Magdalene; who annointed his head both in the house of the Pharisee, and in the house of Simon the Leper, and also in her brother Lazarus his houre. Of this mind are August. lib. 2. de consensu Evang. Cap. 9. Greg. hom. de Magdalena. Beda. s. luc. 7. Rabanus in luc. 7. Druthmannus in Matth. 26. and divers others, who expressed their opinion in this Hymne or Ode; 337

Maria soror Lazari,
Quæ tot commisit crimina
Ab ipsa fauce Tartari
Redit ad vitæ limina.

That is,

MARY the Sister of LAZARVS,
Who sinned many a time,
Hath left the Isle of Tartarus,
And purged off her crime.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, St. Ambrose (Lib. 6. in Luc.) saith, That it may be safely said, that there were more then one, and there was but one.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, I conceive that it is but one History which is expressed by all the Evangelists; viz. Matth. 26. 7. Marke. 14. 3. Luke. 7, 37, 38. Iohn. 12. 3. For the Pharisee and Simon the Leper were one, and when Christ eate with him, Martha helped to attend upon the table, and her brother Lazarus was invited as a guest; for it is not probable that he would have sit downe at the Table in his owne house, when he welcommed so great a guest as Christ was.

Object. 3 Against this it will be objected, St. Iohn saith, that the Mary which he speakes of, annointed his feet, but that Mary which St. Matthew and St. Marke mention annointed his head: Therefore it is either not one and the same history; or at least there is a contradiction in the Evangelists.

Answ. The history is one, and yet no repugnancie in the writers thereof; for there were no ointments ordained for the feet, but for the head; and this was powred upon the head, but in such a plentifull manner, that it descended even unto Christs feet.

Object. 4 The Papists object this place for the proofe of workes of Supererogation, thus; This fact of Maries was a good worke; and yet there was no Commandement for it in Gods word: Therefore there are good workes, which are not commanded; and consequently which wee are not bound to doe, or which if we doe, we doe more then we need.

Answ. 1 First, Maries fact was a worke of confession, whereby she testified her faith in Christ; and so was generally commanded to doe it, though not particularly, Perkins.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Mary was moved to this worke by a speciall instinct of the Spirit; for shee did it to bury him. verse 12. (as Christ himselfe testifieth) because his buriall was so speedy after his death, in regard of the approaching of the Sabbath, that they could not imbalme him, as the manner of the Jewes was. Now every instinct of Gods Spirit, in the conscience of the doer, hath the force of a particular command.

Vnsw. 1 VERS. 11. For yee have the poore always with you, but me ye have not always.

Quest. How doth this verse accord with Chapt. 28. 20.

For

338 For in the one place he ſaith, Me ye have not alwayes with you; and in the other, I am with you to the end of the world.

Anſw. Theſe two are not oppoſite; becauſe CHRIST predicates contrary things of himſelfe, in reſpect of divers natures; whereby he is not onely man, but God alſo: for as Man we have not his corporall preſence, neither ſhall we have it before his returne from heaven, he being now aſcended into heaven, where he ſhall remaine, untill he come unto judgement. But as he is God, ſo the preſence of his grace and Spirit doth never leave or depart from us, but is with us unto the end of the world.

Argum. We, againſt the corporall preſence of Chriſt in the Euchariſt object this place; The poore ye have alwayes, but me ye ſhall not have alwayes.

To this the Papiſts anſwer by this diſtinction, that Chriſt is not now preſent in body, Viſibili & corporali præſentia: by his Viſible or corporall preſence: or, Secundum humanam converſationem, after his converſation, or as he was converſant among men; but inviſible he may be preſent, and after another manner. Bellarm. de Euchar. lib. 1. Cap. 14. reſp. ad loc. 4.

Anſw. This diſtinction is thus by Scripture overthrowne: St. Peter ſaith, The heavens muſt containe or receive CHRIST till his comming againe, Acts. 3.21. Whence this followes plainly, He cannot in his body be abſent from heaven till that time; therefore he cannot any way be preſent in earth. If they anſwer as they doe, that he may be in heaven and in the Euchariſt all at one time; we then confute them with this place, He is not here, for he is riſen. Matth. 28. 6. Now this had beene no good argument, if the body of Chriſt could have beene in two places at once, Verſ. 21 VERS. 12. For in that ſhe hath powred this ointment on my body, ſhe did it for my buriall.

We may obſerve hence, that there was a threefold ointment; to wit,

First, Vnguentum militare, wherewith their Kings were anointed to goe out as their Captaines before them to the battell; So David was anointed amongſt the midſt of his brethren, to be their Captaine and King. 1, Samuel. 16. 13.

Secondly, there was Vnguentum convivale, an ointment uſed at Feaſts: Eccleſ. 9. 8.

Thirdly, there was Vnguentum funebre; an ointment uſed at Funerals; and unto this hath our Saviour reference in this place.

Verſ. 17 VERS. 17. Now the firſt day of the Feaſt of unleavened Bread, the Diſciples came to JESVS, ſaying unto him; Where wilt thou, that wee prepare for thee to eate the Paſſeover?

Queſt. How many wayes is this word Paſſeover uſed in Scripture?

Anſw. Divers wayes, namely; Sometimes it is taken

First, for the whole weeke of unleavened Bread: thus Act. 18. it is ſaid, That after the Paſſeover Herod intended to bring forth Peter unto the people.

Secondly, for the day which followed the Even, wherein the Paſchall Lambe was eaten; that is for the fifteenth day of the firſt Moneth. Thus St. Paul ſaith, The feaſt day of unleavened bread which is called the Paſſeover did approach.

Thirdly, for the houre of the killing and eating of the Paſchall Lambe: according to that of St. Marke, After two dayes was the Paſſeover, and the feaſt of unleavened bread.

Fourthly, for any bread or meat which the Jewes eate during the feaſt of the Paſſeover: Thus St. Iohn ſaith, The Iewes would not enter into the Iudgement hall, leſt they ſhould be defiled: but that they might eate the Paſſeover (Iohn 18.28.) Now here by Paſſeover, Iohn doth not underſtand the Paſchall Lambe, but unleavened bread, which they were to eate for the ſpace of ſeven dayes: And which it was not lawfull for them to eate, except they were cleane according to the Law; now to have entred into Pilates houſe would have defiled them.

Fifthly, for the Paſchall Lambe it ſelfe.

Sixthly, for Chriſt, who was figured by the Lambe, 1 Cor. 5. 7. Carthuſ. ſ.

VERS. 20. Now when the Even was come, he ſate downe with the twelve. Verſ. 20

Queſt. Whether was it required of the Iewes by the Lord to ſtand at the eating of the Paſſe-over or to ſit?

Anſw. 1 First, Pererius (ſ. Exod. 12. 8.) thinketh, that ſtanding was none of the Ceremonies enjoyned, becauſe our Saviour Chriſt did ſit at the Paſſeover, as St. Matthew here expreſſeth.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, Philo, whoſe judgement is ſomewhat to be credited concerning the rites of the Hebrewes, thinketh, that they ſtood at the Paſſe-over. lib. de ſacrif. Cain & Abel.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, it is cleare that they ſtood, by the other rites uſed in the Paſſe-over, namely, the girding of their loynes, and the holding of their ſtaffe in their hands, and by the reaſon which is added, Becauſe they did eate in haſt: Now he that ſtandeth is more ready to goe, then he that ſitteth, and he which ſitteth hath no need to ſtay his hand upon a ſtaffe. Yea the Apoſtle ſaying, Stand therefore and your loynes girded about, Epheſ. 6. 13. ſeemeth to allude to this ceremony.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, and though our Saviour did ſit at the Paſſe-over, yet this ſheweth not that the Jewes did not then ſtand, but that it was no perpetuall ceremony, onely preſcribed for that time, as the reſt belonging to their habite, which were likewiſe omitted by our Saviour.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, It is the opinion alſo of the Hebrewes, that they were firſt to ſtand in the eating of the Paſſe-over, in token of their ſervitude in Egypt, for ſervants uſed to eate their meat ſtanding. And Simler (in Exod. 12. 8.) is of opinion, that CHRIST firſt ſtood, till the Paſſe-over was eaten, and then ſate downe at the reſt of the ſupper: for it was lawfull after the eating of the Paſſe-over to uſe other meats, to make an end of the feaſt as our Saviour

Saviour alſo did. But it appeares to be otherwiſe by this our Evangeliſt, that our Sauiour did ſit at the eating of the Paſſeover, as in this verſe, When the Even was come, he ſate down with the twelve. Wherefore it is not otherwiſe to be judged, but that ſtanding at the Paſſeover was a rite onely preſcribed at that time.

Verſ. 22 VERS. 22. And they were exceeding ſorrowfull, and began every one of them to ſay unto him, Lord is it I?

Queſt. Why were the Diſciples thus ſorrowfull?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, they ſorrowed for the approaching death, and moſt impious delivering, and betraying of their Liedge, loved, and innocent Lord.

Anſw. 2 Secondly they were ſorrowfull, becauſe euery one feared himſelfe, knowing that it was impoſſible that their Maſter ſhould lye, but it was poſſible enough that through humane frailty they might fall into ſuch a gulfe, and horrible impiety.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, they greeved that there ſhould be one ſo wicked amongſt them, as to betray his owne Maſter: for the offence of one of a congregation doth often reflect upon the whole congregation: yet a good colleague or companion doth mourne for his fellowes fault, as though it were his owne.

Verſ. 24 VERS. 24. The Sonne of man goeth as it is written of him: but woe unto that man by whom the Sonne of Man is betrayed: it had beene good for that man if he had not beene borne.

Queſt. Why doth our Saviour ſay, it had beene good for Iudas, if he had never beene borne, that is, if he had never beene?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, becauſe if he had never beene borne, or never beene, he could never have beene a Traytour, nor liſtened to any ſuch wicked counſelil. And it better by much not to be, then to be a betraiour of the Lord of glory.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, it had beene good for Iudas, if he had never beene, becauſe it is better Non eſſe then Malè eſſe, not to be at all, then to be eternally miſerable, as he is and ſhall be for ever: for if he had never beene he could never have beene damned.

Verſ. 26 37. 28. VERS. 26, 27, 28. And as they were eating Ieſus tooke bread, and bleſſed it, and brake it, and gave it to his Diſciples, and ſaid, Take, eate, this is my body. And he tooke the cup, and gave thankes, and gave it to them ſaying: Drinke ye all of it: For this is my blood of the New Teſtament, which is ſhed for many for the remiſſion of ſinnes.

In theſe verſes is laid downe the inſtitution of the Sacrament of the Lords Supper, and therefore I will not handle them particularly by Sections, as I doe in the reſt, but onely propound ſome generall queſtions, which I conceive are moſt needfull to be knowne, and learnt by thoſe, who deſire to be worthy, and bleſſed receivers of this holy Sacrament. 339

Queſt. 1 What is that we call the Lords Supper?

Anſw. That which Chriſtians are commanded to receive together in their ſolemne aſſemblies, in remembrance of Chriſt: Or it is the Communion of bread and wine, inſtituted by CHRIST in remembrance of his death, Luke 22. 19. and 1 Corinth. 11. 24, 33. and 10. 17.

Queſt. 2 Whether is the Euchariſt a Sacrament, being once conſecrated, though it be neither eaten nor drunken?

Anſw. The Papiſts ſay, that theſe words being once ſaid, This is my body, the elements are the very body and blood of Chriſt, though they be kept in boexs or pixes, and other Church veſſels, and never eaten. Trident Concil. ſeſſ. 13. Can. 47. Bellarm. de Euchar. Lib. 4. Cap. 2.

Object. 1 Now becauſe we deny this, and ſay, That the Euchariſt is no Sacrament beſide or without the uſe thereof; that is, though ſome forme of words be pronounced over the Elements, yet if they be not received and eaten and drunke, it is no Sacrament, they object this place thus, Chriſts words which were ſpoken over the bread, This is my body, were true as ſoone as they were pronounced, yea before he ſaid, Take eat, and ſo likewiſe of the Cup: therefore it was a Sacrament before they did receive and eat it, yea and had beene a Sacrament though it had not beene received at all at that time.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, theſe words of our Saviours, This is my body, were not ſpoken before he brake the bread and diſtributed it; But firſt, as St. Matthew here ſetteth it downe, he brake the bread, and gave it to his Diſciples, ſaying, Take, eat, and then follow theſe words, This is my body, which ſeeme to have beene uttered even in that inſtant, when they tooke the bread, and beganne to eate it.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, the inſtitution of a Sacrament conſiſteth partly of a promiſe, partly of a precept; The promiſe is this, This is my body; the precept, Take, eat: Now Chriſt doth no otherwiſe make good his promiſe, then we performe the condition: unleſſe therefore accordingly we doe take and eat it, it is not the body of Chriſt. If the Reader deſire to ſee, how both theſe anſwers are oppoſed by Bellarmine, and how his oppoſitions are fully anſwered, let him read Willet ſynopſ. 621, 622.

Queſt. 3 By whom, and when was this Sacrament of the Lords Supper inſtituted?

Anſw. By the Lord Jeſus in the night wherein he was betrayed. As in this place, and 1. Corinthians 11. 23.

Queſt. 4 Why in the inſtitution of this Sacrament did our Saviour bleſſe the Elements (as it is here ſaid) or give thankes as St. Luke, and Saint Paul ſay.

Anſw. Firſt, CHRIST gave thankes, that he might inſtruct us how to celebrate and receive this holy myſtery, namely, with thankefulneſſe.

340

Secondly, he gave thankes, to shew that willingly, and of his owne free accord he laid downe his life.

Answ. 2

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Christ gave thankes, to teach us, that we must suffer and undergoe whatsoever is laid upon us, with thankesgiving, like Iob who blessed God for crosses, as well as blessings, Iob. 1. 21.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, he gave thankes, that thereby he might signifie, that he was delivered to death for the benefit of us, and our salvation. And this is the true meaning of these words, hee tooke the elements of bread and wine, and blessed them, that is, he gave thankes to God his Father, for his inestimable mercy towards mankind, and for that inestimable mystery of their redemption, which was now about to be shewed forth, Quest. 5 Why did our Saviour institute this Sacrament of his Supper?

Answ. 1 First, for the perpetuall remembrance of his death and suffering.

Answ. 2 Secondly, that thereby we might see the unparallelled love of him towards us, who gave himselfe to death for our salvation.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, for the consolation of his Church and Children; that seeing Christ is now corporally separated from them, being ascended into Heaven, they might spiritually injoy and partake him in the Sacrament, wherein he is held forth unto them.

Answ. 4. Fourthly, for the edification of the faithfull, but of this afterwards.

Quest. 6 What is communicated outwardly in the Sacrament of the Lords Supper?

Answ. Bread and wine consecrated or blessed according to the institution; as in this vers. and Mark. 14. 22. and 1 Corinth. 10. 16. Where we see that the Elements are bread and wine, which being consecrated or blessed, are changed Sacramentally, but not substantially: I say Sacramentally; because they are separated and set apart for the Sacrament: and are not to be reduced or turned unto a common use, durng the cōtinuance of the Sacrament.

Quest. 7 Is there no dissimilitude or unlikenesse at all betweene Bread and Wine and the Body and Blood of Christ, that our Saviour here useth these Elements of Bread and Wine to signifie his Body and Blood?

Answ. 1 First, this resemblance and likenesse there is betweene Bread and Wine and the Body and Blood of CHRIST; that as those nourish the life of man, being meat and drinke; according to the Psalmist, God gives bread to strengthen the heart of man, and Wine to make him cheerefull, Psalm. 104. So the participation of the Body and Blood of Christ, doth so nourish and sustaine our soules, that we shall never spiritually die any more, I amplifie not this answer, because I have to consider of the resemblance betwixt these signs and the things they signifie, more amply in another place.

Answ. 2 Secondly, betweene Bread and the Body of Christ, and Wine and the Blood of Christ, is a threefold dissimilitude, and unlikenesse, namely,

I. In Bread and Wine there is a temporary saticty but in the Body and Blood of Christ an eternall. Bread and Wine doe onely satisfie the hunger, and quench the thirst for a time: but he that eates the flesh of Christ, and drinkes his blood, shall neither hunger nor thirst, for ever.

II. Bread feeds man, but not onely Bread; for a man cannot live onely of that food without any other: But the Body of Christ alone feeds, nourishes, and preserves the soule alive: yea that is the onely food of the soule, and he that eates not of that can never have life eternall.

III. Earthly Bread being eaten consumes and wasts; but the flesh of Christ which is meat indeed will never consume, but live for ever.

Quest. How many things doth our Saviour intimate and imply in these words [He tooke the cup, and gave thankes, and gave it to them, saying; Drinke ye all of it, for this is my Blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sinnes]

Answ. Goranus upon these words saith that our Saviour implies foure things in them, viz.

First, Sacramenti veritatem, the truth of the Sacrament in these words, This is my blood.

Secondly, Sacramenti dignitatem, the excellency of the Sacrament, in these words, Of the New Testament.

Thirdly, Sacramenti utilitatem, the commodity and utility of the Sacrament; in these words which is shed for many.

Fourthly, Communicandi generalitatem, the generality of the Communion and participation of the Sacrament; in these words, Drinke ye all of it, that is, All, both Priest and People, Clergie, and Laitie, are to partake of the Cup, as well as of the Bread, in the Celebration of this Sacrament. And therefore extreamly injurious are the Papists to the people (in denying unto them the Cup) and directly opposite unto Christ, in their celebration of this Sacrament. For

I. This Sacrament was instituted to be received in both kinds; Christ tooke the Bread, and also the Cup, and gave it, in these verses.

II. The Church was injoyned to receive it in both kinds: 1 Corinth. 11. 28. Let a man (that is, every receiver) examine himselfe, and so let him eat of this Bread, and drinke of this Cup.

III. Christ did single out the Cup, as it were with a propheticall Cave, Drinke yee all of this, in this place. Squire in 2. Thessal. 2. Page 7. 2.

Object. Against this Bellarm. objects, That these words, Drinke ye all of this, were spoken onely to the Apostles, who then sate at Supper with Christ, And therefore not all receivers, but Ministers onely must tast and partake the Cup.

Answ. 1 First, if we should deny it, they could not prove that none were set at Supper with CHRIST but onely Apostles: For this phrase he sate downe with the twelve, and, he gave it to his Disciples, doe not necessarily import that there were none but them, but that all the twelve were there when he began to eat the Passeover.

Answ. 2 Secondly, if these words, (Drinke ye all of this) were spoken onely to the Apostles, then so were also all the other words which were uttered at that time, and upon that occasion, and conse-

consequently, that the people must not communicate at all: for as it was said unto the Apostles; Drink ye all of this, so it was also said unto them, Take, eate: And therefore by Bellarmines argument, if none but Apostles were present, when these words were uttered, and that they were spoken to them onely, and because they were spoken onely unto them, therefore the people must not communicate of the Cup, then by the same reason they must not partake of the Bread neither, because unto the Apostles onely our Saviour said, Take, eate. And thus the people (in Bellarmines judgement) are wholly cut of from the use of this Sacrament.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, that which was spoken to the Apostles, when they sate at the Table with Christ, and received the Sacrament from him, and with him, was not spoken unto them, as they were Apostles, but as they were faithfull, having communion with CHRIST, and consequently with all the faithfull.

Que. 9 How doth it appeare, that the Cup is to be given to the people, as well as the Bread?

Answ. 1 First, it is evident thus, CHRIST instituted the Sacrament in both kinds, giving charge and commandement to all Christians in the same manner to celebrate it: for he saith here, Drinke ye all of this, where it is worth observing, that Christ saith after the Cup, Drinke ye all of this, but after the giving of the Bread, he saith not, Eat ye all of this, so that our Saviour did as it were fore-see, that the Cup should be denied to some, and therefore directly commandeth that to be used of all.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it appeares also hence; Our Saviour saith here after the giving of the Cup, This is my blood which is shed for you, and for many: wherefore the blood of Christ must be given to all those for whom it was shed; and so consequently to Laymen also.

Que. 10 What doth Christ point at in these words, This is my blood?

Answ. He did not meane, that it was his blood indeed which was in the Cup, but he pointed at the wine: For the understanding hereof observe, that when Moses said, Exod. 24. 8. Behold the blood of the Covenant; there the word Blood is properly to be understood: because their covenants were confirmed with blood, and there were no sacrifices, without blood. But when CHRIST said here, This is my blood of the New Testament, there was no blood in the Cup here, but he had relation to his owne blood, which was signified by the wine in the cup.

Que. 11 When CHRIST saith, This is my body, This is my blood (as in these verses) how was he present with the bread and wine there?

Answ. A thing is said to be present foure manner of wayes; namely,

First, σωματικῶς, when a man is bodily present.

Secondly, σημαντικῶς, when a man is present by his picture.

Thirdly, ἐνεργητικῶς, as the Sunne is present by operation, in heating and nourishing things here below.

Fourthly, ἀντιληπτικῶς, when we apprehend a thing in our mind. Now when Christ said this is my body, and this is my blood, he was present there σωματικῶς corporally, but he was not in the bread and the wine σωματικῶς, for then his blood should have beene there before it was shed; yea then he should have had two bodies, one visible and another invisible: But he was present in the bread and the wine σημαντικῶς, representatively, because the bread and the wine represented his body and his blood. So he was present there ἐνεργητικῶς, operatively, by his Spirit working in their hearts, And lastly he was present to them by Faith ἀντιληπτικῶς, apprehensively, when they did spiritually eate his body, and drinke his blood, and this is the true and literall sense of the words. Weemse of the sense of the Scripture. Page 181.

Before Question 6. we affirmed that in this Sacrament of the Lords Supper, was outwardly communicated bread and wine, which must be consecrated or blessed according to the institution of CHRIST. Now hence it may be demanded.

Que. 12 Whether this consecration change their substance, or not?

Answ. No, the substance of the Elements are not changed by their consecration, but they remaine bread and wine still.

Que. 13 Which are the words of Consecration?

Answ. 1 First, the Papists say, these words, This is my body, and This is the New Testament in my blood, are the very formes of this Sacrament, and words of consecration; which words being spoken over the bread, and over the wine, immediately the Elements are changed into the body and blood of Christ, Rhemist. 1 Corinth. 11. §. 11. Bellarm. Lib. 1. de Sacram. Cap. 13.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we the Protestants lay downe our opinion herein, in these particulars, viz.

I. We acknowledge no such consecration at all, by vertue whereof the Elements are converted, and transsubstantiated into the body and blood of Christ.

II. A consecration we grant, which is a setting apart of the Elements, which before were common, to holy use, and by the vertue of Christs institution, to be made unto us signes of holy things.

III. Onely these words, This is my body, and This is the cup of my blood, are not the words of consecration: but the whole sentence, Take yee, eate yee, this is my body, The body of Christ is sacramentally to be taken and eaten; and therefore by taking and eating the elements also are consecrated, and not onely by saying of the words. Now this we prove from this place, by this Argument.

If the whole consecration doe consist in these words, This is my body, and this is my blood; then before the prolation, and pronouncing of these words, Christ did not consecrate the Elements.

But Christ did consecrate them, before the uttering of these words.

Therefore the whole consecration doth not consist in these words, This is my body, and This is my blood.

342 The consequent is undeniable, and manifest by it selfe.

The assumption is thus proved from the words of the Evangelist, When Christ had taken bread, and blessed it, he brake it and gave it to his Disciples saying, take, eate, this is my body; and having taken the Cup, and given thankes, he gave it to them saying, Drinke ye all of this, for this is my blood. For the words of this our Evangelist are thus truly rendred, and translated by Beza.

Thus it appeares that these are not the onely words of consecration, because both the bread was broken and distributed, and the cup also, before Christ spake these words. For first Christ saith, Take eate, and Take and drinke, before he had said, either this is my body, or this is my blood. Againe St. Luke addeth, This is my body which is given for you; and St. Paul saith, which is broken for you, 1 Corinthians 11.24. Yea St. Luke and St. Paul have these words, Doe this in remembrance of me, which are omitted both by St. Matthew and St. Marke. Wherefore seeing all these are the words of CHRIST, it followeth, that they are all effectuall and forcible to constitute the Sacrament (unlesse they will say, that some of Christs words are superfluous) Therefore these onely words, This is my body, This is my blood, are not all the words of consecration.

Que. 14 What is the meaning of these words, This is my body, This is my blood?

Answ. In these words our Saviour pointeth at the thing present, & understandeth the thing that is not present; He had the bread and cup in his hand, and he said, This is my body, this is my blood; in which propositions are two things to be considered, namely,

First, the Subject, and that is, the Bread and Wine, which he doth demonstrate.

Secondly, the Attribute, and that is, the thing which is signified by the Bread and Wine; and these two make up but one sense, When a man looke h upon a picture, he saith, This picture is my Father; and hereby understandeth two things, to wit, the picture it selfe, and his Father represented by the picture; for the picture at which he pointeth is not his Father properly, but onely it representeth his Father. And so the bread and wine are not the body and blood of Christ properly, or propriè loquendo but figuratâ locutione, because they represent or typifie his body and blood.

Que. 15 If there be a Trope in this sentence, This is my body, then where is it, or in what word?

Answ. It is not in the Antecedent Article Hoc, This, nor in the Copula, or verbe est, is; but in the consequent substantive, Body; for Corpus Body, is put for the signe of the Body; And the meaning is, this is my body, that is, this is the signe of my body: Yet we must not exclude the true and proper body of Christ out of that sentence, but rather include it, by that relation which the signe hath to the thing signified: but of this more fully by and by.

Que. 16 Is there one Trope onely in this word Body, or more then one?

Answ. In this Word there is a threefold Trope, namely,

First, there is a Metaphore, whereby one thing is put for another thing like unto it; to which also a Metonymie of the adjunct doth adhere and cleave: For Bread is not onely like unto the Body of Christ, but also by the institution of God is made an adjunct thereof.

Secondly, there is a Synechdoche of a part for the whole, whereby the Body of Christ is put for whole Christ.

Thirdly, there is a Metonymie of the subject for the adjunct: for Christ is put for all those benefits which are derived unto us from him. The Papists utterly dislike this, affirming that Christ instituting of a Sacrament, and speaking to his Apostles, who were illiterate men, it is not to be imagined, that he would use any Tropes or Figures, but in all probability that he would speake literally and plainly. This they say in opposition to our figurative exposition of this sentence, This is my body; but in the meane time, they themselves have interpreted first the Pronoune (This) by under this; the verbe (is) by doth signifie, the possessive (Mine) spoken by the Priest, to betoken Christ, the Adjective (given) by is crucified; the verbe active (eate) by beleeve; the verbe passive (is broken) by it seemeth to be broken; the subject (Cup) by the matter contained in the cup; and lastly the participle (shed) as peradventure signifying sprinkled upon their soules; all which are not proper but figurative senses, some synechdochicall, some metaphoricall, some metonymicall; And thus while our Adversaries condemne Protestants for admitting but two figures, or three at the most, they themselves are become chargeable for seven. If the Reader would see this handled to the life, and made as cleare as the Sunne, let him read BP. Mort. Appeale, Lib. 2. cap. 2. §. 24. Fol. 121, 22, 123, 124.

Que. 17 What is meant by Hoc, This?

Answ. It demonstrates that which Christ brake, and gave to his Disciples, namely, the Bread which he had blessed. So that the meaning is, Hoc, This, that is, Hic panis, This bread which I give unto you. This is evident

First, from the naturall order of the words; for he tooke Bread, and brake Bread, and gave Bread unto his Disciples, and said of the Bread, This is my body.

Secondly, the truth of this interpretation appeares from St. Lukes words, concerning the Cup, τοῦτο τὸ ποτήριον, This cup (that is, this wine in this Cup) is the New Testament in my blood, Luke 22.20. so Hoc est corpus meum, This (that is, This bread which I hold in my hand) is my body.

Thirdly, it is further cleare from the Apostle Pauls interpretation, whom we must rather believe, then any Romanist whatsoever: In 1. Corinthians 10. 16. St. Paul saith, The bread which we breake; and againe, As often as ye shall eate this bread, &c. And therefore it is cleare, that the Substance is not changed after consecration, but that it continues bread still.

Fourthly,

Fourthly, it is further manifest from the generall consent of the Fathers, untill the Schoole-mens time. If the learned Reader would see this last particular proved, let him read Pareus Controvers. 3. de Eucharist. Lib. 3. Cap. 5. and Lib. cap. 7. page 23. et lib. 2. cap. 7. page 68.

Que. 18 What may we safely hold and believe concerning the reall presence?

Answ. We hold and believe a presence of Christs body, and blood in the Sacrament of the Lords Supper; and that no fained, but a true, and reall presence: which is to be considered two manner of wayes; namely,

First, in respect of the signes; and herein we hold and teach, that Christs body and blood, are truly present with the bread and wine, the signes in the Sacrament. If it be here demanded.

Que. 19 How Christ is present with the Elements? We answer.

Answ. Not in respect of place, or coexistence, but by sacramentall relation, on this manner. When a word is uttered, the sound comes to the eare; and at the same instant the thing signified comes to the mind: and thus by relation, the word, and the thing spoken of, are both present together. Even so at the Lords table Bread and Wine must not be considered barely, as substances, and creatures, but as outward signes, in relation to the body and blood of Christ: and this relation arising from the very institution of the Sacrament, stands in this, that when the elements of bread and wine are present to the hand and to the mouth of the receiver; at the very same time the body and blood of CHRIST are presented to the mind. Thus is CHRIST truly present with the signes.

Secondly, in respect of the Communicants, to whose beleeving hearts he is also really present (as was shewed before Quest. 18.) ἀντιπαθητικῶς. If the Reader would see illustrated, what kind of presence this is, let him read Perkins reformed Catholike, of reall presence, Page 186, 187, &c.

Que. 20 Wherein doe we and the Papists differ concerning the reall presence?

Answ. We dissent not touching the presence it selfe, but onely in the manner of presence: for though we hold a reall presence of Christs body and blood in the Sacrament, yet doe we not take it to be locall, bodily, or substantiall, but spirituall and mysticall; to the signes by Sacramentall relation, and to the Communicants by faith alone. On the contrary the Church of Rome maintaines Transsubstantiation, that is, a locall, bodily, and substantiall presence of Christs body and blood, by a change and conversion of the bread and wine, into the said body and blood, and that whersoever this Sacrament is administred; that is, if this Sacrament were celebrated in all the Cities, and Towns, and parts of the World at one and the same instant, in all those places were Christ bodily, locally and substantially present.

Now this we deny, and they thus hence endeavour to prove it.

Object. 3 Our Saviour in the institution of his Supper commanded these words to be said, This is my body: Therefore if his words be true, whersoever his Supper is celebrated, there his body must needs be; and consequently every where at once, if the Sacrament at once were every where celebrated.

Answ. That which was spoken by our Saviour, and must be understood figuratively, and tropically, they take literally, and properly; Now that the words are figurative and not proper, it well appeares.

First, if we compare this action which he did then institute, with that which he did at the same time make an end of; and which was a type of this. The Lords Supper succeeded the Passeover. As then of it he spake figuratively when he said, I have greatly desired to eate the Passeover with you; So when he said, This is my body he could not but speake figuratively: And as the Lambe which he did then eate, and instead whereof he did institute the bread, was the Passeover, namely Sacramentally: So the bread Sacramentally is the body of Christ.

Secondly, it appeares also by the phrase of speech used by St. Luke 22.20. and by St. Paul, 1 Corinth. 11.25. in speaking of the other part of this Sacrament; This Cup is the new Testament in my blood. Now to speake properly neither was the Cup, nor the wine in the Cup, the New Testament. And therefore if the phrase used concerning the Cup, must needs be understood figuratively, and tropically, then why not also the phrase concerning the bread?

Thirdly, it cannot be denied but that CHRIST in giving the bread, and saying, This, did shew forth bread, yea such bread, with all its accidents, as he gave: And therefore either

I. Did he then call the bread alone his body: and if so, then is the speech figurative, because he calleth that his body, which is not his body. Or

II. He did then call the accidents of the bread alone his body; And if so, which no man durst ever yet avouch, the speech also must needs be figurative. Or

III. He did then call both together (that is, the bread, and its accidents) his body: And if so it is figurative in like sort; seeing that the substance of the bread could not be the body of CHRIST, much lesse the accidents either alone or with the bread. Or

IV. He did then call neither the bread nor the accidents thereof, his body, but some other thing: And if so, then out of all question there is then a figure, whilest shewing one thing and calling it his body, he would notwithstanding haue another thing, farre different from it, to be understood by the name of his body. And thus howsoever they expound the words, they must needs confesse a Trope and Figure in them.

Object. 4 Against this Bellarmine (de sacrament Eucha. lib. 1 cap. 9.) objects, Christ in the institution of this Sacrament, said unto his Apostles, after he had given thankes, and blessed the Elements; This is my body, that is, that which is con- tained in this bread, or under the formes of this bread, is my body. And therefore theſe words muſt needs be taken properly; not tropically, This he further proves by three reaſons, viz.

344

Firſt, becauſe it is not the manner of the Scriptures to ſet downe flat Precepts and Commandements, and directory rules in obſcure tearmes, or figurative ſpeeches, but plainly and evidently: Therefore it is not like, that Chriſt being now to preſcribe unto his Apoſtles the perpetuall Law and forme of this Sacrament, would ſpeake obſcurely.

Secondly, becauſe although he ſpake often to the Phariſees by parables and ſignes, yet there was no cauſe why he ſhould now ſo do, none being preſent but his Apoſtles.

Thirdly, becauſe neither theſe words, This is my body, nor any other ſpeech of Scripture is to be taken figuratively, unleſſe either ſome other Scripture doe ſhew it ſo to be taken, or it be repugnant to ſome Article of the faith, as this ſpeech of Chriſt is not. For whereas the Proteſtants alleadge that it is contrary to Chriſts aſcenſion, yet we Catholikes doe both believe that Article, and alſo hold the reall preſence of Chriſt notwithſtanding, Bellarm. Cap. 9. Argum. 3.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, the Cardinall doth here ſtrangely overſhoot himſelfe, and commits a groſſe Solœciſme, in affirming that which he denies, or confirming and proving that which he undertakes to overthrow. His aſſertion is, That theſe words, This is my body, muſt needs be taken properly, and not figuratively, or tropically; and he gives them this proper interpretation, That the pronoune (This) doth neither ſignifie bread nor body, nor yet accidents properly; but (This) that is, ſaith he, under theſe accidents is my body; as he ſheweth by an example which proueth, that this is ſo plainly a figurative ſpeech, as when a man promiſeth his friend the uſe of his purſe, doth figuratively meane the money in his purſe. Let the Reader read Bellarm. Lib. 1. de Euchar. Cap. 11. §. Nota ſecundò et §. Eſt igitur, and there he ſhall ſee his expoſition of theſe words, This is my body, according as we have laid them downe, Sub ſpeciebus eſt corpus meum, under theſe accidents is my body. His example is laid downe in the ſame place §. Sed S. Thomas, which for the Readers ſatisfaction I will ſet down. Eſſet aptum exemplum, ſi Dominus quandò mutavit aquam in vinum, oſtendiſſet hydrias aquæ, & dixiſſet, Hoc eſt vinum: et illis verbis mutâſſet aquam in vinum; neque enim poſſumus ita exponere iſtam ſententiam, Hoc eſt vinum, id eſt, hæc aquæ eſt vinum, id enim falſum eſſet: neque ita, Hoc id eſt, vinum eſt vinum; nam falſa fuiſſet demonſtratio: non enim aderat vinum cum diceretur, Hoc, ſed hic eſt ſenſus, Hoc eſt vinum, id eſt, in hoc vaſe eſt vinum. That is, that the meaning of theſe words, This is my body, is, under theſe accidents is my body, will appeare by this pregnant example; If our Saviour when he changed the water into wine, had ſhewed the pots of water, and had ſaid, This is wine, and with thoſe words, had changed water into wine: yet we could neither expound this ſentence, This is wine, thus, that is, this water is wine, for this were falſe; nor thus, This, that is, This wine is wine; for then the demonſtration is falſe; for it was not wine, when he ſaid this, but the meaning is, This is wine, that is in this veſſell is wine, which every Novice knowes is as direct a Metonymy, as if I ſhould ſay to my friend, my purſe is at your command, meaning the money in my purſe. And thus in his aſſertion he doth affirme theſe words, This is my body, to be proper, and not figurative, and in his expoſition, and illuſtration doth confirme them to be tropologicall and figurative. And thus much for the anſwer to his aſſertion; I come to his reaſons.

Secondly, the Cardinall looſeth more then he gaines by his firſt reaſon; for thereby (though I thinke unawares) he grants unto us, that the precepts and rules in Scripture are ſet downe ſimply and plainly; and therefore the Word cannot be ſo hard and obſcure, as he elſe-where would beare us in hand it is; for if the precepts and rules of Faith be evidently in Scripture expreſſed, as he here confeſſeth, then what reaſon hath he to keepe backe the people from reading the Scripture, which he labours with tooth and naile to doe? Anſw. 2

Thirdly, to his firſt reaſon I anſwer againe, That it is falſe that the Scriptures uſe no figures nor tropes, in the Declaration of the Lawes and Sacraments of the Church: For St. Paul ſpeaking of the Sacraments of the Jewes, ſaith, The Rocke was Chriſt, 1 Cor. 10. 4. That is, the Rocke ſignified Chriſt: So verſe 17. We that are many are one bread: that is, our ſpirituall unity and conjunction is repreſented, in that we are partakers of one bread. Anſw. 3

Fourthly, to his ſecond reaſon I anſwer, that ſometimes our Saviour did ſpeake darkely, being alone with his Apoſtles, thereby to ſtirre them up more diligently to attend unto his words; as when he biddeth them beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, Mark 8. 15. Yea this ſpeech of our Saviours uttered in the hearing of the Apoſtles, This is my body, was neither ſo darke nor obſcure, that the Apoſtles need much be troubled about the underſtanding of them. Nay many things being ſpoken in borrowed and Metaphoricall words, are uttered with greater grace, and carry a fuller ſenſe. When Chriſt ſaid, I am the doore, Iohn 10. 9. and I am the Vine, Iohn 15. 1. he ſpake by a figure as he doth here; for neither was he a Vine, nor a doore, as the bread was not his body: And yet which of the Apoſtles was there, that underſtood him not, when he called himſelfe a Vine, and a doore? Neither could they doubt of our Saviour Chriſts meaning here. Anſw. 4

Fifthly, to his third reaſon I anſwer two things, namely, Anſw. 5

I. Other places of Scripture which muſt be underſtood in a figure (as where CHRIST ſaith, I am the doore, the vine, &c.) doe alſo inſinuate how Chriſt is to be underſtood here.

II. If the Papiſts did beleeve the Article of Chriſts aſcenſion aright, as St. Peter doth. (Act. 3. 21. ſaying, whom the heavens muſt containe untill &c.) they ſhould not then containe him in earth earth under the formes of bread and wine, who must yet be contained in heaven : for if CHRIST could be contained in divers places at once, the Angell had not reasoned soundly. Matthew. 28. 6. He is not here, for he is risen.

Object. 3 Bellarmine (lib. 3. de Euchar. Cap. 19.) urgeth these words further for the proofe of Transsubstantiation, thus ; Our Saviour saith, This is my body, which words doe signifie a substantiall not a figurative change onely of the bread into Christs bodie : for otherwise the bread, and the flesh of CHRIST being things of divers natures, cannot be one pronounced or affirmed of another : for bread is not flesh remaining in it owne nature,

Answ. 1 First, as one thing being of a divers nature, cannot be pronounced of another, unlesse there be some change: so neither can the same thing be affirmed or predicated of it selfe, as to say, this substance is my body, which is all one in their sense to say, This is my body.

Answ. 2 Secondly, a figurative change is sufficient according to the phrase of Scripture, though there be no materiall or substantiall mutation in this proposition, This is my body, that is, this bread signifieth my body : like as when Christ breathed upon his Apostles, he said, Receive yee the holy Ghost : calling the very breath the Spirit, which it signified and exhibited onely ; So the holy Ghost descending upon Christ in his Baptisme is called the Dove: So then, as the breath of Christ is the Spirit, and the Dove the holy Ghost ; so is the bread Christs bodie, that is, in figure and signification, and not in substantiall mutation; Willet. synop. 615.

Quæ. 21 Why may we not beleeve the Elements substantially changed, or transubstantiated, or, what Reasons may be given against Transsubstantiation?

Answ. 1 First, the affirmation of Transsubstantiation doth overthrowe the distinction of the outward, and inward action of the Communicant in the celebration of the Lords supper : which distinction is warranted by Scripture, and grounded vpon Scripture ; and therefore that Tenet is not to be maintained. For the cleare understanding hereof, observe, that in the receiving of the blessed Sacrament we are to distinguish betweene the outward and inward action of the Communicant. In the Outward with our bodily mouth, we receive really the visible elements of Bread and Wine. In the inward we doe by faith really receive the body and blood of our Lord : that is to say, we are truely and indeed made partakers of Christ crucified, to the spirituall strengthning of the inward man. Now this distinction betweene the Sacrament, and the thing whereof it is a Sacrament, and consequently betweene the Sacramentall and Reall eating of the body of Christ, is briefely and excellently expressed by St. Augustine (in Ioh. 6. tract. 26.) in these words. Hujus rei sacramentum de mensa Dominica sumitur, quibusdam ad vitam, quibusdam ad exitium. Res vero ipsa cujus sacramentum est omni homini ad vitam, nulli ad exitium, quicunque ejus particeps fuerit. That is, the Sacrament of the Lords supper is received by some unto life, and by some unto death ; but whosoever is made partaker of that thing whereof it is a Sacrament is made partaker of life and not of death. From hence we draw this conclusion, The body and blood of Christ is received by all unto life and by none unto condemnation ; But that substance which is outwardly delivered in the Sacrament, is not received by all unto life, but by many unto condemnation : Therefore that substance which is outwardly delivered in the Sacrament, is not really the bodie and blood of Christ. 345

The Major is proved out of Augustines forenamed place, and out of the true expolition of those verses of Iohn. 6. viz. verses. 27, 33, 35, 48, 50, 51, 52, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 63.

The Minor is manifest both by common experience, and the testimony of the Apostle, 1 Cor. 11. 17, 27, 29. We may therefore conclude that the 6. of Iohn is so farre from giving any furtherance to the doctrine of the Romanists concerning Transsubstantiation, that it utterly overthroweth their fond opinion, who imagine the body and blood of CHRIST to be in such a sort present, under the visible formes of bread and wine, that who soever receiveth the one, must of force also really be made partaker of the other. And thus we see that both this distinction of the outward receiving of the signes, and the inward receiving of the thing signified, is grounded upon Scripture and also that it is overthrowne by this doctrine of Transubstantion ; every one by that doctrine being truely made partaker of the very flesh and blood of Christ, and the bread the Lord ; whereof who so eates, shall live for ever ; Iohn. 6. 50. &c. And therefore this opinion as contrary to Scripture is to be detested.

Secondly, this doctrine is to be rejected, be- Answ. 2 cause the maintainers thereof are inforced to support and uphold it, with Fabulous narrations, and grosse untruthes. As for example, Paschasius Radbertus, who was one of the first setters forward of this doctrine of Transsubstantiation in the West, spendeth a whole Chapter to prove, that the body and blood of Christ is in such a sort present, under the visible formes of bread and wine, that whosoever receiveth the one, must of force also really be made partaker of the other ; Paschas. de corp. & sang. dom. Cap. 14. And in the same place for the further confirmation hereof telleth us, that Christ in the Sacrament did shew himselfe oftentimes in a visible shape : but especially he insisteth upon a narration which he found In gestis Anglorum (but deserved well for the goodnesse of it to be put into Gesta Romanorum) of one Plegilus a Priest, to whom an Angell shewed Christ in the forme of a child upon the Altar, whom first the Priest tooke in his armes and kissed, but ate him up afterwards, when he was returned to his former shape of bread againe. Such another story Iohannes Diaconus reporteth in the life of Gregory the first, of a Romane Matron who found a peece of the Sacramentall bread, turned into the fashion of a finger all bloody, which afterwards upon the prayers of St. Gregory, was converted to his former shape againe. It is likewise credibly related (and on their side faithfully beleeved) and still is to be read in the Legend of Simeon Metaphrastes, in the life of Arsenius, how that a little child was seene 346 seene vpon the Altar, and an Angell cutting him into small peeces with a knife, and receiving his blood into the Chalice, as long as the Priest was breaking the bread into little parts.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this corporall presence overturnes an Article of our faith. For we beleeve that the body of Christ was made of the pure substance of the Virgin Mary, and that but once, namely, when he was conceived by the holy Ghost, and borne. But this cannot stand if the body of CHRIST be made of bread, and his blood of wine, as they must needs be, if there be no succession, nor annihilation but a reall conversion of substances in the Sacrament: unlesse we must beleeve contrarieties, that his body was made of the substance of the Virgin, and not of the Virgin; made once and not once but often.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, this bodily presence overturnes the nature of a true bodie, whose common nature or essentiall property it is, to have length, breadth, and thicknesse, which being taken away, a body is no more a body. And by reason of these three dimensions, a body can occupy but one place at once, as Aristotle (de Categor. quant.) said, The property of a body is to be seated in some place, so as a man may say where it is. They therefore that hold the body of CHRIST to be in many places at once, doe make it no body at all, but rather a spirit, and that infinite.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, Transsubstantiation overturnes the very Supper of the Lord. For in every Sacrament there must be a signe, a thing signified, and a proportion or relation betweene them both. Now Transsubstantiation takes away all: for when the bread is really turned into Christs body, and the wine into his blood, then the signe is abolished, and there remaines nothing but the outward formes or appearance of bread and wine: And the signe being abolished, the thing signified fals to the ground, they being Relata.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, Christ in saying, this is my body, did demonstrate or shew something in sight, for a thing absent and invisible cannot be demonstrated: but Christs body, which they imagine was hid under the formes, was not seene. Therefore it could not be shewed. And consequently, these words doe not signifie any substantiall change, neither are to be taken properly, and literally, but figuratively, and tropologically.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, as Christ saith here (pointing to the bread) This is my body, so he saith, Iohn 6. 35. I am the bread of life: but in this place he was not changed into bread; why then in the other place should the bread be turned into his body, for the speech is all one.

Answ. 8 Eightly, when Christ spake these words, This is my body, the bread was transsubstantiated before, or after, or the while these words were spoken. Before, they will not say, for the elements were not then consecrated. Nor after, for then Christs words, This is my body, had not beene true in that instant, when they were spoken. Neither was the Transsubstantiation wrought in the while of speaking; for than should it not have beene done all at once, but successively, and one part after another, as the words were spoken one after another. But this is also contrary to the opinion of the Papists, for they would have it done altogether.

Answ. 9 Ninthly, we may not credit this Tenet of Transsubstantiation, because the holy Scriptures call the element bread still after the consecration. 1 Cor. 10. 17, and 11. 26, 27, 28.

Answ. 10 Tenthly, the judgement of the ancient Church doth oppose this Novelty of Transsubstantiation: If the Reader would see how the Ancients expounded this phrase, and how it appeares, they held not this doctrine, Let him reade, Perkins reformed Catholike of the reall presence. Pag. 196, 197, 198, And thus we have seene the reasons, why we must not beleeve this fancie of Transsubstantiation.

Quest. 22 Doe any absurdities follow this doctrine?

Answ. This Tenet of Transsubstantiation doth bring along with it foure absurdities, namely

First, if the bread and wine should be turned into the body and blood of JESUS CHRIST, there should be no signe in the supper, and so there should be no Sacrament, which cannot be without a visible signe.

Secondly, if the bread and wine should be turned into the body and blood of Christ; then the blood must needs be separated from the body, which is absurd and impossible.

Thirdly, if this doctrine of Transsubstantiation were true, then it would follow that Christ should have a body infinite, and by consequent, he should not be true man, nor truely ascended into heaven; which would overthrow the principall Articles of our faith.

Fourthly, if this opinion be true, then it will follow that infidels, and hypocrites comming to the Lords supper, should truely participate the body and blood of Christ; and so it must needs follow, that God and the devill should be lodged together. Many are the absurdities which follow Transsubstantiation, which our adversaries wipe easily off, with telling us, that they are not incongruities but Miracles: For the proofe hereof observe, That Iohan. de Combis, comp. Theolog. lib. 6. Cap. 14. makes nine wonders in this Sacrament, viz.

First, that Christs body is in the Eucharist in as large a quantity as he was upon the crosse, and is now in heaven, and yet exceeds not the quantity of the bread.

Secondly, that in this sacrament there be accidents without a subject.

Thirdly, that the bread is turned into the body of Christ, and yet is not the matter of the body, nor resolved to nothing.

Fourthly, that the body increaseth not by consecration of many hosts, neither is diminished by often receiving.

Fifthly, that the body of Christ is under many consecrated hosts.

Sixthly, that when the host is divided, the body of Christ is not divided, but under every part thereof is whole Christ.

Seventhly, that when the Priest holds the host in his hand, the body of Christ is not felt by him nor seene, but onely the formes of the bread and wine.

Eightly,

Eighthly, that when the formes of bread and wine ceaſe, the body and blood of Chriſt ceaſeth alſo to be there.

Ninthly, that the accidents of bread and wine have the ſame effects with the bread and wine it ſelfe, which are to nouriſh and to fill. Antoninus part. 3. Tit. 13. Cap. 6. §. 16. reckons up twelve Miracles, and ſtrange ones that are in this Sacrament, and he hath them from Iohan. de ſancto Geminiano in ſermone quodam. I conclude this queſtion thus, That on this manner it ſhall be eaſie for any man to defend the moſt abſurd opinion that is or can be, if he may have liberty to anſwer the arguments alleadged to the contrary by wonders and miracles.

Obiect.6 But they obiect here, that God is Almighty, and therefore nothing is unpoſſible unto him, he can doe all theſe things which are above rehearſed, and change bread and wine into the body and blood of CHRIST.

Anſw.1. First, true it is that God is Almightie, but in this and like matters we muſt not diſpute, what God can doe, but what he will.

Anſw.2 Secondly, becauſe God is Omnipotent, therefore there be ſome things, which he cannot (or rather will not) doe; as for him to deny himſelfe, to lye, and to make the parts of a contradiction to be both true at the ſame time.

Anſw.3 Thirdly, if God ſhould make the very body of CHRIST to be in many places at once, he ſhould make it to be no body while it remaines a body: and to be circumſcribed in ſome one place, and not circumſcribed, becauſe it is in many places at the ſame time: yea he ſhould make the very body of Chriſt to be viſible in heaven, and inviſible in the Sacrament: And thus ſhould he make contradictions to be true: which to doe is againſt his nature, and argues rather impotencie then power. vide. Auguſt. de ſymb. ad Catech. lib. 1. Cap. 1.

Obiect.7 They obiect againe; CHRIST hath a glorified body, and therefore he may be viſible in heaven, and inviſible in many places at once upon earth.

Anſw.1 First, this argument is vaine, becauſe CHRIST had no ſuch body when he inſtituted the Supper, and ſaid theſe words, This is my bodie.

Anſw.2 Secondly, Chriſts glorification doth not any way diminiſh the nature of a true body; And therefore it is ſaid, Acts. 3. 21. That the heavens ſhould containe him untill the day of judgement, when he ſhall viſibly deſcend, as he was ſeene to aſcend.

Que.23 Is the Euchariſt of neceſſity to be received of all men of diſcretion?

Anſw. Yea: it is the Sacrament of Chriſts fleſh, whereby all men muſt be ſaved. Reade verſe. 27. of this Chapter. and Iohn. 6. 53. and 1 Cor. 10. 17. As Baptiſme is ſometimes compared or reſembled unto a begetting, ſo the Lords Supper is to food; and therefore as food is neceſſary for the body, ſo is this Sacrament of the Lords body neceſſary for the ſoule. Wherefore three ſorts of people are much to blame, namely

First, thoſe who care not at all for comming to the Lords Supper.

Secondly, thoſe who will never come but at Eaſter.

Thirdly, thoſe who omit, and forbeare comming, either

I. Becauſe they are ſo taken up with worldly imployments, that they have no leiſure to fit and prepare themſelves. Or

II. Becauſe they are at Law with ſome, or have beene injured by ſome, whom they will not forgive, but rather forbeare comming to the Lords Table.

Que.24 How oft muſt we receive this Sacrament?

Anſw. With an ordinary continuance, as oft as we can conveniently, Act. 2. 42. and 20. 7. and 1 Cor. 11. 25. This Sacrament muſt not be once celebrated as Baptiſme is, but often.

First, becauſe we are once borne, but often fed and nouriſhed.

Secondly, becauſe as often as we worthily celebrate this Supper, ſo often we honour our Chriſt And hence it was that the Ancients did celebrate this Sacrament every Lords day.

Que.25 What is inwardly ſignified by theſe Elements of bread and wine?

Anſw. Our communicating in ỳ body and blood of Chriſt by faith. For

First, bread ſignifies the body of CHRIST, Iohn. 6. 35, 55. And in this verſe, he tooke the bread and ſaid, This is my body. And

Secondly, this Sacrament muſt be Communicated, and is therefore called a Communion. 1 Cor. 10. 16. Wherefore the end of the Sacrament is neither

I. Oblatio, an offering up of it unto God, as a Propitiatory ſacrifice. Nor

II. Reſervatio, a reſerving or keeping of it in boxes, or pixes. Nor

III. Circumgeſtatio, a carrying of it about in Progreſſe or proceſſion. Nor

IV. Adoratio, a falling downe before it, and worſhipping it. But

V. Communicatio, onely a communicating of it by the faithfull.

Que.26 What is the uſe or ſcope of this Sacrament?

Anſw. First, to remember Chriſts death with thankefulneſſe, Luke. 22. 19. and 1 Cor. 11. 24, 25, 26. And hence it is called Euchariſtia, becauſe it is to be celebrated with thankeſgiving unto God.

Anſw.2 Secondly, to ſhew our union into one body, 1 Cor. 10. 17. And hence

I. It is neceſſary, that there ſhould be an aſſembly, or congregation, or at leaſt more then one or two at the celebration of this Communion. The Sacrament is to ſhew our union and conjunction with the members of CHRIST, and therefore it is required, that it ſhould be communicated by more then one.

II. Becauſe the uſe of this Sacrament is to ſhew our union into one body; therefore it is neceſſary that thoſe who come unto it, ſhould be reconciled unto all men, Matth. 5.

Anſw.3 Thirdly, another end of this Sacrament is to confirme our communion with Chriſt to our ſalvation, Iohn. 6. 54, 56. For as the unworthy receiving of this Supper is puniſhed with condemnation, 1 Cor. 11. 29. ſo the worthy receiving thereof is rewarded with ſalvation. Now this Union of ours with CHRIST which is confirmed unto us in the Eucharist, doth include in it these two things, viz.

348

I. On our part a condition of Repentance. And

II. On Christs part a promise of union, that is, if we will but come unto the table of the Lord with true and unfained repentance of all our sinnes, then CHRIST promiseth to knit and unite us unto himselfe.

Que. 27 What are the fruits of this our Vnion with CHRIST?

Answ. 1 First, remission and pardon of all our sinnes; whereof by and by, Answ. 6.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the imputation of Christs righteousnesse, or active obedience.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the nourishment of our soules: of which by and by Answ. 5.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, another end of this Sacrament is to shew us our duty, for we are now none of our owne, but being redeemed by the blood of Christ, are obliged to serve him both in body, soule, and spirit, 1 Cor. 6. 20. And therefore when we come unto the Lords Supper, we must come with a promise and purpose of new obedience, and true sanctification, both in heart and life, as followes afterwards.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, another use of this Sacrament is to nourish and feed the soule. Now because this is controverted, therefore I lay downe these three things, viz.

I. We confesse that the soule of the worthy receiver is nourished by the body and blood of Christ in the Sacrament; and therefore in vaine is that place urged against us, My flesh is meate indeed, Iohn. 6.

II. We say, that this spirituall food and nourishment is neither conferred upon any Ex Opere operato, by the bare worke wrought, nor conferred and given to all that receive this Sacrament, but is onely imparted to the faithfull and worthy receive by the inward working of the holy Spirit.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, and Lastly, another scope or use of this Sacrament is the remission and pardon of our sinnes. This is denied by the Papists, and therefore I will lay downe the state of the question, or controversie, and then confirme what wee have affirmed.

I The question is concerning the proper effect and use of the Lords Supper: Whereunto the Papists say, That it was not properly ordained for remission of sinnes, neither that it hath any such use: but it serveth onely as a preservative against sinne. Trid. Conc. sess. 13. Can 5. & Bellarm. de sacram. lib. 4. Cap. 17. Now we affirme and teach, that an especiall and principall use of the Eucharist or Communion, is to strengthen and assure our faith of the remission of our sinnes: though that be not the onely scope and use of that Sacrament, as is shewed by the other use afore mentioned.

II. That amongst the other ends and uses of this Sacrament, it also assureth us of remission of sinnes, is thus proved, from this place; Christ here saith, This is the blood of the New Testament, that is shed for many for remission of sinnes; But the new Testament includeth a promise of remission of sinnes, Ierem. 31. 34. yea our Saviour setteth it downe in plaine tearmes: for why else should our Saviour make expresse mention of forgivenesse of sinnes, if this Sacrament amongst other uses did not serve for that use also? Against this they object many things, to wit,

Obje. 10 First, Bellarmine saith, that these words of our Saviour doe not signifie, that his blood is drunke in the Sacrament for the remission of sinnes, but that it was shed for remission of sinnes, and so is represented in the Eucharist. Bell. de Sacram. lib. 4. Cap. 19. resp. ad Arg. 3, Answ. 1 First, in the Eucharist the death of Christ with the fruit thereof, which is the remission of sinnes is not onely represented, but exhibited also and applied: for otherwise the Jesuite will make it but a bared and naked signe, if it should onely represent and signifie: and who would thinke, that they which stand upon the reall presence, would content themselves with representation and signification onely? And therefore I thus retort the argument, As Christs blood is present, so are the fruits of his blood: but his blood is not present onely in signification, but verily and indeed to the worthy receiver. Therefore so is remission of sinnes, which is the fruit of his blood.

Answ. 2 Secondly, St, Paul saith, that the unworthy receiver is guiltie of the body and blood of Christ, 1 Cor. 11. 27. 29. Now if unworthy receiving doth verily adde sinne unto them, then the worthy receiving, which is a shewing forth of Christs death, doth verily obtaine remission of sinnes.

Obje. 11 Secondly, they object; Remission of sinnes is not once nominated in the 6. of Iohn, where the fruits of this Sacrament are expressed. And therefore this is no end of this Sacrament.

Answ. 1 First, Remission of sinne is not there named: therefore this Sacrament hath no such use; followes not, nor will be granted untill they first prove that all the ends uses, and fruits, of the Lord Supper are there laid downe: which taske I know they will never undertake.

Answ. 2 Secondly, I grant the pardon of sinne is not the principall scope, but yet it is one end thereof notwithstanding.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, we confesse that the Sacrament is onely Signaculum a seale of the remission and pardon of our sinnes; for the Eucharist doth not conferre Remission upon us, but confirme remission unto us.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, although the Remission of sinne be not directly expressed as an use of this Sacrament, yet it may be collected

I. From the covenant of mercy which God in Christ makes with the faithfull. And

II. From their union and communion with CHRIST.

Que. 28 Who is fit to receive the Lords Supper?

Answ. He who is carefull aright to prepare himselfe.

Que. 29 How must we prepare our selves, or how may we be made worthy receivers?

Answ. There is a double preparation, and a double worthinesse; viz.

I. A generall preparation, and a worthinesse of the person.

II. A

II. A particular preparation, and a worthinesse of the action.

First, there is a generall preparation, and a worthinesse of the person, without any relation to the Sacrament: For no man hath right unto divine and spirituall things, except he be a man of GOD.

Que. 30 Wherein doth this general preparation, and worthinesse of the person consist?

Answ. 1 First, in Repentance, wherein there are two things, namely,

Is A purpose of repentance, which consists

First, in a knowledge, and acknowledgment of our sinnes: for we must labour to see our sinnes, and then learne to confesse them unto God, Luke. 1. 75. Rom. 2, 15. Iam. 1.

Answ. 2 Secondly, in a condemning of our sinnes, and by-past errours.

Thirdly, in a promising and vowing of better things for the time to come.

II. The Practise of repentance, which consists.

First, in Mortification, and a dying unto sinne, 1 Cor. 9. 27, Hebr. 12. 14, Colos. 3, 5, 8.

Secondly, in Vivification, and a living unto God, the life of faith, and grace, and new obedience, 1 Tim. 6, 18, Titus. 3. 14, Rom. 6, 19. Galath. 5. 22. and 1 Peter. 1. 6, and Ephes. 4. 22. &c. unto 5. 10.

Thirdly, in a constant custome, and use of both these all the dayes of our lives: that is, so long as we live we must be carefull to eschew whatsoever is evill, and to doe whatsoever is good, and to abound therein, Galath. 5, 6.

Secondly, this generall preparation and worthinesse of the person consists in Faith. Reade, Iohn. 6. 47, 48. Galath. 2, 20. Ephes. 3. 17. For without faith nothing is pleasing unto God, Hebr. 11. 6. Now three things are required in this Faith, to wit,

I. A knowledge of the promises of the Gospell, which comes by hearing of the word, Rom. 10. 17. And therefore the Saints must be carefull in hearing and reading the Legacies which God hath left them in his Will and Testament.

II. A beliefe in the promises; when we know what the Lord promises unto us; then we must beleeve his promises, Hebr. 12. 6.

III. An application of these promises unto our selves; for the two former are to be found in divels, but not this. The evill spirits know what promises God hath made in his word, and they beleeve them to be true, but they cannot apply them unto themselves. And therefore the children of God must never rest untill they can lay hold upon the promises and apply them unto themselves; Here observe, that there are two sorts of men who apply the promises unto themselves, viz.

First, some without any ground, or foundation at all, onely out of a bold, and blind presumption, This is to be taken heed off, as a thing of greatest perill.

Secondly, some from a true, solide, and warrantable foundation; namely

I. Because the Spirit of God witnesseth unto their hearts, that they are the members of Christ, and the children of God; Rom. 8. 15, 16, Gal. 4. 6. 349

II. Because they shew forth the fruits of repentance and conversion in their lives and conversations, serving God in sincerity though not perfectly, For the tree is knowne by his fruits; and by the fruits of the Spirit, Galath. 5. 22. the testimony and evidence of the Spirit is knowne to be true.

Que. 31 To whom may these two parts of this generall preparation, and worthinesse of the person be fitly applied?

Answ. 1 First, they may be applied to the Prophane person; who from them may learne three things, viz.

I. They hence may see themselves to be miserable; and that

First, by confessing and acknowledging of their sinnes. Proverb. 28. 13. and 1 Cor. 11. 31. and 1 Iohn. 1. 9.

Secondly, by respecting, and looking unto the end of sinne, namely, eternall death, and condemnation, Psal. 9. 17. Esa. 2. 19, Luke. 23, 30, Rom. 2. 4, 1, 12. and 6, 24. and 1 Cor. 6. 9. Hebr. 10. 31, and 12, 29. Revelat. 6. 16.

Thirdly, by trembling and quaking throgh the danger they have brought themselves in by reason of their sinnes: yea if a wicked man could but see the sword of vengeance, which hangs over his head, he would then certainly feare and tremble exceedingly, 2 Cor. 7. 9, 10.

II. When they are brought into this feare or danger, then let them come unto CHRIST, and that

First, humbly, and with dejection; like Nehemia, Chapt. 9. and Daniel. 9. and the prodigall child, who blushed, and were ashamed by reason of their transgressions.

Secondly, they must pray fervently,; from their hearts desiring the intercession of Christ, and the participation of his blood.

Thirdly, they must then hope in his helpe, and mercy, 1 Iohn. 2. 1, For he who is truely ashamed and confounded, for his sinnes, and prayes frequently and fervently, that CHRIST would be graciously pleased to mediate and intercede unto God his Father for him, to wash him with his most precious blood, and to reconcile him unto himselfe in, and through CHRIST, may confidently hope to find favour at Gods hands, according to his most gracious promises. And

III. Then they must come unto this holy Sacrament, as a seale of their repentance, and Gods mercy: but of this afterwards.

Secondly, these parts of the generall preparation may be applied to the Morall man; who from hence may learne two things, namely

I. To condemne, and renounce his owne righteousnesse: Now hereunto three things are required of them, to wit,

First, they must know and acknowledge that they may doe some good workes, but they can doe none well, Matth. 6. 2, 5, 6. Luke 18. 14. Because they are as yet without CHRIST.

Secondly, they must know, that their workes are not in CHRIST, nor performed in faith, nor such as are wrought by the faithfull, and spirituall 350 man. Here obſerve a foure-fold difference betweene the workes of the Morall and Spirituall man.

I. They differ Origine, in the very beginning: For

First, the workes of the Morall man proceeds either from nature, or reaſon, or the example of ſome, or from judgement approving ſuch, or ſuch a thing to be good. But

Secondly, the workes of the Spirituall man proceed from the internall motion of the Spirit of God, againſt which nature rebels and ſtruggles, Rom. 7. 23. Gal. 5. 17.

II. They differ Fine in the end: For

First, the workes of the Morall man are done hypocritically, and for vaine glory, or elſe for cuſtomes ſake, or tradition, or the pleaſing of men, or the like baſe and by-ends. But

Secondly, the workes of the Spirituall man are wrought either out of a deſire to glorifie God thereby, or to approve our faith, or at leaſt out of a neceſſity of obedience which we owe unto God, Epheſ. 2. 10. and 1 Pet. 1, 2.

III. They differ Modo, in the manner of doing; For

First, the Morall man workes good workes ad libitum, as he liſt himſelfe; or, he performes ſome particular good workes according to the election and choiſe of his owne will. But

Secondly, the Spirituall man labours to performe all the will of God, and to obey whatſoever the Lord requires of him, fearing to diſobey the Lord in the leaſt thing.

IV. They differ Perſuaſione, vel effectu, in perſwaſion and effect, For

First, the morall workes of the Morall man, doe puffe up, and make the doer of them boaſt, and ſwell with pride, Luke 18. 11. At leaſt they ſo pleaſe him that he acquieſceth and reſteth in them. But

Secondly, the ſpirituall workes of the ſpirituall man, doe both

I. Humble him; as a tree laden ſtoopes the lower, 1 Tim. 1. 15. And

II. Diſpleaſe him as wnting the ſufficiency of ſanctification, Romanus. 7. 8, 19, 24. and Philip. 3. 12, 13. And hence comes that conſtant labour and endeavour to be more and more holy, and pure, and perfect.

Thirdly, the Morall man muſt learne to judge his life according to the law of God: and here foure things are to be learnt, namely

I. He muſt learne a difference betweene the literall expoſition of the law and the ſpirituall.

II. Hence he muſt confeſſe that his ſinnes are more then he thought them to be. Yea

III. He muſt know, and acknowledge all his beſt workes to be polluted, and impure, Luke 18. 14. Rom. 3. 20.

IV. He muſt learne to acknowledge his blindneſſe, and to flye unto Chriſt, Rom. 10. 3. and Philip. 3. 9, 12. But this followes in the next particular.

II. The Morall man may learne from the parts of this generall preparation, and worthineſſe of the perſon, to flee unto Chriſt, and that foure manner of wayes, viz.

First, by rejecting himſelfe, and all ſelfe-confidence,

Secondly, by adding Religion to morall honeſty; that is, he muſt learne,

I. To acknowledge himſelfe bound in duty to doe whatſoever he can, yea more then ever he is able here perfectly to doe, 1 Corinth. 13. 10. And

II. To make conſcience of doing any thing which God forbids, or leaving undone any thing which God commands, And

III. To be zealous for the glory of God, and in his ſervice,

Thirdly, by laying hold upon the promiſes of the Goſpell unto ſalvation. And Fourthly, by adding the ſeale of the Sacrament unto it, Rom. 4. 11. And thus much for the generall preparation unto the Lords Supper, and the worthineſſe of the perſon.

Secondly, there is a particular preparation, and a worthineſſe of the action.

Wherein doth this worthineſſe of the action conſiſt? Que. 38

First, in a preparation; which is two-fold, namely Anſw. 1

I. In the conſcience; which is alſo double, to wit, either

First, a dejected and humbled conſcience; caſt downe either

I. Through a ſight and ſenſe of naturall miſerie: which is either

First, generall; becauſe we are dead in ſinnes and treſpaſſes, Epheſ. 2, 1. And ſtrangers from God, and from the Common-wealth of Iſrael, Epheſ. 2. 12. And heires of death and deſtruction, becauſe of our ſinnes, Rom. 6. 21, 23. Or

Secondly, particular; when we are dejected and caſt downe, for our particular offences, and daily failings and fals. Or

II. Through ſhame for the ſinnes committed, Nehem. 9. Erra. 9. Dan. 9. Or

Secondly, a cheerefull, and erected conſcience; which ariſeth

I. From a knowledge of the love of God, and mercy of CHRIST. And

II. From the knowledge of the vertue, power, efficacie, and force of this Sacrament. For

First, although the Lords Supper doe not give grace Ex Opere operato, by a bare communicating of the outward elements, but onely confirmes grace given, Rom. 4. 11. yet

Secondly, grace is

I. Given by CHRIST. And

II. Exhibited, and ſhewed forth in the Sacrament. And is

III. Sealed by the Sacrament. And therefore in the Sacrament are given outward and viſible ſignes. Thus in our preparation there are two things to be laboured for, or which we muſt labour to be ſenſible of: viz.

First, the heavy burden of our ſinnes which preſſeth downe.

Secondly, the aſſurance of mercy by CHRIST, which raiſeth up.

II. This preparation conſiſts in a right affection; which conſiſts in three things, namely

First,

First, in a desire of the Sacrament. Here observe, that this desire is either

I, Evill, which ariseth either

First, from custome: thus many desire to communicate at Easter, because they have beene alwayes accustomed to receive at that time. Or

Secondly, from thence; because they are of age, or stature sufficient. Or

Thirdly, from a false opinion Operis operati, that the very outward communicating of the Elements will conferre and give grace. Or

II. Good when men desire the Lord onely for himselfe, and his owne sake. Now this good desire is twofold, to wit,

First, a desire of God himselfe. Read Psalm. 23. 2. and 27. 4. and 42. 1. and 63. 1. Philip. 3. 8. And from this fervent desire of God, proceeds the hatred of sinne, and a desire and hope of reconciliation by CHRIST.

Secondly, a desire of the Sacrament for the confirming of these.

Secondly, in a full and faithfull purpose of turning unto the Lord. For when mercy is offered upon conditions, then the conditions are to be observed unto the obtaining of mercy. Now three things are required in this purpose of conversion, to wit,

I. It must be a true purpose, not a false and fained.

II. It must be a fervent purpose, not a keycold one, or sluggish, Revel. 3. 18.

III. It must be often reiterated, and renewed, at least, every time we receive this Sacrament.

Thirdly, in true love, and charity towards our Brethren, 1 Cor. 10. 17. Ephes. 5. 29. 1 Iohn 2. 9. and 4. 20. Matth. 5. 23. and 1 Cor. 11. 18. Men that feasted and banqueted together were wont to wash their hands before they sate downe, to shew that there was nothing but love and amity amongst them: and thus should all who come unto the table of the Lord; wash their hands and hearts from all malice, hatred, envie, rage, and the like. The places above mentioned doe afford us so many reasons, why we must be in love and charity with our brethren when we come unto the Table of the Lord.

I. Because we must not presume to offer Sacrifice unto God, untill we be reconciled unto our Brethren, Matth. 5. 23.

II. Because otherwise we are unworthy to come unto the Lords Supper, 1 Corinth. 11. 18.

III. Because we are brethren and members of the same body, 1 Corinth. 10. 17. but never any hated his owne flesh, Ephes. 5. 29.

IV. Because if we love not our Brethren, wee love not our Father, 1 Iohn 4. 20.

Answ. 2 Secondly, this worthinesse of the action consists in an examination of our selves, before we come unto the Table of the Lord: Now three things are here to be examined, viz.

I. Wee must examine our knowledge, and prove what our estate and condition is; for it behoves us to be in a state of grace when we come to this Sacrament, because otherwise the Elements which we receive will be as bad as mortall poyson unto us, Calv. inst. 4. 17. §. 40. Here observe two things, viz.

First, this state of grace in which we should be when we come to the Lords Table is diversely defined; For

I. The Papists say, that it consists in Faith, repentance, and a confession of sinnes, because it is necessary that he which comes to this holy Sacrament should confesse his sinnes to the Priest; and be penitent for them, and believe with a generall Faith the promises of the Gospell. Concil. Trid.

II. We say that this state of grace in which we should labour to be, doth consist in a hatred of all sinne, in a resolution to leave all sinne, and in a sure hope, and confidence of mercy in and through CHRIST.

Secondly, observe, that Bellarmine here taxeth Calvin, because he saith, that men ought to come to the Lords Table with a conscience of mortall sinne. But we answer for Calvin thus, That there is a double conscience of sinne.

I. A conscience accusing of some sinne which yet raignes in the heart; without any confidence of remission: that is, when a mans conscience telleth him, that the old leaven of sinne is not yet purged out, but remaines and raignes in his mortall body, neither hath any hope that the sinnes past are pardoned; This is an evill conscience, and it is dangerous for a man to come unto the Table of the Lord, with such a conscience of sinne.

II. There is a blushing conscience for sinne, which remaines within, and presseth downe, both in regard of the time present and by-past. That is, when a man blusheth and is ashamed both for his sinnes already committed, and also for the reliques of sinne which remaine within him, and strive and wrastle continually against him. And this conscience of sinne Calvin requires in every one who approcheth unto the Supper of the Lord.

II. Wee must examine our Faith and repentance, by those markes and properties which were before shewed, Quest. 31.

III. We must examine our desire of God, and his holy Sacrament: but of this we speake before in this same question, answ. 1. And thus much for our Preparation.

Who are to be held unworthy to partake of this Supper, Or, to whom is this Sacrament not to be given? Que. 35

First, it is not to be given to a Heathen, or Gentile who is not baptized: It is the Childrens bread; and therefore must not be given to Dogs, which are without the Church. Answ. 1

Secondly, it is not to be given to those who are ignorant: that is, Answ. 2

I. To those who are Infants ætate, children in yeares: And

II. To those who are Infants erudit ione, et moribus, children in manners and understanding, for there 354 are many babies of threeſcore yeares old, who are as ignorant of the grounds and principles of Religion as children of three. Both theſe ſorts ought to be kept backe untill they be thorowly informed of the doctrine and nature of the Sacrament: For Children and ſuch ignorant ones as cannot diſcerne the Lords body are not to be admitted. 1 Cor. 11. 29.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, this Sacrament is not to be communicated or given to notorious ſinners; whether

I. Such as are juſtly excommunicated, for giving ſome great and grievous ſcandall and offence unto the congregation wherein they live. 1 Cor. 5. 11. Or

II. Thoſe who publikely commit ſome haynous and enormious offences, and repent them not of them: for there are many ſuch offenders who are not Excommunicated, and yet becauſe they are ſuch offenders they are to be debarred from this ſacred myſtery. Here obſerve that a ſigne is made enormious divers and ſundry wayes, viz.

First, Gravitate facti, by the haynouſneſſe of the offence: Thus Adultery, drunkenneſſe, murder, ſwearing, blaſphemy, treaſon, and the like, are enormious ſinnes.

Secondly, by a proud, and obſtinate defending of it, as 1 Corinth. 5. 2. for the defending and maintaining of what is evill, is a great aggravation of ſinne and makes a little ſinne a great one.

Thirdly, ſinne is made enormious by a negligent continuing therein. And Fourthly, by ſcandall and offence; as 1 Corinthians 5. 11. and 2 Samuel 12. 14. Matthew 18. 6. and 1. Corinthians 8. 9. And therefore they who are given to grievous ſinnes, or who defend and juſtifie their ſinnes, or continue in their iniquities, or give offence by their tranſgreſſions either to thoſe within or without the Church, are to be kept backe from the Sacrament, untill they have ſhewed ſome repentance and amendment of life.

Fourthly, this Sacrament is not to be given to a particular perſon (as in private Maſſes) becauſe it is a Communion of Chriſtians, as was ſhewed before.

Que. 34 What doe they who are unworthy, gaine by comming unto the Lords Supper?

Anſw. 1 First, ſometimes they gaine temporall puniſhment, 1 Corinth. 11. 30.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, ſometimes alſo eternall condemnation, 1 Corinth. 11. 27, 29.

Que. 35 What is required in the adminiſtring or Miniſter of this Sacrament?

Anſw. 1 First, he muſt adminiſter true Elements, and pure, and good according to the inſtitution, 1 Corinthians 11. 23.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, he muſt not ſeparate the Elements, that is, give one and not another, but adminiſter to every Communicant both bread and wine.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, he muſt conſecrate and bleſſe the Elements before he adminiſter them: and therefore if (as it ſometimes happens) the wine faile which is firſt provided, and a new ſupply of Wine is made by fetching more, that is to be conſecrated before it be adminiſtred, 1 Corinth. 10. 16.

Fourthly, he muſt breake the bread, Mark 14. 22. Anſw. 4

Fifthly, he muſt communicate it to a company, and not to himſelfe onely, as in private Maſſes. Anſw. 5

Is not preaching needfull, and required in the Miniſter at the adminiſtration of this Sacrament? Que. 36

First, ſome anſwer here, that it is not neceſſarily to the Sacrament required, and they give two reaſons, for it, namely, Anſw. 1

I. Becauſe it is not of the eſſence of the Sacrament, neither is once mentioned in the Evangeliſts, or in 1 Corinth. 10. or 11.

II. Becauſe there is no commandement given any where to uſe it:

Secondly, I anſwer, that it is very uſefull, Ad bene eſſe, and profitable for our preparation and inſtruction: Anſw. 2

Thirdly, there are many weighty cauſes, why this Sacrament ſhould be celebrated with Preaching; or why preaching ſhould be adjoyned to the adminiſtration thereof: And that both Anſw. 3

I. That we may be inſtructed in the nature of the Sacrament, and learne to diſcerne the Lords body, and to make a difference betweene comming unto the Lords Table, and our owne, and of taking thoſe Elements, and our owne repaſt at home: which too many doe not for want of inſtruction. And

II. That we might be admoniſhed to prepare our ſelves to come unto the Lords Supper with reuerence. And

III. That by preaching our hearts might be the better excited, both

First, for the expectation of the promiſes which are made in the Goſpell to the worthy receiver. And alſo

Secondly, for the performing of the Promiſes, Articles, and Covenants, which we make unto God in the Sacrament. And thus preaching is profitable, for our inſtruction in the nature of the Sacrament, for our preparation unto the Sacrament, for our admonition to performe what we promiſe in the Sacrament, and for our conſolation if we pay our vowes unto our God, which we have behight.

Fourthly, I therefore conclude, and determine this queſtion thus: Anſw.

I. That it is principally neceſſary, that firſt we ſhould be taught, before we communicate of theſe ſacred myſteries: For if this Sacrament muſt not be adminiſtred to Infants who are not able to diſcerne of the Lords body, then certainly neither ought it to be communicated to thoſe, who are as ignorant and ſtupide as Infants are.

II. Preaching doth not ſeeme to be abſolutely neceſſary unto the Sacrament, Toties quoties, or in omni Tunc, as often as the Sacrament is adminiſtred, becauſe then it could not be adminiſtred to the ſicke at home without a Sermon.

III. But it is moſt profitable, that there ſhould be a Sermon when the Euchariſt is celebrated, for theſe reaſons;

First,

First, that thereby we may be taught what we doe; and that

I. Left we fall into the Popish, and Capernaitish errours; who said, Will this man give us his flesh to eate? For without teaching we might easily fall into the errour of the Corporall presence. And

II. That we may know the mutuall conditions of the obligation made betweene God and us in the Sacrament, that is, what God promiseth unto us on his part, and what we promise unto God on our parts: For it is necessary that those who enter into bonds, should know what they seale unto, and what covenants they make, and this the Lord did admonish his people of, when they entred into covenants, (Exod. 19. 5. and Deut. 30. 15. &c. and 1 Sam. 8. 11.)

Secondly, Preaching is profitable before the Sacrament, that therby our affections may be excited: that is,

I. That our sorrow may be excited, and stirred up for our sinnes, which were the cause of the death and suffering of our blessed Saviour.

II. That our desire may be excited and stirred up, for grace and Christ; that is, that we may long for Christ and his grace, which are onely profitable unto us for pardon of our sinnes past, and preservation against sinne for the time to come.

III. That our joy may be stirred up for that great love, that God sheweth unto mankind in giving his onely and dearely beloved Sonne to death for their redemption, and for that hope which we have, that he died for our particular sinnes, and rose againe for our Justification. It is necessary, before we come unto the Lords Table, that we should be admonished of all these; now how can we better be admonished of them, then in and by the preaching of the word of God?

Thirdly, preaching is requisite before the Communion, because great is the danger that they incurre, that abuse, or profane it, or come not loathed with a wedding garment thereunto (1 Cor. 11. 28, 29. Matth. 22.)

Quest. What is required in the receivers of this blessed Sacrament?

Answ. Three things, namely, Preparation, Examination, and Execution of the two former I have formerly spoken; it remaines therefore now onely to speak of the last, which respects a threefold time, viz. the time Precedent, the time present, and the time Subsequent.

First, this Execution respects the time precedent, or going before the receiving of this Supper; wherein two things are wont to be done by the faithfull, to wit,

First, a serious Meditation of what they are to undertake, and about to doe; namely,

I. They are going to enter into a Covenant with the Lord; that is, either to renew that Covenant which they have often made, or at least to make that contract which hitherto they have neglected: Now the scope of this Covenant is, that they for their parts promise, and desire, that they may become new creatures, 2. Corinthians 5. 17. Galathians 6. 15. And CHRIST for his part promiseth that he will be theirs, 2. Corinthians 6. 16. They come unto the Table of the Lord with a desire to be ingrafted into CHRIST, Iohn 15. 4. and with a purpose for the time to come to shew themselves the godly branches of a holy stocke, Romans 11. 16. &c.

II. They come to confesse their sinnes, to pray unto God, and to praise his name for his infinite mercies: & therfore that they may doe these things diligently, they either doe performe, or ought to performe a threefold duty, namely

First, consider how great gaine doth accrew unto them, from the death of Christ; that the remembrance thereof may make them powre forth themselves in thankefulnesse unto God.

Secondly, they ought to search and inquire out all their sinnes, and all the reliques of concupiscence that remaine within them; that so they may truly and understandingly confesse their sinnes, and blush for their sinnes, and crave forgivenesse of all their sinnes.

Thirdly, they must observe the state of their soules; principally their wants, weaknesses, defects, and imperfections, that so they may desire the supply of them with the greater zeale and fervour.

III. They come unto Christ, and to his Communion; they come unto a spirituall Feast, and most rich treasure; And therefore they whet and sharpen their appetite, that they may feed the harder, and be fully satisfied with the fatnesse of Gods house. For if they be CHRISTS and he theirs, if they be worthy receivers of this holy Communion, and heavenly banquet, then they shall have

First, remission and pardon of all their sinnes, 1 Iohn 2. 1, 2. and 3. 5. And

Secondly, reconciliation with the Lord their God, in and through Christ, 2 Cor. 5. 19. &c. although formerly they have beene enemies and strangers, Ephes. 2. 13. &c.

Thirdly, they shall have preservation from sinne for the time to come; the grace of God shall sustaine them in the houre of temptation, 1 Samuel 25. 32. &c. 2 Corinth. 12. 9.

Fourthly, they shall have an increase of grace, and strength in the inward man; they shall have both power to will and doe, Philip. 2. 13. Rom. 7. 25. And

Fifthly, a Communion of both the natures of CHRIST; that is, both of the humane nature, and also of the divine, 2 Peter 14. and 1 Iohn 1. 3. Yea

Sixthly, they shall be made partakers of life eternall, Rom. 6. 23. and 1 Peter 1. 5. Now these things the worthy and faithfull receiver may expect and ought to desire with all his heart, soule, and spirit.

Secondly, after the Meditation of the worke which we are to undertake, followes the fitting and preparing of our selves for these things above mentioned; and that three manner of wayes, viz.

First, by sequestring of our selves from all worldly imployments and distractions if it be possible, the day before we are to receive.

Secondly, by corroborating and ſtrengthning our meditation by faſting. For this

I. Expels and drives away all ſluggiſhneſſe, dulneſſe, and idleneſſe. And

II. Sharpens the mind unto meditation and examination of our wants and weakneſſes. And

III. Doth ſingularly helpe and further us in prayer. For as empty veſſels ſound the loudeſt, ſo faſting and an empty ſtomacke is a meanes to make us ſend up lowd and ſtrong cryes unto God.

Thirdly, by attending unto the word of God and the preaching thereof: that both

I. It may inſtruct us how to carry our ſelves in the receiving of this holy Sacrament; And alſo.

II. That it may excite and kindle our affections unto that which is good, Acts 8. 6. And thus we ſee, what is required of us in regard of the time, before we come unto the Table of the Lord.

Secondly, this Execution reſpects the time preſent, wherein there are two things to be conſidered, to wit,

Firſt, the Action; or the receiving of the Elements; wherein alſo two things are required, viz.

I. We muſt take the Elements into our hands, and in ſo doing remember,

Firſt, that theſe are ſignes and ſeales of Gods love unto us, and that out of his unſpeakable love he hath given us this bread (CHRIST) from heaven, Iohn 6. 50. And with him will afford unto us whatſoever is good, Romans 8. 32. And

Secondly, we muſt remember, that by taking the Elements of bread and wine, we doe bind and oblige our ſelves unto the ſervice of GOD; that is, we promiſe and vow, that henceforth (ſeeing the Lord on his part hath made ſuch gracious promiſes unto us) we will labour to cleanſe our ſelves from all pollutions of the fleſh and ſpirit (2 Corinthians 7. 1.) and live, not according to the will of the fleſh, nor of the will of man, but of the will of GOD, revealed in his word, 1 Peter 4. 2, 3.

II. We muſt eate the Elements, and receive them into our body; wherein two things are to be done; namely,

Firſt, as we are fed by theſe, ſo we muſt expect that Chriſt will feed our ſoules; viz.

I. As corporall bread feeds the body, ſo this ſpirituall bread will feed the ſoule, and ſo nouriſh it, that it ſhall grow and increaſe in ſpirituall ſtrength, becauſe it is the fleſh of CHRIST truly to thoſe who are worthy receivers.

II. As wine is profitable for the body, ſo is the blood of Chriſt for the ſoule: For Firſt, it waſheth us from all pollution and contamination of ſinne, 1 Iohn 1. 7.

Secondly, it anoints us with grace and ſpirituall ſtrength, 2. Corinthians 1. 21. and 1 Iohn 2. 27.

Thirdly, it doth renew, increaſe, and excite our affections, and internall ſpirits; and doth inflame our hearts with a ſtrong and unfained love towards God, Cantic. 1. 1.

Secondly, if when we receive the Elements we doe not thinke of theſe things, neither are ſenſible of them, but remaine yet as ſenſeleſſe as the child was, notwithſtanding Eliſha's Servant laying his Maſters ſtaffe upon it, 2. King. 4. 31. Then

I. Wee muſt lament and mourne as Ioſhua did even untill the Evening, 7. 6, 7. and as the Eleven Tribes did when they were overcome of the Benjamites. Iudges 20. 20. We muſt bewaile, and grieve for this our inſenſibility.

II. We muſt beſides this ſorrow of heart, reiterate the ſupplications and prayers of our mouths; crying mightily unto God for the pardon of our ſinnes, for the aſſurance of his love, and our regeneration, and incorporation into CHRIST, and for preſervation from ſinne, and in grace untill he bring us to glory.

Secondly, in the time of celebration, or receiving of the Lords Supper, beſide the Action of taking and eating the Elements, there is alſo to be conſidered the manner of doing it; and that is, it muſt be done Reverently; For when we come unto the Table of the Lord we may truly ſay, Surely the Lord is in this place, Geneſ. 28. 16. And we may thinke, that we heare the Lord ſpeaking thus unto us, Put of thy ſhoes for the place, whereon thou ſtandeſt is holy ground, Exodus 3. 5.

Queſt. Is it lawfull to kneele at the receiving of the Lords Supper?

Anſw. 1. Firſt, for anſwer hereunto I referre my Reader to our Reverend Prelate, BP. Morton, who hath ſufficiently anſwered whatſoever malice it ſelfe can ſay againſt this practiſe of our Church, in his defence of the Ceremonies, Page 244, &c. unto the end of the Booke.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, I onely adde a word or two, which I will lay downe briefly in theſe particulars, viz.

I. To kneele in worſhip to the creature is Idolatry, Iſa 45. 23. and Exod 20. 5.

II. We muſt come reverently unto God, and no man can come too reverently before him: yea Chryſoſtome cals this Sacrament Tremendum Myſterium, the myſtery to be admired, as wonderfull and terrible: becauſe the breaking of the bread upon the Table doth repreſent unto us the killing of Chriſt upon the Altar, and the cutting of him (as it were) into pieces for our ſakes; and therefore how reverently ſhould we partake of this Paſchall Lambe?

III. The geſture of the body is in it ſelfe indifferent: I prove this Firſt, from our Church and State, who ſay (in the Preface of Cerem. in the Booke of Common prayers.) In our doings we condemne no other Nation nor preſcribe any thing but to our owne people onely. For we thinke it convenient, that every Country ſhould uſe ſuch Ceremonies, as they ſhall thinke beſt. For to ſit, ſtand, kneele, or walke, be not of the ſubſtance of the Sacrament.

And

And therefore in these outward rites and Ceremonies we must observe the counsell that Augustine saith. (August epist. ad Casulanum 86.) was given unto him by Ambrose: For he demanding of Ambrose, whether it were lawfull to fast on the Sabbath day or not to fast, seeing that among the Churches there was some diversity in this point: Quando hic sum (saith he) non jejuno Sabbato, quando Romæ sum jejuno Sabbato, &c. When I am here I fast not on Saturday, when I am at Rome I doe fast on Saturday, and to what Church soever you come, keepe the custome thereof, if you will neither suffer nor give offence.

Secondly, from Fricius Lib. 2. de Eccles. tract. 8. In these words, Ad sacram Domini coenam gratiarum actio, et precatio addenda est, in quibus est tota vis adorandi; utrumque eorum fieri posse & flexis genibus, et sedendo, et ambulando Christi exemplo doceri potest, &c. That is, The adoration which we are and ought to give in the celebrating and receiving of the Lords Supper, doth consist in prayers and prayses, both which (and that by the example of CHRIST) may be performed either kneeling, or standing, or sitting, or walking; for in the garden CHRIST fell upon his face (as saith St. Matthew) or upon his knees (as saith St. Luke 22.41.) when he prayed unto his Father: So he gives thankes either sitting, or (as I rather thinke) standing, Matthew 11.15. Yea CHRISTS gesture was a kind of sitting when he celebrated the Lords Supper, wherein when he had taken bread, hee gave thankes; A coena item postquam surrexit ambulando orat patrem: yea after he rose from Supper he prayed unto his Father walking; Multi sunt ægroti, &c. There are many sicke persons who can onely lye, and neither sit, nor stand, nor kneele, who are not to be denied this holy Sacrament; for they may take it, and give thankes although they lye: for Vetus est verbum Catonis, &c. both old and true is that saying of Cato's, God being a Spirit must be worshipped with a pure mind; or according to our Saviour, in Spirit and truth, Iohn 4. 24. Non ergo rixemur de gestu externo, nemo ob hunc vel illum condemnet alium. Let us therefore not disagree & jarre about the outward gesture, neither let any one condemne another for that. Hence from these two proofes wee learne these two particular lessons, viz.

I. That the gesture of the body in the receiving of the Sacrament is not of the essence of the Sacrament, but in it selfe an indifferent thing.

II. That the gesture of the body being not of the essence of the Sacrament, but an indifferent thing, is to be used according to the custome and constitution of that Church wherein wee live.

IV. He who refuseth to kneele at the receiving of the Lords Supper, cannot be excused of uncharitableness, and that both in regard of the Church, and also of the Minister of the Sacrament. For

First, our Church having by a Canon enjoyned this posture of kneeling to be used by the Communicant, he who refuseth it as an Idolatrous thing, doth thereby intimate, that the King, and all those famous learned, and pious Ministers who were assembled together in Convocation for the ordaining of orders for the uniformity of our Church, were (at least) tainted with Idolatry, or lovers of that which was meerly superstitious, or else they would never have constituted such a Canon, Charity, the Apostle saith is not suspicious, but he who refuseth this posture as superstitious, doth suspect those of superstition and Idolatry, who did enjoyne it; and therefore is uncharitable to the Church wherein he lives. 355

Secondly, our Church having by a Canon enjoyned this gesture of kneeling and threatned suspension to that Minister who shall give it to any that doth not kneele, he who refuseth thus to receive it is very uncharitable to his Minister, who by this his refusall is brought into a great strait, that is, must either dismisse and send him (so refusing to kneele) empty away, and deny this blessed Sacrament unto him, or else, if the Minister doe give it to him though he kneele not, doth thereby expose himselfe to the censure of suspension, and the danger of loosing his living.

V. Kneeling is appointed by our Church, not for the adoration of the Elements, but for a signification of the humble and gratefull acknowledgement of the benefits of CHRIST, given to the worthy receivers Archbishop: Whitg. answer to the admonition, Page 100. And therefore none should be more reverend in their gesture, at the receiving of this blessed Sacrament, then those who come best prepared, and most assured of true benefit and profit thereby.

VI. The lawfulnesse of kneeling at the receiving of these sacred Mysteries may be confirmed by this Argument.

Whatsoever spirituall benefits I may lawfully seeke on my knees with supplication, that same I may lawfully receive on my knees with thanksgiving.

But I may lawfully on my knees with supplication seeke salvation by JESUS CHRIST. Therefore I may lawfully receive the seales and pledges thereof on my knees Bp. Cooper.

If it be objected we must not kneele to an Idoll. Object.

I answer, we kneele to CHRIST, praysing him when we receive the holy Symboles, and exhibiting instruments of his body and blood: and it is meere madnesse either to make them Idols as the Papists doe, or call them Idols, as male-contents doe. Answ.

VII. Lastly, this Sacrament of the Lords Supper is administred in our Church with a most effectuall prayer and thanksgiving; and therefore what gesture can be fitter at that time then kneeling? with the Elements the Minister utters these words, The Body of our Lord

356 Lord Ieſus Chriſt which was given for thee, preſerve thy body and ſoule, &c. The blood of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt which was ſhed for thee preſerve thy body and ſoule to everlaſting life. Drinke this in remembrance that Chriſts blood was ſhed for thee, and be thankefull. Now when the Miniſter in the behalfe of the receiver powres forth ſo pathetical a prayer and thankeſgiving unto God; how can the receiver but with his heart, and upon his knees begge this at the Lords hands in his owne behalfe? And thus we have heard what is required of us both in regard of the Precedent, and Preſent time of receiving the laſt remaines.

Thirdly, this Execution reſpects the Subſequent time, and teacheth us a double duty after we have received the Lords Supper; namely,

Firſt, we muſt depart; and that

I. With joy and thankeſgiving, Acts 8. 8. 38, 39. Luke 17. 17. And

II. With a purpoſe of keeping our covenant, and performing the promiſes of new obedience, and true ſanctification, all the dayes of our life. For the worthy and faithfull receiver, who is aſſured that Chriſt died for him, and offered up himſelfe a ſacrifice for his ſinnes; cannot but rejoyce hereat, and breake forth in thankefulneſſe unto God for ſo ineſtimable a grace, and deſire and endeavour to live wholly unto his Chriſt who hath purchaſed him at ſo deare a rate.

Secondly, we muſt ſanctifie that day unto the Lord, whereon we have beene made partakers of this holy Communion: For it is the feſtivall of the Lord. If we communicate upon the Lords day, we muſt be very carefull to ſanctifie that day ſtrictly unto the Lord; but if upon a weeke day, then though we have no precept to equall it unto the Lords day, yet we muſt not prophane that day, as the manner of ſome is who make that day whereon they communicate, a day of exceſſe and ryot, and going from Alehouſe to Alehouſe. And thus much may ſuffice to have been ſpoken of this Sacrament in this place.

Verſ. 29 VERS. 29. But I ſay unto you, I will not drinke henceforth of this fruit of the vine, untill that day when I drinke it new with you in my Fathers Kingdome.

Object. The Vbiquitaries object this place for the Vbiquitie of Chriſt, arguing thus,

Chriſt ſaith, I will not drinke henceforth of this fruit of the Vine, untill that day when I drinke it new with you in my Fathers Kingdome.

But Chriſt often ate and dranke with his Apoſtles after his Reſurrection, and before viſibly he aſcended into heaven.

Therefore ſeeing he was in heaven before his viſible aſcenſion, it is evident that heaven is every where, and not limited or confined to any one place; and conſequently that Chriſt is not included in any determinate place, but filleth all places, and is every where.

Anſw. 1 Firſt, to the drift of the Objection I anſwer, that it is true, that CHRIST is every-where, in regard of his Deitie, but not of his Humanitie: but this pleaſeth not the Objecters, who contend for the Vbiquitie of Chriſts corporall preſence.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, I could anſwer with ſome of the Fathers, that it is true, that whereſoever CHRIST is, there is Heaven: but this muſt be underſtood figuratively not properly: that is, whereſoever Chriſt is there is joy, and comfort, and happineſſe; but this doth not overthrow a locall heaven, the Seate of glory, and the Throne of CHRIST, where hee dwels in regard of his Humanity, and where is the greateſt manifeſtation of the Majeſty and glory of GOD. But this pleaſeth not the Objecters neither, who ſtrive to evert this locall heaven.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, CHRIST in theſe words, Vntill I drinke it new with you, doth promiſe a communion and participation of glory and eternally felicity unto his Apoſtles with himſelfe. For although meate and drinke doe not properly ſuite and agree with the Kingdome of God, (where wee ſhall neither be ſubject to hunger nor thirſt) yet it is uſuall with the holy Ghoſt in Scripture, in a figurative phraſe of ſpeech, to expreſſe the participation, and communion of Spirituall graces, and Celeſtiall glory, and felicity, by corporall things. And hence our Saviour ſpeakes here of a new kinde of drinking (untill I drinke it new) to ſhew that the life which they ſhall have in heaven with him, ſhall not need to bee ſuſtained and conſerved by eating or drinking; but ſhall be an immortall and incorruptible life.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, it is falſe that theſe words of our Saviour (Vntill I drinke it new with you in my Fathers Kingdome) were fulfilled when hee ate and dranke with his Diſciples after his Reſurrection and before his viſible aſcenſion: For when hee was in a middle ſtate betweene a mortall and celeſtiall life, then the Kingdome of God was not made manifeſt; and therefore hee ſaith unto MARY, Touch me not, becauſe I am not as yet aſcended unto my Father; the meaning of which words is this, that the ſtate of his Reſurrection was not perfect, and in every degree compleate, and abſolute, untill he were ſeated at his Fathers right hand in the Kingdome of heaven.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, the Apoſtles were not as yet entred into the Kingdome of God, when they ate with CHRIST after his Reſurrection (they being ſtill in a mortall ſtate) And therefore this ſpeech (untill I drinke it new with you) was not fulfilled, when CHRIST ate and dranke with them after his Reſurrection.

Anſw. 6 Sixthly, Chriſt before his viſible Aſcenſion was not (in regard of his humanity) in heaven: but on earth, as ſhall elſewhere be ſhewed. And therefore (no withſtanding this Objection) this truth ſtands firme; That the name of Heaven doth declare a certaine region not ſeene or perceived by this viſible world, but concealed from it; into which Chriſt entring with his body, doth now ſit at the right hand of his Father: And conſequently that neither heaven, nor the humanity of Chriſt is every-where.

Anſw. 7 Seventhly, our Saviour in theſe words

[I will not henceforth drinke of the fruite of the vine untill I drinke it new with you in my Fathers Kingdome] doth import these two things, viz.

I. That henceforth he will not drinke of the fruit of the earthly vine: and hereby doth intimate that this shall be his last draught. For as to men ready to dye is given drinke, instead of a farewell; so CHRIST being now about (by the death of this corporall and earthly life) to be changed into an heavenly condition, by this draught would (as it were) bid his Disciples farewell.

II. He implies here, that he will drinke new wine with them in his Fathers Kingdome: Now this particular is two manner of wayes interpreted by Expositors, to wit,

First, it may be understood of his Resurrection, which was the beginning of the New Testament, and the Kingdome of the Father: And thus Chrysostome by the Kingdome of his Father understands his Resurrection; and by the new wine, which therein he will drinke with his Disciples, understands that corporall eating and drinking of our Saviour with his Apostles after his Resurrection, mentioned, Luke 24.43. For thence it is evident that he ate corporally, though not for any corporall necessity, but onely to confirme the certainty of his Resurrection. Indeed St. Luke in the place before cited mentioneth Christs eating, but not his drinking, but St. Peter Acts 10.40,41. saith, Him God raised up the third day, and shewed him openly; Not to all the people, but unto witnesses chosen before of God, even to us who did eate and drinke with him after he rose from the dead. Now by St. Peter it appeares, that Christ both ate and dranke with his Disciples after his Resurrection, but whether he dranke water or wine, or some other drinke that is not mentioned; and therefore it were a hard taske to prove that he dranke wine. But grant that this which he dranke was wine, and that this was the wine which in this verse he foretold that he would drinke with his Apostles, then we must understand it to be called New, because he dranke it after a singular new and unwonted manner; that is, not in shew or appearence onely, but truly and really, not with a phantasticall, but with a true body he both ate and dranke; although he were now changed into a celestiall immortall, and incorruptible estate, and was free from all corruptible conditions of body. And thus we see (if our Saviour speakes of his corporall drinking here) what is meant by Kingdome, what by wine, and what by new wine.

Secondly, these words of our Saviours mentioned in this verse, may be (and I conceive is rather to be) understood of life eternall, where many comming from the East and West shall sit downe and banquet with Christ, Luke 13.29. For by the Kingdome of his Father, is meant, that Kingdome which the Elect shall enjoy after this life in Heaven: and by his drinking of new wine with them, is not meant any earthly drinke (for there shall be no such in heaven) but some celestiall liquor, that is, no other thing, then that joy, delight, mirth and eternall consolation, which after the period of this miserable life, the faithfull shall injoy in the celestiall Kingdome of their heavenly Father, with their Lord Christ. And thus which way soever we interpret these words, they make nothing for the Vbiquity of the Body of Christ. 357

This verse serveth us as another Argument to confute the Popish Transsubstantiation, There remained wine still after the consecration and distribution amongst the Apostles: for Christ saith here, That he will drinke no more of this fruit of the vine. &c. Therefore there remaineth wine still in the Sacrament: and consequently no body or blood of Christ: For Wine and Blood cannot be both there corporally, and substantially, as the Papistes teach. Argum.

VERS. 30 And When they had sung an Hymne, they went out into the mount of Olives. Vers. 30

For the understanding of this verse observe that the Booke of the Psalmes was divided according to the time when they were sung. For

Some were sung every morning, as Psal. 22. at the morning Sacrifice. And

One was sung upon the Sabbath day, as Psal. 92. And

At the Passeover they sung from Psalm. 112. to verse 19. of Psalm. 118. And this was that Hymne, which CHRIST and his Apostles here sang.

VERS. 31. Then saith JESUS unto them; All ye shall be offended because of mee this night: for it is written; I will smite the Shepherd, and the sheepe of the flocke shall be scattered abroad. Vers. 31

How may we know, whether we are of Christs flocke, and the sheepe of his pasture, or not? Quest.

First, Stapleton (in John. 10.) giveth us divers true markes of Christs sheepe, which we distinguish thus, Answ. 1

I. Some of them are in the heart, and inward man; as for example, 1. In corde

First, sheepe must be simple, 2 Cor. 11. 3. that is, we must be

I. Obedient, without disputing, Psal. 80. 1. yea labouring to bring every rebellious thought unto the obedience of God, 2 Cor. 10. 5. And

II. Patient in all afflictions, tribulations, injuries, and the like, Matth. 10. 16. Luke 21. 19. Philip. 1. 28. And.

III. Innocent, and harmelesse, Matth. 5. 9. and 1 Peter. 2, 1.

Secondly, sheepe must be fearefull; that is, we must be

I. Fearefull of our enemies; sheepe will not stand to looke, or gaze upon the wolfe, but flee by and by; so we should shunne every appearance of evill, and the occasions of sinne, as we would eschew Sathan himselfe. And

II. Fearefull of our feet, and pathes, and affections, labouring to subdue them.

II. Some of the signes of the sheepe, are in the mouth, and toung; that is, we must be 2. In ore.

First, Vnivoci, of one toung, and speech, both in prosperity and adversity, giving thankes unto God in all estates and conditions; as Iob did, 1. 2. For sheepe have but one voyce alwayes. And 358 Secondly, Sapidi, men of seasoned tongues; as sheepe loves to eate in salt pastures, so should we have all our words seasoned with the salt of grace, and our speeches savouring of religion and sanctification, Marke 9. 50. Colos. 4, 6.

Secondly,

3. In vita. III. One marke of a sheepe is to be seene in the life thereof, that is, they are sociable, and will goe together: and so should wee love our brethren, because they are sheepe of one and the same folde, belonging unto one and the same Shepheard, Iohn, 13. 35.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the principall notes and signes of CHRISTS sheepe are these two; namely,

I. To renounce the world, and whatsoever is evill, whether of opinion, or Practise; and this is that which CHRIST meanes, when hee saith, That faithfull sheepe will not heare the voyce of Strangers, Iohn, 10. 4, 5. And

II. To heare and obey the voyce of CHRIST expressed, and laide downe in the Word, Iohn, 10. 4, 5.

Vers. 33 VERS. 33. Peter answered and said unto him; Though all men should bee offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended.

Quest. Whether is this Protestation of Peters to be condemned or commended?

Answ. It is to be condemned and blamed, because it argued a great Presumption in him, as appeares thus:

First, the thing whereof hee presumed (viz. to dye with CHRIST) was no small matter.

Secondly, hee was never tryed in this kind before, and consequently knew not his owne strength; and therefore, it argued a great deale of Presumption in him so rashly to promise the performance of so great a worke, the bitternesse whereof he never so much as tasted.

Thirdly, although Peter had formerly beene tryed in this kinde, and had acquitted himselfe manfully, yet hee could not here be excused of a singular inconsideration and presumption; because by this his protestation hee opposeth the words of CHRIST, which he had confirmed from the testimony of the Prophet, verse 31.

Fourthly, Peters presumption appeares also herein, that he preferre himselfe before all the other Apostles; yea, all the world: Though all men should forsake thee, yet I will never forsake thee.

Vers. 37, 38, 39. VERS. 37, 38, 39. And hee tooke with him Peter and the two Sonnes of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowfull and very heavy. Then saith hee unto them; My soule is exceeding sorrowfull unto death: tarry yee here and watch with me. And hee went a little further, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying; O my Father, if it be possible let this Cup passe from mee: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.

Sect. 1. §. 1. And he beganne to be sorrowfull, and very heavy.]

Quest. 1 What sorrow, heavinesse, and feare, was Christ subject unto?

First, there is a double sorrow, and heavinesse, namely

Answ. 1 I, Inordinate, which hinders reason; and this the Philosopher saith happens not to a wise, or constant man, much lesse therefore to Christ. The righteous saith Salomon sorroweth for nothing; that is, with that immoderate, and in ordinate sorrow which causeth death, 2 Cor. 7. 10.

II. Ordinate, good, vertuous, and naturall, which followes reason and excludes vanity.

Secondly, there is a double feare: namely

Answ. 2 I. Inordinate; this the righteous ordinarily is not subject unto, he being as bold as a lyon, fearing nothing, as the wise man saith.

II. There is a naturall feare, which is free from all blame.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Christ was onely subject to a naturall feare and sorrow, or, subject unto them as they are naturall affections and passions; or rather (according to Hierome) Propassiones appetitus sensitivi.

Quest. 2 Why did CHRIST assume these passions, or suffer himselfe to be subject unto them?

Answ. 1 First, to shew the truth of his humane nature.

Answ. 2 Secondly, for our consolation, that we might not be too much dejected, when we perceive in us some feare of death, seeing that Christ feared it. Carthus. in. pag. 213. b.

Sect. 2 §. 2. If it be possible, let this cup passe from me.]

It is observed by some of our Divines, that some phrases of Scripture have a contrary signification, as for example, the Prophet Ieremiah saith (Chapt. 23. 9,) I am like a drunken man whom the wine hath gone over; that is, whom the wine hath overcome; but here, let this cup passe over me; that is, Let it not touch me; in a contrary signification.

Quest. 1 How could Christ desire that this cup might not touch him?

Answ. If we consider Christs desire [Let this Cup passe] materially onely, according to Christs infirmity as he was man, then he wisheth that this Cup might not touch him; but when he considers this cup formally with all ꝑ circumstances, that he must drinke this Cup for to expiate the sinnes of men, and satisfie the wrath of God, then he cannot let this Cup passe.

In this prayer of Christs we may observe foure things, I will name the three first, and prosecute onely the last;

Obser. 1 First, CHRIST here prayeth for a thing, in respect of Gods decree not possible, that the Cup might passe from him: and therefor afterward he saith, verse. 42. If this Cup cannot passe away. &c.

Obser. 2 Secondly, Christ here prayeth for that which was not granted, viz. that the Cup of death and sorrow prepared for him might passe.

Obser. 3 Thirdly, Christ here prayeth in his humane and naturall desire somewhat diversely from Gods will, yet with submission of his will unto the will of God. Now what else could cause Christ in this manner to pray against his Cup and crosse, but the exceeding feare and feeling of Gods heavie wrath, and and irefull indignation, wherewith he was so amazed at the first, and astonished, that in his humane weakenesse he was carryed [his Divinity now hiding and repressing it selfe] to desire the passing of that cup, which he was to drinke off; for the Redemption of mankind. If the Reader desire to see how this is opposed by Feverdentius, and his exceptions fully answered, I referre him to Dr. W. Synops. fol. 1096.

Obser. 4 Fourthly, from this example of Christ we may learne, that in praying it is lawfull to desire those things which may seeme to be divers from the will of God. Thus Moses often prayed for Israel; and Christ here for a removall of this Cup.

Quest. 2 How doth it appeare that we may warrantably pray for those things, which seeme divers from Gods revealed will?

Answ. The truth hereof will appeare as cleare as the Sunne to him who shall seriously consider and duly marke these particulars: to wit,

First, we know not what Gods secret will is; and therefore we may pray against his revealed. This we prove from David thus, God by his Prophet Nathan had positively said, The child shall dye, 2 Sam. 12. And yet David prayed for the childs life, and is condemned by none for thus praying, because he knew not what the Lords secret will was.

Secondly, if it were not lawfull to pray for those things which seeme divers from the revealed will of God, then it were not lawfull to pray against afflictions, or for the removall of evils; [for these are the operations of God, and testimonies of his revealed will] but this is lawfull, as is plaine from Iames. 5. 13. and Psal. 50. 15

Thirdly, Gods resolution is often hypotheticall, or conditionall; as is evident from Ezech. 3. 17, 21. and Amos. 4. 12. And therefore we may lawfully pray for those things which seeme divers from the revealed will of God.

Fourthly, God oftentimes seemes to will those things, which indeed he willeth not, onely to prove us, as is evident from Matthew. 15. 23, 24, 26. Luke 24. 28. Exod. 32. 10. Numb. 14. 10. And therefore we may lawfully pray for those things which seeme to be different from GODS will.

Fifthly, the Lord sometimes seriously changeth his comminations, for our prayers, as appeares from Gen. 19. 21. Esa. 38. 2, 5. Ionah. 3. 10.

Quest. 3 Is there any mutation or change in God, is not this plainly contradicted by Scripture? 1 Sam. 15. 29. Iam. 1. 17.

Answ. It is most true, that in the true internall will of God there is no mutation and change but we speake not of this, but of the externall revelations, promises, and threatnings of God, which are conditionall, and consequently subject to mutation, according to the accomplishment, or non-accomplishment of the conditions. Deus non mutat voluntatem, Sed vult mutationem. Greg.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Not as I will, but as thou wilt.]

CHRIST our blessed Saviour in subjecting his will to the will of God, may occasion this Quere.

Quest. 1 To whom is the Will of man subject?

The Will of man is subject to three superiours, namely 359

First, it is subject to reason. And Answ.

Secondly, it is subject to the Magistrate. And Thirdly, and above all it is subject unto God. And therefore wicked wilfull men are justly punished by all these three; And

I. They are punished by the sting of conscience, because they transgressed against reason. And

II. They are punished by the Magistrate, because they disobeyed him. And

III. They shall be punished by God, who will give them over to the tortments of hell: And therefore, we had need [with our blessed Saviour] submit and subject our wils to the will of God. CHRIST in thus praying [Not as I will Father, as thou wilt] would teach us;

That it is much better for us to give our selves unto the Lord to be directed by him, then to draw him to our desires; that is, if the Lord from heaven should say unto us, when we are in any want, necessity, or distresse, choose whether I shall doe unto you, as seemes best unto my selfe, or as you your selves would, and I will doe it; we should [with our Saviour in the text] say, Father not as we would, but as thou wilt, and as seemes best in thy owne eyes, Reade for this purpose, Matth. 6. 10. Luke 1. 38. and 1 Peter 4. 19. Obser.

Why must we rather submit our selves to the will of our God, then draw him to our desires, Or, why must we rather desire that the Lords will may be fulfilled in us, then our owne wils and desires satisfied? Quest. 2

First, because God is infinite in wisedome, but we are fooles; neither knowing Answ. 1

I. What will come hereafter, or what a night, or the time to come may bring forth; whereas the Lord calleth those things which are not, as though they were, knowing as perfectly what will be hereafter, as what is now. Neither

II Doe we know, what is profitable for us for the present; we often praying for those things which are hurtfull for us, Matthew. 7. 9. Iames 4. 3. But the Lord knowes what is good, and what is evill for us: And therefore great reason there is, that we should submit our desires and wils to the will and good pleasure of our GOD, And

Secondly, because we are weake in our judgements, and of small discretion; therefore it is best for us to give our selves unto the Lord to be directed by him. As infants and idiotes would exchange a treasure for a toye; so we naturally preferre the worst things most, and most earnestly desire that which is lesse worth desiring, and coveting more for that which seemes good in shew, then that which is good indeed; like our great Grandfather, who solde the earthly parradise for an apple. Answ. 2

Thirdly, because naturally we savour too much of earthly things; therefore we ought to submit our wils to the will of God, who is wholly divine and heavenly. And Answ. 3

Fourthly, because we are [for the most part] transported by our passions, and led away with our affections; as for example. Answ. 4

I. We

360

I. We are often seduced by Revenge, ready to call for fire from heaven, when we are injured.

II. We are sometimes led away with carnall love, as Abraham was to Ismael, and Samuel to Saul, 1 Samuel 16. 1. Thus Ieremiah was prohibited to mourne for the people, Ierem. 7. 16. and yet notwithstandin g this prohibition he weepes, Chap. 9, 1.

III. We are sometimes transported too farre with zeale towards our brethren and friends; as we see in Ioshua, Numb. 11. 27. and in Iohns Disciples, Mark. 9. 38. Iohn. 3. 26. But the Lord

First, is infinite in wisedome, and knowes all things. And Secondly, is infinite in power, and can doe all things. And Thirdly, is infinite in love, and cares for his children. And Fourthly, is infinite in purity, contemning earthly things. And Fifthly, is infinite in prudence and judgement, and cannot be mislead, or seduced by affection. And therefore great reason there is, that we should submit our wils to the will of God, rather then draw God to our desires.

Quest. 3 What is here required of us:

Answ. 1 First, we must beg nothing peremptorily, but alwayes pray with this submissive limitation, Father not as I will, but as thou wilt, 2 Chron. 20. 12. Romans. 1. 10. Hebr. 13. 21.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we must desire nothing immoderately but moderate our most holy affections; as for example.

I. We must be moderate in our desire of death, and corporall dissolution; not like Elias, 1 Kjng. 19. 4. Although with St. Paul we must desire to be dissolved (Philip, 1. 23.) yet this desire must be accompanied with a patient waiting, untill the Lord opens the prison dores.

II. We must be moderate in our mourning and lamentation for sinne; that is, although it be a horrible thing for any to be without a true sight and sense of their sinnes, yet we must take heed, that neither the sight nor sense of them, drive us to despaire: we must feele our sinnes to be a burden unto us, yet we must not sinke under it, but patiently brooke it, as a corrosive and smarting salve, Iob. 7. 20, 21, and 13, 15.

III. We must be moderate in our desire to be freed from some temptation that lyes upon us; that is, we must warre against it undauntedly, and indefatigably, as Iacob wrastled all night with the Angell, but yet we must be patient untill the Lord please to remove it.

IV. We must be moderate in our zeale to Gods glory, not letting it boyle over, or runne beyond his bounds, Psalm. 74. 10.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, in all things we must commit our selves to the good will, and pleasure of our good God.

Quest. 4 How manifold is the will of God?

Answ. Two-fold, namely Revealed, and Concealed; or, secret, and disclosed.

First, sometimes the will of God is Revealed, that is, he shewes us what his will is; and here patience is required of us, 2 Sam. 12. 20. Iob. 1. 21. Iohn. 18. 11. Wherefore two sorts of people are blame-worthy, to wit,

I. Those who submit to the will of God with a distinction; thus many will say, I am content, but I had rather that the Lord had done thus or thus. But this we must take heed of, and learne absolutely to submit our selves to the Lords will, not thinking our selves wiser then the Lord.

II. Those who submit to the will of God, with murmuring, which we call patience perforce; they seeme to be contented, because they cannot helpe it, but if they could they would not be so patient. But we must learne in all things to give thankes, 1 Thessal. 5. 18.

Secondly, sometimes the will of God is Concealed and unknowne: now here we must deny our owne wisedome, and will, and choyce, committing our wayes unto the Lord, 2 Sam. 15. 26. and 1 Pet. 5. 7.

Quest. 5 How must we commend our wayes unto God?

Answ. 1 First, some for answer hereunto distinguish betweene Temporall things [which are to be neglected] and spirituall things, which are to be desired, and earnestly to be endeavoured for.

Answ. 2 Secondly, but the true distinction is in the manner of our care and endeavour. Here observe,

I. Some seeke for temporall and spirituall things negligently, and supinely; but this is to tempt Gods providence; and therefore we must neither be careless and sluggish in our honest callings & vocations, nor in the exercises of Religion and meanes of grace.

II. Some seeke for temporall and spirituall things industriously; and these the Lord crownes.

Here observe againe what God forbids, and what he commands:

First, GOD prohibits these three things; namely,

I. The use of wicked meanes; we must not by indirect and evill courses labour to enrich our selves, 2 Chron. 15. 7. And

II. Care; we must not be solicitously carefull for the things of this life, Matth. 6. And

III. Hope in the meanes in themselves; for although we must use the meanes which God hath apponited [because otherwise we tempt his providence] yet we must not trust in the meanes, or to the meanes; for that is to distrust his providence.

Secondly, the Lord forbids not, but rather commands, these three things; viz,

I. The use of the meanes. And

II. A desire of the end, and prayer unto him, to blesse the meanes for the obtaining of the wished end. And

III. Labour, and industry, 2 King. 13. 19. that is, we must use the meanes for the obtaining both of temporall and spirituall things; and wee must desire, that God would make them effectuall meanes, that by spirituall exercises our inward man may grow up in grace, and by corporall exercises and imployments, our estate may be bettered; for it is lawfull to pray to God for a blessing upon our labours, and to prosper the worke of our hands; and lastly, we must be industrious both in our temporall vocations, and in our spirituall actions and performances. Thus I conceive, that in these particulars spirituall and temporall things differ not, not, but onely in degree; For

First, as we muſt uſe the meanes for the obtaining of ſpirituall graces: ſo alſo for the procuring of temporall bleſſings. And

Secondly, as we muſt deſire a bleſſing from God upon the uſe of ſpirituall meanes, for the obtaining of ſpirituall grace; ſo alſo upon temporall meanes the procuring of temporall bleſſings. And

Thirdly, as we muſt be induſtrious in the uſe of ſpirituall exerciſes, for the obtaining of thoſe graces which belong unto the hidden man of the heart; ſo alſo in our honeſt vocations for the procuring of thoſe temporall things which concerne our being or well being, in regard of our outward lives, or temporall eſtates. Onely wee muſt more earneſtly deſire, and more induſtriouſly endeavour, for Spirituall then Temporall things; as is plaine from Matth. 6. 33. Hebr. 12. 4.

Verſ. 45 VERS. 45. Then commeth he to his Diſciples, and ſaith unto them; Sleepe on now, and take your reſt.

Queſt. What doth our Saviour meane by theſe words, Sleepe on now, and take your reſt,

Anſw. Theſe words may be underſtood two manner of wayes; to wit,

First, Per modum permiſſionis, by way of permiſſion; as though he gave them leave to ſleepe a little, And

Secondly, Per modum exprobrationis, by way of reproofe, as if he would ſay, Is it now time to ſleepe, when my taking and apprehenſion is at hand? And this ſenſe accords beſt with the following words, The houre is at hand, and the Sonne of man is betrayed into the hands of ſinners, verſe. 45.

Verſ. 48. VERS. 48. Now he that betrayed him, gave them a ſigne, ſaying; whomſoever I ſhall kiſſe, that ſame is he, hold him faſt.

Queſt. Why did Iudas give them this ſigne, or, whence was it that he feared they would erre in the Perſon of CHRIST, and apprehend ſome other in his ſtead, ſeeing he was ſo well knowne?

Anſw. 1 First, ſome ſay, becauſe Iames the younger was moſt like unto CHRIST in the lineaments of the body; and therefore leſt they ſhould miſtake Chriſt, and take Iames for him, Iudas (who knew them both perfectly) gave this treacherous kiſſe unto his Maſter;

Anſw. 2 Secondly, when they came to apprehend Chriſt, it was night; now although they had lights, and torches, yet they could not ſo clearely ſee as in the day time; and therefore that they might take the right perſon, Iudas gave this ſigne.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, others ſay, this was done, becauſe Iudas thought that CHRIST would hide himſelfe, and get out of the way, when he ſaw that he was betrayed; and therefore he ſaith, whomſoever I ſhall kiſſe, that ſame is he, hold him faſt: as if hee would ſay, when you ſee me kiſſe one, know that it is he whom ye ſeeke, and whom you are ſent to apprehend; and therefore as ſoone as the token is given, take him, and hold him faſt, leſt he ſlip out of your hands, as often he hath eſcaped out of the hands of the Iewes. 361

VERS. 49. And forthwith he came to JESUS and ſaid; Haile Rabbi, and kiſſed him. Verſ. 49

§. 1. Haile Rabbi.] Sect. 1.

It is moſt evident [although it be queſtioned by ſome] that every Rabbi in the dayes of our Saviour had Diſciples, and that his owne Diſciples, and other well-wiſhers ſtiled him by the name of Rabbi: for Iohns Diſciples ſaluted Iohn by the name of Rabbi, Iohn. 3. 26. And CHRIST alſo by the ſame name or title, Iohn. 1. 31. And Iudas his Maſter, God ſave thee Rabbi.

§. 2. And kiſſed him.] Sect. 2.

Queſt. Why did CHRIST permit himſelfe to be kiſſed and ſaluted by a traytor?

Anſw. 1 First, ſome ſay, he ſuffers it, that hereby he may provoke Iudas to repentance, and love. Carthuſ. ſ.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, he permits it, for our example, to teach us patience and meekenеſſe, and that we ſhould not turne our faces from our enemies. And Anſw. 3 Thirdly, to teach us not to ſuſpect untill we have true and evident grounds: Iudas was a publike Diſciple, but a private hypocrite, and traytor; and therefore CHRIST will not ſuſpect him, untill he have openly ſhewed himſelfe what he is.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, CHRIST came into the world cloathed with our nature, for this end to dye for us, and by death to ranſome and redeeme us; and therefore he would neither decline his apprehenſion, nor his death, that we thereby might ſee, how willingly by his death he purchaſed our ſalvation.

VERS. 51, 52, 53. And behold one of them which were with JESUS, ſtretched out his hand, and drew his Sword, and ſtroke a ſervant of the high Prieſts, and ſmote off his eare. Then ſaid JESUS unto him; Put up againe thy ſword into his place; for all they that take the ſword ſhall periſh with the ſword. Thinkeſt thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he ſhall preſently give me more then twelve legions of Angels? Verſ. 51, 52, 53.

§. 1. And behold one of them ſtretched out his hand &c.] Sect. 1.

The Diſciples ſeeing Chriſt their Maſter apprehended, aske him, if they ſhall ſmite with the ſword?

But Peter not ſtaying for an anſwer, drawes forth his ſword, and ſmites off Malchus his eare: Which fact his Maſter doth not approve off, but reproves commanding him to put up his ſword into his ſheath.

Queſt. Why would not Chriſt permit his Diſciples to defend him Vi & armis, with dint of ſword?

Anſw. 1 First, becauſe all they which uſe the ſword without a calling to uſe it, ſhall periſh by it, verſe. 52.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, becauſe he needed not the helpe and protection of men, verſe. 53.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, becauſe it was neceſſary that he ſhould ſuffer, according to the decree of his Father. ver. 54.

Fourthly,

362

Fourthly, becauſe the Scriptures could not otherwiſe have beene fulfilled, then by the death, and blood-ſhed of Chriſt.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Put up thy ſword into his place.]

If the ſtudious Reader would ſee this point handled, viz, That it is not lawfull for a private man to murder an offender; and in what caſes the Schoole-men have allowed it, and in what caſes not; let him reade Antonin. ſum. part. 2. tit. 7. Cap. 8, §. 2. If the vulgar reader would be ſatisfied in the point, I referre him to Dr. Mayer upon Matth. 26. 52. pag. 313, 314.

Sect. 3. §. 3. Cannot I now pray unto my Father, and he would give me twelve legions of Angels &c.]

If the Reader would know the derivation of this word Legion, and how many ſouldiers it contained; let him reade Sylloge vocum exotic. pag. 174, 175. If the Reader ſhall obſerve ſome difference amongſt the Evangeliſts concerning the place where Chriſt was judged, or the time when he was judged; and deſire to ſee how they may be reconciled, I referre him to Pareus. ſ. Pag. 879, 880. and Dr. Mayer. ſ. pag 314, 315.

Verſ. 60. 61. VERS. 60, 61. At the laſt came two falſe witneſſes, and ſaid, this fellow ſaid, I am able to deſtroy the temple of God, and to build it in three dayes.

Queſt. Why doth St. Matthew call theſe two falſe witneſſes, ſeeing our Saviour ſpake ſome ſuch thing as they ſaid? Iohn. 2.

Anſw. They are called falſe witneſſes, becauſe they changed both CHRISTS words and meaning: for Iohn. 2. 19. he ſaith, Deſtroy ye this body, and within three dayes I will raiſe it up againe; but they ſay, This fellow ſaid, I am able to deſtroy this temple made with hands &c. See Muſcul. ſ. pag. 574. b.

Verſ. 63. VERS. 63. But IESUS held his peace.

Queſt. Why did our bleſſed Saviour hold his peace, and not anſwer for himſelfe?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, becauſe it was to no purpoſe to anſwer, he fore-ſeeing and knowing that whatſoever hee ſhould anſwer they would calumniate, and pervert and carpe at, yea condemne him notwithſtanding

Anſw. 2. Secondly, becauſe the accuſations which were brought againſt him were frivolous, and idle, and not worthy an anſwer.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, becauſe the high-Prieſt who ſate in judgement was unworthy [by reaſon of his hypocriſie] of any anſwer or reply from Chriſt. Reade Muſcul. Pag. 576. a. b.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, becauſe hereby he would teach us meekeneſſe and patience in injuries, Carthuſ. ſ.

Verſ. 68. VERS. 68. Propheſie unto us thou CHRIST, who is he that ſmote thee.

It is not unworthy obſervation, how maliciouſly the Iewes ſet themſelves againſt the offices of CHRIST, who was anointed King, Prieſt, and Prophet: For Firſt, they mocke the Kingly office of Chriſt, Matthew. 27. 19. when they put a crowne of thornes upon his head for a Crowne; and a reed into his hand for a Scepter.

Secondly, they mocke the Prieſtly office, when they ſaid, He ſaved others, let him now ſave himſelfe, Matth. 27. 40.

Thirdly, they mocke his Propheticall office in theſe words, Propheſie unto us thou Chriſt, &c.

Verſ. 75. VERS. 75. And Peter remembred the words of IESUS, which ſaid unto him, Before the cocke crow, thou ſhalt deny me thrice. And he went out and wept bitterly.

Sect. 1. §. 1. And Peter remembred the words of IESUS.]

Queſt. How many things are required unto true repentance, or, of the truely penitent?

Anſw. Three things, as we may gather from this verſe; namely

Firſt, they muſt remember the Lord, whom they have offended: for as the forgetfulneſſe of God opens the dore of the heart unto ſinne, ſo the remembrance of him opens the dore unto repentance. And therefore this our Evangeliſt expreſſing Peters repentance mentioneth his remembring of CHRISTS words.

Secondly, they muſt mourne and greeve, and repent, that they have offended ſo good and gracious a God: like Peter who weepes, and that bitterly.

Thirdly, they muſt forſake the ſociety of the wicked, who were the occaſion of their ſinne: and like Peter, goe forth.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And wept bitterly.]

St. Ambroſe, upon theſe words, is cleere againſt Popiſh ſatisfaction thus, Lachrymas Petri lego, ſatisfactionem non lego. I reade of Peters Penitent teares, but not of his ſatisfaction.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verſ. 3. 4. VERS. 3, 4. Then Iudas which had betrayed him, when he ſaw that he was condemned, repented himſelfe, and brought againe the thirty peeces of ſilver to the chiefe Prieſts and Elders, ſaying; I have ſinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent bloud. And they ſaid, what is that to us, ſee thou to it.

Sect. 1. §. 1. Then Iudas &c.]

Before I treat particularly of the words in the Text, I will ſpeake a word or two in generall, and that,

Firſt, of Iudas, who was

I. An Apoſtle, and endued with a miraculous

culous Faith. And

II. A Devill from the beginning, and an egregious sinner. And

III. A covetous person, and hence for money became a Trayter. And

IV. A contemner of instruction, for he was often admonished.

Secondly, of the History; where two questions come to be considered of; to wit,

I. Why this History was not suppressed?

II. For what end it is described by the Evangelist? Namely to shew the anger of God.

First, against murderers. And Secondly, against traytors. Of all these briefly.

First, this traytor Iudas was an Apostle, one of the twelve, and not onely a Disciple; greater (in regard of his place and office) then Nathaniel, Nichodemus, or Ioseph of Arimathea; and yet he was but a trayter; whence we may learne two things; viz.

I. That a man may be eminent in place, and gifts, and yet fall away: yea rare and singular in grace, and yet fall into sinne; as we see in Lucifer, Adam, Sampson, Salomon, David, Hezekiah, Asa, and Peter. And therefore the best must be carefull to subdue their affections; and to watch over their actions, 1 Corinth. 9. 27.

II. That honour makes men forgetfull of themselves; Hiezekiahs heart was exalted, and Nabuchadnezzar, Haman, and Saul waxed proud when they were promoted unto honour. Againe Iudas wrought miracles and cast out Devils; for Christ gave power unto his Apostles to cast them out, Matth. 10. 1. and Iudas is particularly named as well as the rest, verse 4. And therefore he had that power.

Secondly, Iudas the trayter was evill from the beginning, yea a Devill incarnate, and a Sonne of perdition; and yet Christ permits him, and suffers him to injoy his Apostleship. To teach us, That Christ suffers wicked men, even unto the harvest, Matth. 13. 29.

Thirdly, Iudas was covetous and carried the bagge, hiding and cloaking his avarice, under a pretended love unto the poore. Whence we learn, That covetousnesse is a great sinne, yea the root of evils; and covetous men are the brethren of Iudas, and the children of the Devill. Here observe foure things; to wit,

I. As Iudas desired that all might come into his bagge, and murmured because the precious Oyntment was not sold (Marke 14. 3. and Iohn 12. 3.) So covetous men cannot endure that any thing should fall besides them, but labour to engrosse all into their owne hands and power.

II. As Iudas thought all too much which was bestowed upon Christ (as appeares by the oyntment powred upon his head) so covetous men thinke every thing too much which is given to the Church, or Churchmen, or any good uses.

III. As Iudas covered his covetousnesse with a pretence of love to the poore: so many covetous projecters and Monopolists have, and still in many places do, pretend a gaine to the Common-wealth, when indeed viper-like (by their Monopolies and projects) they eate out the bowels of the Common-wealth, onely to inrich themselves.

IV. As Iudas betrayed his owne Master, when it came to this, we will give thee to doe it thirty pieces of silver: so the covetous man will sell Christ, and his owne soule for money, as the Gergesens did.

How doe covetous men sell Christ? Quest. 2

First, when they despise Religion, and stop the mouth of conscience, and extinguish the good motions of the Spirit, they then sell Christ. Answ. 1

Secondly, when they sell their brethren by destroying, oppressing, supplanting, and deceiving of them, then they sell Christ. Answ. 2

Thirdly, when they sell charity, the bond of peace and breake forth into suites, dissensions, debate, ranker, hatred, and the like, they then sell Christ. Answ. 3

Fourthly, when they sell heaven, not hungring after it, or labouring for it at all, then they sell Christ, the Lord of heaven. And therfore we should beware of covetousnesse.

Fourthly, this traytor Iudas was a contemner of counsell and instruction; for he was often admonished; as appears by these speches, One of you shall betray me, and he to whom I give the sop, the same shall betray me; and thou hast said it; and woe be unto him by whom the Sonne of man is betrayed. Whence two things may be noted; to wit,

I. That God cals an and admonishes before he judgeth and punisheth, Matth. 22. 3, 4, 7.

II. That many will not be fore-armed, though they have been forewarned, not be advised, though they have beene admonished: as we may see in Pharaoh, Cain, the Iewes, Balthazar, Daniel 5. 30. Hierusalem, Matth. 23. 37.

Fifthly, we have now to consider of the history, wherein two questions are considerable, viz.

Why is not this whole History of Iudas betraying of his Master wholly suppressed, seeing it was so horrid, desperate, and damnable a fact, at least, why was not his name concealed, as Herostratus his name was by edict, when he had fired that famous Temple of Diana: and as his name is, who first invented Gunpowder? Why doth St. Matth. mention it, seeing the holy Ghost speaking of such monstrous wicked men, saith, Their names shall be razed out of Israel? Quest. 3

First, fame is good, if it be a good fame, otherwise not; for an evill fame is but infamy, and an evill name is a lasting disgrace, as we see by the names of Cain, Ahab, Achitophel, Iezabel, Doeg, Iulian the Apostate, and divers others. Hence we say in a Proverbe, He gave him a Iudas kisse, and those who are perfidious we call them Iudasses, or Iewes. And thus the Lord would have this history written, for the greater infamy and disgrace of this graceless traytor. Answ. 1

Secondly, the Lord would not have this History concealed, because Christs innocency, and unworthy death is much cleared hereby; he being acquitted by the mouth of the traytor himselfe, in this verse. Answ. 2

Sixthly, why, or for what end is this History so clearely described? Quest. 4

I. To shew us the fruits and effects of Covetousnesse, that so we might beware of avarice it selfe. The onely cause that we read of) which moved Answ. 1

364 Iudas to betray his Master was covetousnes: & therefore we should avoid it with all our power, through liberality some have entertained Angels into their houses, yea CHRIST himselfe; but through covetousnesse some have expulsed CHRIST out of their coasts (as the Gergesines) and some have sold Christ unto death, as Iudas here did. Wherefore let the horriblenesse of the fruit make us abhorre the tree.

Answ. 2 II. This History was written to shew us Gods anger against Murderers, such as Iudas was, he being a maine a better in the death of CHRIST. Hence we may learne, Observ. That murder (as a great evill) is to be avoided and shunned.

Quest. 5 Why must we so carefully beware; lest we fall into this sinne of murder?

Answ. 1 First, because it is contrary to God; for he gives life, and therefore he will not have the life of creatures to be taken away, but murderers take away life; whence Sathan is called a murderer and Lyar, Iohn 8. 44.

Answ. 2 Secondly, because life is the best temporall gift which God gives unto man, and therefore the Devill saith, Skin for skin, and all that a man hath he will give for his life. Now a murderer robs him whom he murders of this most precious temporall blessing.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, we had need carefully to avoid this sinne, because God will not have it pardoned, or suffer it to be forgiven. Read Exod 21, 22. and Deuter. 19. 13. Numb. 35. 31. Hence Iacob inveighes against, yea curses his Sonnes cruelty and murder, although it was done for to revenge that great indignity which was offered unto their Sister Dinah, Genes. 49. 7.

Answ. 3 III. This History was written to shew us Gods anger against Traitors; for we read but of two that hanged themselves, and they were both traitors, Achitophel and Iudas. And therefore Salomon saith, I hate a Traitor.

Having handled some generals concerning this history, it remaines now that we should treat particularly of these two verses.

Quest. 6 How many things are observable in these two verses?

Answ. These two namely,

First, Iudas his repentance, wherein we have three particulars observable, to wit,

I. The occasion thereof, viz. when he saw that Christ was condemned. §. 2.

II. The action; which is twofold, to wit,

First, he repented him of what he had done, §. 3.

Secondly, he made restitution of the money backe againe. §. 4.

III. His confession, which is twofold; namely,

First he confesseth his owne sinne. §. 5.

Secondly, he confesseth Christs innocency. §. 6.

Secondly, the Priests answer unto him; wherein two things are observable; viz.

I. Their excuse of themselves; What is that to us? §. 7.

II. Their laying the blame upon him. See thou to it. §. 8.

Sect. 2. §. 2. When he saw that Christ was condemned.]

What is meant here by Seeing? Quest. 1

First, some by Videre to see, understand Intelligo Answ. 1 to perceive or understand; as if the meaning of our Evangelist were, when he understood that Christ was condemned to death, &c. according to those phrases, Loquere ut videam, speake so that I may understand, and know what thou saiest: and Christ saw their hearts, that is, knew the thoughts of their hearts; as if Iudas before now knew not that Christ should dye, or that his death was intended or aimed at, by the Pharisees. But this cannot be thus; For

1. Christ had plainly foretold his death; The Sonne of man must be betrayed into the hands of sinfull men, and crucified, and had told Iudas that it should be by him,

II. The Scripture saith plainly; the Scribes and Pharisees sought to slay Christ; and Iudas hereupon askes, what will ye give me and I will betray him unto you (Matth. 26. 15.) And therefore he could not be ignorant that his life was aimed at.

III. If he were not guilty of the death of Christ, then why was his punishment so great?

Secondly, to See, is to consider, or intently looke Answ. 2 into the thing done; as if before, he had not sufficiently foreseene, the nature of the fact, the infamy that would follow the doer thereof, the end of the fact, and the wrath of God against him that did it, these things he had not observed, nor taken into his consideration before, but now he saw them most clearely, when the fact was done. Whence two things may be observed; to wit,

First, that for the most part, men sinne inconsiderately, never considering what they do, till the deed be done; and then like fooles say, Non putaram, I did not thinke it.

Secondly, that the conscience is quicker sighted when the sinne is committed then it was before: for although before sinne, we see not the nature, fruit, or end of it; yet after sinne we do, Rom. 6. 21.

§. 3. Hee repented.] Sect. 3.

What arguments, or signes, or shewes of repen- Quest. 1
tance, may a Reprobate have?

The Reprobate may have a certaine repentance Answ.
in him of sinne; whereby,

First, he doth acknowledge his sinne. And Secondly, is prickt with a feeling of Gods wrath for sinne. And Thirdly, is grieved for the punishment of sinne. And Fourthly, doth confesse and acknowledge his sinne. And Fifthly, acknowledgeth God to be just in the punishing of sinne. And Sixthly, desireth to be saved. And

Seventhly, promiseth repentance in his misery and affliction in these words, I will sinne no more. And all these it may be were in Iudas.

Is not repentance good, hath not the Lord ex- Quest. 2 horted all unto repentance, and promised pardon to every penitent person, Ezech. 18. Matth. 3. Acts 3. 19. Why then is Iudas his repentance named and himselfe not pardoned?

First, as there is a good and true repentance, so Answ. 1 there is a bad and false, and therefore although some repentance be good, yet all is not.

Secondly

Answ. 2 Secondly, repentance is divided into two parts; namely, humiliation and conversion, ; mortification, and vivification.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the repentance here spoken of signifies onely humiliation.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, we divide humiliation; either

I. According to the motion thereof. Or

II. According to the moving cause thereof. Or

III. According to the effect thereof.

First, humiliation is divided according to the motion thereof; thus,

I. There is a solitary or sole humiliation, when sinners are onely dejected and cast downe by reason of their sinnes.

II. There is a humiliation conjoyned with comfort, and a certaine erection of the Spirits to some joy.

Quest. 3 Hath this humiliation alwayes place in the righteous, or have the godly alwayes some joy and comfort commixed with their humiliation?

Answ. No, for often they are destitute of all hope and comfort for a long time, as Psalm. 32. 6.

Quest. 4 Doe the godly then despaire when they are destitute of this hope and comfort?

Answ. There is a double desperation; namely,

First, temporall, and this is incident to the righteous; as appeares by Iob. 3. and David, Psal. 32. and 80.

Secondly, finall; and this the faithfull never fall into.

Que. 5 What is required of the righteous in their humiliation, or when their consciences accuse them?

Answ. They must inquire and see what manner of conscience it is; for there is a double conscience, viz.

First, of sinne; and this is good, yea we should labour to be sensible of our sinnes, and wish that our consciences would check us for sinne. And

Secondly, of the anger of God for sinne; now the mouth of this conscience they must labour to stop, and not give way to this desperate feare, that God loves them not, but hates them, and is wrathfully displeased at them: For in their greatest humiliation they should say with Iob, Though the Lord kill me yet will I put my trust in him.

Object. If the conscience should urge the Law, and anger of God against the transgressors thereof; they Answ. must thereunto oppose, the mercies of God, the merits of Christ, the promises of the Gospell, and that new covenant which hath beene contracted and confirmed betweene God and them.

Object. If this conscience should yet urge, that these things belong not unto them, they being carnall, and mundane; they must then give a double answer, viz.

Answ. 1 I. If they have any signes of the truth of their repentance, and regeneration, they must expresse them. They must see if they have

First, the testimony of the Spirit within, witnessing unto their Spirits, that they are the Children of God. And

Secondly, if they be changed from what they were before, hating their former beloved sinnes, and loving holinesse and vertue formerly not beloved. And Thirdly, if they love God, and be beloved of him, and assisted and guided by the holy Spirit in the paths of piety. For these signes will deceive none; and, therefore blessed are all they who can by these comfort themselves in the houre of temptation.

Answ. 2 II. If they cannot find these things in themselves, they must then run unto the Sacrament with these promises. Those things which I have not as yet done, I will now doe without any more delay; yea I will now (while it is said to day) convert and turne unto the Lord, and then they may be safe, because the Lord hath said, That at what time soever a sinner doth repent he shall find mercy, Ezech. 18. and a Father hath said, That true repentance comes never too late.

Secondly, humiliation is divided according to the cause moving it: For

I. There is a humiliation which ariseth onely from the horrour of Gods judgement, and vengeance. And

II. There is a humiliation, which ariseth from the love of vertue, and the hatred of sinne as sinne, and from the hope of reward. But of this we have treated heretofore.

Thirdly, humiliation is divided according to the effects thereof. For

I. There is a humiliation which is without any good fruit or effect. And

II. There is a humiliation which worketh true repentance, and converted unto God. Whence note, l. Ezech. 18. 21. Zach. 1. 3. and Acts 3. 19.

First, that the righteous onely have this true humiliation, which is called conversion. (l) And

Secondly, that the wicked may have the false humiliation; as we see in Judas.

Sect. 4 §. 4. And he brought againe the thirty pieces of silver to the chiefe Priests and Elders.]

In this Section two things are considerable; to wit,

I. The thing brought backe; viz. the thirty pieces of silver. And

II. The action of bringing backe; Reduxit, he brought againe.

First, the thing brought backe was the silver peeces.

Quest. 1 What was meant by a silver peece?

Answ. 1 First, it hath no certaine signification, but the Hebrewes take it for a shekel, as we may see, Zach. 11. 12.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Jewes had a double shekel; namely,

I. The shekel of the Sanctuary, which was worth foure drachma's. And

II. The vulgar or common shekel, which was worth two drachma's.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, it is hard to determine or say certainly, how much their drachmas or penies was in our money; for some say that a peny was worth sixe Drachmas, and some say that a Drachma was almost two pence.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, in our money some say that the Romane peny was worth 4^{d}. or 6^{d}. as the marginall note saith, or but 3 pence as the marginall notes upon Matth. 18. 28.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, it may suffice us to know, that it was but a vile and base price for the life of a man, Zach. 11. 13.

366

Secondly, we have here his action of bringing backe, where we see that he doth not bring a part of the money backe, as did Sapphira, or Cain, who offered of the worst of his fruits, but he brings backe all, even every peny that he received: and yet this satisfaction profits him not at all. To teach us:

Obser. That satisfaction and restitution is not sufficient in it selfe to take away the sinne committed, or to satisfie Gods justice.

Quest. 2 Is not Satisfaction good?

Answ. There is a double satisfaction; to wit,

First, a satisfaction due unto our neighbour, and is called restitution, and it is of the fact, not of the sinne; and this is altogether, or by all meanes to be done, as principally necessary, with these exceptions, restrictions, and cautions, namely,

I. Not as a satisfaction for the sinne, for this we owe unto God. Nor

II. Through horror (as Judas here did) but out of a desire to be reconciled unto our brother, and to satisfie him for the injury we have done, and to appease and pacifie our owne consciences. Nor

III. Through some immediate necessity; for it may come to passe that he who hath done wrong unto his neighbour is not able to satisfie for the injury done: and in this case, God can save the sinner without restitution, if so be the offender doe as much as in him lyes. Now these conditions observed every greedy oppressor, and griping usurer, and deceitful person is bound to make restitution.

Secondly, there is a satisfaction due unto our God; wherein two things are considerable; viz.

I. Wherein this satisfaction consists: namely,

First, not in oblations and pilgrimages. But

Secondly, partly to the poore in Almes-deeds; as Daniel counselled Nebuchadnezzar. And partly, to God, in repentance, and sincere sorrow, Acts 3. 19. And

II. These things are not to be done, as a satisfaction of Gods justice for our sinne. But

First, as an argument of our obedience. And

Secondly, as a testimony of our thankefulnesse.

Sect. 5 §. 5. I have sinned.]

We have heard of Judas his Contrition, and Satisfaction, and now followes his Confession: which is twofold, viz.

I. Of his owne sinne in this Section. And

II. Of CHRISTS innocencie in the next.

First, we see here that the Traitors tongue witnesseth against it selfe, and that his Conscience cannot dissemble; to teach us,

Observ. That an evill Conscience is worse then a thousand witnesses. Read Genes. 3. 10. and 42. 21. and 2 Sam. 24. 6. 10. Proverb. 28. 1. Esa 57. 20. and we shall find that an evill conscience is a continuall feare and torment. Infinite (in a manner) are the humane examples, whereby this might be confirmed, but I will name but one or two.

Bessus having slaine his Father, and being afterwards banqueting with sundry Nobles, arose from the table, and beat downe a Swallowes nest which was in the chimny, saying, they lyed to say that he he slew his Father; For his guilty conscience made him thinke, that the Swallowes when they chatte[illegible], proclaimed his parricide to the World, Plut de sera vindict. Againe

Theodoricus the King, having slaine Boetius, and Symmachus, and being afterwards at dinner, began to change countenance, his guilty conscience so blinding his eyes, that he thought, the head of a fish which stood before him, to have beene the head of his Cosen Symmachus, who bit his lip at him, and threatned him; the horrour whereof did so amaze him, that he presently dyed. Sigonius de occid. imper. Againe

Nero that Monster of nature having once slaine his Mother, had never any more peace within, but was astonished with horrours, feares, visions, and clamours, which his guilty conscience set before him, and suggested unto him. Imo latens in prædio, familiares suspectos habuit, vocem humanam horruit, ad catuli latratum, galli cantum, rami ex vento motum terrebatur; loqui non ausus, ne audiretur. Xiphil in Nerone, He suspected his neerest and deerest friends and favourites, he trembled at the barking of a Puppy, and the crowing of a Cocke, yea the wagging of a leafe; and neither durst speake unto others, nor could endure others to speake unto him (when he was retired into a private house) lest the noise should be heard by some, who lay in wait for his life.

Quest. How many wayes doth the Conscience accuse sinners?

Answ. Two mannner of wayes; namely,

First, sometimes unto repentance; and that is, when the conscience of sinne causeth and worketh true sorrow (never to be sorrowed of) in the heart of the sinner, 2 Corinth. 7. 10. as it did in Peter, Matth. 26. 75.

Secondly, sometimes the Conscience accuseth unto vengeance, and eternall condemnation; as it did in Cain, Achitophel, and Judas.

Sect. 6 §. 6. I have betrayed the innocent blood.]

Wee may observe here how Christ was alwayes absolute without any blame, or fault for the Pharisees durst not kill him, the Priests have no accusation to bring against him, onely Caiphas saith, That it is necessary that one should dye for the people, Pilates wife sends word that he is a righteous man; and Pilate himselfe saith, I find no fault in him, yea Judas here pronounceth him innocent, and what say the high Priests and Pharisees unto him they doe not answer, no, but he is a wicked man, but what is that to us? whence we may note,

Observ. That God will alwayes manifest the innocency of his Saints, and Servants. Read the History of Ioseph and Mephibosheth, 2 Sam. 16. 3. 8. and 19. 29. and 1 King. 2. 44. and of the three Children, Dan. 3. and of Paul, Acts 26. 32, 28.

§. 7. What is that unto us.]

Sect. 7 The Priests and Pharisees hire Judas to betray his Master, they consult with him how to take him, they procure false witnesse to come in against him, and yet when the fact and fault is mentioned and spoken of, then they excuse themselves. To teach us, Observ. That wicked men are alwayes prone to excuse themselves; as we see in Adam, Evah, Saul, and Prov. 30. 20.

§. 8.

Sect. 8. §. 8. See thou to it.]

Quest. What doe the Pharisees meane by this phrase?

Answ. 1 First, some understand hereby a proud rejection; as if they would say unto him, Mend your selfe as you can.

Answ. 2 Secondly, some understand hereby a certaine accusation, or an implicite advice unto Iudas to accuse himselfe; as if they would say, If thou thinkest that thou hast sinned, then goe and accuse thy selfe, that so thou maist be cut of for thy wickednesse. Whence we may learne a double practise, viz.

I. The practise of the Pharisees, who reject Iudas when he comes unto them, though they had put him upon the worke, to teach us, That they who perswade, urge, and hire men unto sinne, will after thee deed done, leave them, yea be more ready to accuse then excuse them, more prone to condemne, then to acquit them. And

II. The practise of Sathan is to be considered and observed in these Pharisees: For as they

First, instigate Iudas unto this fearefull and damnable offence. And then

Secondly, when the offence is committed, labour to drive him to desperation. So the Devill doth

I. Tempt men unto most horrible, and hainous transgressions. And then

II. Labours to shew them the ouglinesse of their sinnes, that so he may bring them (with Iudas) to finall desperation.

Vers. 5, 6, 7. VERS. 5,6,7. And he cast downe the pieces of silver in the Temple, and departed, and went, and hanged himselfe. And the chiefe Priests tooke the silver peeces and said, It is not lawfull for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood. And they tooke counsell, and bought with them the Potters field, to bury strangers in.

Quest. 1 What may we learne from this desperate death of Iudas?

Answ. In this History of the death and destruction of Iudas is propounded unto us,

First, a glasse wherein we may clearly see an example of Gods anger; for as his mercy and clemencie appeared in Peter, who was received into favour upon his true & unfained repentance, in the former Chap. for the comfort of all penitent persons; so in Iudas his wrath, anger, and Iustice appeares, for the terrour and confusion of all impenitent sinners. And

Secondly, a glasse wherein we may clearely see an example of Gods justice; for as he is no respecter of persons, but receives all into favour and mercy who truly repent, and lay hold upon CHRIST; so he spares none who reject Christ, or are impenitent, be they what they will; as we see in Iudas, who although he was an Apostle, and numbred amongst the twelve, yet was not spared, but most severely punished for his impenitency and hardnesse of heart. And

Thirdly, a glasse wherein we may clearely see the power of Christ; for although Iudas thought it a matter of no great danger, to betray this innocent Lambe; yet Christ in his swift vengeance lets him see, that justice sleepes not, neither any can free him from his hand, but in his just anger, and infinite power he gives him over to become a bloody butcher unto himselfe. And

Fourthly, a glasse wherein we may see the deceit and fraud of Sathan; who before sinne be committed makes it a matter of nothing, but afterwards lets us see the ougly face thereof unto desperation. And

Fifthly, a glasse wherein we may see an example, of fruitlesse, and unprofitable repentance; but of this we spake before in the former verse, §. 3. question 1. And

Sixthly, a glasse wherein we may see an evil, conscience, who never ceaseth crying against the sinner untill it have brought him to perdition and destruction. And Seventhly, a glasse wherein we may read both the nature and fruit of covetousnesse; for as it leads men unto most notorious offences, so it ends and brings men unto most fearefull judgements.

Quest. 2 How many are the causes of Desperation, and what are they, that knowing them we may learne to avoid this fearefull offence which Iudas here fell into?

Answ. The causes of Desperation are many; namely,

First, a shame to confesse sinne, or to have sinne to be knowne; many are so confounded, when they thinke of the shame which wil redound unto them, when some sinne, they have committed is published; that to prevent it, they desperately cut the thread of their owne lives.

Secondly, the next cause of Desperation is the multitude of sinnes; many reviewing the Catalogue of their offences, find them to be in number numberlesse; the sight whereof doth so amaze and affright them, that they despaire of mercy with Iudas in the text.

Thirdly, another cause of Desperation is the greatnesse & enormousnesse of the offence; many see some sinne which they have committed to be so hainous, and horrible, that with this traytor they despaire of mercy, and hasten vengeance by their desperate enterprizes.

Fourthly, the next cause of Desperation is the continuance in sinne; many calling to mind how long they have wallowed in the puddle of iniquity, despaire of mercy, and desperatly lay violent hands upon themselves.

Fifthly, another cause of Desperation is a certain pusillanimity of mind; for many considering the many and great workes which God requires of them unto salvation, do utterly despaire of heaven and like faint-hearted Cowards give over the work, and warre unattempted, excusing themselves with the old proverbe, Vni atq; geminis præstat involvi malis, they may as well sit still, as rise and catch a fall; they may as well never undertake the taske, as take it in hand, and be enforced to give it over againe unfinished.

Sixthly, the next cause of Desperation is a false imagination, or judgment of our selves, and works; many are so sensible of their weaknesse and inability to serve the Lord, and so sensible of their lukewarmenesse in his service and worke, and of the power and strength of temptation; that they are ready to despaire, because if they belonged unto 368 God, then undoubtedly they thinke that it could not, nor should not be thus with them. This cause hath place sometimes in the faithfull, in whom it is onely temporall, not at all finall.

Seventhly, another cause of Desperation is the weight of some temporall affliction; many being under some heavie burden of corporall calamity, thinke to free themselves from it, by putting a Period to their lives, skipping thus (as the Proverbe is) out of the pan into the fire, and passing from corporall paines to eternall punishment.

Eighthly, the last cause of Desperation is Infidelity, many distrust of the truth of the promises, of the power and love of God, and of the valew of CHRISTS death; as though neither God nor CHRIST could nor would save them although they should repent, crying our desperately with Cain, My sinnes are greater then God can forgive.

Quest. 3 What are the remedies against Desperation, or these causes thereof?

Answ. The Remedy against this great evill is a sure trust and confidence in the mercy, love, power, and truth of God, who hath promised that his mercy shall be above all his workes, and above all our sinnes, if we will but repent. And therefore let us learne and labour truly to repent and turne from our sinnes, and we may find hope and comfort, and be assured of mercy and favour. More particularly,

First, if the shame of the world terrifie us, then let us remember, that if men condemne us for sinne they will commend us for repentance; yea this shame is temporall, but the infamy of desperate persons is perpetuall, and eternall; and although men blame them for sinning, yet God will pardon them, and blot all their sinnes out of his remembrance; wherefore they need not set by the shame of men, if they have the praise of God.

Secondly, if the multitude, and magnitude of our sinnes, come into our remembrance, let us repent us of them, and be truly sorrowfull for them, but not despaire; because the mercy of God is infinite, and the merits of Christ are of an infinit valew and worth, and his blood (which was shed for penitent sinners) is sufficient to purge us from all our sinnes.

Thirdly, if we be almost at the Gate of Desperation by reason of the consideration of our continuance in sinne, then let us remember, that the time of our former ignorance God will not regard, but willingly passe by, if now from henceforth we labour to redeeme the time, devoting our selves wholly up to the service of our God.

Fourthly, if we begin to despaire, and doubt, that we shall never be able to doe that which God requires of us unto salvation; then remember; Cogitauerit Deus, God will be present with us if we doe our endeavour; yea he will accept of the will for the deed, if he see that with our minds we serve the Law of God, yea he will give us both the will and the deed, and inable us in some measure to doe those things which he requires of us, if in sincerity of heart we desire, and endeavour to serve him.

Fifthly, if we be dejected, and plunged into the pit of sorrow, through the sense of the weakenesse of grace, and the strength of corruption in us; we must then remember that the Lord hath promised to strengthen the weake, and to cause the barren to bring forth, and to feed and nourish babes, untill they come to strength, and to the measure of perfect men. And he is faithfull in his promises, and tender in his affections unto all his children, & wil neither quench a smoaking flaxe, nor breake a bruised reed, nor reject nor cast off any of his babes, because they are sicke and weake.

Sixthly, if the sense of any heauy affliction, lying upon us, be ready to sinke us in the Whirle-poole of desperation, let us then remember, that

I. The deare children of God have endured longer and heavier afflictions then we have, or doe; as we may see in Ioseph, Iob, and David.

II. That afflictions doe attend all those who would be saved, yea that they who would come unto heaven must suffer affliction; it being given unto them to suffer, Philip. 1. 29.

III. That God will lay no more upon us then he will inable us to undergoe. By these and the like meditations we must strengthen and arme our selves against doubting and desperation.

VERS. 9, 10. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Ieremy the Prophet, saying; And they tooke the thirty peeces of silver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Israel did value: and gave them for the Potters field, as the Lord appointed me. Vers. 9. 10.

Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Ieremy the Prophet] Sect.

From what Prophet, or place doth the Evangelist cite these words? Quest. 1

First, for answer unto this & the next qu. I would intreat the learned Reader to view these Authors; Augustin de cons. Evang. 3. 7. et Hier. s. et de opt. gen. Interpretandi, Origen. s. Euseb. & Rufinus, lib. 10. Chrysost. s. 2 Timoth. 3. 8. Comest. histor. Evang. cap. 161. page 240. Erasm. s. Beza, s. Mayer s. Scharp. symph. proph. et Apost. page 337. 338. loc. 114. Iun. paral. 48. Chem. harm. part 2. Gerard. Fol. 88, 89. Weemse of the judiciall law of Moses, lib. 1. cap. 30. page 112, 113. Answ. 1

Secondly, some say that the words recited here by the Evangelist, are taken both from Ieremy and Zachary. This is disliked & rejected by Iunius and Scharpius, but approved as the most true opinion by Gerard, Mayer and Weemse, and will appeare by and by to be such. Answ. 2

Thirdly, some say, that these words are taken out of some Apocryphal Booke of Ieremy; and of this opinion were both Hierome and Origen; but it is both refused and refuted, by Iunius, Scharpe, Gerard, and Mayer. Answ. 3

Fourthly, some say, that the Evangelist borrowed these words from some unwritten Traditions. Or Answ. 4

Fifthly, that he learned them from some divine revelation, Chrysost. gives these two reasons, thinking them both satisfactory, but Ger. disliks both. Answ. 5

Sixthly, some say, that St. Matthew took them onely from the Prophet Ieremy, or from the Septuagints interpretation of Ieremy 32. 9. And Answ. 6

Scharpe

Sharpe inclines to this, giving theſe reaſons for this opinion, to wit,

I. Becauſe the ſeven ſickels, and ten pieces of ſilver mentioned by the Prophet, are the ſame with the thirty pieces of ſilver here mentioned. And

II. Becauſe in both the places mention is made of the buying of a field. And

III. Becauſe the Prophet (as well as the Evangeliſt) had ſaid, that this field ſhould ſerve to bury ſtrangers in, that is, thoſe who were now ſtrangers, but ſhould afterwards returne from captivity: This opinion is alſo named by Gerard, and by him neither allowed nor diſliked, but barely recited: but it will appeare falſe by and by, and is utterly rejected by Iunius.

Anſw. 7 Seventhly, ſome ſay that this our Evangeliſt tooke theſe words onely from Zachary. 11, 12, 13. And of this opinion is Beza in ſhew, but Iunius directly, and divers others.

Queſt. Seeing that theſe words recited by St. Matthew are not named by Ieremy, but by Zachary, whence come it that the Evangeliſt names Ieremy [Then was fulfilled that which was ſpoken by the Prophet Ieremy] and not Zachary?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, hereunto ſome anſwer that it is ἁμάρτημα μνημονικὸν meere forgetfulneſſe in the Evangeliſt (the holy Ghoſt permitting it) who through the fault of his memory tooke Ieremy for Zachary: of this opinion is St. Auguſtine, but is juſtly refuted both by Iunius, Sharpe, Gerard, and Mayer.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, ſome ſay, that it was γραφικὸν ἁμάρτημα, an errour or miſtake in the Scribe, or writer of the Evangeliſt, Now the Scribe tranſcribing this Goſpell might be miſtaken two manner of wayes; namely, either

I. Becauſe in their abbreviations, or, contraction of voices (much uſed by the Greekes in their writing) the letters ζ and ι might be changed into ιε, which is an errour eaſily fallen into. Or

II. By adding the name of Ieremy. For

Firſt, the Syrian Paraphraſe (which is well nigh if not altogether moſt ancient) hath onely the Text [They tooke the thirty pieces of ſilver &c.] but no name at all. And

Secondly, (ſome Gloſ. ordinar. ſ.) ſay, that many Greeke Copies have not the name of Ieremy, but onely, the word Prophet: Then was that fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet, ſaying, &c. This anſwer is given by Hierome, Euſebius, Eraſmus, and leaned unto by Beza; but denied by Iunius, Sharpe, Gerard, and Mayer.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, ſome anſwer, that all the words recited by St. Matthew in this place, were written by the Prophet Ieremy, and when this Goſpell was writ were extant in the Hebrew Text; but now by the malice of the Jewes are obliterated. This conceit went for currant both with Euſebius and Iuſtin, as Gerard ſaith, but is juſtly refelled by him.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, Auguſtine anſwers, that St. Matthew cites theſe words as written by Ieremy when indeed they were written by Zachary, becauſe all the Prophets had as it were but one mouth; and therefore whatſoever was written by ſome one of them, might be ſaid to be written by any one of them: as if all their Propheſies had come out of one mans mouth, and that any thing ſpoken by any one of them, is common to all, and that all things ſpoken by them all, are proper to any one. But this anſwer is not without cauſe miſliked by Dr. Mayer. 569

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, ſome ſay that Zachary being inſtructed by Ieremy wrote it; and therefore Ieremy is here mentioned; both Iunius and Sharpe incline to this anſwer, at leaſt, ſay nothing againſt it, but Dr. Mayer rejects it, becauſe Zachary living 100 yeares after Ieremy could not be inſtructed by him.

Anſw. 6 Sixthly, others ſay, this was ſpoken συγχωρητικῶς κατὰ τὸ δόξαν τοῖς, according to the opinion of the people, amongſt whom there was great expectation of Ieremiah to come againe; as wee may perceive by that anſwer of the Diſciples, whē Chriſt demanded, Whom doe men ſay that I am? Some ſay Ieremy, or one of the Prophets. But this is refuted both by Sharpe and Mayer.

Anſw. 7 Seventhly, ſome ſay that Zachary had two names; viz., Zachary and Ieremy, as many more among the Hebrewes had; as for Example. Achimelech and Abiathar; Iochanan and Iouchaz; Pennel and Chareph; Ioach and Ethan; and many more. This anſwer of all the reſt is beſt liked by Iunius, Eraſmus and Sharpe, but is diſliked by Gerhard and Mayer. Indeed if it were certaine that Zachary had two names, this anſwer would ſufficiently cleare the doubt, but ſeeing the name whereby he was moſt knowne, (yea altogether knowne, for any thing written in the Scripture to the contrary) was Zachary, me thinkes St. Matthew ſhould not, leaving that name, call him by another, whereby he was not formerly called or knowne. I have beene briefe in all theſe anſwers, becauſe I adhere to none of them all; if any deſire better information concerning them, let him conſult with the Authours and places mentioned before. queſt. 1. anſw. 1.

Anſw. 8 Eighthly; Gerhard, Weemſe, and Mayer, anſwer that heere two Propheſies are joyned together by our Evangeliſt; and becauſe I rather ſubſcribe to this, then any of the other anſwers; I will therefore a little more enlarge it, then I have done any of the other. Here then obſerve with me theſe three things; namely

I. The mention of the thirty ſilver peeces here, is taken from Zachar. 11, 12, 13. and the buying of the field from Ieremiah. 32. 7. &c. for in the Septuagints tranſlation of Zachary, there is nothing almoſt but the 30. pieces of ſilver given, of the words here uſed, and that was the tranſlation then in uſe amongſt all men, For after this the words are theſe, The Lord ſaid unto me, put them to the founder, and recount; if ought be tryed, as I am tryed of them, and I tooke the thirty peeces, and put them into the houſe of the Lord to the founder. But here it is, I gave them for a field of the Potter, as the Lord commanded me. But now if we take in that of Ieremiah, there is a field appointed to be bought, and the evidence is commanded to be put into an earthen Pot, and hidden for many dayes. And ſo the firſt words here uſed ſeeme to be taken out of Zachary, but the laſt out of Ieremy; who may be ſaid to have bought a Potters field becauſe by 170 he bought a field, and caused the evidence to be laid up in a Potters pot.

II. The new Testament citeth two places out of the old oftentimes, to make up one testimonie; Or, it is the manner of the new Testament to make up one testimony of two cited out of the old Testament, although written in divers places in the old Testament: As for example, St. Peter, Acts. 1. 20. maketh up but one testimony of divers places collected out of the Psalmes, 69. 17. and 109. 1, So 1 Peter, 2. 7. is made up of divers testimonies out of the Psalme. 118. 22, and Esa. 8. 14. So CHRIST, Matthew, 21. 5. maketh up one testimony out of Esay 62. 11. and Zachar. 12, 11. So Matthew. 21, 14. is made up of Esa. 56. 7. and Ierem. 7. 11.

III. The new Testament in citing of two Prophets, expresseth him who hath the chiefe part of the testimonie; or, it is the manner of the new Testament, when testimonies are cited out of two, they leave out the one, and expresse onely the other, and they cite the whole testimony as written by one. As for example in Matthew. 21. 5. there is a testimony cited out of two Prophets, yet they are cited but as one testimony. It is cited out of these two Prophets, viz, Esa. 62. 11. and Zachar. 9. 9. and yet the Evangelist saith, That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet; the first words are Esayes, the latter Zacharies, and yet they are cited, as if they were the words of Zacharie. So Marke. 1, 2. As it is written in the Prophet; this testimony is written both in Esay and Malachy, Behold I send my Messenger before thy face, &c. yet Matthew. 3, 3. Esay is onely cited, and not Malachy.

Quest. 3 If it be thus, that this testimony of St. Matthew is made up of the saying of Ieremy and Zachary, then why doth St. Matthew rather cite Ieremy then Zachary?

Answ. 1 First, because Ieremiah was the most famous of the two, he is named, and the other omitted, and left to be searcht out by the diligent Reader.

Answ. 2 Secondly the Evangelists scope is to give a reason, not so much why CHRIST was bought by the Scribes and Pharisees, as of the field which was bought for such a price; now Zachary speaketh nothing of the field that was bought; and therefore it had not bene pertinent for the Evangelist to have brought in the testimonie of Zachary here.

Object. The testimony of this our Evangelist agrees neither to the place of Ieremy, or Zachary, but is different from them both. And therefore cannot be taken from them.

Answ. St. Matthew doth usually take liberty (so that he keepe him to the sense) to use other words, for the greater evidence to the thing intended. In the thirty pieces of silver given for Zachary, a poore price for one of that worth, was mystically set forth, how meanly the head of all Prophets, Christ IESUS should be valued: In that he was appointed to bring them to the house of the Lord, was set forth Iudas his bringing backe againe of his thirty peeces to the chiefe Priests: and in that Ieremiah is commanded to buy a field, &c: is set forth the Potters field bought with this money to bury in.

VERS. 12. 13. And when he was accused of the chiefe Priests and Elders, he answered nothing. Then saith Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not, how many things they witnesse against thee? Vers. 12 13.

Quest. What was Christ accused of unto the Governours by the Scribes and Pharisees, and chiefe Priests?

Answ. The heads of the Accusations which were laid against our Saviour by them were these; viz,

First, that he taught and preached without any lawfull calling thereunto, Matth. 21. And

Secondly, that he made himselfe the Messias, Luke 23. Iohn. 17. 10. And

Thirdly, that he affirmed, that he was the Sonne of God, yea equall to God the Father, Iohn. 5. 8. Matth. 26. And

Fourthly, that he disturbed, and went about to abrogate that religion which was instituted by Moses, according to the word of the Lord; and laboured to seduce the people, Luke 23. And Fifthly, that he taxed their ceremonious observations (besides the law) and their superstitions, in the meane time receiving of sinners, and eating with them, and condemning the righteousnesse of workes, or salvation by or for workes, Matthew 5. Luke 15. Add

Sixthly, that he brake the Sabbath day, healing sicke and weake men therein, Matth. 22 Luke 6. 131 And

Seventhly, that he tooke upon him to forgive sins unto those who were penitent, Matth. 9. And Eighthly, that he said, he could destroy the Temple, and rebuild it in three dayes, Iohn. 2. Matth. 26.

VERS. 19. When Pilate was set downe on the judgement seate, his wife sent unto him, saying; Have thou nothing to doe with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dreame, because of him. Vers. 19.

§. 1. I have suffered many things in a dreame. Sect. 1.

Quest. 1 Here it may be demanded, Is there any truth or certainty in dreames?

Answ. 1 First, some of the Philosophers viz, Protagoras, with other Stoicks, answer hereunto, that all dreames are true; but this opinion is proved false by Dr. Willet vpon Daniel, Chap. 1. quest. 44. pag. 31.

Answ. 2. Secondly, some Philosophers held the contrary opinion, that no credit was to be given to any dreames at all, as Xenophanes, Calisphonius, and the Epicures; for seeing all dreames were of the same nature, and some were vaine, and frivolous, all must be held to be so. Againe, say they, if there were any certainty in dreames, they must proceed from some certaine causes: either God, or nature: but it is not like, Deum obire lectos dormientium, that God should compasse mens beds, when they are a sleepe and cast dreames into their minds; and nature is the cause of order, but in dreames there is confusion and disorder. But the falsenesse of this Answer appeares by those which follow.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, all dreames are not of one nature, therefore it followeth not, if some be vaine, that all all are. But of this by and by, in the ſecond and third Queſtion.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, Gods providence watcheth over men both waking & ſleeping, he paſſeth not from place to place, but being in heaven beholdeth all things, and doth whatſoever it pleaſeth him in heaven and in earth.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, nature worketh certainly and orderly, when it worketh by certaine and ſetled cauſes: variable and turbulent cauſes muſt bring forth the like effects: but true and divine dreames are moſt certaine, conſtant, and orderly, as proceeding from him who is the authour of order.

Anſw. 6 Sixthly, as there are ſome vaine and Phantaſticall dreames procured by mens diſtempered humours, in their bodies, or their diſordered and unſetled imaginations in their mind; ſo there are Profound, divine, and holy dreames, (of which by and by) which have their evident ſignification, and ſure effect.

Queſt. 2 Againe we may move this Queſtion, Whether any divine dreames have beene ſent by God at any time unto heathens or no? or, whether Gentiles may have divine dreames?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, ſome divide dreames thus; namely

I. Into naturall dreames, which ariſe from our naturall conſtitution. And

II. Into diabolicall dreames, which are ſuggeſted by the devill, and are deluſive, and attractive unto evill. And

III. Into divine dreames, when the Lord by dreames doth admoniſh us either of ſomething which is to be done, or to be be left undone: and thus he hath admoniſhed both Iewes, Gentiles, and Chriſtians; as we may ſee by theſe examples: God warnes Abimelech by a dreame not to touch Sara, and Pharaoh of the famine, and Nebuchadnezar of his fall, or humiliation and the wiſe men not to returne to Herod. He admoniſhed Ioſeph in a dreame to flee into Egypt, and Eſaiah of the Babyloniſh Captivity, and Ieremiah of the deſtruction of the City. He admoniſhed St. Paul in a dreame to goe to Macedonia, Acts. 16. 9. and of the ſhipwracke and ſafety of him and his company, Acts, 27, 23, 24.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, God manifeſts and declares his will by viſions and dreames oftentimes to the heathens; and that for a double cauſe; to wit,

I. To teach them, that his providence doth extend it ſelfe, and belong unto, both high and low, both thoſe who are within the Church, and thoſe who are without. And

II. For his Churches ſake, unto whom he doth good oftentimes by the Miniſtery of thoſe who are without the Church. And thus it is evident, both that there is truth and certainty in many dreames which heathens have, and alſo that ſometimes they have dreames ſent from God for the admoniſhing either of themſelves or others, either for the doing, or leaving undone ſomething.

Queſt. What may wee judge of this dreame of Pilates wife?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, ſome anſwer, that this dreame of Pilates wife, was diabolicall, or from the devill, as though he had laboured thereby to hinder the death of CHRIST, and conſequently our ſalvation. 371

Secondly, ſome anſwer that her dreame was naturall, and neither from the Spirit of God, nor from Sathan, but was occaſioned meerely by the things which ſhe had heard before of CHRIST. Anſw. 2

Thirdly, ſome anſwer that it was a divine dreame, viz. ſuggeſted by the Spirit of God. Indeed I verily beleeve that it was from the Lord immediately, and that, both to admoniſh her and her husband Pilate, and alſo to ſerve for a further manifeſtation of CHRISTS innocencie; Anſw. 3

VERS. 21, 22, 23. The governour anſwered and ſaid unto them; whether of the twaine will ye that I releaſe unto you? they ſaid, Barrabbas. Pilate ſaid unto them, what ſhall I doe then with JESUS, which is called CHRIST? they all ſaid unto him, let him be crucified. And the governour ſaid, Why what evill hath he done? But they cried out the more, let him be crucified. Verſ. 21, 22, 23.

§. 1. And they ſaid, Barabbas.] Sect. 1.

A little before Immanuel Tremelius died, ſome that ſtood by deſired to heare his Noviſſima, or laſt words, whereupon he cried out, Vivat Chriſtus & pereat Barabbas, Let CHRIST live, and let Barabbas die; which was a joyfull ſpeech, it ſhewing that although he was a Jewe, yet now he diſclaimed Iudaiſme, and was unlike to theſe Iewes who cried, Let Barabbas live, and Chriſt die.

§. 2. Quid faciam, What ſhall I doe with JESUS who is called CHRIST?] Sect. 2.

The ſcope of Pilates queſtion was, that he might free CHRIST; whence it may be demanded,

What did Pilate to deliver Chriſt? Queſt. 1

Firſt, he tooke the occaſion of the Feaſt, when of neceſſity he muſt releaſe one; he examined Chriſt at this time, hoping that they would (hearing his innocence. O) have deſired him to have beene let looſe unto them. Anſw. 1

Secondly, he conjoynes Chriſt with wicked turbulent Barabbas, hoping, that they would undoubtedly rather deſire that Chriſt ſhould be releaſed then he, Anſw. 2

Thirdly, he confeſſeth that Chriſt is innocent, and pleadeth hard for him. And Anſw. 3

Fourthly, when he cannot prevaile with them, he waſheth his hands. Anſw. 4

Why did Pilate all theſe things for Chriſt, or in his behalfe. Queſt. 2

Firſt, that he might be famous for a righteous governour, or, leſt he ſhould be accounted an unjuſt Iudge: and thus after him did Feſtus, Acts. 25. 16. and Felix. Acts. 23. 35. Anſw. 1

Secondly, the motion of his owne conſcience within did partly dreame him to theſe things, 2. 14, 15. Anſw. 2

Thirdly, his wife being admoniſhed in a dreame, and ſending to fore-warne him, was partly a cauſe, why he did theſe things for Chriſt; certainly hee did not altogether contemne the admonition of God. Now theſe three things were good in Pilate, but they were but ſuch generals, as may be in any reprobate. Anſw. 3

Fourthly,

372 Fourthly, there was yet another cause, why Pilate laboured to release Christ, and that was, because God would have the innocency of Christ to
Answ. 4 be confirmed and confessed even by the Judge who condemned him, that so it might manifestly appeare unto all, that Christ suffered not death for his owne fault, but for ours.

We see here that there was some good things, and good thoughts in Pilate at the first, but at last he is corrupted, and condemnes CHRIST, deale justly indelivering him to be crucified to his enemies.

Observ. Whence we may observe, That a good inclination is not sufficient in a Magistrate, without a constant resolution; or a Magistrate must desire to judgement, and nothing must cause them to doe the hands o fotherwise.

Quest. 3 Why must Magistrates be so resolute in their purpose of passing righteous judgement?

Answ. Because otherwise they shall have many hinderances and many impediments. As for example,

First, if they be weake and flexible, then they shall be overcome by importunate prayers and suites.

Secondly, if they be coveteous, then they shall easily be mislead with bribes, or hatred, or love, &c.

Thirdly, if they be ignorant either Iuris or facti, of the offence, or punishment alotted for such or such an offence, then they will most easily be deceived in judgement. And therefore it behoves Magistrates thus to corroborate, and strengthen themselves; namely

I. With conscience and knowledge, both of the lawes of God, and of the lawes of the land. And

II. With circumspection, doing nothing rashly, but all things with mature deliberation. And

III. With an immunity, and freedome from coveteousnesse, hatred, malice, rancour, respect of persons, paritality and the like, Exod. 18. 21. And

IV. With magnanimity and constancy.

Sect. 3 §. 35 Let him be crucified.]

Quest. 1 Who were guilty of the death of Christ, either as actors, or, abettors?

Answ. 1 First, Pontius Pilate who condemned him; I name him first, because I speake not of him at this time.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the chiefe Priests, and Elders of the Iewes; in whom two things are observable; viz.

I. Causa; the cause why they endeavoured and procured the death of Christ? and that was ambition: they loved the praise of men more then the praise of God, and the glory of the world, more then the glory of God, Iohn. 12. 42. and 5. 44. They saw that Christ derogated much from them, and spake much against them; and therefore they envy Christ, and frequently calumniate him.

II. Modus, the manner of procuring Christs death, and that was corrupt, for they suborne the people, and false witnesses, Read. Matth. 26. 59. and 28. 12. Wherefore we must take heed of subornation.

Why may we not use this suborning of others, when it may stand us in stead? Quest. 2

I. because subornation is the practice of wicked men (1 King. 21. 10.) and therefore if we would be esteemed righteous, we must not use this practice. Answ. 1

II. because truth seekes no corners, but delights to goe naked; and therefore this practice of suborning others argues a hatred of truth, and a love of falsehood. Answ. 2

III. because the suborning either of witnesses, or, friends, or Judges, argues, either an evill cause, or, an evill mind. Answ. 3

Thirdly, the people were guilty of, and accessary unto the death of Christ: now in them two things are observable; namely Answ. 4

1. The cause of their sinne, which is two-fold; to wit,

First, in constancy; for not long before this, they would have made Christ a King, Iohn. 6. 15. and strawed their garments in his way, Matth. 21. 8. crying Hosanna, verse, 9: but now they cry, crucifie him, crucifie him. And Secondly, a desire of pleasing their Elders and Governours, who perswaded them unto this. Christ certainly was not odious unto the common people, but yet whilest they basely seeke to please their high-Priests and Elders, they neglect both equity, their owne salvation.

II. The blackneſse, and horribleneſse of their offence; which shewes it selfe in these things; viz.

First, they had two testimonies, from which they might, and ought to have considered something; namely

I. Divine testimonies; as for example, a Prophetical speech, search the Scriptures, for they testifie of me, Iohn. 5. 39 yea a living voyce from the Father and God of heaven, Matth. 3, 17. yea the frequent presence and assistance of the blessed Spirit of God: and divers visions and apparitions of Angels, and the confession of the devill himselfe, Marke. 1. 24. yea many times CHRIST let them see (if they would haue observed it) that the secrets of their hearts were not kept secret from him. Now these things they should seriously haue considered, before they had cried Crucifige him.

II. Humane testimonies were not wanting unto them, if they had observed them; and those were Christs workes: the workes (saith he) which I doe testifie of me, Iohn. 5. 31. He cast out of devils, he cured the sicke he quickned the dead, he enlightneth the blind, he opened the eares of the deafe, he (with his word) made his enemies to fall to the ground, be with his word appeased the raging of the Sea. Reade, Matth. 8. and 9. and 11. 5, 6. and Iohn. 4. 26. Luke. 5. 17. and Iohn. 7, 2. Now these they ought to have considered. And

Secondly they preferred Barabbas before Christ, a murderer before the Lord of life, a seditious turbulent person before the Prince of peace. When men (say they Iohn. 2.) are drunke then the worst wine pleaseth the palat; so when men are drunke with sinne, and besotted upon, it then they will receive Theudas and Iudas Galilæus for the true Messiah, then they will thinke Simon Magus to be

be the great power of God, and then with the Gergesens they will preferre their Hogs before CHRIST. And

Thirdly, they adjudge Christ unto death, desiring that he may be crucified, although they were not able to accuse him of any evill, or to witnesse any evill against him.

Sect. 4 §. 4. What evill hath he done?]

Quest. 1 Pilate here propounds the question, Whether Christ have done any evill or not? And Answ. 1 First, he answers hereunto himselfe, that for his part he finds no evill in him. And

Answ. 2 Secondly, Christ in answer hereunto appeales unto their owne conscience; which of you can accuse me of sinne, Iohn. 8. And Answ. 3 Thirdly, the common people once answered, He hath done all things well, and nothing amisse: And therefore there was great reason why Pilate should aske this question, and thus seeke to free CHRIST from their hands, and power.

Quest. 2 What good did Christ?

Answ. 1 First, in generall he did all things well, and many good things unto many.

Answ. 2. Secondly, more particularly, when Christ lived on the earth he did many temporall good things, viz.

I. He healed and cured all diseases amongst the people. And

II. He cast Devils out of those who were possessed. And

III. He went up and downe doing good, the Lord being with him, Acts. 10. 38. And

IV. He stilled the raging waves of the Sea. And

V. He fed those who were hungry. And

IV. He raised up the dead unto life. Now if there had be one no greater workes done by Christ then these, yet who would have lost such a treasure and rich Magazin of all temporall blessings, if they could have kept it?

Answ. 3 Thirdly, but besides these there were spirituall benefits, and inestimable graces bestowed by Christ upon all those who came unto him in sincerity of heart, and are still held forth, and freely offred by him, unto all who with hungring affections long for him. The spirituall graces and benefits which the Jewes might, and we may have by Christ are many, and great, and of unvalued worth: as for example.

I. Christ reformed Religion, and taught the whole counsell of God, And

II. He reconciled us unto God, that in him we might have peace. And

III. He caused Sathan to fall as lightning from heaven, and destroyed all his workes. And

IV. He sends his holy Spirit unto us whereby we are regenerated and sanctified. And

V. He hath taken away the vaile, and laid open unto us a way unto the holy of holyes. And

VI. In him all the promises of God are yea and Amen. And

VII. Of his fulnesse we all receive grace for grace, Iohn. 1. 16. And

VIII. By his Resurrection and Ascension, he hath sealed unto us our Resurrection and ascension (with him) unto life eternall. And therefore no wonder if Pilate saith, What evill hath he done? seeing he was no other but a rich treasurie of all grace and vertue.

Sect. 5 §. 5. But they cried out the more, crucifie him, &c.]

Quest. It may here be demanded, what manner of answer this was, which the people gave unto Pilates question, in the former words?

Answ. 1 First, it was an absurd reasonlesse answer: for Pilate enquires after CHRISTS fault, and they answer they would have him punished: He saith, What evill hath he done, and they say Crucifie him: they object nothing against him and yet cease not crying to have him punished. And Answ. 2 Secondly, it was a troublesome, rude, unmannerly, and importunate answer, to desire a mans death, whom they could not justly taxe or accuse of any evill, yea to desire it with an unanimous consent, and to baule for it with one mouth and mind, and to answer (at least implicitely) he hath done no evill, but what of that? Let him notwithstanding be crucified.

VERS. 24, 25, 26. When Pilate saw, that he could prevaile nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he tooke water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying; I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it. Then answered all the people and said; His blood be on us, and on our children. Then released he Barabbas unto them, and when he had scourged JESUS, he delivered him to be crucified.

Vers. 24, 25, 26

Sect. 1 §. 1. He washed his hands.]

Quest. How many sorts of washing of hands were there amongst the Jewes?

Answ. There were three sorts in use amongst them; viz. First, Pharisaicall and superstitious; now this was reproved. And

Secondly, Ordinary for outward decencie; and this was allowed. And Thirdly, in token of innocencie, and this was commanded the Elders of the neighbour Cities in case of murder, Deuter. 21. 6. And this is that washing, which Pilate here practiseth, and unto this the Prophet David alludes, Psal. 26. 6. I will wash my hands in innocencie, and so I will compasse thy altar.

Sect. 2 §. 2. His blood be upon us, and upon our children.]

Quest. What may we learne from this answer of the multitude?

Answ. First, we may learne hence the custome of the Jewes in capitall offences, viz.; The Iudges and witnesses (when sentence of death was pronounced against the malefactor) did put their hands upon the condemned persons head, saying, Sanguis tuus super caput tuum; Thy blood be upon thine owne head. Now unto this the people have reference in these words, His blood be upon us, and upon our children. As if they would say, Be not thou so scrupulous to judge an offender, for if thou thinkest thou dost an unjust thing, let the vengeance of his innocencie fall upon us and our posterity.

Secondly,

374

Secondly, we may learne by that which followed, that this their answer was of a deepe dye, and a loud crye. For in that great and terrible siege of Ierusalem there died by the famine and pestilence an innumerable number; by fire and sword. 1000000. 2000 were found, who either killed themselves, for one killed another, 7900 were taken Captives; whereof 7000 were sent into Egypt, and some were slaine, and some reserved for triumph, and all those who were 16. yeares of age or under, together with many other of the common sort; Cæsar sold for thirty a peny; that as they (or their Fathers) sold CHRIST for thirty pence, so thirty of them (by the just judgement of God) were sold for a peny (o) If the Reader would see this illustrated to the life, and what heavie judgements followed the Iewes, after this loud crying cry of theirs, and how they were cursed in their soules, and bodies, and persons, and land, and estates; Let him then read Mr. Weemse. his 4. degenerate Sonnes. Page. 328, 329, 330. &c.

Answ. 2

(o) Patriarches pilgrimage pag. 48. fine.

Answ. 3

Thirdly, we may learne hence, that sometimes God answers and plagues wicked men even according to their owne wicked desires, and curses upon themselves. For the better understanding hereof observe, that in the Market place in Ierusalem, close by Pilates house, stood a high seate or Tribunall, made of faire stone curiously wrought, on which Pilate taking water, washed his hands before the people, saying, I am innocent of this mans blood; unto which the people cried, His blood be upon us and upon our children: which afterwards fell upon them (by Gods appointment) according to their owne wish. For in the same place, and close by the same seate, were two bloody massacres executed upon them, the one by Herod. [because they would not give him money out of their Treasury (which they called Corban) for the making of a watercourse] and the other by Florus Generall of the common souldiers, and this was more cruell and barbarous by much then the former.

Vers. 28 29, 30.

VERS. 28, 29, 30. And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe: And when they had platted a Crowne of thornes, they put it on his head, and a reed in his right hand; and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Haile King of the Iewes. And they spit upon him, and tooke the reed, and smote him on the head. &c.

Quest.

What may we learne from the passion, and suffering of CHRIST upon the crosse?

Answ.

The Lessons which we may learne hence are many; namely.

First, we may learne the intollerable anguish and paine that he suffered for us; Moses was not able to hold up his hands from morning untill night, but was glad to have a stone put under him, and his hands held up: how great then was our deare Saviours paine, who hung upon the crosse by the hands, all the weight of his body hanging upon his armes?

Secondly, Christ died an accursed death, Deut. 21. 23. to teach us, that he onely takes away the curse from us, by his death making all those happy and blessed who beleeve on him.

Thirdly, Christ in his death was lifted up on high, viz. on the crosse, that so all eyes might be upon him; according to his owne speech, when I am lifted up from the earth, I will draw all unto me, Iohn. 12. 32. He was raised up, that all might looke upon him, as their onely preserver from the wrath of God, and reconciler unto God, and Doner of spirituall grace and heavenly glory.

Fourthly, Christ in his death hung betwixt heaven and earth, in the midst, to shew that he is the onely Mediatour betweene God and man.

Fifthly, CHRIST hung in the aire, to shew that by his death he overcame Sathan, the Prince of the aire.

Sixthly, when CHRIST hung vpon the crosse, all his body was dyed with the blood which issued from his hands and feet and side; to teach us, that our sinnes (for which he suffered) was of a scarlet and bloody die, Esa. 1. 18.

Seventhly, Christ in his death held downe his head, as it were offering himselfe to be kissed by us, thereby teaching, that he gave himselfe to death out of his unspeakable love towards us.

Eighthly, by the Crowne of thorne which was set upon Christs head, is shewed, that by his death he hath purchased a perpetuall Kingdome for us, and will make us all Kings with his Father, the King of Kings, Revel. 1. 11.

Ninthly, his armes were stretched abroad in his death, as if thereby he would destribute unto us the benefits of his passion; or, to shew that now his armes were alwaies open to receive all that will come unto him.

Tenthly, Christ in his death received 5. wounds in his hands, feet, and side, which may be fitly compared, either

I. To the 5. stones which David choose when he was to fight against Goliah; for as he with these overthrew the Gyant, so CHRIST by those overcame the Devill. Or

II. To the 5. shekels which were given (in the old Testament) for the redemption of the first borne, Numb. 3, 47. because we were redeemed by these wounds of his.

Eleventhly, St. Paul. Colos. 2 14. doth teach us to contemplate those nailes wherewith Christ was fastened to the crosse, because by them the hand writing which was against us is taken away, and nailed unto the crosse. That is, as a creditour gives in the bond, and teares it in pieces, when the debt is payed, so by the nailes of Christs crosse, and by his suffering, the hand writing which was against us, is done away, and our sinnes pardoned, and our debts payed, and full satisfaction made, and we freed from the judgement of God. If the studious Reader would see these particulars enlarged, and divers more besides these, let him read Chemnit. harm. part. 2. addit Gerard. pag. 158, 159.

We observe before, Chap. 26, 28. that the Iewes mocked CHRISTS offices; namely

First, his Prophetical office, in that place, Prophesie who smote thee. And

Secondly, his Priestly office, in this Chap. vers. 42. He saved others he cannot save himselfe. And

Thirdly, his Kingly office in this verse, Haile King of the Iewes. Now we may observe further,

That

That as they mocked his office, so they also despised his offices; For

First, they despise his Kingly office, We have no King but Cæsar. Iohn 19.15. And Secondly, they despise his Prophetical office; Deuter. 18.15. And

Thirdly, they despise his Priestly office, cleaving yet to the Ceremonies of the Law; for so long as they stand to the Ceremoniall Law, they cannot be made partakers of Christ crucified; as is evident thus: That Sacrifice which was burnt without the gate, the people cannot be partakers of (according to the Levitieall Law) but Christ suffered without the gate; therefore the Jewes who cleave to the Ceremoniall Law cannot be partakers of it, Hebrew 13.12, 13.

Vers. 34, 35. VERS. 34, 35. They gave him vineger to drinke, mingled with gall; and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drinke. And they crucified him, and parted his garments casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophets; They parted my garments among them, and upon my Vesture did they cast lots.

Sect. 1. §. 1. They gave him gall in his drinke.]

This was literally fulfilled in Christ (in this place) but figuratively in David; that is, they vexed him, as if they had put gall in his drinke, Psalm. 69.22.

Sect. 2. §. 2. They cast lots upon his garment.]

This was literally fulfilled in CHRIST (in this place) but typically in David, that is, they parted his honour, and dignity, as if they were casting lots upon them, Psalm. 22.18.

Vers. 38. VERS. 38. Then were there two Theeves crucified with him; one on the right hand, and the other on the left.

Quest. What were the names of these two Thieves who were crucified with CHRIST?

Answ. Although the Scripture nominates them not, yet some writers give them these names, Dismas and Gesmas; Dismas the happy and Gesmas the miserable Thiefe, according to the Poet.

Gesmas damnatur, Dismas ad astra levatur:
that is,
When Gesmas di'de to Dives he was sent,
When Dismas di'de to Abraham up he went.

Vers. 44. VERS. 44. The thieves also which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

Quest. 1 How can this verse stand with Luke 23,39. for here it is said, The theeves mocked him, and St. Luke saith, onely one of the theeves mocked him?

Answ. 1 First, some say that the Scripture speaking generally of any thing, by a figure called Synechdoche, doth attribute that to the whole, which is proper to some part onely; and so here ascribeth that to both the theeves, which agreeth but to one. Or

Answ. 2 Secondly, it may be answered thus, That St. Mat. was an Hebrew, and the Hebrewes ordinarily, and usually put the plurall number for the singular, as Judg. 12.17. He was buried in the Cities of David, that is, in one of the Cities of David, so Psalm. 1.3. A tree planted by the Rivers of waters, that is, one of the Rivers, so Jonas 1.5. He went downe into the sides of the Ship, that is, to one of the sides thereof: and here, The theeves railed upon him, that is, one of the Theeves railed upon him. Or

Answ. 3 Thirdly, it may be answered thus, that at the first both the evill doers did mocke Christ, and of that time speakes St. Matthew, but afterwards one of them was miraculously converted, and the other alone mocked him; and of this time speakes St. Luke.

Quest. 2 How doth it appeare that this thiefes repentance was true, unfeigned, and lively?

Answ. 1 First, it is evident, that it was true, and unfeigned thus: viz.

I. By his reproving his fellowes continued blasphemy.

II. By his acknowledging that Gods hand was just against them both, because of former evill.

III. By defending the cause of JESUS, and boldly avouching that he was Innocent, when none of his Disciples durst speake.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it is cleare, That his repentance was lively, and sprong of Faith, thus, viz.

I. By his believing that JESUS was the King of Heaven.

II. By the gift of holy prayer, bursting then from his believing heart, in these words, Lord remember me when thou commest into thy Kingdome.

III. By Christs promise unto him, This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise.

Vers. 45. VERS. 45. Now from the sixth houre there was darkenesse over all the Land unto the ninth houre.

Sect. 1. §. 1. And there was darkenesse, that is, the Sunne was Eclipsed.]

Quest. 1 What is the Eclipse of the Sunne, or the cause of it.

Answ. The cause of it is, the interposition of the Moone betweene the Sunne and the Earth.

Quest. 2 Why did this Eclipse continue so long, or why was the Sun hid from the sixth houre to the ninth; that is from 12. of the clock to three, which happens not in naturall Eclipses?

Answ. 1 First, the Sunne was so long hid, as ashamed of the grosse and enormious impiety of the Iewes in crucifying the Lord of glory, and defiling their hands with innocent blood.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Sunne was long darkened, because the Sunne of righteousnesse was Eclipsed.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, to shew the long darkenesse and blindnesse which was to come on the Iewes, for this foule offence.

Quest. 3 Whether was this darkenesse at the death of Christ, an ordinary Eclipse or not?

Answ. No but extraordinary, and miraculous, And therefore the Philosophers are said to have said of it, Aut Deus naturæ patitur, aut astra et elementa montiuntur, aut machina mundi peribit.

Quest. 4 What miraculous and extraordinary things were in this Eclipse?

Answ. 1 First, the naturall Eclipse of the Sunne never happens (as the Astrologers say) but in the time of the con-

376 conjunction of the Sunne and Moone; which was not at the time of this Eclipse, the Moone being in the full.

Answ. 2 Secondly, about the sixth houre, and so forward to the ninth houre, the Moone was together with the Sunne, in the midst of Heaven; but in the Evening shee appeared in her owne place, namely, in the East, opposite to the Sunne.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Moone miraculously returning from the East towards the West, did not passe by the Sunne, and set in the West before it; but comming to the place, and terme of the Sunne, went along with it, for the space of three houres, and then returned unto the East againe.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the naturall Eclipse of the Sun quickly passeth away, but this Eclipse continued for the space of three houres.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, the naturall Eclipse of the Sunne begin-neth alwayes at the West, that is, that part of the Sunne which lookes towards the West is alwayes (in naturall Eclipses) first darkened, because the Sunne is more swift in his motion, then the Moone is in hers, and so overtaketh her; but here, although the Moone were in opposition to the Sunne, and distant from it, the breadth of heaven, yet it overtooke (by a miraculous swiftnesse) the Sunne, and so darkened first that part thereof, which lookes towards the East.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, in the naturall Eclipse of the Sunne that part thereof is first discovered and seene, which was first covered and obscured; but in this Eclipse, that part of the Sunne which lookes towards the East, was first covered, and last discovered. If the studious Reader would see these things illustrated, and more then these expressed and handled concerning this unnaturall and miraculous Eclipse. Let him read Aquin. 3. p. 9. 44. Art. 2. ad 2. et Dionys. in præfata Epist. et Chrysost. et Hier. and Chemnit harm. fine addit. Gerard fol. 189. b. calce.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Over all the Land.]

Quest. 4 Whether was there darknesse at this time over all the Earth or not?

Answ. 1 First, the words in the Text are, Tenebræ factæ sunt supra universam regionem: And there was darkenesse over all the Region, or Land; which by our best Hebrucians is interpreted generally, of the Land of the Iewes; and their reason is this because if this darkenesse had occupied the whole Earth, then without doubt the Historians of other Nations would have recorded and mentioned it. (Sylloge vocum exotic. Page 182.)

Answ. 2 Secondly, others say, that this Eclipse was not onely in the Land of the Iewes but in Egypt, and in Athens, as testifieth Dionysius, and divers other Historians (with Carthusian upon this place) doe testifie that it was in other Lands.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, that it was over all the world I cannot imagine, for those who thinke so, extend it too far: neither dare I subscribe to those who restraine it onely to the Region of the Iewes, because on the other side, I conceive them to limit it too much: And therefore I thinke, that it was over all that Horizon, and all those Regions which were (in a manner) of the same Altitude, and Latitude, and unto which the Sunne gives light, and is seene at once.

VERS. 46, 47. And about the ninth houre, Iesus cryed with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabacthani, that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken mee. Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias. Vers. 46, 47.

Sect. 1. §. 1. My God, my God.]

Quest. How can CHRIST have a God, when himselfe is the true God, blessed for ever? Hath God a God above him, whom he stands in need of for protection and defence?

Answ. 1 First, Christ according to his humane nature, and as he is man, hath the same God, and Father, that we have; Behold I goe unto my God, and your God, unto my Father, and your Father, CHRIST as man had God for his Father, upon whose power he did depend, and into whose hands he committed his Spirit, and according to his humane nature, he cals his Father, his God.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Christ according to his divine nature, is very God, yea true God himselfe, of the same substance, and power, with the Father.

Sect. 2. §. 2. Why hast thou forsaken me.]

Quest. 1 What was the cause that moved Christ thus to complaine?

Answ. 1 First, negatively, the cause was not any impatiency, or discontent of mind, neither any despaire, or dissembling, as some would have it. But Answ. 2 Secondly, affirmatively, the cause was an apprehension and feeling of the whole wrath of God, which seazed upon him both in body and soule.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Christ complained, because of Gods delay, and differring of helpe and succour. Vrsin.

Quest. 2 Whether did Christ truly complaine upon the Crosse, that he was forsaken of God?

Answ. 1 First, we answer hereunto, That our blessed Saviour bearing our sinnes in himselfe upon the Crosse, did verily feele Gods wrath in his soule, and truly complained in respect thereof, that he was forsaken of God: And this we confirme from himselfe thus, Our Saviour cryeth out and complaineth upon the Crosse; My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? which words were uttered in truth, and not in colour or shew: as Athanasius saith [ἐγένετο ἐν ἀληθείᾳ οὐκ ἐν δοκήσει τὰ πάντα ἐγίνετο] All things were done naturally and in truth, not in opinion or shew: And therefore Christ did feele himselfe in his soule forsaken of God, that is, left comfortlesse of Gods Spirit. If the Reader would see this opinion opposed and confirmed, let him read Dr. Willets Synops. page 1142. fine, et 1433. et Cham. tom. 2. page 177. Athanas. ad Apollinar.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Fevardentius absolutely denies, that Christ did truly complaine upon the Crosse, that he was forsaken of God, and he gives this reason for his deniall; If Christ (saith he) were truly forsaken of God, it would follow that the hypostaticall union was dissolved, and that Christ was personally separated from God, for otherwise he could not have beene forsaken. (b)

Fevardent. Page 39. confut. 1. I. We answer hereunto, If Christ had been totally and eternally forsaken, the personall union must have been dissolved: but upon this temporall derelictio[n]

rejectiõ, there followeth not a personall dissolution.

II. As the body of Christ being without life, was still hypostatically united to the God head, so was the soule of CHRIST, though for a time without feeling of his favour: the dereliction of the one doth no more dissolve the hypostaticall union, then the death of the other: If life went from the body, and yet the Deity was not separated in the personall consociation, but onely suspended in operation: so the feeling of Gods favour which is the life of the Soule, might be intermitted in CHRIST, and yet the divine Union not dissolved.

III. Augustine doth well shew how this may be, when he saith [Passio Christi dulcis fuit divinitatis somnus, Lib. de essent divin.] That the passion of Christ was the sweet sleepe of his Divinity. Like as then in sleepe the soule is not departed, though the operation thereof be deferred: so in Christs sleepe upon the Crosse, the God-head was not separated, though the working power thereof were for a time sequestred.

Quest. 3 How can CHRIST be forsaken of God, himselfe being God, for the Father, Sonne, and holy Ghost are all three but one and the same God? Yea, how can he be forsaken of God, seeing he is the Sonne of God, and if the Lord leave not his Children which hope and trust in him, how can he forsake Christ his onely begotten Sonne who depended upon him, and his power?

Answ. 1 First, by God here we must understand God the Father, the first person of the blessed Trinity, according to the vulgar and common rule, when God is compared with the Sonne, or holy Ghost, then the Father is meant by this title God. Not that the Father is more God then the Son, for in dignity all the three Persons are equall, but they are distinguished in order onely, and thus the Father is the first person, the Sonne the second, and the holy Ghost the third.

Answ. 2 Secondly, our Saviours complaint that he was forsaken, must be understood in regard of his humane nature, and not of his Godhead; although the Godhead and Man-hood were never severed from the first time of his incarnation; but the God-head of Christ, and so the Godhead of the Father did not shew forth his power in his manhood, but did as it were lye asleepe for a time, that the manhood might suffer.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, CHRIST was not indeed forsaken of God in regard of his humane nature, but onely as it were forsaken; that is, although there were some few minutes and moments in which he received no sensible consolations from the Deity, yet that he was not forsaken, is clear from this place where he flees unto the Lord, as unto his God, as also from his Resurrection the third day after. (c)

(c.) Vide Muscul. f. Page 603 a. qu. 2.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, Divines say, that there are sixe kinds of dereliction or forsaking, whereof Christ may be thought to have complained: namely,

I. By disunion of Person. And

II. By losse of grace. And

III. By diminution, and weakning of grace. And

IV. By want of assurance of future deliverance, and present support. And

V. By denyall of protection. And

VI. By withdrawing of solace, and destituting the forsaken of all comfort.

Fifthly, it is impious once to thinke, that Christ was forsaken any of the foure first wayes: for the unity of his person was never dissolved, his graces were never either taken away or diminished; neither was it possible that he should want assurance of future deliverance and present support, that was eternall God, and Lord of life. But the two last wayes he may rightly be said to have beene forsaken; in that his Father denied to protect and keepe him out of the hands of his cruell, bloody & mercilesse Enemies, no way restraining them, but suffering them to doe the uttermost of that their wicked hearts could imagine, and left him to endure the extremity of their fury, and malice; and that nothing might be wanting, to make his sorrowes beyond measure sorrowfull, withdrew from him that solace he was wont to find in God; and removed farre from him all things for a little time that might any way lessen and asswage the extremity of his paine.

377

Answ. 5

Quest. 4 Why is the prayer of CHRIST upon the Crosse set downe in Hebrew by this our Evangelist? Eli, Eli, Lamasabacthani?

Answ. 1 First, the Evangelist doth this, that we may perceive the bitter mocke that the Iewes used against Christ, saying, He calleth upon Elias, for in no other language the mocke will so appeare. (d) But of this more by and by.

(d) Weemse

Answ. 2 Secondly, this was done to shew Gods anger against the Iewes; for it is a curse to the Church, for Preachers to speake to the people the mysteries of their salvation in an unknowne tongue, 1 Cor. 14. 21. And therefore CHRIST now speakes in Hebrew which was once the Mother tongue of the Hebrewes, but now is not, neither was in Christs time understood by any but those who were Schollers, as I thinke.

Object. 1 The Papists say, that Calvin thought these words of sorrowfull passion, to be words of despaire, and that CHRIST despaired when he them.

Answ. But Calvin is farre from any such execrable and hellish blasphemy. For having by occasion of these words amplified the sorrowes and distresses of CHRIST in the time of his passion, he saith (Comment. in 27. Matth.) That there were some who charged him that he said, these words were words of desperation, and that Christ despaired when he uttered them: but he curseth such hellish blasphemy, pronouncing, That howsoever his flesh apprehended destroying evils, and inferiour reasons shewed no issue out of the same, yet there was ever a most sure resolved perswasion resting in his heart, that he should undoubtedly prevaile against them, and overcome them. Dr. Field of the Church, Lib. 5, Cap. 18.

Object. 2 The Iewes urge this place to prove that Christ is not God, because upon the Crosse he cryed, That he was forsaken of God.

Answ. 1 First, St. Hierome answers hereunto, that Christ did not onely pronounce these words upon the crosse but also divers others, yea not these of set purpose (as though he had beene forsaken of God indeed) but onely occasionally. The Father saith 378 (and the Jewes will hardly prove the contrary) that our blessed Saviour when he hung upon the Crosse sang the 22. Psalme, from verse 1, to verse 29. And therefore by these words, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me; our Saviour would not shew, that he was forsaken by God, but onely that he repeated and uttered these words together with the other verses of that 22 Psalm.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Pet. Galatinus (Lib. 8. Cap. 18. page 343.) answers, that Christ spake these words, that thereby he might draw the Jewes to a serious consideration and animadversion of his death and passion, which he underwent not for his owne, but for our sinnes.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, what is the true meaning of these words, and how Christ was forsaken, is shewed before Question 3.

Sect. 3. §. 3. They that stood there said, He calleth for Elias:]

Object. The Papists object this place to prove, that the Scripture is not to be read by the Laity, or common people; arguing thus, When CHRIST upon the Crosse cryed, Eli, Eli, lamasabachthani, the people did not understand what he said, and therefore some say, He calleth for Elias. Ergo, the common sort must not read the Scripture in a known tongue, Bellar. de verbo Dei lib. 2. cap. 15.

Answ. 1 First, St. Hierome (upon this place) saith, that these who say, he calleth Elias, were the Souldiers who were Romans and strangers; and therefore no wonder if they did not understand the words of Christ. If this exposition be true (as is acknowledged by divers eminent Popish writers, which we shall name by and by) then the meaning of the Argument is this; Those without the Church (that is, Heathens) did not understand these words of Christ: Therefore those within the Church (that is, Christians) may not read the word of Christ in a language which they understand. This is so absurd a Consequence, that I will forbeare the refutation thereof.

Answ. 2 Secondly, some answer that they who said, He calleth for Elias, were the rude and ignorant people who stood by, and understood not Hebrew, but thought he had called Elias, whose name (as it seemed to them) he pronounced in Hebrew. Now if this be the true sense of this place, then the meaning of the Cardinals argument is this. There were some so ignorant among the Jewes and so ill read in the Scriptures, that they could not understand Christ, when he uttered this sentence of the 22. Psalme in hebrew, Eli, Eli, lamasabacthani: And therefore none must read the Scriptures in a toung which they understand, but they of the Clergie although they be as able to read them in the Originall tongues, and to understand them as they of the Clergie are. This consequence being as absurd as the first, I passe it by.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Beza answers (upon this verse) that these who say, He calleth for Elias, and wee will see whether Elias will come, were Iewes and spake not this through ignorance of the Hebrew tongue, but out of prophane wantonnesse, taking occasion hereby (according to their old wont) to mocke and deride CHRIST; as if they would say, When he cannot free himselfe he calleth upon Elias to helpe him, and deliver him. Now there is a probability of truth in this, for undoubtedly there were Iewes standing by as well as Gentiles, and in probability, some learned Iewes (who understood the Hebrew tongue, and the sense of the Hebrew text) as well as ignorant and unlearned. Now if this exposition be true, then the meaning of the Jesuits Argument is this: some understood these words of our Saviours, but profanely mocked, and wickedly perverted them; therefore none hereafter (but the Clergy) must read the word of God in a tongue which they understand. This Consequence all learned Papists will blush at; and therefore I enlarge it not. Yea this answer doth overthrow the Antecedent of the Argument, which affirmes that they who spake these words, Hee calleth for Elias, understood not indeed what Christ spake. And thus whether the place speake of Gentiles or Iewes, and that whether learned or unlearned, yet it will not make for their prohibition of reading the Scripture in the vulgar tongue.

Fourthly, these words which were spoken by our Saviour upon the Crosse [Eli, Eli, Lamasabacthani] were not understood by those who stood about him. Therefore no Lay person must read the Scripture in a tongue which is understood by him: followes not. For Answ. 4

I. These words were spoken to God his Father, who understood well enough what he said, and not unto the people. And

II. When CHRIST spake unto the people, and teached them, he then spake unto them in a tongue which they understood; which is so evident from the Gospell that no Papist dare justifie or maintaine the contrary. Yea upon the Crosse, when he spake unto the Thiefe he spake unto him in a language which he understood. And

III. These who stood about CHRIST, and spake these words were mockers, persecuters, and enemies; and therefore it followes not, these understood not what was said, therefore none must read the Scriptures. And

IV. These through affected or wilfull ignorance (or at least for want of teaching) understood not what CHRIST here said, therefore none by reading of the Scriptures in a knowne tongue must learne what CHRIST saith unto them, followes not. And

V. It was not all that were about the Crosse, or about CHRIST on the Crosse, that said these words, Hee calleth for Elias, and therefore it followes not, that none of the Laity, must read the Word in a knowne tongue, verse 47. it is said, Some of them said, &c. not all of them said &c. Now a particularibus ad universalia non valet consequentia. Some could not say Shiboleth, therefore none must say Shiboleth, is an Argument which deserves a lash.

VI. It may be that these who mockingly said; Hee calleth upon Elias, were Scribes and Pharisees (and it is hard if I should affirme this for the Papists to confute it) and then the Argument goes directly against the Clergy as he frames it, viz. The Scribes and Pharisees understood not or perverted CHRISTS words; and therefore no Priests or Church-men may read the Scripture, nor understand it.

The

Object. 2 The Papists object this place further to prove Invocation of Saints; arguing thus, This invocating of Saints was held, and practised by the Iewes, as appeares by this their speech, He calleth upon, or he prayeth unto Elias; and therefore it is no novelty or such an erroneous opinion, as deserves to be exploded out of the Schoole of Christians. See Bp. Mort. app. Lib. 3. Cap. 7. §. 2. page 374.

Answ. 1 First, to prove the invocation of Saints, from Christs invocating of his Father is too too grosse.

Answ. 2 Secondly, to invocate the Saints was the opinion of the Iewes; and therefore may be held by the Christians is a very bad conclusion. For themselues will not say, that all the opinions maintained and held by them, either ought, or may lawfully be maintained by us.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, for a Papist to prove Invocation of Saints from the practise of the Iewes, before Christs ascension is a very unadvised enterprise: for either

I. Before Christs ascension the soules of the Saints were in heaven; and then Limbus patrum fals to the ground. Or else

II. They were not in heaven, but in Limbo patrum; and then the Iewes erred in this opinion: for (according to the doctrine, and tenet of the Church of Rome) the Saints were not to be prayed unto, untill they were in heaven; because how can they mediate and intercede for us unto God, who

First, are excluded out of the Lords glorious presence?

Secondly, who know not our wants, nor heare our prayers? Now the Papists say, that the Saints in Heaven may be prayed unto because they stand before God, or in his presence, and because they see all our wants in the face of God, as in a glasse; but not so when they were in Limbo patrum. And therefore I conclude, If the Saints were in Heaven before Christs ascension, then the Papists erre, in their opinion of Limbus Patrum, if the Saints before that time were not in Heaven, then the Iewes erred, in their opinion of the invocating of Saints, and if the Iewes erred herein, then this will prove but a lame Argument, the Iewes erroneously prayed unto the Saints, when they could neither heare nor helpe, nor pray for them, and therefore Christians may maintaine it now; yea if this Argument be good, the Iewes prayed unto the Saints in the time of the Old Testament; and therefore Christians may in the time of the New; then so is also this, The Iewes believed that the Saints were then in Heaven, in the glorious presence of God; and therefore Christians should beleeve so also, which is contrary to the belief of the Papists. And thus by this Argument they have entangled themselves in a Maze, and labyrinth, come out as they can.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, besides these Answers, one more is given to the place, very full, and unanswerable; They who said, that CHRIST called upon Elias, were either

I. Gentiles who were Romane Souldiers; and of this opinion was St. Hierome (saith Salmeron) as being the common opinion; yea also their own Maldonate, and Iansenius. Now if this be true, then the foresaid Argument is but heathenish, viz. The Heathens thought that Christ prayed for helpe unto the Saints; therefore Christians may be of the same belief] For the Heathens (wee know) did invocate many Gods. Or

II. These were Iewes; now admit we that they were; then they must either have beene,

First, of the vulgar sort and ranke, and then we may thinke, they erred, by reason (which Maldonate noteth) of their ignorance of Scriptures; and so the Argument is unreasonable, which hath no better patronage then Ignorance. Or

Secondly, they were of the literate, and learned Iewes; and if so, then they were spoken either

I. In earnest, now suppose this (though there is no proofe of it, and that it is denied by the Popish Doctors) yet doth it not necessarily concerne the Invocation of Saints departed, but of the living; because some Jewes held an opinion (as Arias Montanus obserueth) that Elias yet living did sometimes appeare unto men: And so the argument is insufficient, concluding an Invocation of the dead from the invocation of a person living. Or

II. These words were spoken by the learned Iewes in scorne and contempt of Christ (as by the confessions of our Adversaries, some Fathers have affirmed) then is their argument being taken from mockery, apparently frivolous. And thus is their probable Argument for Invocation of Saints, become by foure necessary suppositions, either Heathenish, or childish, or impertinent, or ridiculous, (Bp. Mort. App. Lib. 3. Cap. 7. §. 3. Page 375.)

VERS. 48. And straightway one of them ran, Vers. 48 and tooke a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a Reed, and gave him to drink.

Quest. Why did they give this sharpe, and bitter unto Christ?

Answ. For the answer hereof we must observe, that in the time of execution, they gave the malefactor Granum thuris in calice vini, A graine of frankincense in a cup of wine (Maimon in Sanhederim. Cap. 13.) And this they did give to cause a giddinesse in the condemned persons head, that thereby he might be lesse sensible of the paine. St. Marke calleth this Cup, Wine mingled with myrrhe, Mark. 15. 23. This and thus the Iewes were wont to doe, but the Souldiers here in mockery mingled Vinegar and Gall with it, verse 34. of this Chapter: And afterwards gave him a second cup in derision, when they tooke a Sponge, and filled it with Vineger, and put it on a Reed, in this verse, St. Marke in the first Cup mentioneth the custome of the Iewes, which in it selfe had some shew of compassion; for the ground of this custome was taken from that, Proverb. 31. 6. Give strong drinke unto him that is ready to perish. St. Matthew here mentioneth onely their wicked mixture, contrary to the received custome, so that one Evangelist must expound the other. This first Cup was so usually given before execution, that the word Calix, A cup, is sometimes in Scripture put for death it selfe. Father if it may be, let this Cup passe from me, verse 39. Chapter 26.

380

Vers. 51, 52, 53. VERS. 51, 52, 53. And behold the vaile of the Temple was rent in twaine, from the top to the bottome, and the Earth did quake, and the Rocks rent, and the graves were opened, and many bodies of Saints which slept, arose, and came out of the graves after his Resurrection, and went into the holy City, and appeared unto many.

Sect. 1. §. 1. And the Rockes rent.]

Quest. What may we observe from this renting of the Rocks, or what did it signifie?

Answ. 1 First, the renting of the Rocks is a signe of the anger of God, Nahum. 1. 6.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it is an Argument of the innocency and Majesty of Christ; as though the hard Rocks could not indure this wicked and most unjust Murder of their Creator.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Christ is the Rock of our salvation, 1 Corinth. 10. 4. And therefore because the soule of CHRIST was loosed from his body by death (according to that prediction, that he should be cut of from the land of the living, Esa 53. 8.) the Rocks

Answ. 4 were rent.

Fourthly, the Pharisees blaming Christ (Luke 18. 40.) because he suffered the Children and his Disciples to salute him, with those acclamations, and applauses, which were due unto the Messias onely, our Saviour saith, If these should hold their peace, the stones would speake: Which was truly accomplished at this time, for when the Disciples durst not speake, the stones did, by renting in two, preaching Christ to be the true promised Messias.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, this renting of the Rocks doth accuse the obstinacy and hardnesse of the Iewes, who were more obdurate and flinty then the very Rocks, for those rent, at this horrible murder of the Lord of glory, but they neither relented at it, nor repented them of it. Read Zach. 7. 12. and Ierem. 5. 3. and Ese. 2. 10.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, this renting of the Rocks doth shew how God in his anger, doth not powre out his whole indignation, but remembers mercy. He who rent the Rocks in pieces, could as easily have destroyed the whole people of the Iewes, and reduced them unto nothing; but he rather desired to shew the mightinesse of his power in the inanimate creatures, & the unspeakablenesse of his mercy in yet offering salvation to so unworthy & wicked a generation. In this place we read how the earth was shaken and moved, yea how it cleft and gaped, but we read of none who were swallowed up therewith, the Rocks are rent, but men are not torne in pieces, though harder and more obdurate then the Rocks: the graves open that the dead may arise, not that the living may be swallowed up for so great and horrible wickednesse as they had committed.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, from this renting of the Rocks, let us learne to rent our flinty hearts by true and unfaigned repentance, Ioel 2. 12. lest in the day of judgement for our impenitency and hardnesse of heart, we be forced to cry and call to the Mountaines to fall upon us, and to the Hils to cover us from him which sits upon the Throne, Revel. 6. 16.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And many which slept arose, and came out of the graves, and went into the City, and appeared unto many.]

Object. Many Papists, yea Popish writers hold, that soules after they are departed, may returne on earth again and appeare unto men, & this opinion they would ground upon this place, arguing thus; At the Resurrection of Christ many rose againe; and therefore the soules of dead men may returne againe.

Answ. 1 First, we deny not but God is able to raise the dead unto life, and to send a Spirit backe unto the earth againe for a time, but whether he wils this to be at all, or as often as the Papists would have it (for walking Spirits, and Ghosts are most frequent with them) we know not; and leave unto them to prove; for they must neither argue from his power to his will [He being able to doe more then he is willing to doe] nor from an extraordinary worke to an ordinary, he doing divers rare and admirable things sometimes upon some speciall occasion, which he will not ordinarily doe.

Answ. 2 Secondly, to the place objected we answer, that their soules did not onely appeare, but their bodies also were restored unto life. And therefore the Argument followes not.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, those who were raised did not forewarne the living of any judgement to come, or command them to doe this or that for the deads sake, viz. either to pray for them, or to goe on pilgrimage to some Saint, &c. which is the ordinary and usuall charge of the Popish Spirits. And therefore they have from this place but a bad foundation to build their apparition of Spirits upon.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, these in the text were raised up for these ends; namely,

I. To confirme Christs Resurrection from death unto life.

II. To confirme our Resurrection by Christ, God the Father shewing hereby unto us, that Christ by his death had overcome, and destroyed death to the faithfull, and that at the last day their soules and bodies shall be knit together and live with God and Christ for ever.

Vers. 54. VERS. 54. Now when the Centurion and those who were with him, watching Iesus, saw the Earthquake, and those things which were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this man was the Son of God.

We shewed before how Fevardentius affirmes, that Christ did not truly complaine that he was forsaken of his Father, verse 46. and we answered one of his Arguments in that place. He now summons up the Centurion and watch against us, arguing further thus from hence, for the confirming of his assertion. The Centurion, notwithstanding Christ so complained and cryed out, yet confesseth thus of him, This truly was the Sonne of God, and a righteous man: and therefore he was farre off from imagining that Christ was forsaken of God, Fevardent, Page 474.

Object.

Answ. 1 First, the Centurion being a Romane understood not the language, wherein Christ complained, crying out, That he was forsaken.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Evangelist here plainly sheweth, that not the hearing of those words, but the seeing of the Earthquake, and other things which were done, drew that confession from the Centurion, That Christ was the Sonne of God.

Thirdly,

Answ. 3 Thirdly, we deny not, but that notwithstanding CHRIST truly complained he was forsaken, yet he was the Son of God still: for the hypostaticall union was not thereby dissolved (as we shewed before, verse 47.) but as the soule of Christ being parted from his body, was separated onely from it τοπικῶς non ὑποστατικῶς, locally not hypostatically, Damasc. lib. 3. de fid. Cap. 27. And as the soule ceased working in the body, and yet was not divorced in the personall being from the body: so the filiall union was not dissolved, though the effectuall feeling were for a while discontinued.

Vers. 59 60. VERS. 59, 60. And when JOSEPH had taken the body, he wrapped it in a cleane linnen cloth, and laid it in his owne new tombe, which he had hewed out in the rocke, and he rolled a great stone to the dore of the Sepulchre, and departed.

For the understanding of these two verses, we must observe, That as often as the Jewes buried any, they were wont to role a great stone to the mouth of the Cave: and now the cave or vault it selfe they termed from the act of buriall, Keber, which signifieth a place of buriall; or from its forme, Magnara, a denne, or Cave. The severall cels or receptacles in which the body was laid, they called Cucim, graves, or tombes, and the stone they named Golel, a rolling stone. These Caves or vaults the wealthier sorts would paint, garnish, and beautifie at the mouth or entrance of them: whence commeth that phrase, Sepulchra dealbata, painted tombes.

VERS. 63. Sir we remember, that that seducer or deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After, three dayes I will rise againe. Vers. 63

Quest. These wicked Scribes and Pharisees call Christ a Seducer, and Deceiver, now how doth it appeare that he was no such person?

Answ. 1 First, it is evident thus, If we looke upon Morall things, he was the Master of all morall vertues.

Answ. 2 Secondly, if wee looke upon divine things, he was given to one God, and after the manner of the Iewes worshipped one God. And although hee did not worship this God with the sacrifices of sheepe and oxen; yet he did with the sacrifices of a pure mind, which sacrifice the Lord much rather accepts of. And Answ. 3 Thirdly, it is cleare from his Miracles, for they shew his divinity. And Answ. 4 Fourthly, it is manifest, because he seduced us not by his doctrine; for he both did, & spake all things well, teaching us nothing contrary to the law of God, Euseb. lib. 3. de demonstr. evang. Cap. 4, 5.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verse. 1. VERS. 1. In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawne, towards the first day of the weeke, came MARY Magdalene, and the other MARY to see the Sepulchre.

Sect. 1 §. 1. In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawne.]

The words in the originall here are, ὀψὲ δὲ σαββάτων τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ εἰς μίαν σαββάτων; That is, And in the evening of the Sabbaths, which begins to shine upon one of the Sabbaths. Or as Syrus reads it. And in the evening in the Sabbath, the light of which evening is the first light in the weeke. From hence some doubts and demands may arise: viz.

Quest. 1 What is meant here by Vespera the Evening?

Answ. 1 First, sometimes, and that oftentimes, this word Evening doth denote and signifie the whole time of the night: but it doth not so signifie in this place.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Evening doth properly signifie the beginning of the night: but not so neither in this verse.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, sometimes the Evening signifies that part of the night which preceeds the morning, and thus it signifies in this place.

Quest. 2 What is meant by the Sabbath, because in this verse mention is made of a double Sabbath? In the Evening of the Sabbath which shines before one of the Sabbaths.

Answ. 1 First, sometimes this word Sabbath is taken for the seventh day, on which God rested from his worke, and which he sanctified, Exod. 20. And thus it is taken in the former part of the verse, ὀψὲ δὲ σαββάτων, in the end of the Sabbath.

Answ. 2 Secondly, both in the Syrian and Hebrew toung this word Sabbath doth often signifie the Weeke, and the dayes of the weeke are denominated thus in their order, the first day of the Sabbath, and the second day of the Sabbath, &c. And thus the whole weeke takes her denomination from the Sabbath, Ob eximiam dignitatem, for the dignity and excellency thereof. In this sense Sabbath is taken in the next words of this verse, εἰς μίαν σαββάτων, upon one of the Sabbaths, that is, upon one of the weeke-dayes. And in this sense the Pharisee saith, Luke 18. That he fasteth twice in the Sabbath, that is, twice in the weeke.

Quest. 3 How doth St. Matthew say, that these women came unto the Sepulchre in the Evening of the Sabbath, seeing some of the other Evangelists say, That they came betimes in the morning, or assoone as it was light in the first day of the weeke?

Answ. 1 First, some answer hereunto probably, that St. Matthew respects here their intention and desire, not their action and deed: and therefore saith, they came in the Evening of the Sabbath, not because they tooke their journey at the beginning of the night, nor before midnight; but because then they began to prepare themselves for their journey, and passed away the whole night without sleepe, waiting for the break of day, Carthus. f. pag. 230. b.

Answ. 2 Secondly, others answer, that there is a threefold morning; viz.

1. When

382

I. When there is more darkeneſſe then light; and this morning belongeth to the night going before.

II. When there is a like darkeneſſe and light; and this ſtandeth as a midſt betwixt both the day and the night. III. When there is more light then darkeneſſe; and this morning belongeth to the day following. This may be confirmed out of Scripture thus; St. Matthew in this verſe ſaith, ὀψὲ δὲ σαββάτων, &c, Serum Sabbathi, &c. The Iewes Sabbath being ended, it began to dawne to the firſt day of the weeke; Now the firſt part of theſe words hath relation to the firſt morning, in which there is more darkeneſſe then light; and the latter part hath relation to the third morning, in which there is more light then darkeneſſe. The firſt morning St. Marke calleth it, διαγενομένου τοῦ σαββάτου, The Iewes Sabbath being ended: St. Luke calleth it, ὄρθρου βαθέος τῇ μιᾷ τῶν σαββάτων, upon the firſt day of the Weeke when there was great darkeneſſe as yet. St. Marke calleth the third morning λίαν πρωὶ τῆς μιᾶς σαββάτων, early in the morning, the firſt day of the weeke, when there was more light then darkeneſſe, and St. John explaineth this, πρωὶ σκοτίας ἔτι ὄσης, While as yet there was ſome darkeneſſe. When the women roſe to goe to the Sepulchre, it was the firſt morning being very darke: When they were going to it, it was betwixt light and darkeneſſe; and this was the ſecond morning; but when they were at the Sepulchre, Chriſt was riſen, and that was the third morning. Weemſe. exercit. divine upon prec. 4. lib. 1. pag. 202.

Our Divines ſay, that in the Interpretation of Scriptures an Expoſitor muſt carefully conſider both the time, when the thing to be interpreted was ſpoken and whereof it ſpeakes, and alſo the perſons whereunto it hath relation. And the neceſſity of this rule may be ſeene by this verſe and hiſtory; as for example,

Firſt, obſerve here, that the Iewes had a two-fold day; to wit,

I. A naturall day, containing day and night, and conſiſting of 24. houres. And

II. An artificiall day, beginning at Sun-riſing, and ending at Sun-ſet: Of this St. Iohn ſpakes. 11. 9. Are there not twelve houres in the day? Now their Naturall day was two-fold; to wit,

Firſt, Civill, a working day which was deſtined for civill buſineſſes and workes: and this began at Sunne-riſing, and continued till the next Sun-riſing. And Secondly, Sacred, a holy-day, or a Feſtivall, deſtined for holy exerciſes: and this is twofold; viz.

I. An ordinary Feſtivall, or Holy-day, and this began at Evening or Sun-ſet, and continued until the next Sun ſet. And

II. An extraordinary Holy-day; & that is either

Firſt, the Paſſeover, which by the inſtitution of the Lord began at the Evening, or, firſt part of the night, and continued untill that time of the ſecond morning when Chriſt aroſe againe from the dead.

Secondly, the Sabbath, and ſeventh day, which beginneth after midnight, when it is dawning towards the day, that is, when the day is aſcending upwards. Therefore our Evangeliſt ſaith here, When it began to dawne towards the firſt day of the weeke, in the originall it is ἐπιφωσκειν, which ſignifieth to wax towards the light, although it be not light; and neither ſignifieth.

I. Habhdul, Candela ſeparationis, the candle of ſeparation, with which the Iewes uſed to make a diſtinction betwixt the Sabbath, and the day following. Nor

II. The light of the ſtarres, as ſome would have it. Nor

III. The riſing of the morning ſtarre. But

IV. That time onely, when the Sabbath beginneth to be kept, and dawneth towards it.

Secondly, in the tranſlating of Scripture, wee muſt take heed, what ſort of people the phraſe hath relation unto: as for example, Marke 16. 2. it is ſaid, πρωὶ τῆ σαββάτου, in the end of the Sabbath; where we muſt obſerve, that this ſpeech hath relation to the forme of the Greekes, and not of the Hebrewes: For the Iewiſh Sabbath began in ὀψὲ in the evening, and the Greekes, in πρωὶ in the morning. Wherefore St. Marke hath relation to the Greekes, and not to the Iewes, and therefore πρωὶ ſhould bee tranſlated Serum Sabbathi, the laſt part of the Sabbath, according to the Iewes, when the Sabbath was ended; but according to the Greekes, in the beginning of the Sabbath; for their day began in πρωὶ in the morning, Acts 28. 23. ἀπὸ πρωὶ ἕως ἑσπέρας, a mane ad veſperam, from the morning to the evening. Weemſe Chriſtian. ſynag. pag. 71.

§. 2. There came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary.] Sect. 2.

How doth St. Matthew ſay, there were more women beſides Mary Magdalene, at Chriſts firſt apparition, both in this verſe, and the 9. ſeeing St. Marke ſaith, Chap. 16. 9. There was onely Mary Magdalene? Queſt.

Firſt, ſome ſay, that Mary Magdalene was the firſt who came to the Sepulchre, and ſaw CHRIST like the Gardener, and by and by acknowledged him to be the Lord, as it is Iohn. 20. 30, &c. And afterwards returning from the Sepulchre with the Angels meſſage, together with the other women, ſhe ſaw him againe, as St. Mathew ſeemes to mean. Anſw. 1

Secondly, ſome ſay, that St. Matthew uſeth here a Synechdoche, which is uſuall with the Evangeliſts; extending ꝧ to divers wch is proper only unto one. Anſw. 2

3 dly, others anſwer, that St. Mark reſtraines that unto one Mary, which was common to her companions, naming her onely as ꝧ chiefe of all, or, unto whō Chriſt more purpoſely appeared. Parens. ſ. Anſw. 3

VERS. 2. And behold there was a great earthquake, for the Angell of the Lord deſcended from heaven, and came and rolled backe the ſtone from the doore. Verſe 2.

If the ſtudious Reader would ſee what application may be made of this Earthquake, let him read Chēharm. part. 2. Gerard. pag. 248. b. And if he would ſee how hence Bellar. would prove, that the body of Chriſt doth not occupy any place, but that he may be at once intirely (in regard of his humanity) in many places: I ſeeme him to Chamier. tom. 2. de corp. Chriſti. lib. 6. Cap. 7. pag. 211. a. §. 22, 23.

VERS. 6. He is not here; for he is riſen, as he ſaid, Come ſee the place where the Lord lay. Verſe 6.

He

He is not here, for he is riſen.]

Queſt. 1 It is queſtioned and controverted betweene us and the Church of Rome, whether it imply a contradiction for on body to be whole and entire at the ſame time in many places?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, hereunto the Papiſts ſay, that the body of CHRIST may be, and is in many places at once, locally and viſibly, and that his fleſh is at the ſame time in heaven, and in earth in the Euchariſt. Bel. de Sacram. Euchar. lib. 3. Cap. 4.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, we affirme that it implies a contradiction to ſay, what they doe herein; and we prove it hence thus. The Scripture plainly ſaith, that Chriſt hath a true naturall body, and in all things like unto us. Hebr. 3. 17. Therefore neither can his body, being a true humane body, as ours are, be in many places at once; neither can it chuſe but occupie that roome and place where it is. The Angell ſaid, He is riſen, he is not here; but it had beene no good argument, to ſay, he is riſen, and gone to another place and therefore he is here, if ſo be the body of CHRIST might be in many places at once. The Scripture then hath defined it, that Chriſts body is in one certaine place. Wherefore to ſay, that Chriſt hath a true natural body, and yet retaineth not the naturall properties of a body, or, that he hath, and hath not a true naturall body, is to ſpeake contradictions. If the Reader would ſee this Anſwer of ours impugned, and the oppoſitions anſwered, Let him read Dr. Willet. ſynopſ. controv. general. 10. de Euchar. que. 1. pag. 611. &c. Amoſ. Bellarm. enervat. tom. 3. pag. 135.

The Angell by telling the women here that Chriſt was riſen againe from the dead, doth give occaſion unto us to conſider a little of the Reſurrection of Chriſts body. Our Queſtions here abouts ſhall be theſe Queſt. 2 What and how many are the parts of Chriſts Reſurrection?

Anſw. There are two parts of thereof; namely

Firſt, VIVIFICATION, which was the conjunction of the body and ſoule of Chriſt together againe, by the power of God, Iohn. 2. 19. and 10. 18. And is therefore attributed to the Father, Romans. 6. 4. and 8. 11. and Acts. 2. 24. although as it is opus ad extra, it is common to all the three perſons of the bleſſed Trinity. And

Secondly, a going out of the Sepulchre; for Chriſt being reſtored againe unto life, and all obſtacles which might hinder his Reſurrection being removed againe by an Almighty power, he came glorioully out of the grave or tombe wherein he was laid, Matth. 18, 2.

Queſt. 3 What are the Cauſes of Chriſts Reſurrection?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, the glory of God and Chriſt, Iohn. 17. 1. and Romans, 1. 4. And Anſw. 2 Secondly, the fulfilling of the Propheſies, Pſal. 16. 10, Matth. 12. 39. and 17. 13. and Acts. 4. 24. And

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, to ſhew that he is the Reſurrection, or that we are raiſed from death unto life, by the power of Chriſt, Iohn. 11. 25. And

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, becauſe Chriſt hath now fully ſatisfied for ſinne, and where there is no ſinne, there is no death, Romans. 6. 10. 23. And

Fifthly, he roſe againe for the diſcharging and executing of his Offices, becauſe part of them were principally to be performed after death, Read. Pſal. 110. 4, and 45. 7, and Eſa. 97. Luke 1. 33. and Rom. 8. 34. And Anſw. 5

Sixthly, that it might certainly and evidently appeare, that Chriſt overcame, the Devill, ſinne, and death. And Anſw. 6

Seventhly, the laſt cauſe of Chriſts Reſurrection was our ſalvation, Romans. 4. 25. Anſw. 7

Queſt. 4 What were the fruits of Chriſts Reſurrection?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, the fruit of Chriſts Reſurrection which reſpects himſelfe is this, namely, that having ſuffered for us, hee is made partaker of a glorious life for us. And

Anſw. 2 Secondly, the fruits of Chriſts Reſurrection reſpecting us, are theſe; to wit,

I. An effectuall application of his righteouſneſſe and ſatisfaction performed for us, Acts. 13. and Rom. 4. 25. and 1 Cor. 15, 18. And

II. Our regeneration and ſanctification by the holy Spirit, Rom. 6, 4, 5. Coloſ. 3. 1. and 1 Pet. 1. 3. And

III. A demonſtration, and obſignation of our Reſurrection unto life eternall, Rom. 8. 11. and 1 Cor. 15. 13. and Revel. 1. 5. And

IV. Conſolation againſt all affliction, yea death it ſelfe, Iob. 19. 25. and 2 Tim. 2. 8. And

V. A certainty of the defence, and full glorification of the Church, Iohn. 14. 3.

Queſt. 5 Why doth the Lord now adayes rather uſe the Miniſtery of men then of Angels, in confirming and Preaching the truth of CHRISTS Reſurrection?

Anſw. 1 Firſt, becauſe our infirmity and weakeneſſe cannot beare the light or aſpect of Angels; as we may ſee by theſe women who were afraid when they ſaw the Angell, verſe. 5.

Anſw. 2 Secondly, the Lord doth this for our greater conſolatio 1, that we hearing them, who are of the ſame nature with us, and ſinners like us, may be raiſed up to comfort.

Anſw. 3 Thirdly, this is done, becauſe the Lord would have an acceſſe to his heavenly doctrine made manifeſt, and laid open unto all men, in the miniſtery of the word, and not peculiar Revelations to be expected or ſought for by Angels, Romans 10. 6.

Anſw. 4 Fourthly, the Lord hath appointed that Chriſt ſhould be preached unto us by the Miniſtery of men & not of Angels, becauſe he would have all glory to be reſerved unto himſelfe, as in merit, ſo alſo in the application of the benefits of the Goſpell; for in this his power is wonderfully ſhewne, that againſt the gates of hell he oppoſeth weake men.

Anſw. 5 Fifthly, this was done alſo, that people might reverence, obey, and receive the Miniſters, as the Meſſengers and legates of Chriſt; and on the other ſide, that Miniſters might embrace, and love their people, with a ſincere and fatherly affection.

Anſw. 6 Sixthly, if Chriſt, and the Goſpell ſhould be preached unto us by Angels, it were neceſſary that they ſhould uſe a humane not an Angelicall ſpeech unto us [and hence the Angels appeared here in an humane forme, when they were to publiſh and preach the Reſurrection of Chriſt unto the 384 the women] And therefore the Lord will rather use the Ministerie of men then of Angels.

Vers. 7, 8 VERS. 7, 8. And goe quickly and tell his Disciples, that he is risen from the dead. And behold hee goeth before you into Galilee, there shall yee see him, behold I have told you. And they departed quickly from the Sepulchre with feare and great joy, and did runne to bring his Disciples word.

Sect. 1. §. 1. He goeth before you into Galilee.]
Quest. 1 Why doth CHRIST goe to Galilee?
Answ. To appeare to his Disciples there.
Quest. 2 Why will hee appeare unto them in Galilee, rather then in or about Jerusalem, where they now were?
Answ. 1 First, because they were of the country of Galilee, and came from thence up to Hierusalem; and therefore he will have them goe to the place from whence they came. And Answ. 2 Secondly, because he had resolved to spend some dayes with them, to instruct them in the knowledge of God, and to teach them, and confirme them in the truth, and to encourage them, to endure for his sake all the oppositions, and contradictions they should meet withall. Now it was more meet that they should abide in Galilee, then in Hierusalem, because that was the more safe place. And thus CHRIST had respect to the infirmity and weakenesse of his Disciples, untill they were armed with strength and courage from on high.
Answ. 3 Thirdly, this was done, because Christ would not have his Disciples idle; and therefore untill the time come, that he appeares unto them and they be sent to Preach the Gospell, hee will have them imployed in their ordinary calling. Whence Iohn. 21. we reade that they were fishing, which was their old vocation.

Vers. 9. VERS. 9. And as they went to tell his Disciples, JESUS met them, saying, All haile, And they came, and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

Sect. 1. §. 1. JESUS met them, saying, All haile.]
Quest. Why did CHRIST first appeare to women, and not to his Disciples? and first reveale his Resurrection unto them?
Answ. 1 First, some say, this was done, that the Resurrection of Christ might be divulged, and published; Iam verò mulieres nihil celare possunt, and women can keepe no secrets, but tell all they know. This ridiculous reason is given by Discip. de temp. serm. de Pasch. But Answ. 2 Secondly, this was rather done, that the Lord might observe still that olde custome of his, whereby he was wont to choose, the contemptible, ignoble, and abject things of the world, to confound the strong and mighty, 1 Cor. 1. 27, 28, 29. Now these women both in regard of the infirmity of their sexe, and for their countreyes sake Galilee, were held in contempt, Iohn 1. 46. But the Lord extols them, by first manifesting unto them the Resurrection of his Sonne, which is one of the principall Articles of our faith; yea sends them, to reveale it to the Apostles, Vt sic fierent Apostolorum Apostola, that so they might be made the Apostles of the Apostles, as the Auncients spake.
Answ. 3 Thirdly, women by nature being weaker, without doubt were smitten with a vehement sorrow of mind, for the reproachfull death of Christ, and those torments and paines which they saw him suffer in the day of the preparation, when they stood not farre off from the crosse: And therefore the joyfull message of Christs Resurrection is first of all shewed and declared unto them, to revive and comfort their sorrowfull heart; And for this cause Christ appeared unto Peter a part, viz. because as he sinned most hainously so he sorrowed most heavily; and therefore for his particular consolation, his Saviour appeares to him alone.
Answ. 4 Fourthly, this was done, that God by this meanes, might meet with, or take away, the calumnies of the Iewes. The Priests and Scribes afterwards say, that Iesus Disciples came, and stole him out of the Sepulchre: now that the impudency, and absurdity of this lye might appeare unto all, by the wonderfull providence of God it came to passe, that the women came unto the Sepulchre before the Apostles. Now it is no way probable or likely, that so few women could either role away so great a stone, as was laid at the caves mouth, or steale away the body which was kept by so many armed souldiers.
Answ. 5 Fifthly, death came into the world by a woman, viz. Evah; and therefore Christ would have his Resurrection (by which righteousnesse and life, is repaired and renewed unto us) to be first declared and shewed forth by women. As in the fall of the first man these three things concurred, to wit, The Devill perswading, the women shewing, the man eating, and corrupting of humane nature. So in the Resurrection of Christ also (by which mankind is repaired) there concurred, Christ rising, and redeeming humane nature, The Angell shewing the Resurrection, and the women carrying the good tydings unto others.
Answ. 6 Sixthly, these women with an earnest desire of mind, came very earely, yea as soone as they could see unto the Sepulchre; but the Apostles for feare durst not come in sight; and therefore the Lord recompenseth this their courage, and boldnesse with the first newes of Christs Resurrection, and with the first sight of him, after he is risen. Chem. harm. parte. 2. Gerard. pag. 255. b.

Sect. 2. §. 2. And they held him by the feet.]
Quest. Why doth our Saviour permit his feet to be held and touched by these women, seeing St. Iohn saith Chap. 27. That he would not suffer Mary Magdalene to touch him, but forbad her saying, Touch me not, and gives this reason, For I am not yet ascended unto my Father?
Answ. 1 First, some say, that our Saviour forbad her to touch him, for this mysticall cause, to insinuate unto her, that she ought not to thinke of him, as formerly she had thought, that is, that now she must have no humane conceits of him. Her faith as yet was very imperfect as well as the faith of the rest, as appeares by hers and their buying and preparing paring of spices, and oyntments for the enbalming of the body of IESUS, as though his body could have putrified and corrupted, & as though it should not have bene raised up to life the third day; (f)

(f) Carthus. pag. 231. b.

Answ. 2 Secondly, others answer, that when Mary now held the feet of CHRIST, he forbad her to touch him, that is, not to continue long holding him, or kissing his feet, but quickly to dispatch, and goe about that message which the Angell had given them all in charge (g). And this seemes to be the truest answer.

(g) Paræus. f. p. 900. a.

I. From the next verse, where our Saviour againe gives them the charge which was given them by the Angell, See verse. 7. and 10. And

II. From the reason given John. 20. 17. Touch me not, for I am not as yet ascended unto my Father: which words although they be diversely interpreted, have notwithstanding this plaine, and simple meaning, Why dost thou prolong the time in holding and kissing my feet. Let them now goe, for I am not about presently to ascend unto my Father, but I will before my Ascension tarry with you a certaine time; when both those and the rest, may both see and touch me, Now therefore forebare, and goe tell my Disciples &c.

Sect. 3 §. 3, And they worshipped him.]

Quest. How is adoration attributed or given to the humanity, or flesh of CHRIST, seeing it is a worship proper to the Deity?

Answ. Although the flesh of CHRIST, as flesh and a creature is not to be adored, but it selfe adores the divinity (as Cyrill speakes, de recta fide ad Theod. lib. 1. Col. 693.) yet in regard of the union thereof Cum λόγῳ with the substantiall word which is to be adored, the flesh is coadored with one adoration: because neither in faith, nor in vocation, can the flesh be separated from the Deity. Indeed the proper cause of adoration is λόγος the Divinity which is in the body, and with the body of Christ, and which λόγος is onely adorabilis. And therefore as the purple robe, or, Crowne of the King separated from the body, or head of the King, are not to be worshipped; but being on the head or body of the King, the King with his Crowne and robe on are worshipped: So also λόγος the divinity of Christ with his flesh. The like Question unto this is handled, by Epiphanius in Anchorato, pag. 367. and by Augustine de verb. Dom. serm. 58. and Chemnit. harm. Part. 2. Gerard. pag. 342. a. medio.

Vers. 10. VERS. 10. Goe bid my brethren goe into Galilee, and there they shall see me.

Quest. How often did Christ appeare unto any after his Resurrection?

Answ. 1 First, St. Marke saith that Christ first appeared unto Mary Magdalene onely, neare unto the Sepulchre; and this St. John also mentions, 20. 16.

Answ. 2 Secondly, afterwards he appeared to Mary together with some other women; as our Evangelist here hath it, verse. 9.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, he appeared to two Disciples that were going to Emaus and talked with them; Marke 16. 12, and Luke 24. 13.

Fourthly, he appeared to Peter alone, Luke 24. 34, and 1 Cor. 15. 5. 385

Answ. 4 Fifthly, he appeared to the ten Apostles, when they were together in one house, Thomas being absent, Luke 24, 26. John. 20. 19. And all these five Apparitions I conceive have beene upon the day that he arose from death unto life. Answ. 5

Answ. 6 Sixthly, he appeared to the Apostles, being shut up in one house, when Thomas was with them. And this was 8. dayes after the Resurrection. And these 6. Apparitions were in Iudea.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, he appeared unto the Disciples in a Mountaine in Galilee, Matth. 28. 16. Whence it seemes to me cleare and evident, That the Disciples did not goe presently after they had received the command, into Galilee, but some 8. dayes after. Yea this is the Apparition (I conceive) which St. Paul speakes of, 1 Cor. 15. 6. where he saith, That CHRIST was seene of above 500 brethren at once; who either followed the Apostles out of Iudea, or flocked unto them when they were on the Mountaine, out of Galilee.

Answ. 8 Eightly, hee was seene againe by seven of his Disciples, as they were fishing at the Sea of Tiberias, Iohn 21. 1. &c.

Answ. 9 Ninthly, hee appeared to Iames alone, 1 Corinth. 15. 7.

Ans. 10 Tenthly, he was seene againe by all the Apostles after they were returned from Galilee to Jerusalem. And this is mentioned both by Mathew, Marke, Luke, and Paul, 1 Corinth. 15. Now all these ten Apparitions were in the Earth.

Ans. 11 Eleventhly, there were two Apparitions of Christ from Heaven. viz.

I. Hee was seene of St. Stephen, the first who suffered for him, after his Ascension, Act. 7. 55. And

II. Hee was seene of St. Paul as he went to Damascus, Act. 9. 3. and 22. 6. and 1 Cor. 15. 8.

Ans. 12 Twelfthly, there shall bee another Apparition of him from Heaven in the last day, when all the people of the earth shall see him comming in the clouds. See Dr. Mayer upon this Verse, Page 331, 332.

Vers. 13. VERS. 13. Say yee, his Disciples came by night, and stole him away while wee slept.

Quest. How may this be proved to be a lye, becaus it is commonly reported among the Jewes as a truth untill this day, verse 15. That his Disciples stole him away by night?

Answ. 1 First how can it be imagined that the Disciples of CHRIST, who fled, and were scattered abroad when hee was apprehended, and sought lurking holes in the time of his Suffering, dare now come to his Sepulchre to take away his body which is guarded about with Souldiers for this very purpose? Chap. 26. 63, 64. And how can the armed Souldiers bee terrified or affrighted by unarmed Apostles.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the Sepulchre wherein Christ was laid, was hewed out of a Rocke; and therefore the Disciples could not by any underground caves, or secret cranies or passages, steale him away, and not come in the sight of the Souldiers.

Thirdly,

586 Thirdly, if the Disciples would have adventured to have stollen the body of CHRIST, they would Answ. 3 not have staid untill it was guarded with a troupe of Souldiers, but would have enterprised it before, viz. on the foregoing night, when they might have done it with more safety, and lesse danger.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, the Disciples could not watch one houre with CHRIST in the garden, and shall wee thinke that they would wake a whole night (almost) to steale away a dead man?

Answ. 5 Fifthly, how could the Disciples remove away so great a stone, as was laid at the Caves mouth, and the souldiers neither perceive it, nor awake?

Answ. 6 Sixthly, it was not the Disciples, but the women who came first unto the Sepulchre; yea the Disciples for feare had shut themselves up in bolted and locked houses; and therefore there was no colour to dawbe over this lye, That his Disciples came and stole him away.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, if there had beene no need of oppressing, & suppressing the truth, then why doe the high Priests and Scribes take counsell together, and summon a Conventicle? If the thing had beene true, then why doe they instruct the Souldiers in a lye? If the Souldiers speake nothing but truth, then why doe they take money? If the Disciples did steale him away, then why doe not they seeke to recover him from them, and make them by force and violence to bring him backe againe or confesse the fact, which they never went about at all?

Answ. 8 Eightly, if the Souldiers slept, then how could they tell that it was the Disciples who stole him away? If all were asleepe but one, who knew the Disciples, and saw what they intended, then why did not he awake the rest? If they all were awake, then why doe they lye in saying he was stolne, while they slept? If they say they saw and durst not speake, who will beleeve them to be such cowards, to feare naked poore men, when themselves were armed, and set there on purpose to preserve the body from the theft of the Apostles? If others tell them that the Apostles stole him away, then why doe they so boldly relate it of their owne knowledge, and not rather produce the authours of the report, and make them prove it? And thus by infinite absurdities it may be shewed that this speech of the souldiers was a wicked untruth, and a wilfull lye.

Vers. 18 VERS. 18. And IESUS came, and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

Quest. 1 Who gave this power unto CHRIST?

Answ. God the Father, or, the whole blessed Trinity; for where this is ascribed to the Father, there Father is understood essentially, and not personally, Chap. 11. 27. Yea who can give all manner of power to the humanity of CHRIST, but the onely true God?

Quest. 2 What manner of power is this which is given to CHRIST?

Answ. 1 First, in generall, it is a plenary power: All power is given to me &c.

Secondly, againe in generall, it is not onely a terrene but also a Celestiall power. All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Answ. 2

Thirdly, more particularly, a three-fold power is given unto CHRIST; namely Answ. 3

I. Of Dominion, for he rules over all, and all power and dominion is subordinate unto him. Now this Dominion is two-fold; to wit,

First, Generall, over all in generall, he being the King of Kings.

Secondly, Particular, over all his children; and therefore he will protect and defend them.

II. Of Dispensation, and thus he is the Lord and Master over all, Matth. 11. 27. John. 3, 35. He is the Head of his Church, and all the senses externall and internall lye in the head; he is the fountaine of all grace, from whom is derived unto us whatsoever is good.

III. Of Judgement, and that both of this world, and also of the last day; for he shall judge all men and all matters. And thus unto him is given a power of Dominion whereby he rules over all; a power of Dispensation, whereby he distributes, imparts, bestowes, and gives what he will, unto whom he will; and a power of Judgement, whereby he punisheth and rewardeth whom he pleaseth here, and whereby he wil acquite and condemne whom he will, at the last day. And therefore most truly is it said by him: All power is given to me both in heaven and in earth.

Object. 1 Some object this place for the Vbiquity of Christ, arguing in this manner. Christ saith, all power is given to me; now this power was not given to his Deity, for that is equall with God; and therefore it must be given of necessity to his humanity. If then Christs humanity haue all power, it is omnipotent, and so can bee every where.

There are two things which I will distinguish (for the better understanding of this Objection) herein: viz. that Christs humanity is every where (to which we give the two first answers) and that it is Omnipotent, to which we give the third.

Answ. 1 First, in generall we must distinguish here between that power which the Gretians call Δύναμις Potentia, and that which they call ἐξουσία Potestas.

Ἐξουσία signifieth that power which we call authority, and which is grounded upon law; and such is the power of Kings over subjects, Parents, over children, Husbands over wives, and Masters over servants.

Δύναμις is properly a faculty, or ability to doe any thing, and consisteth in force, power, and strength, and such is the power, and puissance of most mighty Kings.

Now there is a great difference betweene these two, neither is one a necessary consequent of the other; as for example, we have many Kings and Monarches who have δύναμιν, and are of power to subdue their neighbours; and yet have not ἐξουσίαν any legall power over them; and on the contrary many have ἐξουσίαν legall authority, who haue not δύναμιν power or potency to represse rebellious subjects; that is, they have right, but they want might.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the word here used is not δύναμις but ἐξουσία, To me (saith Christ) is given πᾶσα ἐξουσία.

which

word signifies not an ability to doe all things, but authority to rule all things: so as when CHRIST saith, All power is given to me, he meaneth all that Authority, rule, and Dominion, which was given to him after his Resurrection over all things both Celestiall and Terrestriall, as to the King of Heaven and Earth, so that by vertue of this power he might send his Disciples now to the Gentiles, which before went onely to the lost sheepe of the house of Israell. And he saith not, all power is given to my humanity, but to mee; even a power of ruling, judging, condemning, absolving, and in briefe of doing all things, which may worke for the glory of his Father, and the good of his Church. But this power doth not prove his Humanity either to be of an infinite nature, for every where: for although his Divinity be of an omnipotent, and infinite nature, and consequently every where, yet his Humanity being created, is of a finite nature, yea a finite creature; and therefore cannot really be every where. To conclude, as it is impossible for a finite creature to be really every where; so this ubiquity cannot so be given to Christs infinite Humanity, as in its owne essence, properly, and really, it should be every where.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, wee say that this attribute of Omnipotencie is to be given to none but onely to God, no not to the humanity of CHRIST, which because it could not helpe it selfe in that great agony, prayed to his Father, to let the Cup passe away from him: and being in the like case upon the Crosse he continued his prayer unto his Father: Now would the humanity have prayed to God, if it had beene Omnipotent?

Object. 2 But Christ saith, That all power is given to him in heaven and in earth, which power is given to his humanity not to his Deity; and therefore his humanity is Omnipotent, for where all power is, there is omnipotency.

Answ. 1 First, as we said before, Christ speaketh of that power, which we call Authority, not of that which we call potencie: for hee saith not, πᾶσα δυναμις, omnis potentia, but πασα ἐξουσια, sed omnis potestas, is given unto me: speaking of that authority which was given to him after his Resurrection.

Answ. 2 Secondly he saith not all power is given to my humanity, but to mee, that is, to my person: the which power was therefore said to be given to him because whilst he was in the forme of a servant, he emptied himselfe of all glory, and after his Resurrection it was againe restored unto him, and hee declared to be the Sonne of God, being glorified of his Father, with that glory which he had before with him; as Iohn. 17. 2.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, but admit that Christ in these words (All power is given unto me) speaketh of his humanity; what then? must it needs follow, that his humanity is omnipotent? nothing lesse: but that it hath as much power given to it, as possibly can be given to, or received of any creature; for the humanity of Christ is the most potent of all creatures, but not an omnipotent creature: and for this cause our Saviour saith here, Omnis, that is, in omnia potestas, all power, or, a power over all, not summa potestas, a supreame or omnipotent power.

Fourthly, the humanity of Christ is omnipotent, not in it selfe, but in the Word, as the Word suffered not in it selfe, but in the flesh. Answ. 4

The Papists say (as Virgill saith of Cæsar, Divisum imperium cum Iove Cæsar habet) that Christ hath divided his Kingdome and power with the Virgin Mary. Now against this we produce hence this short Argument. Our blessed Saviour saith here, All power is given to me in heaven and earth; The power then, and Kingdome is not divided with Mary, but resteth wholly in Christ. Argum.

Some Romanists enlarge the jurisdiction of the Pope so farre as is the wide world, objecting this place to prove the Popes authority over the Heathens. Christ saith, Vnto me is given all power in heaven and earth; therefore saith (Carens. lib. 2. de potestate. Rom. pontif. Cap. 9.) the Pope hath authority over Infidels. Object. 3

First, all power was given to Christ; therefore the Pope hath authority over the Gentiles; is a grosse and absurd consequence. Answ. 1

Secondly, all power was given to Christ; therefore to the Pope also; is a blasphemous and Antichristian consequence. Answ. 2

Thirdly, Bellarmine answers hereunto (Bell. lib. 5. de. Rom. pontif. Cap. 5.) that this Power belonging unto Christ is so great, as that it is not communicable to any mortall man. Answ. 3

Fourthly, Barclaius (de potest. Papæ. Cap. 3.) such saith there is no Scripture which defendeth any universall jurisdiction of the Pope as this is. Yea Answ. 4

Fifthly, Bellarmine saith (lib. 5. de Rom. pontif. Cap. 2. initio) there is Scripture to confute it; for 1 Cor. 5. Chap. the Apostles saith, What have wee to doe with them who are without? meaning Infidels, who (saith he) are not subject unto the judgement of the Pope; nor unto the authority of the Church untill they be baptized. Answ. 5

VERS. 19. 20. Goe ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Sonne, and of the holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lee, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. Vers. 19. 20.

§. 1. Goe yee therefore. Sect. 1

In these two verses, the chiefe parts of the Apostles function, are thus to be discerned. As

First, their legacy which is immediately given them of God, unto all nations, and not restrained within any limits. And

Secondly, the publication of that doctrine which they received of the Lord. And Thirdly the administration of those Sacraments, which were instituted by God. And Fourthly, the protestation of that especiall aid, which although generally it concerne the whole Church, yet particularly it respecteth the Apostles themselves, Dr. Saravia, of Ministers. pag. 11.

§. 2. And teach. Sect. 2

Dr. Carier in his last letter [which is answered by our Dr. Hakewell, and which was written onely to derogate all he could from the Scripture, and to cast the authority thereof upon the Church, that is, as he else-where expresseth himselfe, the Clergie of Object.

388 the Church of Rome] doth lay downe this proposition; That our Saviour commanded not his Apostles, to write his Religion but to teach it, as in this verse, Ite praedicate, Goe and teach.

Answ. 1 First, by this Argument he would inferre that the Apostles sinned in going beyond their commission. For if he bid them to teach onely by word of mouth, and they both teach by word and writing, then they transgresse the Commandement of their Master, and consequently sinne. Now if Bellarmine, and Canus were alive, they would blush at the impudency of their Carier for this unheard of assertion.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Christ saith, Goe and teach, therefore they must not write followes not, for a man may teach aswell by his pen as by his tongue, by writing as speaking. Yea doctrine delivered by writing, as it is conveyed more purely and certainly without mixture, arising from humane frailty and corruption; so it spreads farther, and lasts longer, and if it degenerate, is more easily reformed. That is worthy to be marked, which St. Luke hath in the Preface of his Gospell to that noble Theophilus, viz. that although he confesseth, that he had beene instructed in the Doctrine of Religion, yet he thought it meete to write unto him, from point to point, that hee might have the certainty of those things: So that though he had indifferent good knowledge before, yet writing the story was the meanes to beget certainty: according to that of the Prophet David, This shall be written for the generation to come.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, this impudent bold assertion, will appeare to be such, both

I. By the Lords owne practise, who wrote the Decalogue once and againe in Tables of Stone. And

II. By the Lords owne Precept, he in expresse termes commanding his Servants the Prophets to doe the same. Read Exod. 17. 14. Esa. 8. 1. Ierem. 30. 2, Ezech. 37. 16. Habak. 2. 2. And

III. By the necessity of writing; for before the Law was written, what universall Apostasies there were from the true worship of God, the Floud is a sufficient testimony of; and after the Law was lost, though the Priest-hood continued, what generall swarvings there were both of Prince and people, as well in manners as religion, appeares 2 Chron. 34. What forbids us then to thinke that our Saviour in commanding his Apostles to teach all Nations, should not by vertue of that command, as well give them in charge to publish their Doctrine by writing, as to deliver it by word of mouth? Read besides Revel. 1. 11. 19. and Chap. 2. and 3. and there we shall see, that Christ commands Iohn to write what he saw.

Sect. 3 §. 3. All Nations.]

Object. 1 Some Papists object this place for the infallibility of their Church: CHRIST saith, Goe teach all Nations: Therefore the Church is free from errour, and the Doctrine thereof is in all things infallible.

Answ. 1 First, these words were spoken to the Apostles onely, and not to that which the Jesuits call the Catholike Church. Now we grant that their teaching was infallible, and all men were bound to heare it; for they taught that which afterwards they writ in the Scripture: yet they so taught, and with such commission, that the people are commended which examined their teaching by the Scriptures, Acts 17. 11.

Answ. 2 Secondly, we grant, that the Pastors of the Church in all ages have commission to teach likewise, but that proveth not all their teaching to be infallible alwayes, because naturall corruption hanging on them, they may faile in that which is committed to them. Mr. White Page 74.

Sect. 4 §. 4. Baptizing them.]

Object. 1 The Anabaptists (who are therefore called Catabaptists) objects this place against the practise of our Church, in Baptizing of Infants, Christ (say they) commands his Apostles, and consequently all Ministers, first to teach men, and afterwards to baptize them; but Infants cannot be taught, and therefore ought not to be baptized. Others of them argue from hence thus. These two are conjoyned by our Saviour, to teach and baptize, and to beleeve and baptize; as if he would say, the Apostles must first teach, and then baptize, and people must first beleeve, and afterwards be baptized. And therefore Infants being capable neither of teaching, nor beleeving, are not to be baptized.

Answ. 1 First, the Proposition is false, That Christs commands his Apostles first to teach, and afterwards to baptize, for these words, first, and afterwards are not in the Text.

Answ. 2 Secondly, our Saviour in this place prescribes an order to be observed in the conversion of the Gentiles; and doth prepone, or put preaching before Baptisme, because those who beleeved amongst the Gentiles were Adulti, men of yeares, and not Infants; who were first instructed and afterwards baptized, as under the Law the Proselites who were of age, were first instructed and afterwards circumcised. But the Infants of the Iewes were circumcised before they were instructed, as we shall see by and by.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, although Preaching in this place be put first, yet it followeth not hence, that therefore it ought alwayes to proceed and goe before Baptisme: for Marke 1. 4. Baptisme is put before preaching. Indeed I know that Iohn Baptist first preached, and then baptized.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, if the order of words be to be urged, then it will follow that all Nations are first to be taught, and afterwards to be baptized; that is, that all Nations must first be taught the Gospell, before that any of them be baptized; which is so grosse and absurd, that no Anabaptist will affirme it.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, the word here used [μαθητευσατε, teach] is generall, signifying every way and meanes whereby we are made the Disciples of Christ, and received into the Covenant of God; now this is, as well by the Sacraments as by the word.

Answ. 6 Sixthly, it is most certainly true, that our blessed Saviour doth conjoyne, his word and baptisme together, because Baptisme is not a common or dumbe and silent washing, but it is the Laver of water in the word, Ephes. 5. 26. and a sealing of the promises promises of the Gospell; and therefore can nor ought to be without the word; as Augustine saith, Tolle verbum ex baptismo, et quid erit aqua nisi aqua? Take the word viz. of Institution from Baptisme, and then the water is but bare water, and the washing therewith, but a vulgar lotion.

Answ. 7 Seventhly, Baptisme is a signing or sealing of the Doctrine of the Gospell; now it followes not, that therefore it is to be denied to Infants; for this is a part of the Doctrine of the Gospell, that Infants belong unto the promise of the New Testament (Acts 2.39.) and unto the Church of Christ (Isa. 49.20,21.) and unto the Kingdome of God, Matth. 19.14. And therefore this part of the doctrine of the Gospell is to be sealed by baptisme unto Infants.

Object. 2 But the Anabaptists yet instance, and urge, That Baptisme ought not onely to be the laver of water in the word, but also those who are baptized ought first to be instructed.

Answ. This was also required in the institution of Circumcision, from whence this objection may most plainly be explicated and resolved: For God first teacheth Abraham, and afterwards he is circumcised, Genes. 17.11.23. and doubtlesse Abraham himselfe did teach Ismael, and his household, before he circumcised them, as appeares by the Lords testimony of him, Genes. 18.19. yea both these were commanded in the Old Testament, viz. to teach their children, Deut. 4.6. 12. and to circumcise them, Genes. 17.11.23. and In adultis, in those of yeares of understanding, teaching went before circumcision, Genes. 17. but Infants, little ones, or babes are commanded to be circumcised on the 8. day, Genes. 17.12. and to be taught when they can aske and demand, What is meant by these testimonies, Deut. 6.20.21. And thus circumcision in Infants was before instruction, and this followed afterwards when they were capable thereof. From hence we answer to the Objection, that those of yeares of discretion, are first to be taught, and then to be baptized, but the Infants of Christians, first to be baptized, and afterwards to be taught.

Argu. 1 It is discussed betwixt us and the Papists, whether women or Lay-men ought to baptize? And we say, that neither Lay-men of what calling soever nor yet Mid-wives, or any other women, ought to baptize Infants. This we confirme from this place, The commission and charge to baptize, was given onely by our Saviour Christ, to his Apostles and all lawfull Ministers their successours; in this verse. Therefore Lay-men, and women, in baptizing goe beyond the commission of CHRIST.

Answ. Bellarmine answereth hereunto, That when Christ gave this Commission, there were many present besides the Apostles.

Reply. We deny not, but that many beside might be present, but he spake onely to his eleven Disciples, who are immediately named before, verse 17. Unlesse the Cardinall will say, that he made all the rest [viz. those 500. whom St. Paul speaketh of, 1 Cor. 15.] Apostles also, for he sendeth them to whom he directs his speech, into all the world, Marke 16.14.

Argu. 2 It is disputed betwixt us, and the Church of Rome, concerning the number of the Sacraments; we affirming that there are but onely two, and confirming it from hence. Christ onely commanded these two Sacraments [Baptisme and the Lords Supper] to be used for ever in his Church; instituting and commanding Baptisme in this place, and the Lords Supper, Chap. 26. Indeed Christ used many other Ceremonies himselfe, as lifting up of hands, the tempering of clay and spittle; And his Apostles used imposition of hands, and anointing with Oyle: But Christ hath not laid his Commandement upon these Ceremonies, injoyning us perpetually to use them, as he hath charged us with these two, Baptisme, and the Eucharist.

Argu. 3 It being questioned between us and the Church of Rome, whether the Sacraments be of equall dignity, and excellency, they pronounce an Anathema against him, who denieth, That Baptisme excelleth all the five Sacraments, & the Eucharist Baptisme. We willingly acknowledge that Baptisme excelleth their five forged, and fained Sacraments [viz. Confirmation, Penance, Matrimony, Orders, and Extreame Unction.] But that the Lords Supper should be preferred before Baptisme, as the more worthy, and excellent Sacrament, we find not in the word of God. Yea that both of them are of like dignity in themselves, and to be had equally and indifferently in most high account by us, we prove from this verse and other grounds; to wit, Concil Trid sess. 7. Can 3. & Bel. de sacram. Lib. 2. cap. 28.

First, they are both commanded and instituted by the same authority of our Lord JESUS CHRIST as Baptisme here, and the Lords Supper, Luke 22. 19. neither is one by the first institution advanced above the other.

Secondly, there is the same matter, and substance of both Sacraments; viz. CHRIST JESUS with all his benefits; for as Baptisme is said to save us by the Resurrection of Christ, 1 Peter 3.21. so the Cup, and bread in the Eucharist, are a Communion of the body and blood of Christ, 1 Corinth. 10.16.

Thirdly, there is one and the same end of both these Sacraments, which is the increase and strengthning of our Faith in the promises of God: as Rom. 6.5. and 1 Cor. 11.26. Therefore they are both of equall dignity and worthinesse.

If the Reader would see how these words are urged first by Chamier against that Popish practise of muttering and mumbling over the Child when it is to be baptized; and then secondly how they are inforced by Bellarmine for the proofe thereof, let him read Chamier. tom. 4. de Sacram. Lib. 1. Cap. 16. page 35. §. 9, 10, 11, & Cap. 18. page 40. §. 12. &c. ad. 19.

Quest. 1 Why were the Sacraments instituted, or for what end, or use were they ordained?

Answ. 1 First, one use or end of them is, to be publique signes, or notes of distinction, to distinguish us from Iewes, Turkes, and Infidels, and by which further we may professe our Faith in Christ, and the true Religion of CHRIST; this is plaine from Rom. 4. Where the Apostle calls Circumcision, and that which succeeds unto it, viz. Baptisme, the seale of the righteousnesse of Faith: that is, a seale whereby righteousnesse is assigned in us by God, and by which all men may know that 590 we are sealed in and by Christ unto righteousnesse and eternall life. For there is a double use of a seale to wit,

I. To make him unto whom the writing or promise in writing is sealed, to be more and more sure and certaine of the will of him who hath sealed the writing unto him. When the King or some great Potentate shall promise some office, or place, or preferment unto a favorite or friend, he will hope that he shall enjoy it, because he hath a promise of it; but if the promise be written, yea under hand and seale, then he feares not the performance of it. Thus the Lord confirmes and makes sure unto us all the promises of the word, by the seales of the Sacrament; that we might be the more certaine of his love and good-will towards us, and more confidently expect the accomplishment of all his promises, which are written in the word, and signed, and sealed in the Sacraments.

II. Another use of a seale is, that others thereby may perceive and know the benefits and favours which are conferred upon him unto whom the covenant is sealed, by him who hath sealed it. And for this cause the Lord also hath instituted the Sacraments, that others by the sight, knowledge, and contemplation thereof may know both the great love that God hath borne us, in giving his dearely beloved Sonne to dye for us, and also the great benefits and mercies that are sealed unto us by the Sacraments, in and through CHRIST.

Answ. 2 Secondly, another end and use of the Sacraments is κοινωνία, that thereby we might be united unto, and have communion with Christ our head, and his whole body the Church, 1 Corinthians 10. and 12. Chapters. Or that we might be incorporated and engrafted into Christ, and grow up in one with him. And that thereby we might be made partakers of the fruit of his passion, viz. of Redemption, remission of sinnes, regeneration, and life eternall; for all the things are gained by CHRIST.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, the last end or use of the Sacraments is, that they might be monuments, or memorials to admonish us, and put us in mind perpetually of our duties towards God. Baptisme doth teach us, That we are dead, and buried with Christ; and therefore we must live in sinne no longer, but labour daily to mortifie it more and more, and strive to become new creatures. The Lords Supper doth teach us, that all we which are made partakers of one bread, ought to be one body with Christ, and must labour to avoid all things which might make a rent in this body, as Schismes, dissentions, hatred, and the like; and walke in faith and love, both towards GOD and man.

Quest. 3 What is Baptisme?

Answ. It is a washing with water, instituted by CHRIST, for the testifying unto us the remission of our sinnes, by the blood of Christ, Acts 22. 16. In this definition we have these three things observable, viz.

First, the author of Baptisme, namely, Christ. And Secondly, the externall part of Baptisme, namely, a washing with water. And Thirdly, the internall signification of Baptisme, namely, a washing of our soules from the guilt and staine of sinne, by the blood of CHRIST; but of this more in the sequent question.

Quest. 3 What is signified by this Sacrament of Baptisme?

Answ. The washing away of our sinnes by Christs blood, 1 Iohn 1. 7. More particularly observe, that

First, water signifies the blood of Christ, Iohn. 13. 8.

Secondly, the dipping of the party to be baptized, or the washing of it with water, doth signifie mortification, and a dying unto sinne: And the remission of our sinnes, and our restitution, or restoring unto the love of God.

Quest. 4 What doe we gaine by Baptisme, or what are the benefits thereof?

Answ. 1 First, thereby we gaine admission into the body of Christ, 1 Corinth. 12. 13. that is, into the Church of the saved, and the society of the faithfull, Hebr. 12. 22. &c. and 1 Iohn 1. 3. And hence Baptisme

I. Is a note, or badge of a Christian.

II. Gives us Communion with Christ, and his members.

III. Gives us a right unto all the promises of the word.

Answ. 2 Secondly, by Baptisme we gaine remission and pardon of all our sinnes, Acts 2. 38.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Regeneration, Iohn 3. 5. For

I. By Baptisme we dye unto sinne, Rom. 6. 3. Colos. 2. 12.

II. In Baptisme we are quickned and sanctified by the holy Spirit, 1 Corinthians 6. 11. Titus 3. 5.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, by Baptisme we gaine eternall life and salvation, Titus 3. 5. and 1 Peter 3. 21.

Quest. 5 What order is to be observed in the administration of this Sacrament of Baptisme?

Answ. 1 First, the person to be baptized must be taught: and that

I. The knowledge of the Gospell, and salvation by Christ.

II. That the admission into the Church, and body of Christ is by the sacrament of Baptisme: that so they may be perswaded to learne and to be baptized: as in this verse, and Acts 2. 38.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the person being thus taught and instructed in the Faith, and willing to be baptized, must then be admitted unto the Sacrament of Baptisme, and baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Sonne, and of the holy Ghost, Marke 16. 16. Acts 10. 47. But these two Answers are to be understood of those who are of yeares of discretion, and not of Infants.

Quest. 6 Who ought to bee, or may bee Baptized?

Answ. Those who are baptized, are either,

I. Men of ripe yeares or yeares of discretion; Now these Adulti doe either

First, not professe the Faith of Christ; or are without the Church of Christ; and these are not to be baptized. Or

Secondly, doe professe the Religion of Christ, and desire to be baptized; and these (as was said before) are to be admitted. Or

II. Infants; now these are either,

First,

Answ. 3 First, the Children of Iewes, Turkes, and Heathens, who are without the Church: and these are not to be baptized. Or

Secondly, they are the Children of those who are within the Church, and these are to be baptized.

Quest. 8 Whether is the Sacrament of Baptisme necessary or not?

Answ. 1 First, it is necessary, because it is commanded in this verse, and Marke 16.16. For as we must pray if we would be blessed, because God hath commanded it, Matth. 7.7. and as we must eate, if we would live, because according to Gods owne ordinance that is the meanes to preserve life: so we must be baptized, because God hath ordained, that by that doore, we should enter into the Arke, the Church.

Answ. 2 Secondly, but Baptisme is not absolutely necessary unto salvation, as appeares thus,

I. God did precisely command, that Circumcision (to which Baptisme answers now) should be on the eighth day, before which time without doubt many dyed, and yet it were absurd peremtorily to set downe, that they were damned.

II. If Circumcision had beene absolutely necessarily unto salvation, then Moses and Aaron would not have omitted it, for 40 yeares in the Desart.

III. This Doctrine of the absolute necessity of Baptisme, was unknowne to the ancient Fathers; and primitive Church; who therefore did oftentimes forbeare baptisme (although we approve not of this their fact) till a little before death. Hence Constantine the great was not baptized untill a little before his death: and Valentinian, by reason of his delay, was not at all baptized, whom notwithstanding Ambrose pronounceth to be in heaven. And Bernard in his 77. & 77. Epistle affirmeth, that not every privation or want of Baptisme, but only the contempt, and palpable neglect of it is damnable.

IV. The Papists themselves confesse, that the Baptisme of the Spirit (Baptismus flaminis) and Martyrdome (Baptismus sanguinis) are sufficient without the Baptisme of water, (that is) where or when it cannot be had unto salvation.

V. CHRIST himselfe saved the Thiefe upon the Crosse without Baptisme (Luke 23.43.) And therefore it is not so absolutely necessary that without it none can be saved.

Quest. 9 What doe we promise in Baptisme?

Answ. 1 First, we promise to renounce sinne, Rom. 6.6. and 1 Cor. 6.19. and Acts 3.26. and 1 Peter 4.6.

Answ. 2 Secondly, to serve the Lord in newnesse of life, all the dayes we live on the Earth. Rom. 6.4. and 7.6. and 2 Corinth. 5.17. Galath. 6.15. Ephes. 4.22. 23. and 4.1. and 1 Peter 2.9. and 1 John 2.6.

Sect. 5 §. 5. In the name of the Father, &c.

In this forme, wherein the Apostles must baptize those who are instructed, our Saviour [by nominating of the Father, Sonne, and holy Ghost] doth plainly insinuate, and teach unto his Apostles the profound mistery of the Trinity, and Unity. For these three names, Father, Sonne, and holy Ghost, doe expresse the Trinity of divine persons; and this phrase, In nomine, non in nominibus, in the name, in the singular number, and not in the names in the plurall, doth evidently shew, the Unity in Trinity, or that these three ever blessed persons, have but one essence, and nature. Pet. Galat. Lib. 2. Cap. 12. page 63. medio. 391

Sect. 6 §. 6. And of the Sonne.]

Argum. From these words we may draw this plaine Argument against the Arrians, who deny the Deity of CHRIST. He, in whose name we are baptized is truly and essentially God.

But we are baptized as well in the name of the Sonne, as of the Father, and holy Spirit, in this verse. Therefore the Sonne is aswell God in nature and essence, as the Father and holy Spirit are; and consequently, he is ὁμοούσιος, of the same nature and substance with the Father.

Sect. 7 §. 7. And of the holy Ghost.]

Deuterius an Arrian Bishop being at Bizantium as he was about to baptize one Barbas after his blasphemous manner, saying, I baptize thee in the name of the Father, through the Sonne, and in the holy Ghost [which forme of words is contrary to the prescript rule of Christ, who in this place commanded his Apostles to baptize all Nations, In the name of the Father, the Sonne, and the holy Ghost] the water suddenly vanished, so that he could not then be baptized: Wherefore Barbas all amazed fled to a Church of purer Religion, and there was entertained into the Church by baptisme. Socrates in his Ecclesiasticall Hiſtory [Lib. 7. Cap. 17.] reporteth the like History of a Jew, who had beene oftentimes baptized, and came to Paulus a Novatian Bishop, to receive the Sacrament againe, but the water vanished, and his villany being detected, he was banished the Church.

Because I have spoken divers things, in divers places before, of the Father, and the Sonne; here therefore thus briefly passe them over: speaking something more largely of the holy Spirit, because hitherto I have treated of that divine person more sparingly.

Quest. 1 How many things are requisite to be knowne concerning the holy Ghost?

Answ. Two; namely,

First, Nomen, his name: He is called 1. Spirit. Then 2. Holy.

Secondly, his nature, wherein two things are observable, viz.

I. Veritas, the truth thereof; wherein two things are included; to wit,

First, that he is God with God.

Secondly, that he is a distinct person, from the Father, and the Sonne.

II. Proprietas, the properties thereof; namely, that

First, he proceeds from the Father, and the Sonne.

Secondly, that he is equall to the Father, and the Sonne.

Thirdly, what his operations and workes are.

Quest. 2 What is meant by this word Spirit?

392

Answ. 1

First this word Spirit is taken either

First, literally; and that two manner of wayes; to wit, either

I. For an invisible, corporeall essence; as for example.

First, sometimes for the aire, and wind.

Secondly, sometimes for the blast or breath of the Lungs. Or

II. Spirit is taken for an invisible incorporeall essence; which is two-fold namely, either

First, created; as Sathan, spectres, the reasonable soule of man, and the good Angels.

Secondly, uncreated; and thus God the Father, God the Sonne, and God the holy Ghost, are called Spirits.

Secondly, figuratively; and thus it is taken, either

I. Spiritually, and thus

First, the power, and Deity of Christ is sometimes called Spirit. And Secondly, sometimes the operations, motions, and gifts of the holy spirit, are called Spirit, &c.

Thirdly, sometimes the regenerate part of man, and the spirituall life of the regenerate, and internall motions, and revelations, are called Spirit.

Answ. 2 Secondly, here this word Spirit is taken literally, for an essence, incorporeall, incomprehensible, and uncreated; and this essence is called a Spirit, for these causes; to wit,

I. Because he is incorporeall: A spight (saith Christ) hath not flesh, and bones: And thus Angels, and humane soules are incorporeall also; but they differ from this holy Spirit thus; they are not infinite and incomprehensible essences, as he is. And

II. Because he inspires, and breathes into us the breath of spirituall life: and thus the Father, and the Sonne also, doth give spiritu all life of grace, But it is by the Spirit. And

III. Because Spiratur, he proceeds from the Father and from the Sonne.

Quest. 3 How is this Spirit, which is an incorporeall, incomprehensible, and uncreated essence, called Sanctus, holy?

Answ. The blessed Spirit of God is not onely called Sanctus, holy, essentially because he is holy, but in his nature and essence also Causally, because he makes holy; being the immediate temper of this impression of holinesse in the Creatures.

From this name of holy Spirit, we may conclude, that this blessed person is true God.

Object. 1 Some against this affirme, That the holy Spirit signifieth no other thing, then that spirit of regeneration which is infused in man by God; and so is, as it were a creature. This they would confirme from these two reasons; namely

Reason. 1 First, because this Spirit is said to pray for us, Rom. 8.26. Now it is the spirit in us, which prayeth for us, and consequently this holy Spirit is not God. To this I answer

Answ. 1 I. The Spirit is said to pray, because he makes us to pray; and so the worke it selfe seemes to come wholly, and altogether from the blessed Spirit And.

Answ. 2 II. The Spirit also is said to cry Abba Father, Gal. 4. 6. not that he cryes, but that we cry by him, Rom. 8.15.

Reason. 2 Secondly, they say, the holy Spirit knowes not the Sonne; because no man knowes the Sonne, but the Father, Matth. 11.27. To this we answer

Answ. 1 I. That our Saviour there excludes not the persons of the blessed Trinity, but the creatures. And

Answ. 2 II. That indeed none knowes the Sonne of themselves, which are different from the Father in nature and essence: but the holy Spirit is the same God by nature and essence, though distinct in person. And thus CHRIST saith, That it was not his to give, to sit on his Fathers right hand, and on his left; and else-where denies that hee knowes the time when the last day will be, but both these were spoken onely in regard of his humanity. And

Answ. 3 III. It is evidently false, that the Spirit knowes not the Sonne, For

First, the Spirit discernes all things, 1 Cor. 2. 15. And Secondly, the Spirit teacheth us the knowledge of the Sonne, yea all things, Iohn, 14. And Thirdly, he is called the Spirit of the Sonne.

Object. 2 Some againe grant, that the Spirit is God, but not that he is a distinct person from God, but τὸ ἐνεργητικὸν Patris, the vertue, and power, and operation of the Father: and they would ground this upon these words, The power of the most high [That is, the holy Spirit] shall overshadow thee, Luke. 1. 35.

Answ. 1 First, it is not necessary that the place should be so interpreted: and indeed the scope of the Angell in that place seemes to me to be double; to wit,

I. That the blessed Virgin might understand the immediate worker of this great worke; namely, God the holy Ghost; and hence he saith, The holy Ghost shall come upon thee. And

II. That she might understand the primary Author of this great worke, and the true Parent of the child to be borne; to wit, God the Father; and hence he saith, The power of the most high shall overshadow thee.

Answ. 2 Secondly, although it were thus understood, and that by the power of the Almighty, were meant the holy Spirit, yet it would not follow; that therefore he is not a distinct person from God the Father; For as, although the Sonne by the word of the Father, Iohn, 1.1. And yet that takes not away the distinction of the person; so, the Spirit may be the power of the Father (he proceeding partly from the Father) and yet a distinct person from him, as followes by and by.

Quest. 4 How doth it appeare that the holy Spirit is God? or, how may it be proved?

Answ. 1 First, he created the world; and therefore he is God, Gen. 1, 2. Iob. 33. 4. And

Answ. 2 Secondly, we are baptized in his name, in this verse; and therefore he is God: for we are baptized onely unto God. And Answ. 3 Thirdly, the Apostles were taught of God; but it was the Spirit which taught them, Luke, 12, 12. yea which teacheth all things, Iohn, 14. 26.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, we must pray onely unto God, but in the Scriptures the holy Ghost is invocated; therefore fore hee is God, 2 Corinth. 13, 13.

Answ. 5 Fifthly, but because Harding, and Bellar. say, That it cannot be proved out of Scripture, that the holy Ghost is God; we will produce some cleare testimonies, where he is called God. As

I. That which the holy Spirit speakes, Acts, 28. 25, Iehovah himselfe speakes, Esa. 6. 8. Therefore the holy Spirit is Iehovah.

II. Our bodies are called the Temples of the holy Ghost, 1 Cor. 6. 19. and the Spirit dwelleth in us, 1 Cor. 3. 16. But our hearts are the Temples of God, 1 Cor. 3, 16. and 2 Cor. 6. 16. and God dwels in us, 2 Cor. 6. 18.

III. Ananias lyed against the holy Ghost, Acts. 5. 3. but he lyed not against men, but God, verse, 4. And therefore the holy Spirit is God, thus Augustine disputed, contr. Petil. 3. 48.

IV. The Father, the word, and the holy Spirit are one, Iohn, 5. 7.

Quest. 5 How doth it appeare that this holy Spirit is a distinct person from the Father, and the Sonne?

Answ. 1 First, He descended upon CHRIST in the likenesse of a dove, when a voyce came from heaven, from the Father, This is my welbeloved Sonne, &c. Luke. 3. 22. Where there was the Father speaking from heaven, the Sonne baptized upon earth, and the holy Ghost descending from heaven to earth. Therefore the holy Spirit is a person subsisting by himselfe, and distinct from the rest.

Answ. 2 Secondly, He is called the Comforter, Ioh. 14. 16. and he was sent from the Father, in the same place, and from the Sonne, Ioh. 16. 7. and therefore hee differs from them both, Iohn, 14. 26.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, he is called the Spirit of the Father, Ioh. 15. 26. and the Spirit of the Sonne, Gal. 4. 6. Therefore he is neither the Person of the Father, nor of the Sonne.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, three Persons are named, Matth. 28. 19. and 2 Cor. 13. 13, and 1 Iohn, 5. 7.

Object. 3 But he is said to be the same with the Father, Luke 1. 35. And therefore is not a distinct person.

Answ. 1 First, except he were the same with the Father he could not be God; for God is one.

Answ. 2 Secondly, it followes not, he is the same with the Father, therefore he is not a distinct person from the Father: for the Sonne is the same with the Father, and yet a distinct Person.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, from hence [viz. that he is the same with the Father] doth rather follow, that he is God, and a distinct person; for none can be God, but he who is the same with God; and none can be the same with God, but onely a person of the Trinity. For those three are one, 1 Iohn 5. 7. Deus Trinus. I conclude with the saying of the Father, Dici potest, non scriptum est aperte Spiritum sanctum esse Deum, at ejus deitas in sacris literis testata est, nisi quis valde sit insulsus, & alienus a Spiritu sancto. Greg. Naz. de Spirit. sanct.

Quest. 6 How doth it appeare that the Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Sonne?

Answ. It is hence evident, because he is sent by both, and is called the Spirit of both. For

First, the Father sends the Spirit of his Sonne, Gal. 4. 6. Iohn, 14. 26. And Secondly, the Sonne sends the Spirit of the Father, Iohn. 15. 26. and 16. 7.

Quest. 7 How is the blessed Spirit coequall with the Father? for if he proceed from him, then is he inferiour unto him?

Answ. The holy Ghost is inferiour to the Father in order, but equall in power.

Object. Against this it may be objected, The Spirit is sent by God; therefore he is inferiour to him in power.

Answ. 1 First, it followes not, for the Sonne was sent by the Father, Iohn. 3. 16. and yet he is equall to the Father in power, in regard of his Deity: for he was not sent by compulsion, but came willingly, Iohn, 10. 11. And so doth also the holy Spirit. And therefore there is no rule, or dominion amongst the persons of the blessed Trinity one over another, but are all equall in power.

Answ. 2 Secondly, the equality of the holy Spirit with the Father can no way better be proved, then by proving that he is God (which we have done before) For none is before or after another, none is greater or lesse then another, Symbol. Athanas.

Quest. 8 What and how many are the operations, and workes of the holy Spirit?

Answ. They are either Temporall, or Spirituall,

First, there are some Temporall operations, and workes of the holy Spirit; as

I. Creation; Read. Gen. 1. 2. and Iob. 33. 4 And

II. Fitting men for some particular function; as Exod. 31. 3. Iudg. 6. 34. and 1 Sam. 11. 6. and 16. 13. And

III. He gives knowledge, literature, and learning: and therefore we must not onely confesse, that that learning which is conferred miraculously upon some comes from him, as, Acts 2. and 10. but also that that learning which is got by our study instrumentally, comes principally from him, because he gives eye-salve, Revel. 3. 18. and enables us to understand. And

IV. Propheſie is a gift given by the Spirit, 1 Cor. 13. 1. Now all these are Temporall.

Secondly, there are Spirituall operations and workes of the holy Spirit; and these are either

I. Common, or II. Proper.

First, the Common spirituall operations of the holy Spirit; are these, viz.

I. The moderation of the affections; as Gen. 20. 6. Heb. 5. 12. And

II. The reverent and willing hearing of the word: the Spirit makes men to endure the word of exhortation patiently; as we may see in Herod, Marke. 6. 20. And therefore when we willingly, or patiently permit our selves to be reproved, we must confesse it to be the worke of the Spirit, because naturally we love to be flattered, but not to be reprehended. And

III. Illumination is a spirituall worke of the holy Ghost; now this is either

First, Cognitionis, a light of Knowledge, as Hebr. 6. and 10. and 2 Peter. 2. 22. And this is Common. Or

Secondly, Obedientiæ, a light of obedience; now this is two-fold; viz. either

I. In aliquibus, in some things, as Herod did,

394 did; and this also is common. Or

II. In nova vita, in a new life; and this is proper to the godly, And

IV. Ioy, in hearing, or, other holy duties, Matthew. 13. 20. as did Herod, Marke. 6. 20. Now there is a double joy; namely

First, a joy arising from novelty: and thus many rejoyce when the Gospell is first preached unto them, who slight it afterwards: Therefore this joy is but deceivable, and common. And

Secondly, a joy arising from a true tast of divine grace: and this is proper to the Godly.

Secondly, there are proper operations of the holy Spirit: These are laid downe in Iohn, 14. 23. where we have

I. The presence of the holy Spirit in the godly, the effect whose presence, is Regeneration.

II. The inhabitation of the holy Spirit in the Regenerate, the effect whereof is Gubernation. But these remaine to be considered of, in that place Iohn, 14. 23. Whereof afterwards by the assistance of God. I rather omit them here, because something hath beene spoken, Chap. 12. 18.

Sect. 8. §. 8. I am with you unto the end of the world.]

Quest. 1 How is CHRIST present with his Church for all ages?

Answ. 1 First, not in regard of his humanity, but of his Deity; and this is confessed by Galatinus, lib. 3. Cap. 29. pag. 127. lin. ult.

Answ. 2 Secondly, Carthusian. s. pag. 233. b. medio.) saith, That CHRIST is present with his Church, by a Sacramentall presence.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, Christ is present with his, by inhabiting the hearts of the faithfull by his grace.

Answ. 4 Fourthly, he is present by his continuall protection, and providence, and manifold efficiencie of his power, and piety in, and upon us.

Quest. 2 Whether shall the Church of Christ continue unto the worlds end? because it is here said, Behold I am with you unto the worlds end; and Iohn, 14. 15, &c. The Paraclet shall abide with you for ever. Now if this Church be thus to extend itselfe to all nations, and to the ends of the world; then whether is it the same which at this day is called, The Catholique Church upon earth?

Answ. 1 First, we grant and hold, that this Church of Christs shall extend it selfe to all Nations. And Answ. 2 Secondly, it shall last and continue, untill the end of the world. Nunquam enim deficiet fides in toto &c. Faith shall never wholly faile, but unto the end of the world Christian Religion in aliquibus perseverabit, saith Carthusian (Matth. pag. 233. b. fine.) that is, shall persevere, and abide in some place or other, amongst some persons or other: he will not say, That it shall alwayes abide at Rome.

Answ. 3 Thirdly, we grant and hold, that this Church with which Christ hath promised to be present, is the same which is called in the Apostles Creed, The Catholique Church. But Answ. 4 Fourthly, wee deny that that Church which falsely cals her selfe by that name, is this Church of Christ to which he hath promised his gracious presence. For we must know, that the name Catholique is diversely taken; namely,

I. Sometimes for the whole Kingdome of Christ, or for those who shall be saved, and are ordained unto eternall life, Acts, 2. 47. and 13. 48. and Hebr. 12. 22. Now the Church thus taken is partly militant on earth, and partly triumphant in heaven; and of this we say not, Video Ecclesiam Catholicam, I see the Catholike Church, but Credo ecclesiam Catholicam, I beleeve the Catholike Church; because (according to St. Augustine, Fides non est vides.

II. Sometimes the Catholike Church is taken for the whole number of the faithfull, that professe Christ, in any one age, upon earth: being one flocke under one great Bishop, Christ the chiefe shepheard; 1 Peter 2. 25. and 5. 4. although gouerned upon earth, by divers subordinate Pastours under him. And of these also may the said Article of our Creed be understood.

III. All particular Nations, or societies of people, joyned together (in the faith) under one spirituall government, may (as similare parts use) have the name of the whole; and be called Catholike Churches. Notwithstanding it is more proper to call such an one A Catholike Church indefinitely, then Completively, The Catholike Church.

Fifthly, an Hereticall sect may (like the devill, Answ. 5 2 Cor. 11. shewing as an Angell of light) call themselves, Catholikes though they be nothing lesse (Revel. 2. 9.) but even the Synagogue of Sathan. Therfore the name Catholique, in the Question propounded, must be understood in the second sense mentioned in the former Answer; viz. for all Christians upon earth, and not for any particular society. If any particular company call themselves by that name, they are never the more truly Catholike for being so called, then those Heretiques were truly pure, spirituall, and Apostolike, that were called, and knowne to the world by those names, Cathari, Pneumatici, and Apostolici.

Some Papists have objected this place to prove Object. the infallibility of the doctrine of their Church; arguing thus: to wit,

That unto which CHRIST hath promised his presence for ever to the worlds end, is free from errour, and the doctrine thereof, in all things, is infallible.

But such is the Church, to which Christ hath promised his presence.

Therefore the Church is free from errour, and the doctrine thereof, is in all things infallible.

First, the meaning of this place is, That how- Answ. 1 soever Christs bodily presence ceased, yet his providence should never faile to preserve and comfort them in all their troubles, and help them in all their actions: and by degrees so enlighten them also, that they should not perish in their ignorance, but be led forward to more perfection: and thus Iansenius [Concord. Evang. Cap. 149.] expounds the place. Yea this must needs be granted to be all that is here meant, and that

I. Because Christ is not absent from his people every time they fall into an errour, but remaineth with them still for all that, either forgiving it, or reforming it. And

II. Because notwithstanding this promise, yet afterwards, Peter one to whom the promise was made made, erred against the truth of the Gospell, Galath. 2. 11. and was therefore by St. Paul rebuked, and resisted to his face: which thing could not have fallen out, if this Promise had exempted the Church from all errour. And

III. If this promise priviledge the whole Church from errour because it is made to it, then consequently it priviledgeth the particular Churches, Fathers, and beleevers therein, because it is made to them likewise: but experience sheweth that these latter may erre; and therefore the meaning must be as aforesaid.

IV. It is granted even by the Papists themselves, that the Pope may erre (See Mr. White the way to the true Church, Page 194, 416.) which could not be if these words of our Saviours meant the Church of Rome, and that infallible judgement which the Jesuit speaketh of who propounds this Objection. And thus we deny not, but constantly beleeve, that Christ alwayes was, is, and shall be with his Church to the end of the World.

To conclude this worke; Seeing God hath here promised to be present, by his grace and gracious providence and protection, with his Church and children, unto the end of the world; and hath hitherto for many yeares given us cause to say; That there is no Nation or Church in the world unto whom he hath beene more gracious then unto ours, given us such pious and prudent Princes, as have ruled us in peace, and led us in the paths of Religion, courageously supporting, and constantly professing and maintaining the truth of Christ, notwithstanding all the power, policy, and subtlety of Antichrist, and all her instruments and adherents: Let us therefore both fervently pray for the continuance of these unspeakable mercies, and also heartily praise this great, gracious, and good God, for the long continuance of them hitherto unto us; and let us alwayes laud his Name, and sing praises unto his Majesty, saying,

Holy, holy, holy, Lord GOD of Hosts, Heaven and Earth are full of thy glory; Glory be to thee
oh Lord most High.

AMEN.

FINIS.

The Epilogue.

Courteous and kind Reader, I have here sent thee the first Evangelist to peruse, and I have the Second perfectly finished, but much more succinctly, and compendiously handled then this; because the larger I am upon this, the lesse I have to treat upon in the rest, this Worke not being like a Snow-ball rolled up and downe, which growes greater and greater, but (like one) lying in the Sunne, which growes lesse and lesse.

Now although (as I said) the next Evangelist bee perfected, yet untill I heare how St. Matthew is received, and welcommed by thee, I will not send St. Marke unto thee. For as PHYDIAS said concerning his first Portraiture; If it be liked, I will draw more besides this, if loathed n one but this; so say I concerning this my first Brat (who must either credit, or discredit his Father.) If thou thinke it not worth receiving or reading, but reject it loathingly, then I have done, but if thou accept and entertaine it lovingly, then I have but begun. Thy pleasure, and liking will be my Paines, and thy dislike my Ease; and therefore I will neither commend nor discommend what I have writ, but commend thee unto the Lords gracious Protection, and this Booke to thy acceptation: Resting,

To bee employed to thy good if thou please.

R. W.

A TABLE OF THE PRINCIPALL MATTERS CONTAINED IN THIS MISCELLANIE.

For the understanding whereof, let the Reader take notice, that this BOOKE is divided into two Parts, or Tomes; The first beginning CHAPTER, I. and containes 528 Pages; The second beginning CHAP. X. and containes 395 Pages. Now Pt. 1. f. 1. or 8, &c. signifies Part first, and Folio first, or 8, &c. And Pt. 2. f. 1. 10. &c. signifies Part 2. folio 1. 10, &c. Besides, let the Reader note, that a, signifies the first Columne, and b, the Second.

A.

ABility. All Power and ability in Man unto good, comes from God. Part 2. fol. 1. a. b.

To which of Christs Apostles he gave Power, and what power hee gave them. Pt. 2. f. 1, b.

Absence. See Presence.

Abuse. The best, and most lawfull things may be abused. Part 1. fol. 243. b.

Account. Divers necessary questions concerning our Spirituall account and reckoning with God. Pt. 2. fol. 328, 329, 330.

Actions. Workes. Divers profitable questions, concerning the definition, division, necessity, and nature of Workes in generall, and good workes in particular. Pt. 1. f. 72, a, b. and 154. a, b. & 158, b. & 177. b, &c. 179. a. b. 266, b. 270. b, &c. 301. b. 425. b, &c. 427. a. & 471, a. & 503, b. 506, a. Pt. 2. f. 16, b. and 129, a.

Divers questions concerning the merit, reward, examination and regulating of good Workes. Pt. 1. f. 98, b. &c. 158, a, b. 258, b. 259, 260. 266. 269, b. 270. 403, b. 426, b. 428, b. and Pt. 2. f. 46, b. 73, a.

Who are enemies unto good Workes. pt. 1. f. 161. b. 259, a. 273, a, b.

Unbeleevers cannot performe good Workes. Pt. 1. fol. 262, a.

Whether the Workes of the Righteous be perfect. Pt. 1. fol. 330, 331.

Questions concerning Supererogatory Workes. Pt. 1. f. 188, a. and pt. 2. f. 235, a. 337, b.

Adiaphorall things. Ceremonies.

The Ceremonies of our Church used in Baptisme, and the Lords Supper, are lawfull. Pt. 1. f. 67, b. and pt. 2. f. 354. b. 355.

Circumstances may make indifferent, and lawfull things, unlawfull; and how? pt. 1. fol. 98, a, b.

Lawfull and Adiaphorall things are to be regulated according to a three fold rule. Pt. 1. f. 98, a.

Divers questions concerning Offences given and taken by Ceremonies, and Adiaphorall things. Pt. 2. fol. 207, 208, &c. and pt. 1. f. 496. a, b.

Admonition. Advice. Counsell.

Who hide their Counsels; and how it may lawfully be done. Pt. 1. fol. 32. a, b.

We must Admonish, Counsell, and advise our Bretheren: how? and why? Pt. 1. f. 153. a, b. and pt. 2. fol. 19. a, b.

Questions concerning Evangelicall Counsels unto Perfection. Pt. 1. f. 186, a. 226, a. 262, b. and pt. 2. fol. 243, b. 286, b. &c.

Adoption. The nature, markes, and signes of adoption. Pt. 1. f. 113, a. 487, 488.

Adversity. Affliction. Divers questions concerning the Causes, end, utility, removall, reward, and benefits of Affliction; and our duty in affliction. Pt. 1. fol. 50, b. 112, b. 142, a. 169, a, b. 303, a, b. 314, a, b. 362. and 439, b. and 448, a. and pt. 2. f. 58, 59. and 159. and pt. 1. fol. 489.

The Lord afflicts his Church, and why? pt. 1. fol. 78, a.

Vnlawfull meanes are never to be used in Affliction, and misery; and why? pt. 1. fol. 99, b. 100, a.

Advice. See Admonition.

Adultery. Fornication, adultery, and uncleanesse must be avoided, and why? pt. 1. fol. 216, a, b. and 227, b. &c.

Divers questions concerning the division, effects, punishments, and remedies, of adultery, fornication, and uncleannesse. pt. 1. fol. 216, &c. to fol. 223.

Affections. A right use of the affections helpes us in Gods service. pt. 1. fol. 41, b.

Affliction. See Adversity.

Agreement. Vnity. Concord.

Questions concerning our Vnion with Christ. pt. 2. fol. 278, a, b.

The Vnity, and Vnion of the Church, and faithfull, is manifold. pt. 2. f. 8, a. 40, a.

How brotherly Unity, and Concord, are to be continued. pt. 1. fol. 321, b. &c.

Christ loves Amity, and unity amongst brethren. pt. 1. fol. 120.

Allegories.

Allegories. Figures.
It is lawfull to use Allegories and Figures, in preaching. pt.1.f.120,b.
Rules observeable in the Allegorizing of any Scripture. pt.1. fol.43,a.
Almes. Charity. Divers questions concerning the division, necessity, impediments, and remedies thereof; and rules to be observed in the distribution of almes, pt.1.f.153. 155, 156, 157, 158, 160,b, 248,b. 268, 269.
Who are enemies to Almes-deeds, and workes of charity. pt.1. fol.150,b. 151,a,b. 267,a.
Whether Almes-deeds be meritorius. pt. 1. fol.160,a. and 267,a.
Ambition. Ambition is often the cause of arrogancy, and arrogant presumption, pt. 1. fol.46,a,b.
Amen. What is meant by this word Amen. part 1. fol. 321,b.
Amity. Love. Divers questions concerning Love in generall, & the definition, and division thereof, and of our Love unto God. pt.1.f.133,b. 252,b.334,b.335. and pt.2.f.54, b, &c. 286, 287, 288.
Divers questions concerning the Love of our brethren. Pt. 1. fol. 120,a. 159,b.352,b. and pt.2.f.56,b.57, a.135,b.288,b.289,a.
Concerning the Love of our enemies; See Enemies.
How Love is the fulfilling of the Law. pt.1.f.405,a,& pt.2.f.289,a,b.
Whether Love be a meritorious worke or not. pt.1. folio 254,a.
Anabaptists. Familists. Separatists.
The Conventicles of Anabaptists and Familists are not warrantable. pt. 1. fol.125,b.126,a.
Separatists are unpleasing unto God. pt.2. folio 8,a,b.
The faithfull must be separated from the world, and how? Pt.1.fol.175,b.
Angels. Divers questions concerning the evill Angels. pt. 1. fol.97,a.140, b.346,a.
Questions concerning tutelar Angels. part 2. fol.214,b.
Anger. Divers questions concerning the nature, originall, causes, effects, degrees, kinds, and punishments of anger; and the remedies against it. pt.1.fol.44,45.195.198.
Christians must not be angry. & why? pt.1. fol.197,a. And what commendable anger is. Pt.1. fol.198, b, &c. and pt.2. fol.291,b. &c.
Whether anger be a carnall or a sinfull sinne. pt.1. fol.196.197,b.
Anguish. Griefe. Mourning. Divers questions concerning godly Mourners, and mourning, and the comforts and blessednesse which belong unto such Mourners. Pt.1. folio 141, 143, 144, 145.
There are divers sorts of Mourners. pt.1.fol.143,a,b, and 509,a.
The outward expressions of sorrow are divers. pt.2. fol. 83,b.
Answers. All our Answers must be gentle, and to the matter, and why? Pt.1. fol.114,a.
Antichrist. Who is Antichrist. pt.1. folio 19.
Whether he be one particular man. pt. 1. folio 17,b. and pt 2. fol.315,b.
Whether Antichrist be yet come. pt.2. fol. 312,a.313,a,b.
Antiquity. When, and how farre Antiquity is to be beleeved. pt.1. fol. 189,b,190,a,b, &c. 194,b.
Antiquity is a good proofe in controversies. pt.2.fol. 233,a.
Apostacy. Backsliding. The causes why so many are in danger to fall back, and why so many doe fall back from Christ, and Religion. pt.1. fol.132, b. and 506,a. and pt.2.fol. 28,a. 69,a,b.
Those who forsake, and fall from Religion, shall be forsaken. pt.2.f.6,a.
Apostles. Disciples. Divers questions concerning the 12 Apostles and Disciples of Christ. pt.1.fol.134, 135,140,a.171,172.467,a.495, a. and pt.2. fol.19,a,b.2,a,b.12,a, 27,b.287,b.
Ministers must be Disciples before Apostles; and why? pt.2. fol.1,a.
How Apostles and Disciples differ, pt.2.fol.2.
We should all labour to be the Disciples of Christ, why, and how? pt.2. folio 104.
Apparell. Garments. Divers questions concerning the necessity and use of apparell. pt. 1. folio 346.
Appetite. Belly. How the desires of the Belly, and our naturall appetites are evill. pt.1. fol.96,a.
Armour. Weapons. What a Christian mans Weapons are against his spirituall enemies. pt.1.fol. 62,a.
Arrogancy. The nature and causes of Arrogancy. Pt. 1. fol.46.
Ashes. A manifold use of Ashes. pt.2. fol.85,a.
Assemblyes. Divers sorts of Assemblyes. pt.2. fol.321,b.
Assurance. See Faith.
Avarice. See Covetousnesse.
Austerity. Although an Austere life be commendable, yet it is not approved of by carnall men. pt.2. fol.70,a. 71,b.

B.

Babes. Infants. There are three sorts of Babes. Pt. 2.f.94,b.
Whether there be such a thing as Limbus Infantum. pt. 2. fol.332,a. 335,b.336,a.
Backbiting. Calumny. Detraction, &c. How these two, to revile, and to speake evill off, differ. pt. 1. fol. 168,b.
We must not Calumniate or deprave any, and the causes of Calumny, and remedies against it. pt. 2. folio 77, b.121,b.
Backsliding. See Apostacy, Banquets. See Feasts.
Baptisme. Questions concerning the Baptizing of Infants. part 1. fol. 66,b. and Pt. 2. fol.237,b.238, a, b.388,b.389,a.
Divers questions concerning the nature, necessity, Ceremonies, sorts, excellency, utility, and abuse of Baptisme. Pt. 1. fol. 70. 75,b.79,a. 80,a. and pt.2. fol. 390,391.
Divers questions concerning Christs Baptisme and Iohns. pt.1. fol. 68, a.73,74.79,a.80,a,b.
Whether Ministers in Baptisme give grace to those whom they Baptize. part 1. folio 68,b.
What Analogy there is betweene Baptisme and the Lords Supper. Pt.2. folio 279,b.
Beggars. Beggars permitted contrary to the Law, and why? Pt. 2. folio 266,a.
Believers. Faithfull. How the Faithfull are saved from their sinnes, and from what sinnes they are saved. Pt. 1. folio 19,a.
Wherein the Faithfull should be like Angels. pt.2. fol.285,b. And wherein their felicity consists. pt, 1. fol. 487,a,b.
Beliefe. See Faith.
Belly. See Appetite.
Belzebub. What Belzebub signifies. Pt. 2. fol. 33,b.
Bethlehem. Divers questions concerning Bethlehem. Pt.1.f.23,a.31, b.32,a.
Bigamy. Digamy. Poligamy. All these both now are, and heretofore were unlawfull. Pt.1. fol.231.233,b. 260,a.
Birds. What we may learne of, or from Birds. Pt. 1. fol.344,b.345,a.
Blasphemy. Divers necessary and profitable questions, concerning Blasphemy, or the sinne against the holy Ghost. pt. 1. fol.313,a,b. and pt.2. fol.123,124,125.
Blessednesse. Divers questions concerning the number of the Beatitudes, and the nature of true Blessednesse, and what it is, and wherein it consists, and from whence it proceeds, and the way thereunto.

pt. 1. folio 127, a. and 136, 137, 138. 160, b. 161, a. 158, a, b. 416, b. and pt. 2. folio 32, b. 97, b. 180, b.

Blessings. Divers questions concerning, temporall, and corporall blessings. pt. 1. folio, 128, 129. 142. 517, b. 525, b.

Blindnesse. Darknesse. Ignorance.

All men by nature, without Christ are ignorant, blind, and darke. pt. 1. fol. 116. and pt. 2. folio 33. 64, a.

The causes of Spirituall blindnesse, and the remedies against it. pt. 2. fol. 89, 90, 92, 265, 266, a. and pt. 1. fol. 518, b.

Whether Ignorance or knowledge be better. pt. 2. fol. 146, a.

Body. There is a fourefold Body. pt. 2. folio 102, b, &c.

Bounty. See Almes.

Bread. What is meant by this word Bread in the Lords prayer. pt. 1. fol. 306, a. 308, a.

Brethren. Brothers. Ministers are Brethren. Pt. 1. folio 119, b.

All Christians are Brethren. Part 1. folio 205, a.

Christ loves amity, and unity among st Brethren. pt. 1. folio 120.

Buriall. Sepulchers. Christians Buriall must be performed unto the dead and why? Pt. 1. folio 154, b. and 155, a. 470, a.

The Iewish customes at Burials. pt. 2. fol. 381, a. and pt. 1. folio 508, b. and 509, a.

Burthens. How many sorts of burthens there are, and how they are to be borne. pt. 2. fol. 99, b. 100.

C.

CAlamity. See Adversity.

Calling. Vocation. Function. Divers questions concerning externall Callings. pt. 1. fol. 123, b. and fol. 362, 363. 486, a. and pt. 2. folio 55, b.

Divers questions concerning God and Christs calling and recalling of us. pt. 1. folio 132, b. 446, a. 468, a, b. 494, b. 500, b. 501, a. pt. 2. folio 256, 257. 260, 261.

Things are called three manner of wayes. pt. 1. fol. 168, a.

Calumny. See Backbiting.

Captivity. Why the Lord permitted the Iewes so to be kept captive under the Romanes. pt. 1. fol. 23.

By nature we are Sathans captives. part 1. fol. 477.

Care. Whom God cares for most. part 2. folio 36, a.

Divers questions concerning worldly Care. pt. 1. fol. 328, a. 341, b. 342, b. 343, a. 349, b. 350, a. 361.

Casting off. To cast out. To Reject. Divers questions concerning Gods rejecting of man, and mans casting off God. pt. 1. fol. 459, a, b. pt. 2. fol. 280, b. 281. 292, a.

Centurion. What a Centurion was. pt. 1. fol. 447, a. 451, b. 454.

Ceremonies. See Adiaphorall things.

Charity. See Almes.

Charmes. See Magi. or Magicke.

Chastity. Wherein the felicity of those who are pure, and chast, consists. pt. 1. fol. 221, a.

Children. Divers questions concerning the signification of this word Child, and of childrens duty towards their Parents. pt. 1. folio 122, b, 123, a, and pt. 2. fol. 52, b. 53, a. 54. 158, 159. 206, b, &c. 237, a. 242, b. 294, b.

Divers questions concerning the felicity, safety, nature, number, and markes of Gods children; and the way and meanes thereunto. pt. 1. fol. 35, a. 51, a. 83. 127. 167, b. 254, b. 255, a. 437, a. 487, &c. and pt. 2. folio 58, b. 59, a. 88, b. 89, a. 156, b.

Our chiefest care and labour should be to be made Gods Sonnes. pt. 1. folio 254, b.

None can rejoyce in God but Sonnes. pt. 1. fol. 88. b. 89, a.

Christ. Controverted questions concerning the Deity and Humanity of Christ. pt. 1. fol. 16, 17. a. 21. 78, b. 83. pt. 1. folio 467, b. 507, a. and pt. 2. fol. 88, a. 197, a. 238, b. 239. 262, a. 316. 326, b. 376, b. 377. and 391, b.

Whether Christ be every wheres in regard of his Humanity. pt. 2. folio 215, b. 290. 356. and 386, b. 387, a.

Divers questions concerning the temptations of Christ. pt. 1. fol. 84. 85. 86, 87. 95, 96, 97. 112, 113, b.

Questions concerning the conception, nativity, birth, Baptisme, Flight, Education, life, humility, and time of Christs being upon earth. pt. 1. folio 17, a. 20, b. 23, a. 32, a. 37. 40. 49, a. 52, 53, a. 54, b. 78, b. 79, 80. 115, &c. 123, b. 124, a. and pt. 2. folio 107, a. 134, b. 263, b.

Questions concerning the workes, and actions of Christ. as he was our Physitian, Saviour, King, Doctor, Mediatour, Shepheard, and Corner-stone. Pt. 1. fol. 19, a. 20, a. 128, b. 101, b. 113, b, &c. 187, b and pt. 1. folio 488, b. pt. 2. fol. 32, b. 104, b, &c. 106. 122, b, &c. 154, a. 263, b, &c. 277. 373, a.

Divers questions concerning Christs Miracles, miraculous cures, and workes, and vertue, and power. pt. 1. fol. 128, b. 129, 130, b. 131, a. 132, a. and pt. 1. folio 466, b. and 489, a. 499, b, &c. 507, a. pt. 2. folio 63, 64. 81. 119, a. 132, a. 386. and pt. 1. fol. 513, b. 516, a. 518, a. 523, b. 524, a.

Questions concerning the manifestation of Christ. pt. 1. fol. 23, a. 54, a. 78, b.

Questions directing us how to come unto Christ. pt. 1. fol. 24, b. 25, a. 49, a. 55. 63, b. 78, b. 85. 135. 443, a. 468, a. 473, b. 488, b. 497, b. and pt. 2. f. 119, b. 194, a.

Divers necessary questions concerning the arraignment, examination, accusations, opposition, persecution, passion, and death of Christ. Pt. 1. folio 49, b. 84, a. 88, b. and pt. 2. f. 131, a. 132. 261, b. 298. 337, a. 358, b. 361, 362. 370. b. 372. 374. 376. 377. 379. b. 380, b.

Questions concerning Christs love unto us. pt. 1. folio 51. 495, b. and pt. 2. folio 78, a. 244, b. 308, b.

Questions concerning the joy, felicity, benefits, and comfort we have by Christ. pt. 1. folio 116, b. 117. and pt 2. fol. 32, b. 55, b. 56, a. 97, b. 100, b, &c. 102.

Why Christ fasted. pt. 1. folio 89.

What gesture he used in prayer. pt. 2. folio 154, a.

Questions concerning the speeches of Christ. pt. 2. folio 277. 306, a. and pt. 1. folio 492, a.

Questions concerning the preaching of Christ. Pt. 1. folio 118. 124. 125, 126. 341. 346.

Christ was neither temporall King nor Beggar. pt. 1. folio 25, b. 139, b. 468, b.

Questions concerning Christs coming. pt. 2. folio 32. 314, a. 319, b. 321. 322, &c. 325. 327, b. 331, b. and pt. 1. folio 500, b.

Questions concerning Christs subjection unto the Law. pt. 1. folio 180. 183, 193, 194.

The Genealogie of Christ. See Genealogie.

Whether Adoration were rightly given to the Humane body of Christ. pt. 2. folio 385, a.

How many wayes the name Christ is taken in Scripture. part 2. folio 309, a.

How the Head, Husband, and Foundation of the Church: See Church.

Divers apparitions of Christ after his Resurrection. pt. 2. folio 384, a. 385.

Christ was no seducer. pt. 2. fol. 381.
Christ seeth the secrets of the inward man. pt. 1. folio 467, a.
How Christ is our Father, and Brother. pt. 1. folio 487, a.
Christians. They must be Nazarites, and wherein, and lights, and a holy City unto God, and why? pt. 1. fol. 53. 171, b. 242, a.
The difference betweene Christ, and all Christians. pt. 1. fol. 132, a.
The sinnes of Christians are worse then the sinnes of Heathens; and why? pt. 2. folio 83, b. 84, a.
The happinesse of Christians both here, and hereafter. pt. 1. folio 456, 457.
Church. Questions concerning the authority of the Church, and how farre she is to be beleeved. part 1. folio 30, b. and pt. 2. folio 218, 219, 220. 292, 293.
Questions cõcerning the nature, notes, universality, infallibility, continuance, purity, visibility, excellency, members, afflictions, portion, Foundation, and Head of the Church. pt. 1. fol. 35, b. 76, a. 77, a. 78, a. 102. 172, b. 173. 175, b. 276, a. 305, b. 422, a. 440. 459, a. and Pt. 2. folio 8, a. 142, &c. 145, a. 181, b. 182, 183, 184. 186, b. 187. 188, a. 218. 212. 256. 260, a. 296, b. 325, a. 388, a. 394.
The Church of Christ is like unto a Field, a City, a House, a Ship, and the Kingdome of Heaven; and wherein? Pt. 1. fol. 77, &c. 172, a. 174, b, &c. and folio 458, b. and pt. 2. folio 73. 154. 169, b. 170, a.
Questions concerning disobedient Churches, and the enemies of the true Church. pt. 1. folio 297, 298. and Pt. 2. f. 6, a, b. 7, a. 277, a. 291.
Questions concerning separation from the Church. pt. 2. folio 8. 143, a.
Objections for Church-treasure, answered. pt. 1. fol. 188, a. and pt. 2. folio 326, a.
That Church which is led by blind, or blemished Teachers is miserable. pt. 2. fol. 167, a.
At whom the Church began, Pt. 2. folio 306, b, &c.
The happinesse of those within the Church, and their duty in regard of those who are without. Part 1. folio 30, b, a. and pt. 2. fol. 198, b. 199. 394.
Circumspection. Warinesse. Watches. Watchfulnesse. The night was anciently divided into foure Watches, and the life of man into three. Pt. 2. fol. 155, a. 305, b.
We must beware of others, and why? pt. 1. fol. 421, b.
Circumstances. See Adiaphorall things.
City. We should be a holy City unto God. pt. 1. fol. 242, a.
Cleansing. Purging. Washing. Divers questions concerning spiritual Washing, purging and cleansing. pt. 1. fol. 77. 78, a. 129, b. 326, b. and pt. 2. fol. 67, b, &c. 301, 302, 303. &c.
There were amongst the Iewes divers sorts of washings. pt. 2. folio 273, b.
Collections. Conclusions false Collections, and Conclusions often drawne from true propositions. pt. 1. fol. 97, b. 103.
Collegies. Schooles. There were Collegies, and Schooles of learning under the Law. pt. 2. fol. 78, b.
Comfort, Consolation. Divers comfortable questions, concerning the sweet comforts, & consolations which are given to the godly. pt. 1. f. 143, 144, 145, & pt. 2. f. 98. 100, b. 101, a. 102.
Commandements. Law. Questions cõcerning the differences between the Law, and Gospell. pt. 1. fol. 55, a, 183. and Pt. 2. fol. 241, a.
Profitable questiõs concerning the impossibility, obedience, excellency, cõtents, abrogation, destruction, division, consummation, exposition, scope, end and use of the Law. pt. 1. fol. 80, b. 181, 182, 183, 184, b. 185, a. 192. 215. 301. 404, 405, 406. 500, b. and pt. 2. f. 75. 179. b. 241, b. 242, a. 287, a. 299. b.
Humane Lawes are often opposite to divine. Pt. 1. fol. 248, b. and pt. 2. fol. 27, a.
Christ was no enemy unto the Law. pt. 1. fol. 180. 193, 194. 404, b.
Divers errors concerning the Law. pt. 1. folio 181. 182.
The Preaching of the Law is never acceptable to sinners, although it be necessary. Pt. 2. fol. 76, b. 77, a. 78. a, b.
Commet. Starre. Divers questions concerning the Starre, or Commet, which was seene by the Wise-men. part 1. folio 24, b. 26, b. 27. 34, b.
There are divers sorts of Starres, and comets. part 2. folio 24, b. 25. a. 27. a.
Common wealth. The meanes whereby a Common wealth may flourish. Pt. 1. fol. 87. a.
Company. Companions. Society. There are divers sorts of societies, and associates. Pt. 1. fol. 51, b. and Pt. 2. fol. 18.
Questions cõcerning society with wicked men. pt. 2. fol. 17, 18, 19. and Pt. 1. f. 481, a. 495, b. 496, a.
What is required of those who keepe company, and converse with Saints. pt. 2. folio 329, b.
Compunction. Contrition. Humiliation. Godly Sorrow. Contrition is a part of repentance, and belongs unto the Law. pt. 1. f. 118, b. and Pt. 2. fol. 275, b. 365.
Without humiliation, and compunction, no comfort, and consolation. pt. 2. folio 98.
The division of humiliation, and the meanes thereunto. pt. 2. fol. 275, b. 365. and pt. 1. fol. 494, b.
Conclusions. See Collections.
Concord. See Agreement.
Concupiscence. Many necessary and profitable questions, concerning the internal concupiscence of the heart. pt. 1. fol. 87, b. 101, b, &c. 222, 223, b, &c.
Condemnation. Punishment. All wicked men shall be punished, and condemned at the last; and why? pt. 1. f. 409, b. 410, a. 428, a. 429.
Condition. Estate. Our estate and condition is often happy, when it seemes miserable. pt. 1. fol. 35, b.
Confession. Divers questions concerning the kinds, properties, and necessity of Confession. pt. 1. folio 58, b. 59, a. 69. and 493, b.
Controverted questions concerning Auricular confession. pt. 1. fol. 468, b. 69, 489, b. 490.
Confidence. See Faith.
Conscience. Divers questions concerning the division of Conscience in generall, and the nature of an evill conscience, and the necessity of a good. pt. 1. f. 29, a. & pt. 2. f. 16, b. 277, b. 302, b. 350, b. 363, a. 366.
Consistory. Sanhedrim. Questions concerning the Iewish Consistory, Sanhedrim & Iudgement. facts pt. 1. f. 195. and pt. 2. f. 27, b. 187, b.
Consolation. See Comfort.
Cõstancy, Inconstancy, Perseverance. Perseverance in obedience is hard. pt. 1. folio 61, b.
Meanes, or helpes unto perseverance. pt. 1. f. 133. Inconstancy becomes no Christians. pt. 2. f. 69, b, &c.
Consultation. Deliberation. who offend in their Consultations. Pt. 1. folio 15, b.
How Deliberation, and delay differ. pt. 2. folio 18, b. 60, b.
Deliberation requisite in weighty actions. pt. 1. folio 15, b. and 60, b.

Contempt. Contemners. Despisers. To Despise. Divers questions concerning the contempt of the Word, and Preachers thereof. Pt. 1. fol. 119, a. and 441, a. and 450, b. Pt. 2. f. 50, b, &c. 86, b. 87, a. 90. 300, b.

Contentation. Christians must be contented, and why? and the rules observeable thereunto. pt. 1. fol. 11 b. and 35, b.

Contention, Dissentiō. Discord. Strife. Iarres. Dissention hinders religion, part 2. fol. 40, a.

The causes of domestical Contentions and jarres, and the remedies against them. pt. 2. fol. 50, 51.

Who are sowers of Discord and strife, pt. 1. fol. 168, b.

Contrition See Compunction.

Conventicles. The Conventicles of Separatists unlawfull. pt. 1. f. 125, b. 126, a. 523, a, b.

Conversation. Life. Divers questions concerning our temptations after the purpose, and endeavour of a new Life. pt. 1. fol. 84, b. 85, b.

Profitable questions concerning the purging, and regulating of our Lives, and conversations. Pt. 1. fol. 85. 416, 417. and Pt. 2. folio 16, b. 17. 135. 166.

Divers questions concerning the kinds of Life, and the nature of Life in generall, and of a Christians Life and Spirituall life, in particular. pt. 1. fol. 304, 305. 417, 418. 472, 473. and 492, b, &c. and pt. 2. folio 50, a.

An austere life is commendable, and why? pt. 2. fol. 7, a. See Austerity.

The Life of the wicked is shortned. pt. 1. fol. 430, a.

Conversion. Repentance. Penance.

What Repentance John Baptist preached. Pt. 1. fol. 55, b.

Objections for popish Penance, answered. pt. 1. fol. 55, b. 56, &c.

Divers questions concerning the kinds, parts, properties, meanes, methode, necessity, and signification of Repentance, and the felicity of the truely penitent. pt. 1. fol. 57. 60. 204, a. 313, b. 489. 512, b. 520, a. and pt. 2. fol. 80. 82, 83. a. 84, b. 85, 86, a. 87. a. 175, 276, a. 302, b. &c. 362, b.

Questions concerning false Repentance. pt. 2. fol. 364, 81.

The meanes that may be converted. pt. 2. fol. 81. 273, 5, 6, &c. [illegible]

Although a man doe nothing in the worke of Conversion, yet he is inexcusable for [illegible]

Combat. What was [illegible] by the [illegible] Combat. pt. 2. fol. 2. 96, b. [illegible]

Corne. Who are Corne, and who are chaffe. pt. 1. folio 78, a.

Corruption. How manifold Corruption is. pt. 1. folio 427, a.

Covetousnesse. Avarice. World. Worldlings and Temporall things.

Divers questions concerning Covetousnesse, and the love and service of the World. pt. 1. folio 333, b. 334. 338. 481, a. and pt. 2. f. 363.

Divers questions concerning the nature, and wickednesse of this present world. pt. 1. fol. 122, a. 408, a. and pt. 2. folio 40, b.

The difference betweene the Worldling, Hypocrite, and godly man. pt. 1. folio 226, a.

The difference betweene Temporall, or worldly things, and heavenly, pt. 1. folio 329, b.

Councell. Synode.

Divers questions concerning the infallibility, power, and calling of lawfull Councels. Part 1. fol. 30, a. and pt. 2. fol. 218, a. 221, b. 222, b.

What the Iewish Councels were. pt. 2. folio 27, a.

Councell. See Admonition.

Craft Deceit. Double dealing. Fraud.

Christians must be free from all Fraud, false dealing, and the like, and why? pt. 1. folio 161, a.

Creatures. What we may learne from the Creatures. pt. 1. folio 344.

Crosses. See Adversity.

Cruelty. Questions concerning the fruits, effects, nature, and kinds of Cruelty. Pt. 1. folio 43, b. 44, a. and 45, b. 479, b, &c.

Customes. Questions concerning the Customes of Nations, and the kinds of Customes. Pt. 1. folio 361, &c.

D.

DAnger. Distresse. Perill. Trouble. Questions concerning the dangers, and troubles of the Apostles and faithfull; and the remedies against them, and deliverance from them. Pt. 1. f. 31, a. 35, a. 50, b. and pt. 2. fol. 27, b.

Whether danger may be feared, and how? pt. 2. fol. 41, b. and f. 362, a.

Darknesse See Blindnesse.

Day. How the Day of old was divided. Pt. 2. fol. 257, a. and 382, a.

Deafenesse. Divers Questions concerning the kinds and causes of deafenesse, and the remedies against it. Pt. 2. folio [illegible] 389.

Death. Questions concerning the division, definition, nature, and welcomming of Death. pt. 1. fol. 61. 70, a. 196, b. 320, a. and pt. 1. folio 510, a, b.

Questions concerning sudden Death, and the uncertainty of the houre of Death. pt. 1. folio 328, b, &c. 430. and pt. 2. folio 320, a.

Questions concerning our Spirituall Death, and deliverance there-from, Pt. 2. folio 70.

The dead have no benefit by the indulgences of the Church. Pt. 2. folio 326, a. and pt. 1. folio 512, b.

Living men appeare to be dead, and that many wayes. Pt. 1. fol. 509, b.

Debts. Questions concerning the kinds of Debts, and what debts we must forgive our brethren, and why? pt. 1. fol. 309, b. and pt. 2. fol. 223, b. 224, a.

Decrees. Although Gods Decrees be sure, yet meanes must be used. pt. 1. folio 51, a.

Delay. Procrastination. How deliberation and delay differ. pt. 1. fol. 15, b. 60, b.

Whether it be good or not, to protract our obedience. pt. 1. folio 85, a.

Deliberation. See Consultation.

Deliverance. What is meant by this word Deliver. Matth. 10. 17. They will deliver you. part 2. folio 27, a.

Deniall. Selfe-deniall. Questions concerning Deniall in generall, and the kinds thereof, and Selfe-deniall in particular. Pt. 2. folio 47, 48, 49, b. 194.

Divers profitable questions concerning the deniall of Christ. Pt. 2. folio 48, 49.

Derelict. Forsaking. Questions how Christ was forsaken, and how many sorts of derelict there are. pt. 1. folio 377.

Derision See Scoffers.

Desert. Merit. Controverted questions concerning the Merit of workes. pt. 1. folio 158. 160, a. 169. 253, a. 258. 515, a. and pt. 2. folio 197, b. 239, b. 240. 253, a. 258, b. 334.

Christs Merits may be applied unto us, but the merits of the Saints cannot. pt. 1. folio 187, b. 188, a.

Desire. Unclean desires, a branch of the seventh Commandement. pt. 1. folio 222.

Holy Desires a degree of [illegible] knowledge. pt. 1. folio 139, b. &c.

Detestation. Questions concerning the kinds and nature of Detestation, and [illegible] pt. 2. folio [illegible] 389.

Detesters. See [illegible]

Detesta-

Detestation. Hatred. Some Hate others for Religion, and who they are? pt. 2. fol. 52, a.
We must Hate none, and why? pt. 1. fol. 251, b. 252, a.
Detraction. See Backbiting.
Devill. Sathan. Divers questions concerning the name, nature, deceit, enmity, punishment, strength, weapons, and temptations of Sathan, and the remedies against him, and them. pt. 1. fol. 97. 100, b. 102, b. 104, a. 131, b. 318. 478, 479, 480, 481, 482. 520, b. and pt. 2. fol. 33, b. 120, a. 141, a. 367, a. and pt. 1. fol. 521, a.
Questions concerning the Devils knowledge, and tempting of Christ. pt. 1. fol. 96. 102. and pt. 2. fol. 169, a.
When, and how God makes use of Sathan. Pt. 1. fol. 97, a.
Sinne comes from Sathan. Pt. 2. f. 2, a.
A man may have power over Sathan, and yet not be saved. Pt. 1. f. 435.
Diet. How many sorts of Diet there are. Pt. 2. fol. 76, a, b.
Diffidence. Distrust. The Devill tempts us to Distrust God, and how? pt. 1. fol. 96, b.
Digamy. See Bigamy.
Disciples. See Apostles, and Servants.
Discord. See Contention.
Diseases. Sicknesse. Divers questions concerning the Sicknesses, and Diseases which were healed by Christ. Pt. 1. fol. 129, b. 130, 131, 132. Pt. 2. fol. 11, b.
How Sicknesses and Diseases differ. Pt. 1. fol. 129, a.
Questions concerning Gods end in afflicting with sicknesse, and our bearing of it. Pt. 1. fol. 131, 132.
The Sicke are to be visited, and why? Pt. 2. fol. 333, a.
Dishonour. Honour. How many wayes God is Dishonoured. Pt. 1. fol. 295, 296.
Although Honour be good, yet it is perilous, and very much abused. pt. 2. fol. 304, b. 320, a.
To Dispossesse. Possession. Fruition. Whether any now adayes be Possessed or not. Pt. 2. fol. 119, b. 120, a. pt. 1. fol. 476, b. 477, a, b. &c. 480.
Whether Sathan dispossesse Sathan. Pt. 2. fol. 121, b, &c.
How many wayes uncleane Spirits are Dispossessed. Pt. 1. fol. 100, b. and fol. 465, b. and Pt. 2. fol. 20, b.
Wee never perfectly Enjoy God or Christ, till we come to heaven. Pt. 1. fol. 345.
Dissention. See Contention.
Dissimulation. There is a lawfull, as well as an unlawfull Dissimulation. Pt. 1. fol. 33.
Distresse. See Danger.
Distrust. See Diffidence.
Divell. See Devill.
Divorce. Separation. Divers questions concerning Divorces. Pt. 1. fol. 228, 229, 230, 231, 232. and Pt. 2. fol. 231, 232, 233.
Doctrine. The fruits of true and false Doctrine. Pt. 1. f. 422, b. 423, a.
Dove. Questions, why the holy Ghost descended in the likenesse of a Dove; and what the nature, and properties of Doves are; and why they must be imitated; and wherein, and whether in all things or not? Pt. 1. f. 82. & pt. 2. f. 23, b. 24, b. 25, 26, a.
Dreames. Divers questions concerning the kinds and causes of Dreams pt. 1. fol. 16, b. 37, a. and pt. 2. f. 370, b. 371, a.
Duels are the most deviliish cruelty pt. 1. fol. 46, a.
Dumbe. All men by nature, are spiritually Dumbe. pt. 2. fol. 121, a.
Dwell. Whether, and how it is lawfull to dwell amongst Infidels. pt. 1. fol. 51, b.

E.

EArth. Field. Ground. Questions concerning the signification, and sorts of Earth. Pt. 1. fol. 77. 146, 147.
Eclypse. Divers questions concerning the Eclipse at Christs suffering. pt. 2. fol. 375, b. &c.
Education. There is a threefold good Education. pt. 1. fol. 49.
Egypt. A description of Egypt, and the Egyptians, and why Ioseph fled thither. pt. 1. f. 40, b. 41, b.
Election. Not all, but a few onely are Elected unto life. pt. 2. fol. 261, 262, b.
The Elect cannot perish, and why? pt. 2. fol. 314, a.
Elias. How Iohn was Elias: and whether Elias be yet come? pt. 2. fol. 151. and 201, a.
Emmanuel. The derivation of this Name, and to whom it was given. pt. 1. fol. 21.
Enemies. Divers questions concerning the Enemies of Christ, and his Church. pt. 1. fol. 33, b. 34, a. 49. b, &c. 297, 298. and pt. 2. fol. 7, a. 26, b.
Questions concerning the Spirituall enemies of mankind, and the defence against them. pt. 1. f. 61, b. 62, a.
Divers questions concerning the love of our Enemies, pt. 1. f. 252, 253, 253.
Enjoyment. See Dispossesse.
Equivocation. Questions and examples of Equivocation, pt. 1. f. 188, a. 233. and 509, a. pt. 2. f. 16, a.
Eremite. Hermite. Whether Iohn Baptist was an Hermite. pt. 1. f. 64, b.
Errors. Heresies. Whence it is that Errors in Religion often spring from the Pastors of the Church. pt. 1. fol. 211, b. &c.
How people may be preserved from Errour. pt. 1. fol. 211, b, &c.
How Errour may bee founded upon Scripture. pt. 1. fol. 213.
Errors creepe secretly into the Church. pt. 2. fol. 143, b. &c.
Estate. See Conditon.
Esteeme. To Preferre. Christ is to be esteemed and preferred before all other things, and why? Pt. 2. fol. 55, b. 56, a.
Eucharist. Or the Lords Supper. Controverted questions concerning the Eucharist. pt. 1. fol. 114. and pt. 2. fol. 270, b. 279, b.
38 Questions, with 11 Objections, concerning the Lords Supper. pt. 2. fol. 339, b, &c. to 356, b.
Divers other questions concerning the worthy, and unworthy comming, unto the Table of the Lord, and the end of this Sacrament. pt. 2. fol. 279. 280. 307, a. and pt. 1. fol. 457, a. 501, b.
Εὐδοκία. What εὐδοκία signifies. pt. 1. fol. 83.
The εὐδοκία, and goodwill of God, is the first and principall cause of all he doth. pt. 2. fol. 94, b, &c.
Evening. What is meant by Evening. pt. 2. fol. 381, a.
Evill. How manifold Evill is. pt. 1. f. 245, b. 246, a.
How we must pray against Evill. pt. 1. fol. 317, b.
Eunuches. How many sorts of Eunuches there are. pt. 2. fol. 236, a.
Exaction. There is a double exaction. pt. 1. fol. 69, a.
Examination. What we must examine, and what wee must not examine in our selves, and how we must examine our selves. pt. 1. fol. 57, b, &c. 98, b. &c. 133, a. 439, a. and pt. 2. 328, b. 329, 330.
Example. We must give good Example unto our brethren, and why? pt. 1. fol. 177.
Excommunication. Ecclesiasticall Jurisdiction. And the power of the Keyes.
Divers questions concerning the power, and use of the Keyes. pt. 2. fol. 191, 192, 221, a. and pt. 1. fol. 492, a, b.
Exorcists. See Magi, Magicke.

Experience. Faith is encreased by the experience of Gods mercy. pt. 1. f. 343.
Eye. Divers properties of the Eye. pt. 2. fol. 65.

F.

FAith. Belefe. Assurance. Confidence.
Divers questions both utile, and usefull, concerning the nature, nourishing, act, object, kinds, markes, benefits, and approbation of true justifying Faith. pt. 1. fol. 133, b. 343. 436. 445. 515, a. b. and fol. 514, b. pt. 2. fol. 60, b. 173. 180, a. 201, b. 203. 272, b. 349, a.
Divers questions concerning weake, and strong Faith, and the nature, notes, and kinds of Assurance, and Confidence. pt. 1. fol. 348. 349. 433, b. and 452, 453. 570. and pt. 2. fol. 117, b. 118. 156, a. 173, b. 326, b. and pt. 1. fol. 474. 475, 476.
Faith cannot be separated from works, and Love. pt. 1. fol. 76, b. and pt. 2. fol. 149.
A man may Beleeve more then is promised; and how? pt. 1. fol. 110, b. &c.
How Christ requires Faith of us, before he workes it in us, pt. 2. fol. 119, a.
Wherein our Faith and Adams differ. pt. 2. fol. 156, a.
Faithfull. See Beleevers.
Fame. Reputation. Questions concerning the sorts of Fame, and Reputation; and how they may bee sought for; and why Christians should be so carefull of their name, fame, and credit? pt. 1. fol. 13. and pt. 2. fol. 17.
Familists. See Anabaptists.
Fanne. What is meant by the Fanne in Christs hand. Pt. 1. fol. 77, a.
Fasting. Why Christ fasted. pt. 1. fol. 89.
Whether a choyce of meates upon Fasting dayes be a matter of Religion. Pt. 1. fol. 65, a. and Pt. 2. fol. 163. 167, b.
Questions concerning the sorts of Fasts in generall, and wherein the true and false Fast consist; and the nature, definition, ends, reasons, and benefits of Fasting. pt. 1. fol. 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95. and 332, b. 323, 324. 326. and fol. 502, b. Pt. 2. fol. 163, 164, 165. 203, b.
Fate. What Stoicall Fate is. Pt. 1. fol. 466, a.
Fathers. Parents. The duty of Parents towards their Children; and the danger of the neglect of their duty. pt. 1. fol. 21, a. 123, a. and 511, b. 512, a. and Pt. 2. 53, b. 54. 61.
Some are good Parents and evill persons. Pt. 2. fol. 402.
Why the Lord is called our Father. Pt. 1. fol. 179, b. 290. and Pt. 2. fol. 181, a.
The happinesse of those who have God to their Father. pt. 1. fol. 292, b.
Why the ancient Fathers of former times, are not fit Foundations to build our Faith upon. pt. 1. fol. 190, 191. 194, b.
The Papists easily reject many Fathers at once, when they speake not on their side. pt. 2. fol. 234.
Feare. How danger may be feared. pt. 1. fol. 41, b. and 474.
Feasts. Divers questions concerning Feasts. pt. 1. fol. 456, 457.
Felicity. See Blessednesse.
Fever. The nature of a Fever. pt. 1. fol. 461, 462, 463.
Figures See Allegories.
Fire. There is a threefold Fire. pt. 1. fol. 78, a.
Fishes. Fishers. Questions concerning the signification of this word Fisher; and what things are observeable in Fishers; and wherein Ministers resemble them. pt. 1. fol. 120, 121.
Flaxe. What is meant by Flaxe. pt. 2. fol. 117, b.
Flight. Questions concerning Iosephs fleeing with Christ into Egypt. pt. 1. fol. 37. 40, 41. 49.
When, and how Flight is lawfull in the time of persecution, and danger. pt. 1. fol. 115, a. pt. 2. fol. 28, b. 29, 30, 31, 32.
Floore. What is meant by the Barne Floore. pt. 1. fol. 76, b.
To Follow Christ. Divers questions concerning our following of Christ. pt. 2. fol. 55, a. and pt. 1. fol. 468, 469, b. 440, b. 441, a.
Foole. Folly. How it is lawfull to call one Foole. pt. 1. fol. 200, b. and pt. 2. fol. 297, b, &c.
Forgivenesse. Remission. Reconciliation. Divers profitable questions concerning our Reconciliation unto God, and his gracious forgiving of us. pt. 1. fol. 82, a. 310. a. 312, b. 313, b. 314, a. 489, b. and pt. 2. fol. 223, b. 225.
Divers questions concerning our forgiving one another; and Reconciliation one unto another. pt. 1. fol. 205, 206, 207, 208, 209. 321, b. 322, a. and pt. 2. fol. 223, b. 224, 225, a.
Questions concerning the power of the Church in pardoning of sinners. Pt. 1. fol. 491, a. b.
Forsaking. See Dereliction.
Forswearing. Swearing. Perjury. Oathes.
Divers usefull questions concerning Swearing, and Oathes. Pt. 1. fol. 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244. and pt. 2. fol. 152. 273. 297, a. 299, a.
Divers profitable questions concerning Perjury. Pt. 1. folio 232. 233.
Foundation. Three things required in a sure Foundation. Pt. 1. fol. 440, a.
Free-will. Objections for Free-will answered. Pt. 1. fol. 329, b. and pt. 2. 128.
Fruit. God requires Fruit of us, and why? Pt. 1. fol. 426, b. a. 428, b.
Questions concerning the sorts of Fruit; and who are fruitlesse in the Church; and our duty towards these who are Fruitfull. Pt. 1. fol. 423, 424, 425, b.
Fruition. See Dispossesse.
Function. See Calling.
Funerals. See Buriall.

G.

GAlilee. Why Christ returned into Galilee, and what things are observeable in Galilee. Pt. 1. fol. 50. b. 51.
Garments. See Apparell.
Genealogies. Differences concerning Christs Genealogie reconciled; and divers questions concerning Genealogies answered. Pt. 1. fol. 7, 8, 9. 12.
Gentiles, Heathens, Infidels, Vnbeleevers.
Questions concerning the Apostles preaching unto the Gentiles, and of salvation offered unto them thereby. Pt. 2. fol. 5, 9, a.
How it is lawfull to inhabit amongst Infidels and Heathens. Pt. 1. fol. 51, b.
Whether Vnbeleevers may performe good workes. Pt. 1. fol. 262, a.
Ghost. See Spirit.
Gifts. Divers necessary, and profitable questions, concerning the corporall, externall, and spirituall Gifts, which are given us by God. Pt. 1. fol. 399, a. 437, a. and pt. 2. fol. 12, b. 13, a. 328, 329, 330.
Glory. Why, and how, we must seeke the Glory of our God in all things. pt. 1. fol. 178, b. 179, a. 294, b. 295.
Whether there shall be any degrees of Glory in heaven. pt. 1. fol. 329, a. and pt. 2. fol. 136, b. 146, b. 253, b. 259, a.

Que-

Queſtions concerning Vaine-glory. Pt. 1. fol. 467, b.

God. Controverted queſtions concerning the attributes of God, as his immutability, inviſibility, omniſcience, power, ſubſiſtence, goodneſſe, bounty, and long ſuffering. pt. 1. fol. 83, b. 101, b. 128, b. 129, a. 164, b. 165, a. 241, b. 320. 321, a. 452, a. 527, a. and pt. 2. fol. 1. 12. 33, a. 96, b. 214, 215. 246. 277, a. 280, a. 290, b. 295, b. 327. 359, a.

There is a God, although wicked men have Atheiſticall thoughts of him. pt. 1. fol. 300, b. and pt. 2. fol. 33. And in what Bookes God is read. pt. 1. fol. 344, a.

We muſt not demand a reaſon of Gods actions. Pt. 2. fol. 95, a. 96, a.

Where God dwels; and how manifold his habitation is. pt. 1. fol. 241, b. 293, 294, a.

God loves man better then the other creatures. part. 1. folio 347, b. 348.

Godly, Godlineſſe. Piety. Pious. Holy. Holineſſe. Holy things. Purity. Sanctity.

Holy men are often in danger to be abuſed by the wicked, unto wickedneſſe. Part. 1. folio 32, b. 33, a.

The way of Holineſſe is a ſtrait way: why, and how? Pt. 1. floio 413.

The difference betweene a Holy carnall, and hypocriticall man. pt. 1. fol. 236, a.

Divers neceſſary queſtions concerning the kinds, neceſſity, meanes, meaſure, ſeat, and end, or reward of Purity and Sanctity; as alſo who are enemies thereunto. pt. 1. folio 161, 162, 163, a. 176, b. 177, a. 416, b. and part. 2. folio 276.

Holy things are not raſhly to be communicated unto any. Part 2. fol. 170.

What is meant by this word Hallowed. pt. 1. folio 294, b.

Gold. Silver. Money. How many ſorts of Money there are. part 2. folio 14, b.

Good. Goodneſſe. Good things. Divers queſtions concerning the Author of all good things in man; and why he gives good things unto man; and how good things are abuſed by man. Pt. 1. folio 243, b. &c. 399. and pt. 2. fol. 12.

Good in man is the exemplar of God. pt. 1. fol. 403, a.

How manifold Goodneſſe is. Pt. 1. fol. 435.

Goſpell. Divers excellent queſtions concerning the Author, nature, name, Penmen, Preachers, power, dignity, excellency, and efficacie of the Goſpell. pt. 1. folio 3, 4, b. 55, a. 62, b. 63, a. 126, b. 141. and Pt. 2. folio 83. 207, b. 208, a. 311, b.

Queſtions concerning the receivers, embracers, enjoyers, and heires of the Goſpell. pt. 2. fol. 66, b. 141, a. and pt. 2. fol. 20, b. 21, a. 84, a, 88, a.

Queſtions concerning the hiding, revealing, and enlargment of the Goſpell. Pt. 2. folio 87, b, 88, 90, a. 181, a.

In what Language St. Matthew writ this Goſpell. Pt. 1. folio 5.

Wherein the Law and Goſpell differ. Pt. 1. folio 55, a. 183. 427, b.

Grace. Profitable queſtions concerning the neceſſity, excellency, meaſure, and meanes of Grace; and the labour and paines which muſt be taken for the procuring thereof. Pt. 1. folio 271, b. 400, 401. and pt. 2. folio 276.

What Graces are given unto us, for the obtaining of heaven. Pt. 1. fol. 81, a.

How Grace is ordinarily wrought in great ſinners. Pt. 2. folio 274, b. 275, a.

How and wherein Grace reſembles Wine. Part 1. folio 504, 505.

Grace is given undeſervedly on our part. pt. 1. folio 514, b.

Gratis. Freely. How and what the Apoſtles did receive Gratis; and how, and what they muſt give Gratis. Pt. 2. folio 12, b. 13.

Griefe. See Anguiſh.

Ground. See Field.

H.

HAires. Many notable things in theſe words, Your haires are numbred. Pt. 2. folio 36, b.

Happineſſe. See Bleſſedneſſe.

Hardning. Hardneſſe of heart. Obduration.

How God hardens the heart; and whom hee hardens; and the cauſes of Obduration, and the remedies againſt it, and the miſery of thoſe who are hardened. pt. 2. folio 89, b. 90, 91, 92. 141, a. and pt. 1. folio 459, b. 460, a.

Hatred. See Deteſtation.

Hearers. Hearing. Divers queſtions concerning the ſorts of Hearers; and unprofitable Hearers; and the ſignes, and duties of good Hearers. Pt. 1. folio 70, b. 75, b. &c. 127, a. 166, b. 178, b. 437, 438, a. 441. a. 524, b. and pt. 2. folio 10, b. 84, b. 87, a. 104, b. 138, b. &c. 147, 148, 149, b. 162, a. 300, b.

Divers queſtions concerning our unwillingneſſe to Heare, and the neceſſity, impediments, and benefits of hearing; and the fruits we muſt ſhew of our hearing. pt. 2. folio 57, b. 68, 69. 138. 142, a. 147, b. 161, b.

Heart. Why the Heart is the ſeat of all true purity. pt. 1. fol. 163, a.

Who ſerve God but not with the heart. pt. 1. fol. 163, b.

The luſt of the Heart is ſinne. pt. 1. folio, 223, b.

Heathens. See Gentiles.

Heaven. Divers profitable queſtions concerning Heaven; viz. whether there be a Heaven; and the joyes thereof; and the way and meanes thereunto: and the difficulty of comming thither, and who come unto Heaven. pt. 1. folio 141. 265. 300. 304, b. 305. 341, b. fine, &c. 351, 352, 353, 354, 355. 412, 413, 414, a. and pt. 2. folio 135, a. 116. 195, b. 196. 252, 253, 254, 255.

Why, and how the Heavens were opened, when Chriſt was baptized. pt. 1. folio 81, a.

What graces are given unto us for the obtaining of Heaven. part 2. folio 81, a.

God is perfectly obeyed in Heaven. pt. 1. fol. 304, a.

Heavenly things by farre, are more excellent then earthly. Part 1. fol. 329, b.

Hell. Divers queſtions concerning the meaning of this word Hell; and of the torments thereof; and what the Scripture expreſſeth, and what is conceales concerning Hell. pt. 1. folio 202, a. 430, b. 431, a. 432. 481, b. 482. and part 2. fol. 35, b. 214, a. 281, b.

Helpe. Succour. We ſhould helpe one another unto Chriſt. part 2. folio 119, b.

Heremite. See Eremite.

Hereſy. See Error.

Herod. Divers queſtions concerning the time wherein Herod lived; and his feare, fraud, folly, idleneſſe, life, and death. pt. 1. folio 23. 28, b. 32, a. 33, a. 46, a. 48, b.

Whether Herod did well or not, in conſulting with the high Prieſts, and Scribes. part 1, fol. 30, b.

Why the Lord ſuffered Herod to know where Chriſt was borne. part 1, folio 31, a.

Three Herods mentioned in Scripture. pt. 1. fol. 150. What

What the sinnes of Herod were which Iohn reproved. pt. 2. fol. 152, a.
Whether Herod was originally accessary to the death of Iohn. part 2. folio 153, a.
Hierusalem. Jerusalem. What prodigious signes preceded the destruction of Jerusalem. Pt. 2. fol. 309, b.
Hill, Mount, Mountaine. Why Christ went up to the Mount to preach. part 1. fol. 134.
What the Hill is upon which the Church is built. Pt. 1. fol. 174.
Divers questions concerning Mountaines. Pt. 2. fol. 175, b. 176.
Holinesse. See Godlinesse.
Honesty. Honesty and honest dealing betweene man and man is commendable. pt. 1. folio 405, b.
Honour. See Dishonour.
Hospitality. How many sorts of Hospitality there is, and why Christians must be given thereunto. Pt. 1. folio 154, b. and part 2. folio 56, b. 333, b.
Houre. What, and how manifold an houre of old was. pt. 2. f. 257, a.
Humiliation. See Contrition.
Humility. Divers questions concerning the degrees, fruits, benefit, and kinds of Humility, and why we must be humble, and whether all humility be good or not. Pt. 1. fol. 74, b. 75. 141. 142, a. 466, a. and 493, b. and part 2. f. 107.
Hunger. Thirst. There is a threefold Hunger, and Thirst. Pt. 1. folio 147. 148, 149.
Hypocrites. Hypocrisie. Questions concerning the markes, and reward of Hypocrites; and the kinds of hypocrisie, & why it must be avoided. Pt. 1. fol. 33, b. 34, a. 71, b. 226, a. 341, b. and pt. 2. folio 136. 179, b. 244, a. 295, a.
What things are common to the Hypocrite, and the sincere professor. Pt. 2. folio 135, b. 324.

I.

IArres. See Contention.
Idolatry. Idols. Idolatry provoketh the Lord to cast off Nationall Churches. part 2. folio 6.
Jerusalem. See Hierusalem.
Jesus. Of the derivation, and signification of the name JESUS. part 1. folio 17.
Jewes. Divers questions concerning the misery and impiety of the Iewes. Pt. 1. folio 29, a. 54, b. and 459, a, b. pt. 2. fol. 132, b, &c. 374, b. 375, a.
Seven Sects amongst the Iewes, part 2. folio 30.
What was required of the Iewes in regard of the Messias. part 2. folio 74, a.
The Church of the Iewes shall flourish againe. Pt. 2. folio 271, a.
Ignorance. See Blindnesse.
Illumination. Light. Sight. Lookes. Questions concerning the excellency, and notes of divine Illumination. Pt. 1. fol. 24, b, 25. and part 2. folio 66, a.
Divers profitable questions concerning Spirituall Light, viz. Who is the Light of the world? Part 1. fol. 116, b. 117. 171. How Light differs from Salt. pt. 1. folio 171, a. What Light signifies. part 1. fol. 171. 176, a. and part 2. fol. 65, a. The originall, and causes of true Light, and meanes thereunto. pt. 1. folio 171, b. 172, a. and Pt. 2. fol. 65, a. 66, a. Wherin Light is resembled to an eye. Pt. 2. folio 65. And who must let their light be seene. pt. 1. folio 176, b. 177, a. How many things hinder Sight. Part 1. fol. 452, a.
Lascivious lookes are sinne; and what lookes are to be avoided. pt. 1. fol. 221, 222.
Image. How man is made after the Image of God. pt. 1. fol. 403, a.
Imitation. How manifold Imitation is. Pt. 2. fol. 105, b.
Examples worthy of Imitation; and wherein we must imitate God and Christ. pt. 1. folio 264. 469, b. and folio 455, a, b. pt. 2. fol. 106. 152, b. 172. 196.
Impossible. Possible. What things are said to be Impossible. pt. 1. folio 340. and pt. 2. fol. 246.
Inchantments. See Magi. Magicke.
Inconstancie. See Constancy.
Infants. See Babes.
Infidels. See Gentiles.
Injures. Wrongs. What is required both of those who doe, and suffer wrong. See Reconciliation.
Intention. A good intention will not justifie an evill action. pt. 1. folio 79, b. 99, a.
Interpretation. Who must interpret Scripture; and what Rules are observeable in the Interpretation thereof. pt. 1. folio 30, a. 211, a. 213, 214, a. 326, b. 251, and pt. 2. fol. 235, b.
Interrogations. Questions. Why questions are asked, or Interrogations. pt. 1. fol. 70, b. 71, a.
John. What John signifies. part 1. folio 55, a.
Divers questions both Speculative and practicall concerning Iohn Baptist. pt. 1. fol. 54, b. 55. 64, b. 66, b. 79, b. 80, a. and pt. 2. fol. 60. 70, b. 71, b. 72. 151.
Ionas. What kind of Fish it was which swallowed Ionas. part 2. fol. 131, b, &c.
Wherein Ionas was a type of Christ. pt. 2. fol. 131. 177, b.
Joram. How Joram was Ozias his father. pt. 1. fol. 9.
Ioseph. Divers questions concerning Ioseph the husband of Mary. pt. 1. fol. 14, b. 15, a. 40, b. 41. 50, b.
Ioy. Rejoycing. Those who enjoy Christ truly, have true joy, and wherein the joy of the faithfull consists. pt. 1. folio 117, b. 127. and pt. 2. fol. 296, b. 297, a.
Isaac. Wherein he was a type of Christ, part 1. fol. 9.
Israel. Israelites. How many wayes the word Israel is taken, pt. 2. folio 7, b. 8, a. and part 1. fol. 454, a.
Why the Apostles were sent to preach to the Israelites. pt. 2. fol. 8, b. and 9, a.
Iudas. Divers questions concerning the office, life, covetousnesse, treachery, and death of Iudas. part 2. folio 339, a. 361, 362, 363.
Iudges, Iudgement. To Iudge. Questions concerning the office, and duty of civill Iudges, and judgement. pt. 1. fol. 149, a. 393, a. and pt. 2. folio 327, b. 373, b.
Questions concerning the judging of our selves. Pt. 1. fol. 200, a. 236, a. and part 2. fol. 295.
Questions concerning the judging of our brethren, and their actions. pt. 1. folio 200, a. 391, 392, 393. 424, b. 425. 497, a. 522, a, b.
Usefull, and Vtile questions concerning the last judgement, and the judgement presently after death; and the Iudge of the whole world; and the horrour of the wicked at the day of Iudgement. part 1. folio 210, a. 428, a. 434. and pt. folio 48, b. 252. 295, b. 309, a. 314, a. 320, b. 321, 322, 323, a. 328, a. 335.
Many deride Gods judgments, and who they are; and the effect of their derision. pt. 2. fol. 323, b, &c.
Iurisdiction. See Excommunication.
Iustice. Iust men. Righteousnesse. Righteous men.
How we must fulfill all righteousnesse, and how, and why we must hunger after righteousnesse; and whom we must exceed in Righteousnesse; and how manifold Righteousnesse is; and what it signifies, and the happinesse of the Righteous, and examples, and the duty of Righteous men.

men. *Pt.*1. f. 14,*b.*15,*a.*80.148, *b.*149,*a.*189. 328,b. 355, 356, 357,358,359.
An opinion of selfe-Righteousnesse keepes us from Christ. Pt. 1. folio 497,*b.*501,a,b.
Justification. What Justification is; who justifieth, and whether Justification *be of workes or not. pt.*1. fol. 310,*b.*312,*b. pt.*2. fol. 130,*b.*313. 334,a.

K.

KEyes. See Excommunication.
Kingdom, King. Divers questiõs concerning the Kingdome of Heaven, and Christ; that is, both the Kingdome of grace, and glory; and what Kingdome *signifies, pt.*1. fol. 62,b, &c. 127, a. 141, a, b. 297. 299. 300. and 354. *pt.*2. folio 73, 74,a. 206. 296.
God is the King of all the world; and where his Kingdome is. pt. 1. folio 301,a, 320,b.
Kisses. Killing. There are many sorts of Kisses. *pt.*1. folio 261.
Knowledge. Questions concerning the Lords knowledge, and the kinds thereof, and our knowledge of God and the sorts, and signes thereof. pt. 2. folio 97,a. 137, *b.*139,b, *&c.*336,*b. and pt.*1. *fol.*518,a.
None can know God, except he reveale himselfe unto them. pt. 2. folio 96,*b.*97,a.

L.

LAbour. Who are meant by Labourers; and how manifold labour is, and what we must labour principally for; and what labour *shall be refreshed. pt.*2. *f.*98,b. 99,a. 100, *b.*103,*a. and pt.*1. *fol.*492,*b.*493.
Lame. We are naturally lame. pt. 2. folio 66,b.
Laughing. Two sorts of Laughers *at Christ. pt.*1. folio 511,a.
Law. See Commandements.
Learning, Schollers, Figures, and humane learning *necessary, and usefull. pt.*1. folio 48,b.
Two things required in Schollers, and those who learne. *pt.*2. folio 93,b.
We must be Christs Schollers. part 2. folio 104.
Lending. To Lend. Divers questions concerning Lending. *pt.*1. folio 242,*b.*249,a.
Lent. *Whether the institution thereof be Apostolicall. pt.*1. folio 502,b.
Leprosie. Divers questions concerning the nature of the Leprosie. pt. 2. folio 11,*a.*66,*b.*67,a. and pt. 1. folio 421,*b.*442.
Liberalitie. See Almes.
Liberty. How manifold liberty is. Pt. 1. folio 185. pt. 2. fol. 206,a.
How Christians are freed *from the Law, pt.*2. folio 75.
Men have not a lawlesse liberty *to use their owne as they please. pt.*2. folio 260,b.
Life. See Conversation.
Light. See Illumination.
Lilly. Wherein the Lillies excelled Salomon. pt. 1, folio 347.
Limbus. Concerning Limbus Infantum. See Infants concerning Limbus patrium. See pt. 1. folio 457, b.
Locusts. What the Locusts were. pt. 1. folio 65,*b.*66,a.
Lookes. See Illumination.
Love. See Amity.
Lunatique. What Lunacy *is, and what is figuratively meant thereby. pt.*1. folio 131,b.

M.

MAgi, Magick. Wisemē, Charms. Inchantments. Exorcisme. Divers questions concerning the Wise-men *who came unto Christ. pt.*1. folio 23,*b.*24. 26. 28. 34, 35, 36, 37. 39.
How many sorts of Magick *there are. Pt.*1. folio 23,b. 24,a.
What Wisemen *God liketh, and disliketh. pt.*1. *fol.*24,*a. pt.*2. folio 92,a.
Charmes. and Spels *not lawfull. pt.*1. folio 100,b.
The Originall of Exorcists. *pt.*2. folio 122,b.
Magistrates. Divers questions both concerning the duty of Magistrates, and people duty to Magistrates. *pt.*1. fol. 45,*b.*144,*b*147,*a. and pt.*2. folio 284,a. and 372,a.
Magistrates lawfull among st Christians. pt. 2. folio 205, a.
Excommunication freeth not subjects from obedience to Magistrates. pt. 2. folio 283,b.
Maids. Virgins. Maids are warily and charily to be educated, and kept, and why? pt. 1. folio 21,a.
Malice. An example of most inhumane malice. *pt.*2. fol. 35,b.
Mammon. What is meant by Mammon. *pt.*1. folio 337,*b.*338,a.
Man. Men. How many ways God made or produced Man. *pt.*1. folio 73,a.
What is meant by the word Men. *Mat.*10.17. Beware of men. *p.*2. *f.*26
Man *in many things is now like unto the brute creatures, in some things worse, in some better, yea in some better then the Angels. pt.*1. folio 397, 99. 145, b. 246. 422,*b. and pt.*2. folio 28. 264, b. &c.
Mary. Divers questions concerning the Virgin Mary. pt. 1. *fol.*12, *b.*13,b, 14,*a.*19,*b.*21,*b.*22. 40, *a. & pt.*2. *f.*72, *a.*134. 150,b.
Marriages. Questions concerning Marriages, and the duty of married persons and the Iewish rites in marriage. *pt.*1. *f.*146,b. & pt. 2. *f.*231, b, 234, *a. and pt.*1. fol. 502, a.
Questions concerning our spirituall marriage with Christ. pt. 2. folio 278, 279, a.
Masse. Protestants may not goe to masse, because it is unlawfull, and Masse an idol. pt. 1. fol. 204, b. and pt. 2. folio 212, a.
Masters. The duty of Masters *towards their servants. pt.*1. folio 146,b, 448, b. and pt. 2. folio 61.
Mathew. What St. Mathew was, pt. 1. folio 4.
Maximes. Principles. Two sorts of, principles. pt. 1. fol. 403, a, b.
Meanes. Divers questions concerning the use both of lawfull, and indirect Meanes. *pt.*1. *f.*51,*a.*99,*b.*100, *a.*303,*b.*466. 516, a, b.
God workes by divers and sundry meanes. pt. 1. folio 101, b.
Those who are deprived of the outward meanes of grace, are sometimes better then those who enjoy the meanes. pt. 1. *fol.*455. a.
Meditation. Divers profitable, necessary, usefull, and seasonable Meditations concerning new obedience (pt. 1. fol. 85, a) and the obtaining of reconciliation with God. (pt. 1. f. 82,) and in the time of affliction, and temptation (*pt.*45. 86,a and 145,b. and of a threefold life. (pt. 1. fol. 304, 305.) and of the hatred of sinne. (pt. 1. fol. 58, a.) and of the last Iudgement. (pt. 2. fol. 49, *b.*367, b.) and against lust. (pt. 1. *fol.*224, 225.) and of the Attributes of God. (*pt.*1. *fol.*241, b.) and before prayer, (*Pt.*1, *fol.*445, a. and of hels torments. (*Pt.*2. folio 314, a.) and of heavens joyes. pt. 1. folio 456, b.
Meekenesse. Questions concerning the nature, degrees, and excellency of Meekenesse; and the filthy of meeke men. Pt. 1. *f.*146, 147.
Mercy. Mercifull. Divers and sundry questions concerning Mercy; viz, What mercy is; how manifold it is; why we must be mercifull; and towhom; and wherein; and the measure of true mercy; and the fruitfull and blessednesse of the mercifull. pt. 1. 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 158, 159, 160, 514, *a. b. and pt.*2. fol. 114. 358, b.
The way unto Temporall, Spirituall, and eternall mercies, pet. f.
Qqqq 4 The

Whether the workes of mercy be meritorious. pt.2. folio 333,a.
Merits. See Deserts.
Ministers. Ministry. Preachers. Teachers.
Questions concerning the duty of people in regard of their Preachers. pt.1. folio 30,b. and pt.2. folio 13.72, *b.292,293,&c.*
Questions concerning the properties, and qualities of Preachers, *what they should be, and what they should not be. pt.1. f.*79,*b.*121.166,170, 171,172.327,*a.*527.*b.*528,a. and pt.2. folio 1.144.145,282,a.
Questions concerning the duty of Ministers, what they should doe. pt.1. folio 71.80,*a.*119,*b.*122,a. 124, *a,*178,*b.234,235.&* 489,*a.*491, *b.*527,528. *and pt.2. f.*9,*b.*11.35, *b.*38,*a.*67. 69,*b.*149,*b.*153,b. 300.333,b.
Questions concerning the vocation, efficacy, power, disposition, necessity, & nature of the Ministry. *pt.1. f.*54, *b.*118,*b.*119,*a.*123,*b.*525,a. and pt. 2. folio 1,*b.*8,b.
Questions concerning false Teachers, *and those who are taught by them, pt.1. f.424.& pt.2. f.*153,*b.*167,a.
What we may judge of those Ministers who give over Preaching. *p.1. f.*126,b.
Faithfull Ministers shall be comforted in a faithfull discharging of their places. Part 1. folio 144,a.
There are degrees of eminency, & dignity in the Ministry. *pt.2. f.*2,263,a.
whether Ministers may lawfully flee Persecution. Pt.2. folio 29,30,31.
Directions for young Preachers. *Pt.*2. folio 34,*b.*35,a.
Three sorts of Teachers. *pt.1. f.*186,b.
Ministers *may lawfully marry. Pt.*1. *f.*460,b,&c. and pt.2. folio 236,b.
Ministers are not exempted from paying of Tribute. pt. 2. folio 203, 206,b.
The sending of Ministers is manifold. Pt. 1. folio 527,b.
Miracles. Divers questions needfull to be knowne, both concerning Miracles in generall, and Christs Miracles in particular. pt. 1. folio 20, *a.*127,*b.*433,*b.*436.441,*b. and Pt.*2. folio 13,*b.*14,*a.*62,*b.*128, 176,177,a.
Misery. See Adversity.
Mocking. See Gold.
Monkes. Objections for Monasticall *vowes answered. pt.*1. folio 54,a. folio 92,b. and 166,b.
Wherein the Monkes of old, and the present Popish Monkes differ. pt. 2. folio 166,b.&c.
Morality. Morall men. The duty of Morall honesty. Pt. 1. folio 348,*b.*350,a.
How the workes of Morall and Spirituall *men differ. Pt.*2. *fol.*350,a.
Morning. There are three mornings. pt. 2. *fol.*382.a.
Mortification. No participation of Christ without mortification. Pt. 1. folio 49,a.
Mount. See Hill.
Mourning. See Anguish.
Mouth. Tongue. What is meant by opening the mouth. *pt.*1. *f.*135,b.
Divers questions concerning the excellency, nature, use, and abuse of the Tongue. *pt.*1. *fol.*200,*b.*201. 521. *and pt.*2. *fol.*120,*b.*121,a.
Multitude. The most men walke in the wayes of Sinne, and runne unto destruction; and therefore Multitude *is no true note of the Church, pt.*1. *fol.*410,411.
Murmuring. How many wayes men murmure *against God. pt.*2. *f.*259
Murther. Divers questions concerning Murther in generall; and self-murther *in particular. Pt.*1. *f.*191 *b.*192.419,420. *and pt.*2. *f.*364, a. 366.
Musique. Divers questions concerning musique, and the lawfulnesse thereof. Pt. 1. *fol.*508,a,b.

N.

NAmes. Names are to be imposed prudently, and with discretion; and how many sort of Names there are; and what is meant by this Name. *Pt.*1. *fol.*18.294,b.
Nature. Necessary questions concerning the Naturall and carnall mans blindnesse, ignorance, impiety, impotency, pollution, sicknesse, deafenesse, deadnesse, carelessnesse, miserable estate and captivity, barrennesse in good workes, properties, and the names given unto him. Pt. 1. *fol.*346,*b.*347,*a.*398,*b.*399, 407.411,*b.*412,*a.*418,426,b. 427,4429,*b.*470,471,472,473 498,*b.*499,a. b. and pt. 2. folio 26,*b.*33.63,*b.&c.*68,*b.*69.119 *a.*120,*b.*202,205.
Questions concerning the markes, and signes of Naturall and carnall *men. pt.*1. *fol.*407,b.
Questions concerning the power of Naturall and carnall *men; what they may doe in Morall or Religious workes. pt.*1. folio 226,260.
Nazareth. Nazarite. Questions concerning Nazareth; and how Christ was a Nazarite, and how we should be; and how many sort of Nazarites *there are. pt.*1. *fol.*52,53.
Necessity. There is a threefold necessity. *pt.*1. folio 109,a.
Neighbour. How we must regulate our actions in regard of our neighbours. *pt.*1. *fol.*403,b.
Whether all neighbours must be loved alike. pt. 2. folio 243,a.
Nets. Why the Apostles mended their Nets. pt. 1. folio 123,a.
New. Newnesse. Renovation. After we have purposed to lead new lives, *our temptations, and tryals will be multiplied, and increased, and whence this comes; and why God permits it. pt.*1. folio 84,*b.*85.
How we must put on Christ by newnesse of life; and how many things are to be renewed *in us. pt.*1. folio 85, and pt. 2. folio 73,a.
Night. The Night *anciently divided into foure parts. pt.*2. fol. 155,a.
Ninivites. What attribute was between the Ninivites and the Iewes, *pt.*2. folio 132,b,&c.

O.

OAthes. See Forswearing.
Obedience. Divers questions concerning new, true, and sincere obedience, *both to the first and second Table. pt.*1. *fol.*39,*b.*59,*b.*60.80, *b.*85,*a.*135,*a.*162,*b.*163,a. 309, *b,*310,*a. and pt.*2. *f.*276.287,a.
Examples of admirable and singular obedience, and what promises are made to those who are obedient. pt. 1. fol. 39,*a,b.*41,*a,b,*127.
Questions concerning hypocriticall obedience. pt. 1. *fol.*163,*b.*164,a.
Obduration. See Hardnesse of heart.
Offences, Scandals. Divers profitable questions concerning Offences, and Scandals, both given and taken. pt. 2. folio 207,208,209,210,211.
Ointment. Oyle. Three sorts of Ointments, and a double use of Oyle, *amongst the Iewes. pt.*1. *fol.*523, b,&c. and pt. 2. folio 338,a.
Ouenyour. *How many significations it hath. pt.*2. fol. 37,b.
Opinion. Why we must not adhere too much to our owne opinions. pt. 1. folio 407,b.
Opposition. Opposers. Divers questions concerning the Opposers, and Opposing of Christ, Religion, and the righteous. pt. 1. *fol.*49.b.&c. 113,a. and pt. 2. fol. 7,a.
Oyle. See Ointment.

P.

PAinting. What we may thinke of painting of the face, and of those who use it. Pt. 1. *fol.*124,b.
Palsie. Questions concerning the nature of the Palsie. *pt.*1. *fol.*447,b. 449.450.
Papists. Papists seeke their unmeasurable power from the Vicar of Christ, and teach things contrary to the word of God. folio 80, a. and pt. 2. folio 161.

The

The fruit of Popish doctrine. pt. 1. folio 422, b, &c.
Parables. Why, and how Christ spake in Parables. pt. 2. f. 135, a, 146, a.
Parents. See Fathers.
Paschall Lambe. Passeover. Divers questions concerning the Jewish Passeover, pt. 2. folio 279, b, 336, a, 338.
Paths. Wayes. Wherein paths and wayes differ. pt. 1. fol. 64.
Questions concerning the meaning of this word Way; and the two Wayes wherein men walke; and what way leades unto heaven. pt. 1. fol. 407, b. 408, a. 412, 413, b. 414, a. 420, b, &c. and pt. 2. folio 5, a.
Patience. We must be alwayes patient under Gods hand, pt. 1. folio 303, a, and in injuries, and why? and how many sorts of patience there are, pt. 1. folio 485.
Peace. Peace-makers. Divers questions concerning Peace-makers; and Peace-making. pt. 1. folio 165, b. 167, 168.
Questions concerning Civill peace with men; and how manifold Peace is. pt. 1. folio 165, a. 206, b. and pt. 2. folio 20, b, 21, a. 51, a.
Questions concerning Spirituall peace with God. Pt. 1. f. 166, a, b, 460.
Pearles. Wherein the word of God is like unto a pearle. pt. 1. f. l. 397, a.
Penance. See Conversion.
Peny. What the Romane, and Iewish peny was. pt. 2. fol. 282, b.
Perfection. Divers necessary questions concerning perfection. pt. 1. fol. 161, 261, b. 263, 264. 330, 331. 479, a.
Perill. See Danger.
Perjury. See Forswearing.
Persecution Questions concerning persecution, and the remedies against it. pt. 2. fol. 27, b, &c. to 32, b. and 310, a.
Perseverance. See Constancy.
Person. What is meant by this word Person. pt. 2. fol. 257, a. 282, b.
Peter. Divers questions concerning Peters Names, and the signification of them, and when he was first called Peter; and what faults were in him; and whether he were at Rome, and whether he was the Prince and Primate of the Apostles. pt. 2. folio 2, b. 3, 4. 181, b. 182. 186. 188. 193, b. 204, b. 306, b.
Pharisees. Scribes. Sadducees. Questions concerning the Pharisees, Scribes, and Sadducees in generall. pt. 1. fol. 70, 71, and 172. 188, 189. 267, b. 490, b. and pt. 2. folio 128, b.
Particular questions both concerning the Pharisees. (pt. 2. fol. 178, &c. 243. 291. 293.) and Sadducees. pt. 1. f. 125, b. 284, b.
Phylacteries. What these Phylacteries were. Pt. 2. folio 294, a.
Physitian. Physicke. Three things required in a good Physitian. pt. 1. fol. 488. and 499, a.
The use of Physicke, and Physitians is lawfull. pt. 1. folio 498, a.
Piety. See Holinesse.
Pilate. Divers questions concerning Pilate. pt. 2. folio 371, b.
Please. With whom God is well pleased. Pt. 1. fol. 84, b.
Poligamy. See Bygamy.
Poore men. Poverty. Questions concerning pious poore persons. pt. 1. folio 113, a. 123, a. 138. 140, b. 144, b. 148. 468. 494, b.
Questions concerning poverty in spirit. pt. 1. f. 137, a. 139. 140, a.
Questions concerning poverty in estate. pt. 1. fol. 139, 140.
Questions concerning the Vow of poverty. Pt. 1. folio 139. and pt. 2. fol. 244, b, &c.
Questions concerning Christs poverty. pt. 1. fol. 139, b. 468, b.
Pope. Controverted questions concerning the Pope; viz. whether he have Regall and Sacerdotall power. (pt. 1. f. 25, b. pt. 2. f. 188. 263, a.) Whether he be the Prince, and primate of all the Clergy (pt. 2. f. 3, 4. 181, b. 182, &c. 186, a. 188, b. 193, b.) Whether he have power either over the whole world, or over all Churches. (pt. 2. f. 185, b. 283, b. 387, b.) Whether he be the head of the Church. (pt. 2. f. 181, 182, 183, 184, 186, b.) Whether he may erre (pt. 2. f. 184, 185. 199, b.) Whether the chiefe authority of expounding Scripture belōg unto him. (pt. 2. fol. 189, b. 292, 293.) Whether he can dispense with oathes; and sell pardons, & be above Councels. pt. 2. f. 192, b. 216, b, &c.
The Popes pride shewes him to bee Antichrist. pt. 2. fol. 15, b. 263, a.
Possession. See Dispossesse.
Possible See Impossible.
Poverty. See Poore.
Power. See Ability.
Practise. Why knowledge and practise must be joyned together, pt. 1. folio 176. 438, a.
Praise. The praise of men is not to be sought, and why? pt. 1. fol. 341.
Prayer. Questions concerning publike and private prayers. pt. 1. fol. 125. 272, b. 273, b. 274. 275, a.
Questions concerning the definition, nature, necessity, efficacy, utility, impediments, quantity, time, place, and posture in prayer, and to whom we must pray. Pt. 1. fol. 272, a. 276, b. 277. 278. 292, b, &c. 316, b. 317, 318, b. 321, a. 401, b. 433. 443, b. 446, a. 450, 451. 460. 474, a. 517, a. 525, b. 526, 527, and pt. 2. f. 171. 266, b, &c. 268, a. 271, b, 272, a. 273, a. 396.
How must we pray perseverantly, fervently, humbly, submissively, and with meditation. pt. 1. f. 401. 443. 44, b. 445, a. 514, a, and pt. 2. folio 266, b. 268, b.
Men may be knowne what they are, by their prayers. pt. 1. fol. 226, a.
Prayers not understood are not pleasing unto God. pt. 2. fol. 271, a.
What things are contrary to true prayer. pt. 1. fol. 272, a. 273, a. 276.
Whether prayer be meritorious. pt. 1. folio 275, b, 277, a.
Whom God hath promised to heare when they pray. pt. 1 f. 293, a. 433, a.
Questiōs concerning the Lords prayer. pt. 1. f. 280, 289, 290. 318, b. 319.
Divers questions concerning praying for temporall things. pt. 1. f. 306, b. 307, 308, 309, and pt. 2. f. 359, a.
Why Christ heard Sathans prayer, & granted his request. pt. 1. fol. 484.
Preaching. See Ministers.
Preaching Teaching. To Teach. Questions concerning those who are called to preach. pt. 1. folio 4.
Questions concerning the excellency, dignity, necessity, utility, definition, end, power, universality, effects, and perpetuity of Preaching. pt. 1. f. 63; a. 66, b. 70. 118, b, 119, b. 124, b. 126, b. 127, b, &c. and f. 524, b. and pt. 2. f. 9, b. 10, a. 11, a. 51. b. 59, b. 62, a. 84, b. 170, b. 273, b. 352, &c.
Questions concerning those who enjoy the preaching of the word. pt. 2. fol. 8, b. 88, a.
How preaching and teaching differ, pt. 1. fol. 124. and pt. 2. folio 11, a.
Why the word was not preached unto the Gentiles. pt. 2. folio 3, a.
Who hinder the preaching of the word. pt. 2. folio 10, b. 11, a.
How Christ teacheth us. p. 2. f. 32, b. 138
Why the preaching of the word must not be promoted by worldly pompe. pt. 1. folio 172, b.
Why the word is preached to wicked men, yea all men? pt. 1. f. 356, b. 523.
Precepts. See Commandements.
Predestination. The decree of Predestination depends upon the will of God. part 2. folio 95.
Preferre. See Esteeme.
Preparation. We must prepare to meet Christ, and how? pt. 1. folio 63, b, &c. and Pt. 2. folio 325, b.
Preparation is necessary unto every good duty. (pt. 1. folio 57.) And wherein this preparation consists. (pt. 1. fol. 63, b. &c. 64, b. and pt. 2. folio 73, a.) And by whom is is wrought. pt. 1. folio 64, a.

Preſence, Abſence. Divers queſtions concerning the utility and excellency of the preſence of God, and Chriſt. Pt. 1. fol. 327, a, 486, b. and 491, a. and 502, b, &c. and pt. 2. folio 33, a. and 222, b. 223, a.

Queſtions concerning the cauſes, and evill conſequents of Chriſts Abſence. pt. 1. fol. 502, b, &c.

Preſumption. The cauſes of preſumption againſt God. pt. 1. fol. 46.

The Devill tempts us unto Preſumption. Pt. 1. fol. 103, b.

Pride. What, and how manifold Religious pride is, pt. 1. fol. 141, b.

Pride was the firſt ſinne. part 1. fol. 140, b.

Prieſt. The office, and nature of the High-prieſt. pt. 1. fol. 30.

Principles. See Maximes.

Proceſſion. Popiſh Proceſſion on Palm-Sunday, not warranted by Scripture. Pt. 2. folio 107, b.

Procraſtination. See Delay.

Profeſſion, Profeſſors. Divers neceſſary, and profitable queſtions concerning the neceſſity, manner, impediments, helpes, effects, and reward, of a ſincere profeſſion of Religion. pt. 1. folio 125, b. 520, b. and pt. 2. fol. 28 b. 34, a. 38, 39, 40. 44, 45, 46. 179, a.

Queſtions concerning outward Profeſſors, and outward profeſſion onely. pt. 1. folio 432, b. and pt. 2. fol. 41, 42, 43. 46, a. 69, a.

Queſtions concerning thoſe who dare not in dangerous times publikely profeſſe Religion. pt. 2. folio 38. 40, b. 41, a.

What things are common to the hypocriticall, and ſincere profeſſor. pt. 2. folio 135, b.

Promiſes. Queſtions concerning mans promiſes to man (pt. 1. folio 37, 38, 39.) And mans promiſes to God. (pt. 1. fol. 59.) And Gods promiſes to man, pt. 1. folio 46, b, &c. 110, a, b, &c. 127.

Prophane men. Prophaneneſſe. Wicked men. Wickedneſſe.

Queſtions concerning the nature, iniquity, end, puniſhment, and duty of prophane, and wicked perſons. pt. 1. fol. 33, a. 46, a. 398. 429, b. 430, a. and pt. 2. fol. 349, b.

How wicked men have right to temporall bleſſings. pt. 1. folio 258, a.

Prophets. Prophecying. Divers queſtions concerning Propheſies, or prophecying. pt. 1. fol. 42, b. 43. and part 2. fol. 63, 71.

Queſtions concerning Prophets, pt. 1. fol. 183, a. and 423, b. 424, a. and Pt. 2. fol. 56, a. 62, a. 70, b. 73, b. 290, a.

Queſtions concerning falſe, and evill Prophets. pt. 1. folio 422. 427, b. 435, a. and pt. 2. fol. 310.

Propoſitions. See Concluſions.

Proſperity. In outward things proſperity is very dangerous, pt. 1. folio 142, b.

Protection. The Lord will protect his Children. pt. 1. folio 35, a.

Wherein we may read the protection of God. Pt. 1. folio 344, a.

Proteſtants. Proteſtants may be taken two manner of wayes. pt. 1. folio 69.

Providence. Divers queſtions concerning the Providence of God; viz. what it is; and who erre about it, and what we are to beleeve concerning it; and wherein we may read the providence of God; and who temp⁹ his providence; and what the nature of his generall, and particular providence is: pt. 1. folio 257. 302, a. 303, 344, a. 347, b. 357, 358, 359. 466, a. 486, a. and pt. 2. folio 35, b. 36, 37, a.

Objections againſt the providence of God, anſwered. pt. 1. folio 406, b. and pt. 2. folio 261, a.

Theſe things which proceed from ſecond cauſes are ordained by the providence of God unto higher ends. pt. 1. folio 115, b. 484, b, &c.

Chriſt by his providence orders the temptations of his children. pt. 1. folio 112, b.

Proviſion. God will provide for his Children. pt. 1. folio 51, a. and pt. 2. folio 14. b. 37, a.

What is meant by this word provide, Matth. 10. 9 Provide neither Gold, &c. pt. 2. folio 14.

Prudence. Wiſedome The difference betweene Wiſdome, and Prudence, pt. 2. folio 91, a.

The difference betweene naturall, and ſpirituall Wiſedome. pt. 2. f. 93, b.

What thoſe muſt conſider who are endued with naturall wiſedome. pt. 2. folio 329, b.

Divers queſtions concerning Wiſedome in generall, and good Wiſedome in particular. pt. 1. fol. 438. and pt. 2. folio 23, 91. 93, a.

Why carnall Wiſedome ſo frequently oppoſeth the Law of God. pt. 1. folio 181, b. 340, a. and pt. 2. folio 91, b. 92, b. 93, a.

Publicanes. Concerning the lawfulneſſe of the Publicanes calling; and why they were ſo odious, and infamous. pt. 1. folio 280, b. 494, a.

Puniſhment. See Condemnation.

Purity. See Godlineſſe.

Purging. See Cleanſing.

Purgatory. Controverted queſtions concerning Purgatory. pt. 1. folio 75, b. 76, a. 202, b. 210, b. twice, and pt. 2. folio 126, 127, 128, 129, b.

Q.

Queſtions. See Interrogations.

Queene. What diviſions was betweene the Queene of the South, and the Jewes. pt. 2. fol. 133.

R.

Rachell. Who Rachel that wept was. part 1. folio 48, b.

Raine-Water. The nature of Water, and Raine. Part 1. fol. 256.

Ramah. Where Ramah was, pt. 1. fol. 48, b.

Reading To Read. How the Scriptures are to be read. Pt. 2. folio 75, a.

Reaſon. Wherein, and how Reaſon is oppoſite to Religion. pt. 1. folio 340.

Rebellion. It is not lawfull by Rebellion to avoid Perſecution. pt. 2. folio 28, a, 310, a.

Reckoning. See Account.

Reconciliation. See Forgiveneſſe.

Redemption. Divers queſtions concerning Redemption. Pt. 2. folio 263, b, &c.

Reed. What our Saviour meant by a Reed ſhaken with the wind. pt. 2. folio 69, a.

Refreſhing. Reſt. What Reſt imports, who may reſt. pt. 2. folio 100, b. 102, b, &c.

Who ſhall be Refreſhed by Chriſt, and and who ſhall not. Pt. 2. fol. 102, b. 103, a.

Regeneration. Divers neceſſary, and profitable queſtions concerning the definition, neceſſity, meanes, markes, and impediments of Regeneration. pt. 1. fol. 113, a. 412, b. 425, 426, a. and pt. 2. folio 93. 247, 248, 249, 250, 351.

Reliques of ſinne in the Regenerate. pt. 1. fol. 467.

Rejecting. See Caſting off.

Rejoycing. See Joy.

Relapſing. See Apoſtacy.

Religion. Queſtions concerning the Impediments of Religion, and the remedies againſt thoſe impediments. Pt. 1. fol. 34. and pt. 2. fol. 45, b. 52, a. 227, a. 267.

Queſtions concerning the true Religion. Pt. 1. folio 33, b. 125, b. and pt. 2. fol. 40, b. 46, a. 52, a, b.

Theſe who forſake Religion ſhall bee forſaken by the Lord. pt. 2. fol. 6, a.

Religion is not contrary to reason, pt. 1. folio 339, &c.
It is an excellent thing to be a Religious man, Pt. 2. fol. 198, b. 199.
Questions concerning the false Religion, pt. 1. folio 272, b. 273, a. and pt. 2. folio 177, b. 178, 179.
Remission. See Forgivenesse.
Renovation. See New, or Newnesse of life.
Repentance. See Conversion.
Repitition. Questions concerning the use, & utility of Repitition in preaching. Pt. 1. fol. 349, b. and pt. 2. folio 213, b.
Reprehension. Reproofe. Questions concerning Reprehension; viz. why, and how Sinners must be reproved, and who must reprove, and who must be reproved; and the markes and notes of holy reproofe, pt. 1. fol. 71. 267, 394, b. 397, b. 398, a. and 491, b. and pt. 2. 300.
Reputation. See Fame.
Resistance. To Resist. What is meant by this word Resist. pt. 1. f. 245, b, &c.
Rest. See Refreshing. Resurrection. The Resurrection of the body proved. pt. 2. fol. 285, a. 286, a.
Questions concerning the Resurrection of Christ. pt. 2. folio 383.
Revelation. Divers questions concerning the kinds of Revelation; and the Revelation of Christ, his word, and truth unto us. Pt. 2. fol. 81. 93, b. 94, a. 137, a. 181, a.
Revenge. Vengeance. We must not revenge injuries. pt. 1. fol. 246, a.
Revile. See Backbiting.
Reward. The true Reward of the righteous is after this life, and why? and the Objections to the contrary answered. pt. 1. fol. 142, a. 169. and pt. 2. fol. 258, b.
Riches. Rich men. Divers questions concerning the lawfull using, unlawfull abusing, and loving, and laying up of riches, and adhering unto them. Pt. 1. fol. 327, b. 328. 336, 337, 360, b. and pt. 2. fol. 330.
Why rich men are not so happy as the poore. Pt. 1. fol. 138, b.
Righteousnesse. See Iustice.
Rocke. Who is the true Rocke. pt. 1. folio 440.
What was signified by the rending of the Rockes at Christs suffering. pt. 2. folio 380, a.
Rome. The Church of Rome is fallen from the true Religion. Pt. 2. f. 6.

S.

Sabbath, or Lords day. Divers profitable and necessary questions concerning the Sabbath, pt. 2. fol. 113. 115, 116. 381.
Sacrament. Questions concerning the institution, and administration of the Sacraments. pt. 1. fol. 79, b. and pt. 2. fol. 34. 389, b. 390, a.
Sacrifice. Divers questions concerning the Sacrifices of Christians. pt. 1. fol. 36. 204, b. 207, a. and 324, b. and pt. 2. flo. 298.
Sadduces. See Pharisees.
Saints. Controverted questions concerning the intercession, invocation, and adoration of the Saints. pt. 1. fol. 129, b. 130. 132, b. 174. 290, b. 291, 292. 447. and pt. 2. fol. 56, a. 214, b. 285, b. 323, a. 379.
Against the canonizing of Saints. pt. 2. fol. 262, b.
The Saints in heaven know one another. pt. 2. folio 200, a.
Whether there be any overplus of the Saints sufferings, and satisfactions, which belong unto the Church-treasure. pt. 1. folio 188, a. and pt. 2. fol. 44, a.
Salomon. Whether Salomon was saved, or not. pt. 2. folio 324, b, &c.
Wherein the Lillyes excelled Salomon. pt. 2. fol. 347, a.
Salt. Divers questions worthy observation concerning good and unsavoury Salt. pt. 1. fol. 170, 171.
Salvation. Questions concerning the necessity, certainty, cause, conditions, way and meanes unto salvation, and the number that shall be saved. pt. 1. fol. 186, b. 416, b, &c. 420, b. 435, b. and pt. 2. fol. 97. b. 100. b. 105, b. &c. 311.
Divers erre concerning salvation. pt. 1. fol. 421.
Outward profession of Religion alone is insufficient unto salvation: but zealous profession shall be rewarded with glory. pt. 1. fol. 41. 43, a.
Salutation. What the salutations of the Iewes were. pt. 2. fol. 20, a.
Samaria. Samaritanes. Why the Apostles were forbidden to preach unto the Samaritanes. Pt. 2. folio 5, b. 6, 7.
What Samaria, and the Samaritanes were; and why the Samaritanes were so odious unto the Iewes. pt. 2. fol. 5, b. 6, b. 7.
Sampson. Wherein Sampson was a type of Christ. pt. 1. fol. 52, b.
Sanctity. See Godlinesse.
Sanhedrim. See Consistory.
Sathan. See Devill.
Satisfaction. Divers questions concerning Satisfaction both unto God, and man. pt. 1. fol. 71, b. 72, a. 205. 314. 445, b. 490, b, and pt. 2. fol. 258, a. 366, a.
Whether one man by his overplus of obedience may satisfie for another, pt. 1. folio 65, a. and pt. 2. folio 325, b.
Scandals. See Offences.
Schooles. See Collegies.
Schollers. See Learning.
Slander. See Backbiting.
Scoffers, Beriders. Questions concerning the punishment of Scoffers. pt. 1. fol. 510, b, &c.
Scribes. See Pharisees.
Scripture, Speech. Word, Word of God.
Divers singular questions concerning the definition, nature, markes, division, necessity, writing, reading, translation, use, abuse, excellency, contents, exposition, power, certainty, infallibility, utility, perspicuity, purity, and Author of the sacred Scriptures, and word of God. pt. 1. fol. 1, 2, 3, 4. 29, b. 30, a. 46, b, &c. 100, b. 101, a. 103, a. 104, b, &c. 105, 106, 107, a. 175, a. 245, a. 331, b. 347, a. 396, b. 397, a. 395, a. 492, a. 500, b. 513, b. and pt. 2. folio 34, b. 46, a. 94, a. 137, 138. 149, b. 285, a. 312, b. 388, a.
Who are enemies to the word of God. pt. 1. folio 100, b.
How many wayes the Scripture speaks, and how we may understand what it speakes, pt. 1. folio 213, 214, &c.
How the word is a seed. pt. 2. fol. 141, b. 142, a.
All are not happy who enjoy the word. Part 1. folio 446.
Three sorts of wicked words, and speeches. pt. 2. folio 329, a.
All our words are observed by God, and what words he observes, pt. 1. folio 350. 521.
Scrip. What is meant by Scrip. pt. 2. folio 15.
Secrets. What is meant by this word Secret; and who reveale secrets; and what is required of us in regard of secrets. pt. 2. fol. 146, b.
Security. Divers questions concerning the nature division, and causes of security, and remedies against it. Pt. 2. fol. 317, 318, 319.
Seed. What is meant by seed, and how many things are observeable therein. pt. 2. fol. 141, b. 142, a.
Seeke. What Seeking imports; and how many seekers there are. pt. 1. folio 350, b. 399, b.
Why many who seeke Christ find him not and how we must seeke. pt. 2 f. 171, b. and Pt. 1. fol. 325, a.
Selfe-denyall. See Denyall.
Separatists. See Anabaptists.

Sepulchers. See Buriall.
Serpent. The nature of Serpents; and wherein they may be imitated, and wherein not, pt. 2. f. 21, b, 22, 23.
Servants. Service. Divers profitable queſtions concerning the ſervice, and ſervants of God and Chriſt. pt. 1. fol. 320, b. 332, 333. 338. 469, a. and pt. 2. f. 55. 103, b.
The duty of faithfull ſervants. pt. 1, folio 469, a. and pt. 2. fol. 330, b.
Sheepe. Why, and wherein, we ſhould be like Sheepe. pt. 2, folio 169. 357, b.
Shekel. There was a double Shekel. pt 2. folio 365, b.
Sicknesſes. See Diſeaſes.
Shooes. What Shooes the Apoſtles muſt not provide. pt. 1. folio 15.
Sight. See Illumination.
Silver. See Gold.
Simony. Againſt Simony in Patrons of livings. pt. 2 folio 133, a.
Simplicity. How many ſorts of Simplicity there are, and wherein good Simplicity doth conſiſt. pt. 2 folio 22, b. 24, a.
Sincerity. Wherein ſincerity conſiſts, and what things are common to the hypocrite, and ſincere Profeſſor. pt. 1. fol. 163, a. and pt. 2. folio 135, b.
Sinne. Sinners, Queſtions concerning the nature, author, defence, hatred, pollution, power, evill, eaſineſſe, ſtrength, and puniſhment of ſinne; and remedies againſt ſinne, and impediments hindring us from turning from ſinne. pt. 2. folio 58, a. 100, b. 103, a. 113, b. 394, b. 395, 396. 409, a. 410. 467, b. 468, b. 489. and pt. 2. fol. 2, a. 66. b. 212, 213. 301, b, &c. and pt. 1. folio 520, b.
Queſtions concerning our freedome, and aſcenſion from ſinne. Pt. 1. fol. 19, a. 59, b. 129, b. 410, a. and pt. 2, folio 45, b. 67, b, &c.
Queſtions concerning the diſtinction of great, and ſmall; veniall and mortall ſinnes. Pt. 1. folio 185, b. 196. 200, a. 310, b. 311, 312. and pt. 2, folio 83, b. 84, a. 129, b, &c. 274, a. 299, b.
The Devill makes all ſinne to ſeeme beautifull unto us. pt. 1. folio 103, b, &c.
The firſt ſinne of all was Pride. pt. 1. folio 120, b.
How our ſinnes are to be borne. pt. 2, folio 100.
Whence it is that men more clearely ſee other mens ſinnes, then their owne. pt. 1. folio 393, 394.
Sinne is often committed in the performance of good workes. pt. 1. f. 394, a.
How many ſorts of Sinnes there are, Pt. 1. fol. 408, b.
Why we muſt reſiſt the leaſt, and firſt beginnings of Sinne. pt. 1. fol. 342.
Sinne is like unto a Feaver, and to the Palſie, and Leproſie. See Feaver, Leproſie, Palſie.
Why Chriſt is ſaid to have come of Sinners, or ſinfull Progenitors. pt. 1. fol. 9, a.
Queſtions concerning the ſorts, and puniſhments of ſinners; and how grace is ordinarily wrought in great ſinners; and the comfort of penitent ſinners. pt. 1. fol. 58, b. 356, a. 409, 410, a. 480, 481, b. 487, a. and pt. 2. fol. 101, 213, b. 220, b. 274. 281.
Reliques of ſinne in the beſt. Pt. 1. fol. 467.
Sitting. To Sit. What is meant by ſitting. pt. 1. fol. 116, b.
Why Chriſt ſate, when hee Preached. Pt. 1. f. 134, b.
Sleeping. To Sleepe. How many wayes men are ſaid to ſleepe. Pt. 2. fol. 143, b. 144, a.
Society. See Company.
Sonnes. See Children.
Sorrow. See Compunction.
Souldiers. Warre. Warfare. Whence it is that a Chriſtians life is a Warfare. pt. 2. folio 50.
How manifold our Spirituall Warfare is; and who are Chriſtian Souldiers. pt. 2. folio 50.
When Warres are lawfull. pt. 1. folio 246, a.
Soule. Wherein the ſoule excels the body. pt. 1. folio 342, b.
Divers and ſundry errours, and erroneous opinions concerning the ſoule. pt. 2. folio 125, b. 151. 179, b. 180, a. 198, a. 254. 258, a. 380, b.
Specters. See Spirits.
Speech. See Scripture.
Spirit. Holy Ghoſt. Spirits. Specters. Spirituall things.
Queſtions concerning the names, titles, Deity, Offices, perſon, operations, comforts, and conſolations of the holy Spirit. Pt. 1. folio 81, b. 82. 144. and part 2. folio 96, b. 116, b. 117. 138, 281, 292. 293.
Queſtions concerning ſpirituall things. pt. 1. folio 254, a. 271, b. 342, a. 401, a.
Why men naturally abhorre Spirits, and Specters. pt. 2. folio 155.
What is meant by this word Spirit. pt. 1. folio 138, b. 139. and pt. 2. folio 392, a.
What is our duty in regard of the motions of the Spirit in our hearts. pt. 2. folio 305, a. 329, a. b.
How the workes of ſpirituall and morall men differ. pt. 2. folio 350, b.
Staffe. What ſtaves the Apoſtles muſt not have. pt. 2. folio 15.
Starre. See Comet.
Stones. How God raiſed up children of ſtones unto Abraham. pt. 1. folio 73, a.
What is meant by theſe words, Command theſe ſtones to be made bread. pt. 1. folio 96, b.
Strife. See Contention.
Subjects. We muſt be the Subjects of Chriſt; and performe the duty of ſubjects. Pt. 2, folio 103, b. 296, 297.
Subordination. Why it is evill to ſuborne others. pt. 2. folio 372, b.
Subſidies. Taxes. Tribute. Theſe are to be payed to Princes. pt. 1. folio 248, a.
Succour. See Helpe.
Sunne. Queſtions concerning the Sunne. pt. 1. folio 256, a. 257, a. 258, a.
Superiours. The duty of all ſuperiors. pt. 2. folio 119, b.
Supper of the Lord. See Euchariſt.
Suſpition. The diviſion, and prohibition of ſuſpition. pt. 1. folio 424, b. and pt. 2. folio 121, b.
Sutes in Law. Queſtions, Cautions, and Rules, concerning going to Law. pt. 1. folio 45, b. 246, 247.
Swearing. See Forſwearing.
Sword. What is meant by Sword, Matthew 10. 34. I came to ſend a Sword. pt. 2. folio 50, a.
Synagogues. What the Iewiſh Synagogues were, and why Chriſt preached in them. Part 1. folio 124, b. 125, 126. 522, b. 523, a.
Synode. See Councell.
Syria. Divers queſtions concerning Syria. pt. 1. folio 130, b.

T.

Tabernacles. What the Tabernacles were made of, wherein the people remained in the Feaſt of Tabernacles. pt. 2. folio 270, a.
Taxes. See Subſidies.
Teaching. See Preaching.
Temple. Concerning the exceſſive coſt of beautifying Churches. pt. 2. folio 160, a.
Temporall things. See Covetouſneſſe.
Temptation. To Tempt. Queſtions concerning Chriſts being tempted. pt. 1. folio 35, b. 86, 87. 95, b.
Queſtions concerning the ſignification of this word, Temptations and which temptations are the ſtrongeſt. Pt. 1. folio 86, b. 96, a. 102, b. 108, a. 315, b.

When

When we are most sharply tempted, and how we may be best supported under temptation. pt. 1. folio 84, b. 85, a. 86, a.

Questions concerning those who are tempted of Sathan; and those who are not tempted; and the author, and sorts of temptation, and remedies against it. pt. 1. folio 86, a. 88, 89. a. 110, b. 112, b. 113, b. 315, 316, b. 317.

Questions concerning Gods tempting of Man, and mans tempting of God, and mans tempting of man. pt. 1. folio 88, b. 108, 109, 110, 111, 112. 315, b. 316. and pt. 2. folio 329, a.

Questions whether temptation may be without sinne; and how Christs temptations, and ours differ. pt. 1. folio 86, 87.

Testament. Why the second Volume of holy writ is called a Testament, and why the New Testament. pt. 1. folio 5, b.

Thankesgiving. Why we give thankes before and after meat. pt. 1. folio 307, a.

Theeves. Questions concerning theeves in generall, and the good Thiefe in particular. pt. 1. folio 328, b. and pt. 2. folio 375.

Theology. Humane learning necessary unto Theology. pt. 1. fol. 48, b.

Things. All things depend upon God. pt. 1. folio 101, b.

Things are called three manner of ways. pt. 1. folio 168, a.

Thirst. See Hunger.

Thoughts. How many sorts of thoughts there are. pt. 2. folio 168. And the evill of evill thoughts. pt. 1. folio 490, b. 491. a.

Threatnings. Why, and how all the threatnings of God shall be accomplished. pt. 1. folio 46, b. &c.

Tongue. See Mouth.

Touching. Touching was always of great esteeme. pt. 1. folio 516, b.

Traditions. Divers questions concerning humane Traditions. pt. 1. folio 11, a. 42, a. 103, a. and pt. 2. f. 1. 77.

Translation. The word may lawfully be translated into the truly same mother tongue. pt. 2. folio 34, b.

The Vulgar Translation is not the truest. pt. 1. folio 483, b.

Transmigration. Questions concerning the Transmigration of the soule, and the absurdity of that tenet. pt. 2. folio 151. 179, b. &c.

Transubstantiation. Controverted questions concerning Transubstantiation. pt. 2. folio 155, a. 195, 245, b. &c. 338, a. 342, &c. 357, b. 383, a.

Trees. Divers sort of Trees in generall, and of evill Trees in particular. pt. 1. folio 428.

Tribute. See Subsidies.

Trinity. The Trinity may not be painted. pt. 1. folio 81.

The Trinity in Unity proved. pt. 2. folio 391, a.

Trouble. See Danger.

Truth. We must enquire after Truth at the Ministers hands. pt. 1. folio 30, b.

The whole Truth must be taught, and why? pt. 1. folio 234, 235, a.

The Truth must be maintained even unto death. Pt. 2. folio 297.

How manifold Truth is. pt. 2. folio 289.

Tyre. Who the Tyrians were. pt. 2. folio 83, a.

V.

Vengeance. See Revenge.

Viper. The nature of the Viper. pt. 1. folio 70, b. and pt. 2. folio 128, b.

Virgins. See Maides.

Vision of God. Or beatificall Vision. Divers questions concerning the beatificall Vision. pt. 1. folio 164, 165.

Visitation. Why the sicke are to be visited. pt. 2. folio 333.

Ulcers. Three sorts of Ulcers. pt. 1. folio 505, b.

Unbeleevers. See Gentiles.

Uncleanesse. See Adultery.

Unity. See Agreement.

Unworty. Worthy.

Unworthinesse. Worthinesse. How many sorts of Unworthy persons there are; and why we must not converse with such. pt. 2. folio 17.

Divers questions concerning Worthinesse, viz. How manifold it is, what is meant by this word worthy, and whome worthy; and why we must live worthily, and wherein true worthinesse consists. pt. 1. folio 72, b. and pt. 2. folio 16, 20.

Vocation. See Calling.

Vowes. Questions concerning Vowes. How many sorts of Vowes there are, and what a vow is, and whether single life be to be vowed. See Monkes. and pt. 1. folio 234. 399, a. and pt. 2. folio 234, 236.

Usury. Divers questions concerning Usury. pt. 1. folio 248. 249, 250. and pt. 2. folio 331, a.

W.

Wariness. See Circumspection.

Warre. Warfare. See Souldiers.

Washing. See Cleansing.

Watches. Watchfulnesse. See Circumspection.

Water. See Raine.

Wayes. See Paths.

Weapons. See Armour.

Wickednesse. See Prophaneneſſe.

Will. Divers necessary questions concerning the will of God; and the will of man. pt. 1. f. 301, 302. 303 319, a, b. and pt. 2. folio 359, 360.

Wilderneſſe. Why John preached in the Wilderneſſe. pt. 1. folio 55, b.

Wine. The nature, kinds, and use of Wine, and wherein it is like unto Grace. pt. 1. fol. 503, b. 504, 505.

Wisedome. See Prudence.

Wisemen. See Magi.

Word. See Scripture.

Workes. See Actions.

World. See Covetousnesse.

Worship. Images are not to be worshipped. pt. 1. folio 114, b. God onely is to be worshipped. pt. 1. folio 114, b.

Why the publike worship of God is not to be neglected. pt. 1. folio 125, a. All Religions in the world enjoine some worship, and have some publike places for worship. pt. 1. folio 125, a.

Religious worship is not to be left for some circumstances which are amisse. pt. 1. folio 126, b.

Religious worship is not pleasing unto God, except it be accompanied with faith, and love. pt. 2. folio 114, b. 115, a.

Worthinesse. See Unworthy.

Wounds. Three sorts of wounds. pt. 1. folio 505, b.

Wrongs. See Injuries.

Y.

Yoke. Divers necessary and profitable questions concerning the sorts and kinds of Yokes in generall and of Christs Yoke in particular. pt. 2. f. 104. 107. 108. 116. 133.

Youth. We must serve God in our youth. pt. 2. folio 308, b. &c.

Z.

Zeale. Divers questions concerning good Zeale, both in regard of God, and our brethren, and our selves. pt. 1. f. 149, a. and pt. 2 fol. 74. 301, b.

The end of the Table.

CHristian Reader, although I hope thou shalt meet with no willing Errors, yet thou wilt, I am sure meet with some unwilling Errataes, especially in the Nine first sheets of the second Part. Now the faules which I first light upon, and met withall, both in those sheetes, and the rest of the Books, and which were committed by the overlight of the Printer, I intreat thee thus to amend.

In the first Part or Tome, thou readest thus:	In stead whereof, thou shouldest reade thus:	In the 2. Part or Tome, thou readest thus:	In stead whereof, thou shouldest reade thus:
Fol. 7, b. Seconds.	Two.	Fol. 4, a. Peter is called here Primus, First, absolutely, and none are else called the second, or third; therefore Primus doth not denote, &c.	Peter is called here primus, First, absolutely, and none are called the second or third: ergo Primus doth not denote a Primacy, or precedency, but &c.
Fol. 14, a. For the avoyding of Fornication; which are, &c.	For the avoyding of Fornication, or for Procreation, which are, &c.
Fol. 14, b. 5. 2. Place.	Phrase.
Fol. 15, b. Either by thinking amisse, and such, &c.	Either by thinking, or doing amisse, and such, &c.
Fol. 25, b. Historicall sense.	Allegoricall sense.	Fol. 8, a. Prerogation	Prerogatives.
Fol. 53, a. 5. 2. Venit.	Venit.	Fol. 10, a. And after manners	And after divers manners.
Fol. 55, a. Consolations.	Consultations.	Fol. 14, a. How to esteeme	How to procure.
Fol. 52, a. Of strong men, &c.	Be strong men, &c.	Fol. 14, b. [illegible]	Χαιρειν.
Fol. 59, a. Religion.	Resolution.	Fol. 15, a. Invitus facilo	Invitem facilo.
Fol. 70, b. 5. 2. A whole sentence is left out, to wit:	* The two former prehemineuces we allow of, but the last wee dislike, disclaime, and detest, neither Baptisme nor Circumcision having any such power in themselves.	Fol. 15, a. The love of ye world	The love of the world.
		Fol. 15, b. Will ye ritual pompe	With the ritual pompe.
		Fol. 16, a. Relation	Relative.
		Fol. 16, b. Enquiring	Requiring.
Fol. 75, a. Depth of obedience.	Dept of Obedience.	Fol. 17. Interpolle	Intrepide.
Fol. 76, b. True Christ.	True Church.	Fol. 19, b. Acrbi	Acerbe.
Fol. 83 [illegible] Teach ye Prophets	Teach the people.	Fol. 20, b. Medius	Medius.
Fol. 138, a. Vaga 70.	Or, vaga 70.	Fol. 21, b. Repose	Expose.
Fol. 139, b. Doth necessarily	Doth not necessarily.	Fol. 21, b. And rather the losse,	And rather to suffer the losse,
Fol. 200, b. And fro unbridled	And not from unbridled, &c.	Fol. 22, a. Rebeus	Rebeus, &c
Fol. 208, b. Reciliation,	Reconciliation.	Fol. 23, a. Intimate	Imitate.
Fol. 226. [illegible]	[illegible]	Fol. 25, a. Stirre to be fruitfull	Strive to be fruitfull.
Fol. Ibid. [illegible]	[illegible]	Fol. 25, a. Lear	Coat.
Fol. 243, a. Enforme	Enforce.	Fol. 25, b. Pressed upon	Preyed upon.
Fol. 279. Parti	Panis.	Fol. 26, a. The Serpent is on the earth, and by innocencie flye to the Heavens.	The Serpent is on the earth, the Dove in the ayre, so we by wisedome should dwell on the earth, and by innocency flye to the Heavens.
Fol. 292, b. May judge light,	May judge, Or light, &c.
Fol. 39[illegible] Can be produced	Cannot be produced.	Fol. 28, b. Fourthly, in these,	Fourthly, contains it in these.
Fol. [illegible] Without white	With one white.	Fol. 29, a. Mariceres	Mariceres.
Fol 419, a. Threw	Threed.	Fol. 30, a. Subrationa bona	Sub ratione bona.
Fol. 424, b. Canonicall	Channell.	Fol. 32, a. Provide in part	Provide, impart.
Fol. 443, a. Not [illegible] from	Not a span distant from.	Fol. 43, a. Paints	Peignes.
		Fol. 46, a. Serpere	Spernere.
		Fol. 50, a. Worthy vnfashions	Worldly vnfashions.
		Fol. 84, a. Generall notions	Generall motions.
		Fol. 92, a. Smell	Swell.
		Fol. 99, a. First, in so doing	For in so doing a man deprives himselfe of
		[illegible]	[illegible]
		Fol. 112, a. Presulsible.	Presulsible.

☞ Part. 2. Fol. 2. a. l. 4. Thou readest, These Mysteries, and no more; whereas these words and Periods are wholly left out.

☞ Fol. 56. b. In the end, five Errors are worthy to be noted, which I have set down at the end of the Errata, at the end of this Part, or Tome.

Fol. 271, a. Christ dwelleth,	Christ dwelleth in us,
Fol. 276, b. And beyond unto	And beyond unto Christ.
Fol. 277, a. To Christs in-	To Christs inestimable
[illegible]	[illegible]
Fol. 279, a. A Sight such	A Sight such as

FINIS.